You made a fine showing at Fort McClellan, at Anniston, Alabama, where they said it was so hot you couldn't stand it; yet, where it rained so hard your tent floors filled to the depth of four inches of water; where the wise birds said you wouldn't have a show for the cup; yet, you brought back not one cup but two.

A few of the wise acres at camp made cracks about our name, Presbyterian College, as they wondered if Baptist College or Methodist College were there, too. You haven't forgotten their indifference when P. C. was mentioned, nor have you forgotten how they sat up and took notice the day you got the two cups. But you had 'em going long before that; you showed that your officers had trained you to be the best soldiers there. Before you left you had 'em saying, "Gee, looks like P. C. wins everything every year."

Sunday kitchen plice was all in the game, or, for that matter, K. P. any day. Lemonade or tea concocted in a large new garbage can was part of the life; taking demerits and making merits; walking guard five hours at night and the next morning, without rest, taking a five-mile hike into the hills, the colorful dances, the city of Anniston, the people you met, all were a part of that life. And you say, as 800 boys must have said, "Well, it's the sort of thing you're glad you went through, but wouldn't care to go through again."

But you did a good job and brought home the bacon—or at least something to cook it in, anyway.

BUT WHY . . .

. . . does P. C generally take the honors, just as the cadets said, every year?

The answer lies in the simple statement that the military department has for the past eight or nine years been using the type of education which has now taken hold on the entire school program—that of personalized education.

It would not be true to say that the P. C. boys at camp were of superior minds and bodies than the boys of other schools, but it is true to say that they were of superior training. In a corps the size of P. C.'s individual attention is given to each boy, taking military; corrections are made, discipline is inculcated until the group that reaches Fort McClellan is a personalized, not a mere machine. Naturally, in schools where the corps are much larger it is not possible to give such personalized training.

But because of the limited number in P. C.'s corps, full and completely personalized training can be given to each cadet, and because such training is given is why P. C. has won in the past and will continue to win in the future.

SOUND OFF

— By —

E. A. JOHNSON

In the metamorphosis of a college man the two most involved steps are the changing of a high school senior into a college freshman and the changing of the freshman into a soldier. An energetic sophomore class can accomplish the first feat in a few weeks, but the other task is a year-long proposition. The work has begun, however, with such complicated training as distinguishing the left and right foot and practicing marching into chapel.

We of the senior class humbly call attention to the trophy case. Not that we would want to seem too proud of the cups won at camp, but it does look mighty good to see the old mug back home.

If any of you are looking for a way to pass a few hours, just walk up to a senior and mention Fort McClellan. Then sit down and listen to him talk about camp until time for the next meal. We quite agree that it is an experience worth talking about. Just try to find a man who would be willing to have foregone the experience—or who would be willing to go through it again.

We have been hearing wild rumors flying about to the effect that the batallion this year will boast of a fine, large band. Don't put too much faith in such talk. However, we will be mighty glad to see an improved band, especially if we can find one that can play the Alma Mater.

Along Greek Row

With Robert Black

The college freshman hears during his first two weeks at college much talk of and from fraternities and fraternity men. Perhaps he hears it all with understanding, but more often he only hears. It is a strange language to him for he has not yet learned the rules of grammar and speech of this new lingo. It is therefore to "Rat" Average Freshman that this week's column is dedicated.

For your information, "Rat," there are chapters of six national fraternities on the campus of P. C. They are, (if you have not yet found out for yourself) Alpha Kappa Pi, Alpha Lambda Tau, Beta Kappa, Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha, and Pi Kappa Phi, naming them in alphabetical order. And a goodly array of brotherhoods it is, as you will find out during the rush season. Rush season, by the way, corresponds to open game-bird season in certain aspects, but you will find that out soon enough.

Fraternity life on this campus is not the luxuriously devil-may-care existence that you have read of in fictitious treatises on the subject; it is rather a group effort to develop the social personality. No splended array of fraternity houses appears to make you lose sight of the true purpose of fraternities. Neither is fraternity life a regular cycle of houseparty gaiety and morning hangovers. It is, rather, a spirit of brotherhood which occupies a valuable place on the campus just as the honorary fraternities, such as Blue Key, Chi Beta Phi, Delta Chi Alpha, or Sigma Kappa Alpha. Of these and their work you have doubtless heard. And we would not forget Alpha Psi Delta, local sorority. If anyone asks you, "Rat," if there is a sorority on the campus, you tell 'em.

So that, in brief, is a picture of the fraternity situation. You will probably pledge a fraternity yourself within a few weeks, and if you can afford it I urge you to do so. But don't get the idea that your pledge gives you the right to raise—well, trouble!

SO THEY SAY

"I should have been very unhappy if I had been educated in America. I understand that you in your system can't cut lectures . . . When I was in school, I attended on the average of two lectures a week." A self-expose by Aldous Huxley, English author.

"We want college men who are football players, not just football players who incidentally are college men." Two in one or nothing, says Dana X. Bible, coach at the University of Texas.

"It's a woman's world. As far as a man is concerned, a dollar today is merely a 'S' which has been doubly-crossed." A cynic's sigh from Prof. R. L. Sackett, of economics at the University of Mississippi, that the women have control and spend more than her husband can earn. And what there seem to be more successful than ever females.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By Joe Commander.

That—School's really begun! Ain't that bad. Good ole books. Some stuff, grandma. Coming home on week-ends to be met at the door with the greeting, "When are you going back?" Nothin' like home, is there? Going out to the stand, my bus station, where I wait for some kind-hearted fellow to come by and give "Po Ole Joe" a lift. Football games where we always win—a moral victory—freezing to death and trying to pull over that winning touchdown. Mo' fun. Good ole frat socials. Everybody refusing to bring a date—thank God for freshmen. Sure, they'll be glad to get a date, without being urged—much. Everybody having the best exuses for not making the punch and aiding in the decorations. It always ends up with Mac and Billy doing the dirty work. Dances—Asking your best girl up and just waiting for that telegram at the last minutes saying, "Terribly sorry. Unable to come. Letter follows." Well, sometimes you don't get it and you rush frantically around getting a ride to meet her. After borrowing a tie, suit and a pair of shoes you go and fetch her to the good—I'd say delicious—Judd Hall meals. I wonder why she is so hungry after the dance. I can't imagine. Then comes the dance—Climb those rickety stairs to be met at the top by those Jesse James's without horses at the hat check room. I'd rather have that concession than a license to steal. Then comes the introducing with everybody wanting to introduce and nobody wanting to be introduced. Intermission. Dancing a little yourself after that and waiting for that good ole late date. Climbing up to the frat room where the man that turns on the lights is signing his death warrant. Deep breathing—I mean after they have rested from the long climb upstairs. Maybe the rooms are stuffy—yeah, maybe. Six o'clock comes and you go—your body does; your mind went to sleep at three o'clock. You stumble down the stairs, ride home and mumble good night. Fall in the bed and moan when that nine-fifteen class bell rings. Someone shakes you to get you out—must be somebody that went to bed soon, else would be up in the middle of the night. You manage to groan that you will meet the ten-five class and all the time you know you're lying. You lay awake five minutes trying to think up some good excuse that'll ease your conscience for cutting those classes. You don't learn anything in them anyway, you argue, so you sleep till twelve. Get up and eat—a little. Put your date on the bus and hope around the rest of the afternoon. That night they have the usual bull session discussing who had the cute dates and who got snaked on. Note—If you took your date home before five you got snaked on . . . So, far, far into the night.

ON TO CLEMSON SATURDAY!
LET'S GO! — P. C.!

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

TENNIS TECH

Oh, Mother, dear, the youngster cried,
As tears rolled down his cheek.
How could you send me to Erskine
To spend four years asleep.

And Clemson's out of the question,
I'll tell you that right now;
No use to spend three thousand bucks
To learn to milk a cow.

Now, Pa says that The Citadel
Will help me without fail;
But when I go to prison, Ma—
I'll pick a better jail.

So can't you understand that I
Will be a nervous wreck
Unless I go to Clinton, Ma,
And sign at Tennis Tech.

P. C. — CLEMSON

The local lads take on Clemson Saturday to start off another football campaign. The Cadets will present a strong, seasoned eleven against the "unknown" Presbyterians. With weaknesses at guard and center and a mediocre backfield, the Hosemen will be definitely below the 1936 standard. And yet, you never can tell what will happen in the P. C. camp.

Holcombe, Caldwell, Atkinson and McSween will keep the end positions strong and healthy. A trio of chubby little rascals, Hipp, Boswell and Evans, are helping Coach Johnson get his eight hours' sleep each night by their work at tackle. Won't know until after the Clemson game if we've "got something there" at guard and center.

The backfield is another unknown element in the team make-up. Not until several unexperienced men get action under fire will the truth be known. Well, anyhow, if we get whipped Saturday we can confidently say "wait until next year" because this year's crop of freshmen sho' look good.

Lufler Named Tennis Coach

Professional Netmen To Direct Popular Sport At Presbyterian College Coming Year.

Presbyterian college has announced the appointment of William C. Lufler of Atlanta, Ga., as tennis coach for the coming year.

Mr. Lufler is a tennis professional of many years experience, prominently known in tennis circles, and recognized as one of the games best authorities. He is at the present time tennis coach for the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Tennis club in the winter time, and in the summer he is tennis professional at the Piedmont Driving club of Atlanta. At the same time he is serving as coach for the Atlanta Junior Davis cup squad, and recently accompanied the squad on their trip to Clinton, where they met the Junior Davis cup squad of the Carolinas.

In addition to coaching the varsity and freshman tennis teams of Presbyterian college, Mr. Lufler will act as director of the annual Presbyterian college tennis clinic which will be held in Clinton this year on October 18, 19 and 20. He will also serve as coach of the Junior Davis cup squad of the Carolinas, of which President W. P. Jacobs of Presbyterian college is chairman, and will continue in the summer as tennis professional of the Piedmont Driving club at Atlanta, and for two months in the winter at the St. Petersburg club.

This combination of important connections presses Mr. Lufler forward as one of the foremost tennis professionals in the Southeast.

At the college he will succeed President Jacobs, who in the past has been serving as tennis coach, as director of the P. C. tennis clinic and as chairman and coach of the Junior Davis cup squad of the Carolinas.

Mr. and Mrs. Lufler will arrive in Clinton about Sept. 15, and he will immediately assume his duties and begin his activities in coaching the locals for the important tennis clinic which will be held in Clinton.

P. C., TIGERS MEET IN OPENER

FIRST GAME OF A TOUGH 1937 SCHEDULE

Team Goes Through Stiff Practices In Preparation for Beginning of Year's Campaign.

WILL BE PLAYED AT CLEMSON SATURDAY

By James Hafley

As the date for Presbyterian college's football opener with Clemson draws near, Coach Walter Johnson is busily engaged in putting his charges through long and hard drill sessions which include scrimmages, punting and psasing practice, and blocking dummies. The Blue Hosemen invade Tigertown Saturday for the traditional clash which should command the spolight in South Carolina football circles for the week.

P. C. and Clemson have a reputation for putting on one of the best football shows in the state and Saturday should be no exception. The two teams which will take the field at 2:30 next Saturday afternoon should be well-matched. In the weight department, the Presbyterians will be pretty well outclassed as Clemson will have a well-balanced, rugged line that should average well over 190 pounds, compared with the 180 of the Calvinists. P. C.'s pony backfield, Ritch, Culp, Horne, and Reynolds, will be given a chance to show what four fleet and light backs can do behind a fairly formidable line. P. C. and Clemson both held practice games among themselves Saturday afternoon in an effort to uncover reserve power and select talent for starting line-ups.

Starting for the Neelymen next Saturday probably will be: Sam McConnell and Gus Goins, ends; Fred Wyse and Curtiss Pennington, tackles; Bill Bryant and Oliver Payne, guards; Al Sanders, quarterback; Watson Magee and Ben Pearson, halves, and Don Willis, fullback. The pivot position is still rather uncertain, although the Tigers have several strong centers that can be used.

Presbyterian college will put a good team on the field to start with, but a great fear has been voiced by Coach Walter Johnson over a lack of reserve power. The Hosemen's starters should be Caldwell and Holcombe or McSween at ends, Boswell and Hipp at tackles, Todd and Evans at guards, and Lykes Henderson at center. The backfield will probably change as the game goes on, with the following getting the call from time to time: "Deke" Reynolds, Charlie Turner, Ed Lambright, Trigger Ritch, Jimmy Dennard, Lukie Culp, Shorty Horne, and several others.

Clemson's defense is being prepared for an open style of warfare that should make Saturday's game a gridiron classic. The Bengals are expecting a fast and hard-charging line and a set of speedy and elusive backs, which is just about what they are going to get. The battle should be between a heavy, powerful team with countless reserves and a small, light team with speed and shiftiness, but a limited number of reserves. This combination well deserves attention from all football enthusiasts and a throng of 8,000 is expected to turn out for the clash at Riggs field Saturday.

ROGERS GETS BUSTED RIB

P. W. Rogers, of Mullins, suffered a broken rib during Saturday afternoon's freshman football practice, when he hit a tackling dummy.

Rogers, who was a first string man on the Mullins high school team, did not learn that the rib was broken until after the completion of Saturday's practice. A reporter for The Blue Stocking was told that he would be able to return to practice in the next two weeks.

Prospects Are "Indefinite" For Saturday's Game

Penland Finds Team Lacking In Strength and Weight.

By Jake Penland

Presbyterian's 1937 grid machine enters its last week of practice preparatory to the annual Clemson opener with seven or eight men on the injured list and prospects "indefinite."

Veteran Coach Johnson has been stressing blocking and tackling in stiff daily workouts since the two-practices-a-day routine was discontinued Thursday. His greatest worries center about the guard, center, quarter and fullback positions, which are noticeably weak.

A quartet of backs have been missing practice because of varied ailments. Batchelor and Reynolds have shoulder hurts, but should be ready on Saturday. An early-practice foot injury has rendered Dennard inactive for some time and he may not see service against the Tigers. Horne is suffering from a severe leg bruise but should be ready to go on Saturday.

Coach Walter isn't losing any sleep over the end jobs. He has Pete Holcombe, Captain Steele Caldwell, Al McSween and "Bogator" Atkinson as leading contenders. Ralph Waldrep is out for the season with a back injury received a year ago in the tussle with Citadel's mean Cadets.

Macon Hipp and Cotton Boswell are safe bets at the tackles, and Large Evans is the third man in the picture. A half dozen men are competing for the guard berths. They are Henderson, Todd, Strain, Blalock, Burriss and McRae, the lesson may be shifted to center to alternate with Finney and Kee.

Isom and Culp are in the lead for quarterback work, with Snake Turner running third.

Either Shorty Horne, a junior, or Carlisle Griffin, a soph, will get the call at full.

The team is definitely lacking in balance and strength but a wealth of spirit and fight prevails at practices. And somehow the Blue Stockings always come through with a surprise.

Group Of Husky Freshmen Report For Grid Work

A strong, husky group of freshman footballers entered their second week of practice this afternoon with only a few bruises affecting their activity.

Several "big shots" are among the large roster of candidates. High school luminaries from Florida, North and South Carolina are among those parading their wares before Coach Lonnie McMillian.

Conventional early practice routine is being used to free the first year men from summer kinks, but scrimmages are slated for the near future. Assisting Coach McMillian is Ralph Waldrep, senior, who withdrew from varsity competition because of a back injury.

Dean Brown Makes Tour Of Schools

Dr .and Mrs. Marshall W. Brown, dean and registrar of Presbyterian college, this summer made an extensive tour of graduate and professional schools in the South, East and middle West, and studied their entrance requirements in order to better adapt Presbyterian college's training to their requirements.

The tour is an annual feature of Presbyterian's efforts to offer training that is individual and at the same time thoroughly acceptable to leading educational authorities. As a result of these studies Presbyterian has built up a confidence in its work in the graduate and professional field of American education and has been successful in securing fellowships and scholarships for its graduates interested in further college work.

FIVE P. C. GRADUATES GET POSTS IN ARMY

Five Presbyterian college graduates received commissions as second lieutenants in the United States army this summer.

J. B. Jacobs of Clinton, and Raleigh Shoemaker of Charlotte, are stationed at Fort Screven, Ga. Walter Williams of Clinton is at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. William Thompson received an appointment but his location is not known. Roy W. Forehand of Portsmouth, Va., is stationed at Fort Howard, Maryland.

In the Fourth Corps area allotment of men to active service, Presbyterian college, because of the small size of its unit, rates about .7% of one man. Actually, however, one-fourth of its 1937 military graduates have entered the service.

Of the fifteen men who constituted the senior unit this year, but twelve were 21 years of age, and therefore ineligible for commissions. Of these twelve, four are in active service now. Forehand was a graduate in the class of 1936.

P. C. ALUMNI WEDDINGS DURING THE SUMMER

During the vacation months two couples who are alumni of Presbyterian were married.

On August 14th, Miss Joyce Pitts, of Clinton, was married to Ralph Holcombe, of Atlanta. Miss Pitts was a member of last year's junior class, president of the local sorority, Alpha Psi Delta, and active in other student work. Holcombe is a graduate of 1934. The couple are now making their home in Atlanta, where Holcombe has a position in the office of the Texas Refining company.

Miss Suella Denson, of Clinton, a member of last year's sophomore class, was married to W. Chester Keller, of Greenville, September 5th. Miss Denson was an honor student at Presbyterian, while Keller, a member of the class of '37, was president of [illegible] and was prominent in other student activities. The [illegible] made their home in Decatur, Ga., where Mr. Keller is continuing his theological studies at Columbia, preparing to enter the Presbyterian ministry.

MAJOR WYSOR AT NEW POST IN WYOMING

Major Robert E. Wysor, Jr., and family are now at Cheyenne, Wyoming, where he will be stationed at Fort Warren for the coming year. Major Wysor was for eight years professor of military science and tactics at Presbyterian college.

During this period, his unit was rated excellent each year in the regular army inspection and won the general proficiency award at summer camp at Fort McClellan, Ala., five times, and second twice out of the seven times it was offered during his administration.

ginia in 1934 and his degree of doctor of philosophy from the University of Virginia in June of this year. He comes to Presbyterian highly recommended by the authorities of both Hampden-Sidney and Virginia. Dr. Coe's leave of absence was extended in order that he might continue his work as head of the National Youth administration in South Carolina.

Professor Weber has been appointed to fill the position of associate professor of English left by the transfer of Professor B. H. Boyd to the department of Bible.

Mr. Weber is a native of New York city. He was graduated cum laude from Williams college with the degree of bachelor of arts in 1930. From 1930 to 1932 he was a member of Brasenose college, Oxford, England, and received a bachelor of arts degree with second honors from the Honours School of English Language and Literature at Oxford in 1932. In 1936-37 he studied abroad on a Columbia university fellowship in English. He has taught English at the Sity college, New York, summer session.

Mr. Weber is an accomplished linguist, speaking German as fluently as he does English, reading French and Dutch with great facility and having a good working knowledge of Italian. He comes to Presbyterian college highly recommended by his superiors at Oxfords and Columbia.

PAN-HELLENIC COUNCIL GIVES PLANS FOR RUSHING SEASON

Two Socials and One Smoker Scheduled For Each Fraternity During Coming Weeks.

PERIOD BEGINS TODAY; ENDS OCTOBER 9TH

In its first meeting of the year the Pan-Hellenic council decided last week that the official rush season should begin today and last until 12 o'clock, Saturday, October 9th, according to an announcement by the council president, John Woodward. It was decided that each fraternity should have two socials and one smoker. A schedule of socials was worked out. Most of the socials will come either on Tuesday or Thursday nights. No fraternity may have any other socials than those scheduled during the rush period.

Quiet hour for pledging will begin at 12 o'clock Saturday, October 9th, and will end at 4 o'clock Monday, October 11th. On this Monday afternoon pledges will make their decisions as to what fraternity they wish to join and after the announcement of their choices the quiet hour will end.

President Woodward stated that plans are already being made for the annual pledge dance, which is directed by the Pan-Hellenic council and is held for the pledges sometime after rushing season has ended. He said that the dances will most likely come sometime in November, partly due to the fact that the armory, which will be used this year for the first time for the dances, will not be completed until then.

The schedule of socials and smokers is as follows:

Kappa Alpha: Socials on September 21 and 30; smoker on October 1.

Alpha Kappa Pi: Socials on September 21 and 30; smoker on October 1.

Alpha Lambda Tau: Socials on September 23 and October 4; smoker on September 27.

Beta Kappa: Socials on September 23 and October 4; smoker on September 27.

Pi Kappa Phi: Socials on September 28 and October 6; smoker on September 20.

Pi Kappa Alpha: Socials on September 28 and October 6; smoker on September 20.

Councilmen at the meeting were: President John Woodward, Pi Kappa Alpha; Harris Gray, Kappa Alpha; Billy Jones, Pi Kappa Phi; Louis Folley, Beta Kappa; Jake Penland, Alpha Lambda Tau; Lucky Culp, Alpha Kappa Pi.

Hemphill Gives Plans For 1938 College Year Book

Editor Malcolm Hemphill of The PaC-SaC announces that he is making rapid progress on the book and that it will be out at the scheduled time.

Hemphill has practically completed his "dummy" and plans to have it finished sometime this week and the work of "filling in" will start immediately.

C. E. Nichols, official photographer, has purchased modern equipment and states that the pictures will be much improved.

The looks of the book will be greatly improved due to the fact that Jacobs Graphic Arte company, printers, has obtained the services of expert artists and several new presses.

According to Editor Hemphill, the first pictures will be taken October 4, with the freshmen being the first to be photographed. Upperclassmen will follow in order.

The editor requests that amateur "candid camera" fiends present their unusual or comic snapshots for his perusal. Those accepted will be used in the variety snapshots page. He also asks the hearty cooperation of the faculty and student body in making the '38 PaC-SaC the most outstanding in recent years.

NYA Director

Professor Harry E. Sturgeon, assistant to the president, who again this year will direct N. Y. A. activities on the campus, as well as students' scholarship work projects.

Students Pick Tech Game For Annual Holiday

On last Thursday morning at a regular meeting of the Student body, the students decided to take Saturday, September 25, as their annual football holiday. This date was chosen so that the students could see the Georgia Tech-Presbyterian football game to be played in Atlanta at Grant field on Friday night, September 24.

It has been the custom of the administration for many years to give the student body one football holiday each year to allow the students to witness one battle of the Blue Hose on foreign soil. The selection of the date has been left entirely to the student body.

In years past the holiday has been taken on the day after Thanksgiving and the faculty gave the following Saturday so that the students had three holidays. The faculty made the reservation, however, that the holiday must be used at game time.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

Once again your INQUIRING REPORTER invades the far corners of the campus to bring you pointed and authoritative comment on college events of current interest: NEWS and VIEWS of the "Man On the Campus."

This week's interview led us to two personalities who traveled over half the distance around the world to attend P. C. From Tsing Kiang Pu, Kiangsu, China, to Frog Hollow, P. C., U. S. A., came HAMPTON and WILLIAM TALBOT, sons of an American missionary stationed at a settlement 200 miles north of Nanking on the Grand Canal.

As your reporter entered their room on the third floor of Alumni, he was instantly impressed by the politeness and friendliness of the greeting of these two Chinese-born Americans. They have come "home" to complete their education, but the Chinese-lettered tapistry, and pictures on one wall, and two flags on another, are ample testimony of their love for their adopted country, to which there can be no returning on week-ends or holidays.

Thinking of their friendliness, we asked them to tell us their impressions of P. C. and the student body. Said genial, smiling HAMPTON, 19, the elder: "I have been much impressed with the friendliness of the Henry Marsden Wilson, Jr., of New York, has joined the staff of Presbyterian college as personnel director and a committeeman on personalized student guidance. Mr. Wilson is a graduate of Presbyterian college, having finished with honors in 1936.

His work will consist largely in establishing contact with the leading corporations and professions in the nation and determining their requirements for young men entering their fields of endeavor. He will then, as a member of the college committee on personalized student guidance, have a key to the personalities, abilities, weaknesses, and past histories of each student. Using the two together he will place Presbyterian college graduates in the various fields of work which they desire.

Mr. Wilson, as an undergraduate at Presbyterian college, was unusually outstanding. He was particularly good in the field of forensics and of writing. He was rated the sixth best impromptu speaker in the nation in the national Pi Kappa Delta tournament in 1936, and was the only man representing a college east of the Mississippi river to reach the finals in the contest. Upon his graduation the faculty awarded him a "gold P" watch chain charm as recognition of the meritorious services which he had rendered the college as a student.

OUTSTANDING STUDENTS ARE PICKED FOR THEIR LEADERSHIP

A. K. Darby, H. Gray, M. Hipp, E. A. Johnson, W. W. Williams, J. Witherspoon and J. Woodward Are Chosen.

ALL ARE LEADERS OF SENIOR CLASS

According to an announcement given out today by its president, Frank Johnston, Blue Key, national leadership fraternity, at its first meeting of the year last Wednesday afternoon elected the following seniors to membership in the organization: Artemus Keitt Darby, Fort Motte; Harry Gray, Jr., Greenwood, Miss.; Macon Alexander Hipp, Charlotte, N. C.; Robert Wandell Williams, Chattanooga, Tenn.; John Alfred Witherspoon, Cross Hill; and John Woodward, Vienna, Ga.

These men were selected because of the leadership they have displayed in college in various fields of extra curricular activities, said President Johnston. He pointed out that Darby had shown leadership in the field of literary work; Gray in the field of music; Hipp in athletics; Johnson in military work; Williams in religious activities; Witherspoon in student government, and Wooward in social fraternities.

Darby is editor of the literary magazine, The Collegian. He is a member of The Blue Stocking staff, pianist for the glee club and orchestra, and is active in other studuent affairs.

Gray is president of the glee club, director of the orchestra, and director of the R. O. T. C. band in which he holds the rank of captain.

Hipp is captain of this year's track team, a member of the varsity football team, and during his three years in college has each year won letters in these two sports.

Johnson was master sergeant of the R. O. T. C. his junior year and is this now cadet major of the corps. He is active in other student work, being a member of the debating team, and of Sigma Kappa Alpha, honorary scholastic fraternity.

Williams is president of the Y. M. C. A. this year and during his college years has been an active worker in the organization. He is also a member of Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic fraternity.

Witherspoon has been a member of the student council for three years and last year was a candidate for student body president. He is president of the International Relations club and of Chi Beta Phi, national scientific fraternity.

Woodward is president of the Pan-Hellenic council, a member of the tennis and basketball teams, and a member of The Collegian and The Blue Stocking staffs.

The election of these seven men brings the membership of Blue Key up to 18. The other three members are Frank Johnston, Joe Commander, and Cliff McLeod.

Johnston said that an election for other student leaders would be held later in the year at which time members of the junior class will be accepted as members.

Johnston Elected Blue Key Head

At its first meeting of the year last Wednesday, Blue Key, honorary leadership fraternity, elected Frank Johnston, senior of Greer, as president. Cliff Leod, senior of Ocala, Fla., was chosen vice-president, while Joe Commander, senior of Florence, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Johnston, vice-president of the student body, was elected to Blue Key in the early part of his junior year because of his leadership in student government, while McLeod and Commander were elected after the spring election last year when the former became editor of The Blue Stocking, and the latter president of the student body.

Forensics Group To Begin Work For This Year

Hugh Holman, foresics coach, has announced that plans are being formulated for the work of the forensics group for the coming year.

The group again will go to Winthrop college sometime in December to attend the annual Strawberry Leaf practice forensics tournament, which is composed of representatives from the leading colleges and universities of the East. Later on in the year the group will attend other Eastern tournaments which will be held at Winthrop.

Also, plans are being made to secure several intercollegiate debates with other schools in this section.

All the men from last year's debate team returned to school this year. They are: E. A. Johnson, Roy Hutchinson, Dugald Hudson and Cliff McLeod. The two men who did the oratorical, extemporaneous and impromptu speaking for the school last year, Wandell Williams and Hubert Wardlaw, also have returned.

The debate team has not begun its work yet due to the fact that the subject for debate, which is given out by Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic fraternity, has not been announced for this year. The question used in last year's debating was, "Resolved, that congress shall be empowered to enact minimum wages and maximum hours legislation."

Coach Holman stated that he plans to call a meeting of all those interested in taking part in forensics sometime in the near future.

Tenor Spellbounds Crowd At Annual Rat Run As Freshmen Have Hot Time

By A. K. Darby

Marked by the hoarse vocals of freshmen and the blast of one lone trombone, the "rat run" was put through last Tuesday night with the able assistance of the upper classmen. There was the customary long rope adorned with pajama-clad, howling figures, snaking over the grounds of Dr. Spencer's home, up Broad street, and through the orphanage grounds to the business section where various concerns presented them with candy and other food that few but the most hardy had any appetite for.

After parading around for a while, there was a session at the monument designed to remove the bushel from various freshmen lights. Rudely surprised were the sophomores when their choice for the "voice of the year" turned out to be just that. The freshman possessed a very nice tenor and drew a round of applause instead of the usual catcalls accompanying such performances. The next singer fulfilled everyone's worst hopes, however, and mounted a song whose text was only exceeded by its rendition.

When all the hackneyed situations had been exhausted, the beast in the upper classmen came rushing to the fore and a gauntlet reaching from the traffic light to the Casino theatre was formed, down which several budding track men revealed their wares on the way to their free show (most of them had already seen it), where they stood in their seats.

A hot time was had by all.

Chi Beta Phi Plans Meeting

Jack Witherspoon, president of Chi Beta Phi, national honorary scientific fraternity, has announced that the first meeting of the fraternity will be held Tuesday night. At the meeting plans for the coming year will be discussed and a program committee appointed.

"There will be open meetings from time to time to which freshmen and sophomores will be invited," he said, "although one is not eligible to join until the end of his sophomore year." He further stated that if it were possible there would be a good outside speaker at every meeting.

Other officers are as follows: Harris Gray, vice-president; Abram Briggs, secretary, and Louis Heckle, treasurer.

Leave Home Far Behind To Enroll At P. C.

Two students traveled over half the distance around the world to enroll as freshmen at Presbyterian college. Hampton and William Talbot deserted the far-torn borders of China to enter the cloistered atmosphere of the American college.

They are the sons of an American missionary stationed at Tsing Kiangpu Ku in northern China, two hundred miles above the city of Nanking.

They became interested in Presbyterian college's personalized program of education through some of the college bulletins which fell into their hands, and after making inquiries from Dr. Samuel P. Fulton, an alumnus of the college who is in Japan, they set about registration.

CAMPUS CRUISING

WHAT'S WHAT ON OTHER CAMPUSES

By PETE McCORMICK

Hi gals! Heah is yo' ole Campus Cruising Pete again, ready to bring you the dope for the season 1937-38, and I'm really going to shoot a foul grade this year. As a newboy last year, I was afraid to speak my mind (?) but now that I am a wise fool, I can step on toes and get away with it. To the krill—on with the show, McCormick. I fell that urge to blow off some steam.

Late Flashes From the College Newsfront

CCC (Clemson Cow College) opened up amid bursts of stampeding cow and pig hoofs, numerous "oinks" and "moos," cackling hens, cowhands hollering for "newboys," milk squirting in all directions as freshman farmboys take milking tests which are required before one can enter the "Cowlotter's Paradise." More reports will follow in next week's issue concerning the CCC. P. S.—Due to the fact that it takes a week to reach civilization from Clemson, our next report on the Cow College may be delayed until week after next.

The Bulldog of Citadel rears its ugly head and yaps that the enrollment of convicts for this year comes near the 1,000 mark—and there is a sufficient amount of bars for every Kaydet to look through. The cells this year are more modernly equipped. Mattresses have been secured for all the bunks and washbowls have been put in every cell.

Furman has announced that her "Purple Hurricane" blew in a lot of new students. Ah, P .C. boys, we will never forget how the Purple Hurricane was booted out of the field by the feet by the Blue Stockings last year as we stomped them in basketball, baseball, and track. However, we won't mention last year's gridiron classic with the "Breeze" from Furman.

The U. S. C. Gamecock crows from hi sperch on the fence. Around 1,500 or more student staggered in for the '37-'38 session. Outstanding among the entries was the all-Southern Nobottom Slugger from Whiskeybarrel, Texas.

No word has been received from a number of other campuses in the state. However, we will flash reports from these in the next issue.

"History is like a grapefruit. There is more to it than that which strikes the eye." — Dr. Catherwood, Ithaca college.

The placement bureau of Indiana State Teachers' college has an order for a man to coach the athletic teams, supervise the teachers, run the boy scouts, conduct the orchestra, and speak Spanish. He doesn't have to drive the school bus. Pretty soft!

Working students from some midwestern colleges went on strike in the Iowa cornfields, lying down for higher wages. The strike failed because the bosses could not tell the difference.

Dramatic Club Makes Its Plans For New Year

Robert Black, president of the dramatic club of the college, announced today that he will meet all freshmen and upper classmen interested in dramatics in the college chapel Tuesday night at 7 o'clock to discuss plans for the year.

President Black stated that the club is anxious to start work on a play to be presented in the near future in Clinton and probably in Laurens. The club also is trying to arrange to present the play in another school and have that school present a play in return.

Delta Chi Alpha To Hold First Meet Wednesday

Hubert G. Cliff McLeod will lead the devotional for the evening.

The fraternity plans to send delegates to the fall convention which will be held at Wofford college, Spartanburg, when the expansion program of the national convention will be discussed.

Other officers of the fraternity are: D. M. Morrison, vice-president; W. H. Wilkerson, secretary-treasurer, and M. C. Patterson, chaplain.

Cliff McLeod, a member of the local Gamma chapter, is president of the national organization, while Wardlaw is national secretary.

The Collegian Will This Year Have New Features

Editor Darby Lists Prospective Changes To Be Made.

Keitt Darby, editor of The Collegian, quarterly literary magazine of Presbyterian college, announced today that the first issue of the publication would be off the press sometime the latter part of October. He named Cliff McLeod as associate editor for the year.

When asked what changes would be made, Editor Darby replied, "As to content, I am going to modify it a bit. I want it to be reflective of the student's spirit as well as the student's effort. In view of the fact that it is a literary magazine it still will be literary, but I am going to inject more humor in it. It will be printed on a different kind of paper. The cover will have a picture of some phase of college life instead of the usual picture representing a season of the year."

He also stated that all material must be in by October 5, and that criticism will be appreciated. Some has already been given which has proved to be very helpful.

Darby emphasized that every effort will be made to make the magazine more representative of the college.

Dr. Jones Head Of College's New Advisory Group

Students' Personal Guidance Committee Formed Among Members of Faculty.

SEEKS TO AID STUDENTS IN PERSONAL PROBLEMS

In order to facilitate the forming of friendly relations between faculty and students, the administration has created a "committee on personal student guidance." Dr. Dudley Jones, professor of psychology and philosophy, has been chosen as chairman of the cmomittee, and is assisted by Turk Osman and H. M. Wilson, Jr.

In an interview with Dr. Jones he revealed that the purpose of this committee is to try to make instruction a matter of cooperation between faculty and students. The desire of the committee is to make each student feel free to call upon the faculty when faced with problems from time to time. Part of this program is to make these years of college life as pleasant and helpful as the faculty know how. The committee will try to help each student find himself, to assist him in discovering the latent powers within him, what his abilities as well as weaknesses are, and the direction in which his life is running.

The committee proposes to carry on personal guidance during the years of the student's college course, to try to help him stake out the right course to follow, to help him choose an ideal of life, and aid him in reaching that aim or ideal while still in college. But also the committee proposes to help him find a place even after leaving college; to help him discover what phase of life work he should enter, whether it be medicine, law, ministry, msic, art, engineering, teaching, etc. Thus they hope to find his tastes and preferences and help him to find some close friend on the faculty.

Dr. Jones said that he or one of the committee will try to have a conference with each student in the college by the end of the first semester.

Students will be given aptitude and personality tests, some of which are required, while others may be taken only if the student desires to undego them.

Dr. Jones said, "We hope the students will come to us at any time they wish to do so. We wish to develop a warm feelnig between the faculty and student body." Dr. Jones stated that he would be at the college in the mornings and will have office hours also in the afternoons.

Any interview with a student will be held in strictest confidence. If a student in even in trouble from some infraction of a college rule, Dr. Jones requests that he be not afraid to interview him. It is desired that no student feel that his situation would not be worthy of consideration, nor does the committee wish any student to have any problem without seeking counsel.

There is nothing required in these conferences between student and faculty. The student must voluntarily seek the advice of the committee.

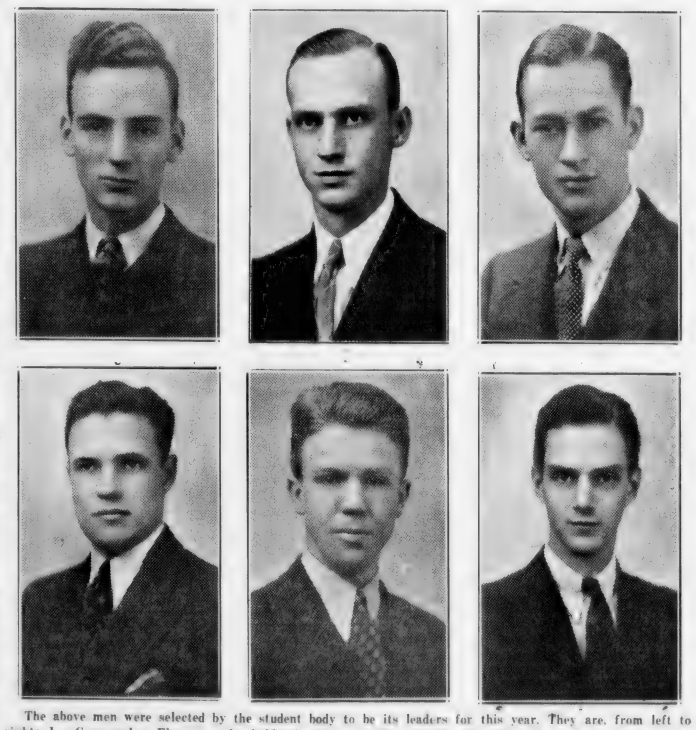
I. R. C. Holds First Meeting Of Year

Plans for the coming year were discussed at the weekly meeting of the International Relations club last Wednesday night in Dr. Brimm's class room. A program committee was appointed consisting of George Beatty and R. K. Timmons.

For the coming year, meetings will be held every Wednesday night at 7 o'clock instead of every other week as has been the custom in previous years. A fine will be imposed for all unexcused absences.

There will be outside speakers for some of the meetings, and all members will be given an opportunity to be on the program sometime during the year. Also, at each of the meetings there will be a general discussion of current events of importance during which members express their opinions.

There are a few vacancies in the club due to graduation of seniors last year. At present there are 14 members. An examination will be held sometime in the next month to admit new members. Those making the highest grades will be taken in. Every fourth meeting will be an "open meeting" to which the student body is invited.



Officers for the year are: President, Jack Wilkerson; vice-president, George Beatty; treasurer, Leon Hendrix; secretary, Alvin Chapman.

New Additions To the Presbyterian College Faculty

The above three men were added to the faculty this year. They are, from left to right: Major Alexander Cummings, assistant professor of military science and tactics; Dr. C. Rudolph Hamrick, professor of education, and Kurt Weber, associate professor of English.

They are, from left to right: Joe Commander, Florence, who holds the highest office according to rating of the faculty and student body, president of the student body; Cliff H. McLeod, Ocala, Fla., editor of The Blue Stocking; Malcolm Hemphill, Griffin, Ga., editor of The PaC-SaC; Wandell Williams, Chattanooga, Tenn., president of the Y. M. C. A.; A. K. Darby, editor of The Collegian, and Frank Johnston, Greer, vice-president student body and the Y.M.C.A.

Improvements On Campus, Buildings During Summer

During the past summer the administration made numerous improvement on the campus and buildings. With the opening of P. C. for the new session, students came back to find the dormitories repaired, the Y.M.C.A. remodeled and refurnished, classrooms repainted and repaired, and other improvements made.

The college chapel has been repainted, furnished with new seats, and also new shades for the windows. A new stage has been built, and the arrangements of the seats has been changed to assure greater seating capacity, which was necessary due to the large number of freshmen enrloled.

The Y.M.C.A. has been almost completely refurnished as well as painted. An extra lounging room has been installed in the "Y" and its general appearance is much improved. New curtains and rugs aid in beautifying the rooms.

Smyth dormitory has been repainted, the library and science building repainted and refurnished to a certain extent, and trees and shrubbery also has had attention.

Appreciation

For lack of appreciation many a fine spirit has fainted by the way, many a loving heart has shut itself up in loneliness, many an inspiring soul has fallen short of success. A man does a piece of work in the home, or the church, or the community, and he does it with all the earnestness and skill of which he is capable, and he feels he has done it well, and yet not one word of encouragement comes to him. His enthusiasm is chilled, and he says: "What's the use of excelling if nobody cares?" There is nothing so pathetic in life as to see men, women and children every day hungering and thirsting with the deepest, direct longing, while all around are those who could satisfy yearning if only they would let fall a few gracious kindly words.

Vocational Guidance

Out of the English language the administration has concocted a phrase that, because of its originality and full meaning, must be enclosed in quotation marks—"Personalized Education."

To carry out one side of this "Personalized Education," the administration has appointed a committee headed by Dr. F. D. Jones. This committee is the Vocational Guidance Committee. Its purpose has been defined as that of aiding the student to find his place in life.

The need for this group is based on the simple, well-known truth that few college students come to school with an definite idea in their minds as to what work they should like to enter for life. The committee purposes to make this less true at Presbyterian.

Furthermore, this group purposes to aid students in other personal problems connected with their school life.

Little can be said for or against any plan that is close to idealistic except: Wait and see.

The Blue Key Selects

The election of new men last week into Blue Key, the national leadership fraternity, definitely points them out as foremost leaders of the student body. Election to this organization is the crowning effort of the progressive student's attempt to make something of his college life, and is the recognition of the accomplishments of the student.

Let, while each of these men has shown himself to be a leader in his respective field of endeavor, there are other leaders on the campus who are foremost in their respective fields. There are those who show their leadership in various ways, such as debating, scholarship, athletics, preaching, being president or leader of some minor organization. These are the leaders who sometimes are never given proper recognition.

In a college like Presbyterian, where there are so many opportunities for one to become a leader, naturally there are going to be a good many leaders. Unfortunately, Blue Key cannot recognize all these with membership, and it is to these unrecognized leaders that we wish to give respect and admiration as well as to those who are recognized. To the presidents of the Dramatic club, Delta Chi Alpha, the Ministerial club, the presidents of the various fraternities, the debaters, orators, the scholars, the athletes, the military leaders and others, we say that you have become leaders, which has been the wish of the administration.

But out of the numerous leaders on the campus Blue Key had to select the few most outstanding ones, and apparently it has done a good job in its selection.

At It Again

To the old students we say: Son, you're at it again! Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors, all grown somewhat sedate and sophisticated in view of the Freshman, are entering upon a new year which has a different significance for each class.

The Sophs, now far from the extreme of frightened rats, have gone to the other extreme of exhuberant cockiness before their lowly brethren, the Freshmen. At present the Sophomores are principally engaged in welcoming the Freshmen and making them feel at home—with paddles. Another prime object in the Soph's life is making advanced R. O. T. C.

Perhaps the fullest year in receiving honors comes during the Junior year, for it is then that the student is elected to office, becomes captain of some sport, makes Blue Key or receives some other honor. Someone has said that the Junior year is the most insignificant of them all, but here it is not. Most decidedly it is the full year of college life.

The Senior year is the tapering off year. Those who have won honors and offices during their junior year are now fulfilling their obligation with the exultation of victory well forgotten over the summer months of vacation. Others of the class are at least beginning to figure on getting enough quality points and hours with which to graduate. During the second semester when Juniors officers have come in, the lordly seniors will sit back in complacency and smirkingly watch the efforts of their younger brethren while they themselves are trying to ignore the fact that all they're around for is a diploma and the gong.

SOUND OFF

— By —

E. A. JOHNSON

We don't know whether congratulations are in order for the instructors or the new students, but certainly the progress made during the first week of military training and the general spirit of the corps is commendable. If the effort put out by the company officers is prophetic of the year's work, there will be some stiff competition for the "best-drilled company."

The first call has already gone out for basic men to make up a special platoon for instruction in fancy drill. We are glad to see that this work has been resumed. The platoon of sophomores who put on a demonstration of this type last year won a good deal of praise. The idea of taking men from both the freshman and sophomore classes makes us think that the fancy drill platoon will become a permanent organization at P. C.

It is a pleasure to note the ambition of the new military students. No less than a dozen freshmen have asked this columnist how soon uniforms will be here. We are glad to see that they wish uniforms of their own to polish as well as those of upper-classmen.

Don't be surprised some fine morning to see some of our cadet officers proudly sporting "swagger sticks." While this addition has not been definitely recognized as part of the uniform, we know that something has been done towards obtaining these little ornaments for our sporty senior class.

The juniors in military have one fine incentive for good work this year. The men who are taking the advanced training without pay are a constant threat to those on the pay-roll. Now that there are thirteen men ready to step up and fill the place of anyone who decides to take it easy, we should see a lot of good work out of the class. These juniors have already shown themselves to be good soldiers, and with this extra incentive should be one of the best classes ever turned out by the school.

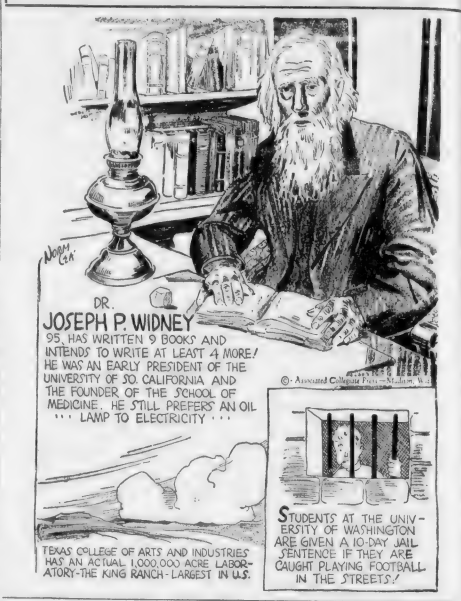
Once again rushing season opens with a bang to hold the attention of P. C.'s six fraternities. The season has been somewhat shortened this year, with each fraternity entertaining with two socials and one smoker for the season.

As a matter of information to freshmen, a short history of each fraternity follows:

Alpha Kappa Pi was founded at Newark College of Engineering on March 23, 1926. Eta chapter was established at Presbyterian college May 12, 1928.

Alpha Lambda Tau was founded in 1916 at Oglethorpe university in Atlanta. Iota chapter was established at Presbyterian college in 1927.



Beta Kappa was founded at Hamline university on October 15, 1901, and incorporated as a national fraternity in 1912. Alpha Eta chapter was established at Presbyterian college in February, 1930.

Kappa Alpha was founded in 1865 at Washington and Lee university. Beta chapter was established in 1929.

Pi Kappa Alpha was founded at the University of Virginia on March 1, 1868. Mu chapter was established in 1890.

Pi Kappa Phi was founded at the College of Charleston in 1904 and three years later, in 1907, Beta chapter was established at Presbyterian college.

Now, some advice to the females:

Women who overdo physical education are likely to develop big feet. Gentlemen like girls broadminded, but not broadfooted.

We wonder why that woman said, "Is that really CHARLIE TURNER? Well, good!" . . . We wonder what happened to JACK PASCAL after the rat run? Oh, yeah! Well, he wasn't. . . . Rat "FOOTSIE" COOPER, you'd better make friends with Mutt N.—that is, if you are to continue your evening promenades . . . CARL "TWO-MILE" McCULLY ,the only Sharon boy to make good, has really got the biz when it comes to handling the fems a goul grade that makes their hearts beat so much faster (maybe). . . . "HI-GALS" ADAMS, bloodhound after her heart, took "MOUTHPIECE" McLAURIN and "DINGLEBERRY" down to the end of the plaza to see the "Hi-Gals" from Charlotte, and how. McLaurin was submerged in a mass of sweet mush.

My selection for the craziest, funniest and best "rat" on the campus is "BALL O' DUST" BEARD, of Camden, S. C. Most nonchalant "newboy" is "RAT MOUSE" MEISKY, of High Point, N. C. This boy is of all-state fame in high school football. Toughest freshman on the campus is "TOUGHIE" EMBLER of Anderson, S. C. Woe be unto him! Ye ladies' man among the "rat" class is "HE-MAN FOOTSIE" COOPER of Blackville, S. C.

Familiar Scenes:

P. C. boys with faces in letters from the gal back home, off at school, etc. Ain't love grand!

Freshmen tipping caps to all upper classmen, squaring all corners, and sitting down on their stomachs. Oh, yeah!

Sophs with paddles in hand, hollering "Newboy!"

"Rats" diving under beds and locking doors at the call of "Freshman!"

BILL JACOBS, disillusioned by a fair damsel from Lander, has definitely changed his tactics and is doing a little "snaking" of his own. It seems that he received a letter t'other day from a friend asking him to use discretion before he mercilessly wrecks a happy romance. You shouldn't be so cruel, Bill!

ARTHUR McELROY expresses relief at having had experience in parachute jumping before visiting the Eiffel tower in Paris this summer.

We have reliable information that PEGGE HARDING, attractive young co-ed, received a telephone call from the recent object of her affections. Can this be a renewed romance, Pegge?

BAXTER CARPENTER and JOE COMMANDER, illustrious gentlemen (?) of the army, are receiving compliments daily on the fine work they did at camp this summer in winning the proficiency cup single-handed!

Rumor has it that a certain sophomore from Augusta came dangerously close to committing matrimony this summer. It seems that he escorted his beloved to the parsonage with the best of intentions, only to be disappointed by the absence of the parson. Wonder how it feels to come that close! P. S.—Tell us, Charlie!

P. C.'s forsaken lovers—commonly known as SHULER, RICHARDSON, and COMMANDER—plan a reunion to be held at Columbia college, their erstwhile "stompin' ground," in the very near future. Perhaps a reconciliation is in the offing. You never can tell!

Another record falls, and WANDELL WILLIAMS and PECKIE ANDERSON, pride of the Tennessee mountains, and the Bean Center of the World (Lake City, to freshmen), respectively, and champion campus bull-sessionists, go down in defeat before the well-prepared tales of the freshmen from North Carolina. Believe you me, these freshmen beat a mean jaw!

GEORGIA TECH NEXT GAME

HOSEMEN SOUNDLY DRUBBED IN CLEMSON OPENER

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

TOMORROW IS ANOTHER DAY

A P. C. loss to Clemson is not unusual. We seldom put a whipping on those farmers from Oconee county. And yet, Presbyterian football teams have gained respect and admiration through the years for clean, capable and splendid performance. A 46 to 0 loss is not only unusual but a bitter dose to swallow.

But tomorrow is another day. Next year is another year, and those freshmen are another reason for looking happily into the future. During the game Saturday, "Grubby" Howard was walking around restlessly, and itching to take on the whole Tiger team. "Grubby" a former Jacksonville high school star, is going to town in freshman practice. A sure bet for varsity stardom, he also handles a basketball with skill.

SATIRICAL MAN

Clemson had just scored another touchdown to make the score bigger than Big Evans. A P. C. supporter yelled out, "Just wait until we get you on our tennis courts!" You've got something there, old friend.

NEW COACH

And speaking of tennis (do you mind?) Coach Lufler arrived Saturday morning to get things in shape for the forthcoming clinic. There will be more racqueteers in Clinton soon than were in Chicago during Al Capone's heyday.

The clinic is scheduled for the latter part of October. It should further strengthen P. C.'s claim as "the South's tennis center." It should also make some scantily-clad participants mighty cold. 'Cause that north wind don't play around in the latter part of October.

Nine More Games On Hose List

Nine more games will be played and three states invaded before the completion of P. C.'s 1937 grid schedule. Road trips include Atlanta and Emory, Va.

The Hosemen meet Georgia Tech in Atlanta Friday night to stand their hardest test of the season. On Saturday of the following week, Erskine's Fleet will be taken on at Due West. A pair of home games follow on successive Friday nights. Citadel's Cadets come to Clinton for a session under the lights October 8. On October 15 Newberry will be entertained in a "Little Four" contest.

P. C.'s sixth opponent comes in the form of Furman's state championship eleven at Greenville. The game will probably come off under the 90,000-watt lighting system recently installed at Sirrine stadium. Billy Laval's Emory and Henry team plays host on October 30.

The Hosemen return to home soil the following week to battle their old rivals, Mercer, in a night game. Two weeks of inactivity precedes the Saturday, Nov. 20, tilt with Carolina at Columbia. This will be the first meeting of the two teams in several years.

The season winds up at Spartanburg with the Hosemen taking on Wofford's Terriers. All games taking place in Clinton will come off under the 72,000-watt lighting system.

New Tennis Coach Arrives On Campus

Among First Duties Will Be To Prepare For Clinic To Be Held Here At Early Date.

William C. Lufler, arrived here last Saturday to take over his duties as tennis coach at Presbyterian college. Plans are at present to have at least twelve men under the direction of Coach Lufler.

According to some observers, prospects look good for the best tennis team Presbyterian has ever put out and they see the likelihood of P. C. winning the state championship this year. Among the letter men returning from last year are: Captain George Beatty, John Woodward, Harris Gray and Frank Johnston, Lykes Boykin, a member of the freshman team who showed rare ability last year, also will be eligible for varsity play this year.

Several tennis players have come in with the new students, among whom are two juniors from Presbyterian Junior college, Maxton, N. C., who promise to give the old P. C. men a race for their berths.

The team at present is looking forward to the annual tennis clinic which will be held here soon, at which time several outstanding players of the country will be present.

Tech Engineers Next For Hose

Atlanta Will Be Scene of Friday Night Battle.

Presbyterian's Blue Stockings journey to Atlanta Thursday preparatory to their annual clash Friday evening with Georgia Tech's Engineers. It will be the Georgian's opening game and P. C.'s second.

Coach Johnson will take a large squad with him in an attempt to make a good showing against the Tech eleven. Minor injuries experienced in the Clemson slaughter will not affect Presbyterian's strength.

Reports from Atlanta indicate a powerful 1937 Tech line-up. Featuring Dutch Konemann and a dazzling array of supporting players, the Engineers are looking forward to their best team in several years.

Freshman Outfit Appears To Be Promising Crew

Going Through Daily Drills In Preparation For First Game In Columbia On Sept. 29.

By James Hafley

The freshman football team at Presbyterian college will be a decidedly stronger one than last year's when it takes the field against the University of South Carolina rats September 29 in Columbia. All indications point to an Anklet eleven that will be a consistent winner among the state's best frosh gridmen. Coach Lonnie McMillian remains silent concerning his charges but seems to be overly satisfied with prospects for the 1937 season.

Thus far, nothing is definite as far as the starting line-up is concerned, but for the next ten days a great battle is predicted for positions on the roster. Intensive workouts and passing practices marked last week's activities and this week's will probably be the same with occasional scrimmages.

Outstanding among the rats seem to be: Coleman, a fast pass snatching end from Brunswick, Ga.; Meisky, a back who runs, passes, and kicks with the same degree of accuracy; Gosnell, a 180-pounder who can crash through the line; Gene MacIntosh, an elusive halfback from Sumter who passes and runs equally well; Rugh "Red" 'Flanders, a 200-pound colorful guard who is exceptionally fast; Lawrence, one of the scrappiest ends ever seen here; Davenport, a good all-round man in the backfield; Davis, an all-Southern high school center who hails from High Point, N. C.; Murphy and Fleishman, stellar linemen from Greensboro, N. C. Great things are also expected from Rogers of Mullins, S. C. At the present Rogers is out of uniform nursing a broken rib sustained in practice early last week. His return will do much to bolster the strength of the squad.

After this week much more can be said as to the calibre of the Baby Hose outfit as they haven't been put to any great test yet. All agree, however, that the rat team will make a better showing than its predecessors for four years back.

ALPHA LAMBDA TAU INITIATES McADAMS

Chester McAdams, a junior of Iva, was initiated into Alpha Lambda Tau, social fraternity, last Monday night, according to an announcement from that organization.

McAdams was pledged during the rushing season of last year.

GILLILAND RUNS CANTEEN

Jay Gilliland, of Goodwater, Ala., is in charge of the college canteen this year, succeeding Henry Garrett, graduate of last year. Gilliland is assisted by M. C. Patterson, W. Pope, R. J. Buchan, Fred Allen, Marion Moore, R. Worrell, and others.

The hours the canteen will be open are 8:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m.; 1:00 p. m. to 6:00 p. m., and 7:00 to 10:00 p. m.

TIGERS RUN ROUGHSHOD OVER DAZED PRESBYTERIANS

Chalk Up Seven Touchdowns On Long Runs and Passes.

CALDWELL STARS FOR P. C.

By Jake Penland

Clemson's mighty eleven ran roughshod over Presbyterian's weak and ineffective line-up Saturday to accumulate 46 points in their most crushing victory of a long series of annual openers.

The Stockings hit scoring territory through a recovered fumble as the game opened in their only scoring threat. Giving way to Clemson's onrush, they helplessly allowed three first-half touchdowns. The second semester netted four, despite some good defensive work by the P. C. line.

Neely allowed three sets of fast and husky backs to romp through the dazed Hosemen. His line functioned smoothly and effectively to give the rear guard all manner of offensive opportunities.

Steele Caldwell played an inspired, heads-up end, with Boswell and Hipp doing their share at the tackles. Johnson's pony backfield had too much brawn and power thrust at it to make any headway.

Clemson's passing attack superceded long runs in splendor and execution. They seldom missed and resulted in a total of 107 yards gained.

Bad punting was the major weakness in P. C.'s play. A good booter would have held the score down considerably and given the Blue Stockings something to fight for.

The line-ups:

SECOND ANNUAL P. C. TENNIS CLINIC TO BE HELD IN OCTOBER

Dates Are 18, 19, 20. Arrangements Being Made To Insure Success of Venture.

TO BE DIRECTED BY COACH LUFLER

The second annual Presbyterian college tennis clinic will be held on the tennis courts of Presbyterian college on October 18, 19, and 20, according to an announcement recently made by President William P. Jacobs of the college, the originator of the idea and chairman of the Carolinas squad of junior Davis cup players.

The clinic, held as an experiment last year, has been greeted with enthusiasm all over the nation. New York newspapers and the official publications of the United States Lawn Tennis association have been unanimous and enthusiastic in their approval of the idea and in their congratulations to its far-sighted originators.

Believing that the college tennis player in the South had been neglected in his training for the game and that the game needed something to stimulate interest in it, Mr. Jacobs invited a number of outstanding amateurs, among them Bitsy Grant and John and Midge Van Ryn, together with a number of outstanding tennis professionals, headed by John Cardegnia, to visit the college for three days. He then extended an invitation to the colleges of South Carolina, North Carolina and Georgia to send their players up as guests of the college to receive instruction at the hands of the professionals and to watch the amateurs in matches.

Over fifty young college tennis players answered the call, and when the three days had ended the clinic was pronounced a success. Plans were immediately set underway to hold the second clinic this fall.

The clinic will be under the direction of William C. Lufler, tennis professional of Atlanta and St. Petersburg, Fla., and recently elected tennis coach at P. C., who arrived on the campus last week.

Forum System Now Permanent Part Of Program

The forum system, inaugurated at Presbyterian college last year as an experiment, this year becomes a permanent part of the college's program of personalized education.

At a recent faculty meeting a committee was appointed to handle the forums with Hugh Holman, the college's public relations director, as its head.

Under the forum system every student meets informally with faculty members several times a year, at the home of the faculty member or at some convenient place and, and informal discussions of those important phases of the college work which are not covered in the regular text books are carried on.

Under the new system groups will be arranged according to interest and prominent figures in the various fields of endeavor will be invited to meet with these groups informally.

The entire system is voluntary, but when tried as an experiment last year students flocked to the gatherings.

Homecoming Date Set For October 15

The homecoming date has been set on October 15, the date of the Newberry football game which will be played here beneath P. C.'s powerful floodlights.

The alumni banquet will be held that evening in Judd dining hall and a number of other attractions are being planned.

It is intended that this shall be the biggest and best homecoming affair that P. C. has ever had. Alumni chapters in the various cities of the South will be contacted in regard to tickets for the game, number of men who will attend, and in an effort to create an interest which will surpass even that of last year.

Every alumnus is urged to begin planning now to be present at the homecoming affair.

average student, and the spirit of the student body. The students in our dormitory have been especially kind:" BILL, 17, expressed the same sentiments as his brother, and they both added: "We have been especially impressed with the personal interest taken by the faculty in the students. It is a much better attitude than even in the missionary schools."

Perhaps coming from China where the question of food is a major problem, influenced the single thing with which they were most impressed. Said Hampton, who often spoke for both of them: "The food served in the college dining hall is far better than any we have eaten at any other institution with which we have been connected." (Your reporter wishes to pause at this point in the interview to remind the publicity department that this column is copyrighted).

The two boys, who were born in China just after the war, have lived there all their lives except for yearly visits to the States every seven years. Speaking Chinese, English, and a little French, "among ourselves" as they said, the boys have varied interests in campus organizations. Hampton, who is preparing to enter the ministry and eventually return to China as a missionary, is interested in the International Relations club, the glee club, track and, of course, in the religious organizations. Bill is interested in track, tennis, basketball and the glee club.

When asked about the present conflict in China they replied in substance: "China, under the political and military leadership of General Chiang Kai-Shek, has been preparing for this conflict . . . she was borrowed 50,000 puonds from London, $50,000,000 from America, and $125,000,000 in ammunition and supplies from Czechoslovakia . . . This will be a war "to the finish" as far as China is concerned.

Said Hampton, when asked about the Chinese attitude toward other countries represented over there, "The Chinese bitterly resent the English and the French because they own territory over there," but when asked what he thinks of America, the Chinaman will place his thumbs together and say, "Your country and my country are like this," in order to express the friendliness he feels toward the United States."

Thus ended our interview with these two boys who are looking forward with so much pleasure to spending four years at P. C.

(If you have some question that you would like to see discussed in this column give it to L. G. Heckle, your reporter, or to Cliff McLeod, editor of the paper).

SCHOLARSHIPS WORK TO HAVE DIFFERENT PLAN

Professor Sturgeon, Head of Student Projects, Says Better System To Be Used.

ALL LABOR TO BE ON HOURLY BASIS

Professor Harry E. Sturgeon, who is in charge of N.Y.A. and student scholarships this year, stated today in an interview that all work projects will have stricter supervision than in the past, and that every student must keep an account of the number of hours he spends on each project in which he works. He stated that a general effort is being made to work out a well-rounded system of handling the administration of work projects.

He said, "For the benefit of the students who may not understand why we are putting into effect this new system of having each student keep account of his hours rather than being given a certain amount of money for doing one project, such as being an assistant, is to enable us to determine the exact number of hours a year it takes to complete a project such as an assistantship, a table waiter, or office worker.

"We are going to have on file an individual record of what each student does. In this way we shall be able to keep a check on the student and to see whether he is really willing to do his share.

"We believe that some jobs such as assistantships vary in the number of hours required to carry them out. And in the future in order to insure that no student has to do more than another in order to earn the scholarship allotted to him, we shall determine the number of hours required for each project and assign them hereafter accordingly."

Professor Sturgeon summed up by saying, "In brief, what we wish to do is establish equalization so that no student will have to do more than his share."

He stated that projects will be the same this year as in the past, including the usual assistantships and other campus jobs.

Professor Sturgeon told the reporter who interviewed him, "We want to urge the student worker to keep an accurate record of the number of hours he put puts in and turn them in for credit on their scholarship."

L. G. Heckle

Now that school has gotten well underway and the students have had opportunity to form their opinions of the student body, we thought it would be fitting to question some of the upper classmen on their opinion of this year's student body in comparison with that of last year and other years that they have been here. So we use as our question this week, "What do you think of this year's student body in comparison with that of last year as well as the other student bodies since you have been at college?"

Our first victims were among the sophomore class, with DUGALD HUDSON as the first one to whom we put our question. He replied, "I believe the student body of this year is much better than that of last year. Apparently the freshmen are getting off lighter this year because the sophs are not as rough on freshmen as they were last year."

The rather portly parson, BILL HANSELL, seemed to be somewhat of the same opinion as Hudson. In reply to our question he said, "I think the student body is definitely better than that of last year. The boys this year seem more industrious, they are less rowdy, and in general I think there is less tommyrot carried on."

Another of the parsons, WAYNE POTTER, said, "I, too, think the student body is much better this year. There seems to be on the average a higher type of student here than last year. The students appear to be more

Advisory Group Work Progressing Says Dr. F. D. Jones

Over One Hundred Students Interviewed In Week.

In an interview today Dr. F. Dudley Jones, chairman of the committee on student guidance, said that the committee was very much pleased with the cooperation of the students with the committee. So far the response has been entirely satisfactory. He said that if any of the students would like to have a test on personality, or in reading or vocation, he would be glad to give it to them. Further, he said, "We are keeping a record of each interview made and would like to have a case history of every student in college. We wish to express to the students our thanks for their cooperation."

John E. Osman is assisting Dr. Jones in giving interviews. Dr. Jones said 117 students have already been interviewed and that between 40 and 50 of these were made voluntarily by the students. Both freshmen and upper classmen have been making them. Students, he said, have been coming for advice on various matters. He stated further, "I wish to emphasize again that all the student tells us is kept strictly in confidence. The fact that so many have already come to us causes us to believe that these interviews are supplying a need which the students have felt."

Although Dr. Jones may be seen at any time he is not otherwise engaged, he has set aside the following hours for conferences:

Monday, 1:30; Tuesday, 9:10, 10:05, 2:25; Wednesday, none; Thursday, 9:10, 10:05, 1:30; Friday, 2:25; Saturday, 10:05.

GLEE CLUB BEGINS WORK FOR YEAR

The glee club, under the direction of Dr. Stephen M. Huntley, began its first work of the year with try-outs Tuesday afternoon for new members. The first regular practice was held Thursday night. Dr. Huntley stated that he could make no definite announcements as to the prospects of the club this year until further try-outs were held. Several of the tenors and basses left last year and must be replaced.

SEVEN P. C. STUDENTS ARE NAMED FOR "WHO'S WHO IN THE AMERICAN COLLEGES"

"Much Better," Says President Jacobs Concerning Conditions At College

In an interview last Thursday, just before he left for an extended trip, President William P. Jacobs stated that prospects for one of the most successful years in the activities of the college as well as the college finances were excellent. He said, "I believe our present student body is much better than ever and that we have a fine class of freshmen as well as of old students. I believe there is a better spirit prevailing in the student body than I have seen before."

When questioned concerning developments for the college during the year, he said, "We expect developments in many ways, some of which I shall not reveal until later on. I believe the student advisory committee will do a great work in bringing about a higher and better spirit among the students as well as between them and the faculty."

In reply to the question concerning the financial status of the college and prospects for finances, he said, "The financial condition of the college is getting much better. Our income this year is much larger than before, although our expenses are greater. Our bonded indebtedness of $263,000 with accrued interest of $55,000, has been paid off by using $109,000 of our endowment with the permission of the board of trustees. Our present endowment is a little more than $52,000 and it is now my job to build up the endowment by replacing the part that was sold to concel our bonded indebtedness."

He further said, "Our present indebtedness and liabilities as of June 1, 1937, is $67,000 as compared with $74,000, excluding the bonded indebtedness of $263,000, of June 1, 1936."

He termed the present financial status of the college as "excellent."

He left Thursday afternoon on a trip in the interest of the college for several days. Before leaving he said that he would make make further statements concerning developments at the college later.

There is a possibility two or three more students will be enrolled later on, Mrs. Brown said. Among them will be Hugh Jacobs, son of the president, who was recently injured in an automobile accident which prevented his enrolling at the beginning of the year.

Student From China Speaker At 'Y' Meeting

Hampton Talbot Discusses Far East Situation.

Entertaining a large number of students in attendance at the Y. M. C. A. meeting Thursday night, Hampton Talbot, member of the freshman class, made an interesting talk on China's Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, and the present war with Japan.

Talbot, son of a missionary in China, was very well qualified for delivering this address in that he has had several personal contacts with General Chiang and has on different occasions run errands for Madame Chiang.

He brought out the fact that Chiang is a very pleasant and courteous person, and is the idol of virtually every man, woman and child in China. He is considered by them as the only man to whom they can look for help in this time of great distress in their country.

According to Talbot, China is now in much better condition to meet the onslaught of Japan than she has been in the past. He mentioned the various reforms that have been brought about under the leadership of General Chiang. Living conditions have been greatly improved and China now offers itself to Japan as an enemy to be reckoned with.

Talbot advances the theory that the present war between these two countries of the Orient will be a fight to the death in that Japan will not back out for the sake of pride, nor will China forsake her post in fear of the innumerable insults that will inevitably follow her surrender.

He closed his address with an assurance that should China win her fight against oppression, a new and greater China will result to modernize a two-thousand-year-old civilization.

COUNCIL MAKES THE SELECTION

Commander, Hemphill, Hipp, Johnston, C. McLeod, Waldrep and Witherspoon Honored.

In an announcement given out today, Joe Commander, president of the student council and the student body, the following seven men have been selected to represent Presbyterian college in "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges for 1937-38." The students selected are: Joseph M. Commander, Florence; Malcolm Hemphill, Griffin, Ga.; Macon Hipp, Charlotte, N. C.; Frank Johnston, Greer; Cliff H. McLeod, Ocala, Fla.; Ralph Waldrep, Ianford Station, and Jack Witherspoon, Cross Hill.

According to the rule of the publisher, not more than one and one-half per cent of the student body can be nominated for the work and the allotment for Presbyterian college was seven.

The seven men chosen, according to Commander, were selected on the requirements of the compilers of the work, which are: character, scholarship, leadership in extra-curricular activities, i.e. athletics, society, religion, politics, and possibility of future usefulness to business and society. The men selected to be Presbyterian's entries in the book were named for achievements in particular fields.

Commander is president of the student body; Hemphill, editor of the college yearbook, The PaC-SaC; Hipp is a member of the varsity football squad and captain of this year's track team; Johnson is vice-president of the student body as well as vice-president of the Y.M.C.A.; McLeod is editor of the college newspaper, The Blue Stocking; Waldrep, a member of the varsity football squad until an injury stopped his playing, is also captain of the basketball team; and Witherspoon, a leader of several organizations, is a member of the student council. Each of these men, however, has been active in other phases of campus life and, according to the student council, has shown himself worthy of a place in the publication.

"Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" was established with the idea of creating one national basis of recognition for students, devoid of politics, initiation fees, and dues.

The plan of the publishers is to issue annually a compilation of biographies of the outstanding students in America. In this way deserving students will be brought before the business world. Freshmen and sophomores are not eligible. The value of the book depends upon the narrowness of selection.

The first issue of the publication appeared over four years ago. Last year more than 400 colleges and universities were represented in the book and this year the publishers hope to have every college and university in the United States represented.

The book has received the unanimous endorsement of the executive committee of the National Students Federation of America, and the president of the Southern Intercollegiate Association for Women. It also has the endorsement of the past president of the American Association of State Universities, the past national president of O. D. K., and the Pacific Student Presidents association.

In addition to biographies of America's outstanding students there will be a synopsis of each university and college in America.

PRESIDENT OF BLUE KEY FRAT DISCUSSES ORGANIZATIONS

Frank Johnston Writes About Honorary Groups For Benefit of New Men.

(Editor's note: For the benefit of the new students, we have asked Frank Johnston, president of Blue Key, and a member of the student body and the Y.M.C.A., to write a brief comment and word of advice on the various honorary organizations on the campus, and we present herewith his review).

By Frank Johnston

Some one has said that inspiration plus information plus perspiration equals consummation and the balancing of this equation is partly the job of honorary fraternities, for does it not seem right for hard work in a particular field to be honored with membership in an honorary fraternity? Perhaps it can be a small part of that consummation. It is sad, but nevertheless true, that plenty of men who work hard and deserve this bit of reward never get it because of various little tricks of fate. But to these men belong even more of what we call honor, for they are not working for reward but for the future and others. There is usually an expense attached to these organizations that makes them seem more mercenary than honorary, and I'm sorry to say this keeps some men on our campus from getting the recognition they should get.

Perhaps the foremost honorary fraternity on the campus is Blue Key, national honorary leadership fraternity. The chapter was established on the campus about five years ago to replace the local organizations of the Archons and Musketeers. The standards of the organization are very high. As is implied in the name, leadership is the foremost requirement, but it is not the only thing considered. Personality and influence as well as scholarship are considered. To be admitted into the organization the applicant must have a scholastic average above that of all men's average. Our present organization includes ten men.

Chi Beta Phi, national honorary scientific fraternity, is composed of those students who are majoring in science and show the greatest amount of interest in this field. The organization was founded in 1916 and has as its aim the furthering of science among students. The P. C. chapter is made up of juniors and seniors who have proven their ability in science. New members are chosen on this basis. Jack Witherspoon is president of the organization.

Sigma Kappa Alpha is the local honorary scholastic fraternity. Eligibility for this organization is based upon scholastic merit entirely and its men are selected from the head of the "dean's list." Needless to say, the men within this exclusive organization can be counted by a first grader. The members to the fraternity are carried out by the faculty from the highest five per cent of the junior class and the second highest five per cent of the senior class.

Delta Chi Alpha is a national honorary Christian leadership fraternity. It was founded at the University of South Carolina and is spreading rapidly to colleges in the South. For membership, one must show high ideals of Christian service and members are chosen with care. Hubert Wardlaw is president of the local organization, while Cliff McLeod is national president.

The Ministerial club, as its name implies, is an organization for ministerial students. Anyone may be admitted who is a candidate for the ministry. It overlaps Delta Chi Alpha to a large extent, but is not nearly so exclusive. Buck Patterson is president of this organization.

Pi Kappa Delta, national honorary forensic fraternity, granted the Presbyterian college debating team a charter several years ago. P. C. is the only male college in the state to have a charter. In years past the fraternity has sent men to the national convention and has done outstanding work. At present the local chapter is inactive, but plans are already being made for its immediate revival.

The International Relations club (I. R. C.) is for those students who show a particular interest in international affairs and the world of history today. Applicants are usually given a test by the dean of the college with those making the highest grades being admitted into the organization. Jack Witherspoon is president of this organization and already has started work for the year.

With much difficulty and discouragement, a young dramatics club has come into being this year. The club has drawn up its constitution and elected officers. Bill Bostick, Curtis Lee Laney, and Jack Witherspoon have been appointed to a committee to draw up a play that will be given before the student body. Robert Black is president of the club.

Chi Beta Phi Meeting Is Postponed

Jack Witherspoon, president of Chi Beta Phi, national honorary scientific fraternity, announced today that the first meeting of the year which was scheduled for last Tuesday night will be held tomorrow night at 7 o'clock instead.

He said plans for the year would be discussed, among which will be plans for a financial budget, programs for the year, the securing of prominent men in science as speakers throughout the school term.

Witherspoon also stated that the fraternity will discuss the question of accepting new members soon, to fill the places of members who graduated last spring. The organization is planning to send a representative to the national convention which will be held during the Christmas holidays.

Freshmen Doing Well At Drill Says Harding

The second week of drill ended Thursday due to the annual football holiday, with results that are rather pleasing, according to a statement from Major Harding today.

The sophomores have been drilling separately from the freshmen, under the direction of Major Cummings. The freshmen, in charge of the juniors and cadet officers, last week took up squad movements for the first time. The first week of drill was given over to instructing the freshmen in the position of the soldier at attention, hard salute, etc.

Students Will Conduct Chapel Twice Each Week

During the year two chapel services each week will be in charge of students, as has been the custom in the past.

The Ministerial club will sponsor the services each Tuesday morning, at which time one of its members will lead the service. Last Tuesday, Buck Patterson, president of the club, gave the first program for the group.

The Y.M.C.A. will lead the service each Friday, with one of the members in charge.

Programs on the other two mornings, Wednesday and Thursday, will be conducted by various faculty members.

Dr. A. E. Spencer is the faculty member in charge of chapel programs.

Sino-Jap War Is Subject of I.R.C. Weekly Meeting

In the International Relations club meeting last Wednesday night an interesting program was given on the Sino-Japanese conflict with Dugald Hudson leading the discussion, with a talk, "Japan's Side in the present conflict." He showed that Japan, if she is to remain a world power, can follow no other course than she is now pursuing. Following Hudson's talk the members of the club voted on several questions at his suggestion.

By a vote of 4 to 4, the members drew on the supposition, "If I were Premier of Japan, I would follow the present policy of Japan." Seven out of the eight present thought Japan's action justified, and by the same count of seven to one the majority decided that China would not be benefitted by Japanese domination. A majority believed that the United States will get entangled in the struggle if Japan continues her present policy.

The question over whether or not the average Japanese is superior to the average Chinaman caused quite a bit of discussion, and when the vote was taken it was found that five out of the eight believed the Chinese to be superior.

The president, Jack Witherspoon, stated that the regular hour for meeting would be set for 7 p. m. each Wednesday, and that those members absent without good reason would be fined. He also stated that there are some places in the club open for membership and that these would be filled by means of tests within the near future.

P. C. Graduate Goes To Brazil

Miss Frances Spratt, accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Spratt of Clinton, sailed in August for Recife, Brazil, where she has accepted a position. She graduated from Presbyterian college in June with cum laude honors.

In Recife she will join her sister, Miss Virginia Spratt, who sailed for Brazil two years ago following her graduation from Presbyterian. She holds a government position in that distant city. The Misses Spratt's uncle, Rev. William G. Neville, is a missionary stationed at Garahuns, de Pernambuco, Brazil. He, also, is a graduate of P. C.—back in the early '20s.

CAMPUS CRUISING

WHAT'S WHAT ON OTHER CAMPUSES

By PETE McCORMICK

Heah ye! Heah ye- Heah is ye olde "Geezil" (Pete the Perfect) McCormick with his contaminated campus comments. Being in the midst of one of these collegiate "League of Nations" meetings (bull-session to you), this column may sound as if it were being written by a "Fellow in the Booze" but as all the preceding columns sound the same way, there probably won't be any noticeable variation from the usual thing.

Definitions taken at random: (Collegiate expressions)

Good-looking girl—Fever Frau.

A dance—Cement mixer.

A student auto—Rolls Rough, bone-crusher, tintype.

4. A homely girl student—Popeye, pansy, muddy plough.

A campus Romeo—Gold mine.

A kiss — Honey-cooler, smooch, method for swapping chewing wax.

College student's impression of movie stars:

Simone Simon—Startled gazelle.

Hugh Herbert—Expectant father.

Martha Raye—Loud noise surrounded by teeth.

Bette Davis—Soup with hair in it.

Robert Taylor—Somewhat grown-up Little Lord Fauntleroy.

The modern college boys say it this way:

"I'm taking my Fever Frau to a cement mixer in my tintype," or "I'm taking my heart-hastener to a swing-session in a wheeled tub."

Members of the Greek class at Crozier Theological seminary, at Chester, Pa., addressed the following note to their professor who was a bit swell-headed due to a case of the mumps:

"Our faces are great in length because thine is great in width. Return to us safely."

A twisted story about his pants earned a Southern Methodist university freshman a pardon for cutting his mathematics quiz section.

When he came to class the next day, the prof questioned him to find out why he had skipped.

"I have gym before math," explained the alibier. "On Tuesday I was in such a hurry to get dressed for the class that I poked my foot through the seat of my pants."

Prof: "Gentlemen, this examination will be conducted on the honor system. Please take places three seats apart in alternate rows."

Anonymous: "Going around with women keeps me young. I started going with them four years ago when I was a freshman—I'm still a freshman."

In the summer session catalog of a Southern school was found these two courses listed in order: 1. Social modern dancing. 2. First aid to the injured. Whether these two were intended in such a manner is up to youse.

Dramatics Club Holds Meeting

The first meeting of the dramatic club was held last Tuesday night in the college chapel and was presided over by President Robert Black. The purpose of the meeting was to give try-outs to new students interested in dramatics. A short business session also was held.

In an interview President Black said, "The club plans to present at least two plays this year. The first will be a light comedy and the second probably will be a drama. I am planning to present monologues and short skits between acts this year."

For the benefit of new student, he said the club is constantly in search of talent, and will be glad to give anyone who wishes a trial.

STURGEON REQUESTS NYA BLANKS BE FILLED OUT

Prof. H. E. Sturgeon, in an announcement last week, requested that all students who have N. Y. A. blanks have them filled out and returned to him by the middle of the week.

He stated that the monthly N.Y.A. payroll will be sent in soon and that it is absolutely necessary for the student who wishes to get N.Y.A. credit to have the blank properly filled out as soon as possible.

FRATERNITY REGULATIONS MADE KNOWN

Dr. Spencer Calls Attention of Freshmen To Rules Governing Greek Letter Organizations.

In order that those freshmen and new men who are contemplating pledging a fraternity may know the faculty regulations placed on fraternities and fraternity members, Dr. A. E. Spencer, faculty member in charge of fraternity activities, said that he wishes to call their attention to Section VIII, 1, of the rules of the faculty which are as follows:

Fraternities shall operate under regulations drawn up by the faculty.

Fraternities desiring to establish chapters in Presbyterian College shall present their application accompanied by a list of proposed charter members to the Faculty Committee on Fraternities, and said application must be approved by this committee before the fraternity can be admitted.

Fraternities shall pledge themselves to abide by the rules of the College and not to do anything as a fraternity that would not be sanctioned by the College authorities.

No one shall be initiated into a fraternity in this College who is not at the time a student of the College, carrying successfully a full course of study, or a graduate of this college. In every case the name of the candidate must be submitted to the Faculty Committee on Fraternities for approval before initiation.

Before a student is initiated into a fraternity he must have spent one semester in the College, carrying not less than fourteen hours a week, averaging a pass, and not failing in more than one subject. He must also have conformed to all College rules and regulations.

There must be no pledging to fraternities among matriculated Freshmen or other new students until three weeks after the opening of the College.

New Books Are Received For College Library

Librarian Willard Jones announced today that several of the latest best-selling novels and non-fiction works has been secure for the library and are now being issued.

Among them is "Northwest Passage," by Kenneth Roberts, which, according to latest reports, is the best selling novel at present. Mr. Jones stated that the novel, "And So, Victoria," by Vaughn Wilkins, is also one of the most popular.

He also listed "How To Win Friends and Influence People," by Dale Carnegie, which he states still is one of the most popular books. A work that he thinks will be of local interest is "Colored Light," an historical study of Columbia Theological seminary, written by Rev. Louis C. LaMotte, graduate of P. C. in 1922, and now executive secretary of Thornwell orphanage.

The list also included "Building An Inter-American Neighborhood," Inman; "Conversation At Midnight," Edna St. Vincent Millay; "Milton Handbook," Hanford; Poems, John Donne; "Poetry of the English Renaissance," Hebel; "Psychology of Adjustment," Shaffer; "Outline of Man's Work and Wealth," H. G. Wells; "Orchids On Your Budget," Hillis; and "Animal Biology," Wolcott.

Work Progresses On Special Drill Team

Major Harding announced today that the special drill platoon was progressing nicely and will probably be ready to give a demonstration between the halves of the homecoming game on October 15 if the uniforms for the freshmen come in time.

Major Harding also stated, "The platoon this year is based on the same thing as last year and will be drilled without commands. We are planning to make it a permanent organization, therefore, freshmen as well as sophomores, will be permitted to try out for it. The freshmen who are in it this year will form a nucleus for the organization next year." He also stated that there was still some room left and that all sophomores or freshmen wishing to join should see him as soon as possible.

In the fancy drill the platoon will execute several new movements in addition to those used last year. Some of these new movements he is planning have never been used by any drill organization in this state.

A special drill for the crack platoon is held every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock and some of the regular morning drill periods will be used for this purpose. Major Harding is assisted by C. B. Thompson in directing the platoon.

Young People's Organizations Invite Students

The various young people's organizations of the churches of Clinton today issued information about their societies for the benefit of college students.

The following are brief bits of information given by each organization to a reporter.

The young people's organization of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church meets every Sunday at 6:30 p.m. It has 22 members besides the college boys, and the president is Walter Todd, a college student. Next Sunday evening Mrs. B. L. Hamilton, from India, will be the speaker on the program for this group.

The Baptist Young People's union meets at 7:30 Sunday evening. At present the group is reorganizing and will welcome college students at all its meetings..

The Methodist Epworth league is also reorganizing. The president is Bob Ellison, a college student. It meets at 6:45 p.m. About 30 per cent of those who attend are college students.

The First Presbyterian church organization also meets at 6:45 in the men's Bible class room of the church. Bob Black, a college student, is president, and according to estimates of the organization, 65 per cent of its attendants are college students. Election of new officers for the coming year will be held next Sunday night.

Thornwell Orphanage's organization meets at 6:45 and, according to that group, has many of the college students present. It meets in the church auditorium. Its officers extend a welcome to college students.

The young people's societies of the town are making plans for reorganization at the Union Service meeting of presidents of the various organizations. At various times during the year union services of the societies are held under the direction of the pastors.

Begins 22nd Year As Blue Hose Head Coach

WALTER JOHNSON, HEAD COACH PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE

Walter Johnson begins his twenty-second year as head coach at Presbyterian college, having long ago acquired the distinction of being "Dean of Southern Football Coaches." He came to Presbyterian in 1915 at a time when the school had about 185 students. Since then he has been coach here except for a brief break between 1917 and 1919, when he was a member of the American Expeditionary Forces in France.

Although observers state that his team is somewhat weaker than usual this year, they are quick to add that the same spirit he began with over twenty-one years ago has not been dimmed, but still remains the fighting spirit of Walter Johnson, the top of them all.

Four P. C. Men Enter U. S. Regular Army

These four men last spring, upon graduation from Presbyterian college, received commissions as second lieutenants in the Officers' Reserve corps. Later they received appointments to the regular army.

Upper row, left to right: J. B. Jacobs, of Clinton and Thornwell; and Raleigh Shoemaker, of Charlotte, N. C., both of whom are stationed at Fort Screven, Ga.

Aim In Life

There is no more touching confession of utter weakness and misery than to hear our youth say, "My life is aimless." Whatever a man's talents and advantages may be, with no aim he is destined to failure in life.

Life is not long enough for any one man to accomplish everything, and it is indeed fine, that few of us can at best accomplish more than one thing well. Many—alas! very many accomplish nothing; yet, there is not a man endowed with ordinary intellect or accomplishments, but can accomplish at least one useful, important and worthy purpose.

Dreams are wonderful, and resolutions are good, but it takes more than these for a successful life.

We need to do something each day that shall help us to a larger life of soul, for a noble deed is a step towards god.

Thus in the grand aim of life, if some worthy purpose be kept constantly in view and for its accomplishment, every effort be made every day of your life, you will, unconsciously, approach the good of your ambition.

"Who's Who"

Obviously the idea of a Who's Who In American Universities and Colleges was taken from the orginal publication, Who's Who in America. The compilers of this work point out among others the following four purposes Who's Who will serve: (1) As an incentive for students to get most out of their college careers (2) As a means of compensation to students for what they have already done (3) As a recommendation to the business and social world (4) As a standard of measurement for membership comparable to such agencies as Phi Beta Kappa and Rhodes Scholarship. They further say that a publication of this kind will bring deserving students before the business world, which annually recruits young men and women from the college ranks. The idea has been endorsed by over 2,000 presidents of student bodies, 500 deans and 1,000 presidents of various college organizations.

Apparently this idea which began only about four years ago has turned into a successful thing. Certainly it serves its purpose as well as Who's Who in America by concentrating into one volume the outstanding students from each college picked by the students. Therefore, to be chosen for such a work should no doubt give one the feeling that he has received one of the greatest honors, if not the greatest of his college career.

You may not agree entirely with the selection that the Student Council has made for this work, but to submit such a selection to the body for vote envolves the question politics. The council has tried sincerely and unbiasedly to select the right one. Since we were one of those selected perhaps we can say little, but we would like to put in a good word for the other six. Each of these has shown himself to be a leader in some field of extra-curricula activity. Each seems to fulfill the requirements of the publishers of Who's Who to be classed among the outstanding students in American colleges and universities.

Personal Guidance Progresses

To make further attempt to break any misunderstanding or lack of good relationship between the student as well as assist the student in his personal problems the students advisory committee which we mentioned last week has been placed under direction of Dr. Dudley Jones, a man who loves and understands young people and their problems, one who is well liked by the students, and one who can succeed in making a person tell—well, maybe more than he ought to. He can be of helpful service to you if you are willing to confide in him. Likewise assisting him is John E. Osman, a P. C. graduate who has worked with college men ever since he left college, and knows them as well as anyone in these parts.

This venture apparently is being very successful. Last week we said, wait and see; now, we are seeing. The men engaged in this work are devoting quite a bit of time to this work. Dr. Jones has a total of nine hours for conferences listed while he is available at other times, which is quite a bit of time in addition to his work as professor.

It will be interesting to watch the developments of the work of the committee on personal student guidance so again we say, wait and see.

Shall I Join a Fraternity?

This is a question that is of great importance to the average freshman at present, and is not one that can easily be ignored. The answer must be given within a few weeks when the rushing season ends, and he alone must not only decide shall he join a fraternity, but also what fraternity.

The choice the freshman makes will determine much the course of his social life at Presbyterian, whether he shall be within or without the pale of such life. But it will not determine what his success at college shall be.

In the final analysis, it will not be the freshman's consideration of the worth of fraternities, the advantages of belonging to one, or not, that shall decide whether or not he shall join a fraternity. His only consideration will be the question of money.

In a chapel talk to the freshman class at the first of the school year, Dr. A. E. Spencer, who is in charge of fraternity activities, tried to impress upon them the extreme importance of their being able to carry their share of the expenses.

Unfortunately, it takes money to join a fraternity, as it also takes money to get some other things in life. There is no such thing as a fraternity that doesn't cost the members money, and to join one when you are unable to carry the necessary expenses is to take unfair advantage of both yourself and the organization.

So we say, if you are able, by all means answer "yes" to the question, "Shall I join a fraternity," for what may be said to the contrary, the advantages to the college student in belonging to a frat no doubt exceeds much what might be determined the disadvantages.

But the final answer to our question lies within you and you must make the decision as you see best.

SOUND OFF

— By —

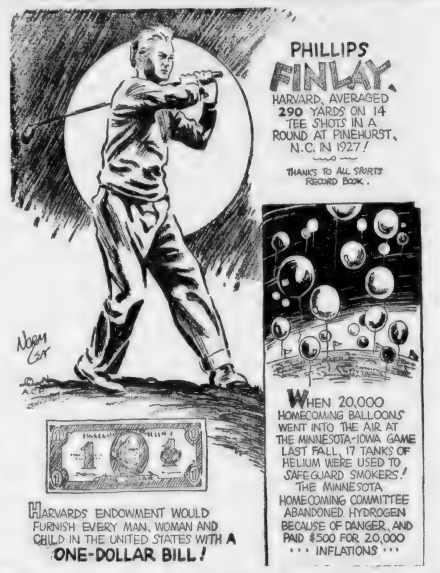
E. A. JOHNSON

While the writer of this column went down to see the slaughter in Atlanta, ole Southern rebel is pinch-hitting for him.

Last week's drill was abruptly ended Thursday due to the annual football holiday, but according to the excellent premises of the freshmen, maybe the corps deserved a holiday.

The freshmen this year are ahead of the freshmen of last year at the same. Apparently these new men mean to be soldiers rightly. Or maybe it's due to the fact that the senior officers are doing quite a bit of instructing. When we were freshmen and sophomores, the sophomores had to do all the instructing while the officers took life easy.

When we became juniors the instruction shifted from the sophomores to the juniors, and this year the responsibility has shifted again to the seniors, with the juniors doing their part.



So for three years the present senior class has been instructing. By this time they ought to be efficient. And perhaps that's the secret of the good work on the part of the freshmen. But that's only a theory, gentlemen, to be taken or left as you will.

A blouse would feel mighty good on these chilly September mornin. But possibilities are that it will be a month yet before the corps begins to don them. And about that time dry cleaners' stock will rise a considerable number of points.

Lieutenant Shaw and his awkward squad may be seen any morning going through their paces, with Shaw exercising all his patience. The fact that one gets in the awkward squad should not discourage him, for in the present senior class two of the best officers were members of the awkward squad their freshman year. Which proves again that you can't keep the fellow down who is trying.

Sophomores are doing their shining before Major Cummings as they keep appointment in mind a corporal outing. Those outings will be issued sometime in the near future and there will be a good many disappointed cadets, as well as a few surprised ones.

D. R. DINGEMAN

We're back again with more dirt to shovel out to youse guys and gals. We got some choice bits this week. Anyway, we think so.

Who were those cruel upperclassmen who sat in on "RAT" WILLIS'S date the other night? Rats sure have to take a lot off these upperclassmen, don't they? We feel for you, boy.

By the by, who is dating our dear friend, MARGARET S. this year? — We wonder.

Did you ever see such class in your whole life? Local boy makes good. BOOTH rides again, and in a great big blue Packard — and she did the driving for him. These football boys sure do rate. P. S. She's from Anderson.

Speaking about football boys and stars and things—during "DEKE'S" recent illness a member of the opposite sex visited him at the infirmary. You guess who.—We know.

Scoop: A certain ex-student of this fair campus is now serving time at Clemson. J. LEE SPRATT. Remember?

The saga of TIMMONS AND HIS WOMEN continues with more complications than ever. Now he's having trouble with his gal over a certain collector of hearts in the freshman class. Will TIMMONS ever get straight with his gal. Our advice is to leave her alone.

Advice to up-and-coming Casanovas: Love 'em where you find 'em and leave 'em where you love 'em. They may sue but what's that to a man of the world.

The flame still glows: The romance between our publicity director, H. HOLMAN, and VERNA still seems to be holding on to the straight and rocky road.

More about football players and everlasting romances: PETE and BERTIE are still going strong. And how.

Question of the day: Have you met those gals from Laurens with the Ford who have been gracing the campus with their presence. If you haven't met 'em, see ALLEN JONES.

"RAT" HOWARD has really got something. His gal promises to send him the money to come home to Jacksonville. She even paid for the long distance phone call he got the other night. Grade "A" gal, eh what?

Do your Christmas shopping early. Our President, F. D., has appropriated two million shad to the Society for the Promulgation of Santa Claus' Grandeer.

SOMEBODY THEIR OWN SIZE

After taknig on two of the South's strongest outfits, the local lads pick on somebody their own size in the "Little Four" engagement with Erskine Friday. Losses by scores of 46 and 59 to 0 to Clemson and Georgia Tech have almost given Walter Johnson's children an inferiority complex.

Erskine's eleven has high hopes of handing the Hosemen their third straight defeat. The Fleet gave Davidson some mean competition in the Saturday battle until Teeny Lafferty got started in a third quarter scoring frenzy.

HIPP HURT

Macon Hipp, P. C.'s 210-pound tackle star, will be lost for some time as a result of his participation in the Tech tussle. Hippo received a fracture of his left foot on the third play of the game and was removed. An X-ray made today will determine the true extent of the injury. His absence in the line-up casts a gloom on chances for victory over Erskine.

AND GOSNELL

Sam Gasnell, frosh backfield star, also felt the injury jinx. He suffered a broken collar bone in practice Friday and will be out for some time. Phil Rogers has about recovered from an early practice rib injury and should be ready for Carolina Wednesday.

AMBITIOUS

A trio of South Carolina elevens take on mighty big foes during the coming week. Clemson meets the Army at West Point, Citadel takes on the Navy at Annapolis, and Carolina meets Georgia at Columbia.

In other engagements of state teams, Newberry battles Catawba at Salisbury, Wofford and Furman oppose each other at Greenville, and P. C. hooks up with Erskine at Due West. To South Carolina football fans, this week's card should prove one of the most interesting of the season.

THE BIG FOUR

The Big Four among state teams will end in this order: Carolina, Clemson, Furman, Citadel.

Erskine Eleven In Hopeful Mood

Presbyterians Will Be Without Services of Hipp.

Presbyterian meets Erskine's Flying Fleet at Due West Friday afternoon to inaugurate "Little Four" competition of the current season. For the first time in several years, Erskine is given a fair chance to upset P. C.'s eleven.

The Fleet gave Teeny Lafferty and his Davidson mates a battle of it Saturday, giving way to a third quarter attack after leading at the half. P. C. was snowed under by Georgia Tech in the annual Atlanta encounter.

The Blue Stockings will be weakened by the loss of Macon Hipp, whose foot was fractured early in the Tech game. Lykes Henderson is nursing a wrenched knee and ankle, but will be ready to go Friday. Predictions as to the outcome indicate a closs score with the winner a toss-up.

Frosh Ready For Carolina Clash

McMillian's Men Optimistic Over Chances Wednesday.

By James Hafley

A powerful line and an equally powerful and versatile backfield will perform against the University of South Carolina's freshman team Wednesday afternoon in Columbia. The Anklets showed considerable fight all through last week's practice and are ready to turn both barrels loose on the highly-touted Biddies.

Coach Lonnie McMillian feels sure he has a winning combination, but is not yet certain of his starting line-up. However, those who will see a lot of service Wednesday and are very apt to start the game are: Coleman, left end; Lawrence, right end; Finleyson, right tackle; Murphy, left tackle; Flanders, left guard; Fleischman, right guard; Palmer, center; with McIntosh, Meisky, Howard, Gosnell in the backfield.

In the line, the opposition will find much trouble. Flanders and Fleischman, two hefty guards, will present a weighty problem to the Birds' signal caller. Coleman, a smart, speedy end, is a fine defensive man and an adept receiver of aerial heaves. McIntosh and Meisky are the two main cogs in the backfield machinery. Meisky calls signals, punts well under fire, and runs with the ball well. Murphy, a 190-pound, shifty tackle, should also prove to be one of the best men on the field Wednesday.

TECH TOUCHDOWN PARADE CRUSHES PLUCKY HOSE ELEVEN

Konemann and Company Ramble To Nine-Touchdown Win. Fourth Period Scoreless.

Georgia Tech's Engineers opened their 1937 grid season with a crushing 59 to 0 victory over Presbyterian Friday night at Atlanta. Four Tech elevens rambled at will in the nine-touchdown-rout of the plucky Hosemen.

Opening up early, the Engineers began their scoring parade a few minutes after the kick-off. Following an exchange of punts, Konemann plowed the line for 24 yards. A couple plays later he received Sims' pass and scored.

Another exchange of punts and the Engineers did it again. Konemann again paved the way, this time with a 17-yard take-off through the line. Sims skirted end for the score and converted his second placement of the evening.

Horne's kick-off was returned 57 yards by Appleby. Sims and Appleby alternated in line plunges and Edwards went off tackle for the third touchdown of the quarter. Sims again place-kicked for the point.

Tech added three scores to a mounting total and had the ball on P. C.'s two-yard line as the half ended. Tech 39, P. C. 0.

An attempted pass was intercepted by Tech's Chivington on the P. C. 22. Sim's went off tackle for a score. Konemann place-kicked to make it Tech 46, P. C. 0.

Another exchange of punts and Konemann took off in a 65-yard touchdown gallop. Tech 52, P. C. 0.

Batchelor and Culp made a first down for the Hosemen, but Appleby intercepted an aerial heave and was finally pulled down on the P. C. 20. An attempted field goal fell short and Tech kicked. The punt was blocked but Jordan fell on it behind the Hose goal and the period ended: Tech 59, P. C. 0.

The final period witnessed a determined and successful P. C. defensive stand. The powerful Georgians were held scoreless and forced to punt on several occasions. A long pass by Tech's Brooks was incomplete as the game ended.

The line-ups:

Tech	Presbyterian
LE—Jones	Moore
LT—Rimmer	Boswell
LG—Brooks	Strain
C—Chivington	Evans
RG—Wilcox	Hipp
RT—Wood	Holcombe
RE—Jordan	Jones
QB—Sims	Tom
LT—Appleby	Batchelor
RH—Konemann	Lambright
FB—Murphy	Horne

Touchdowns: Konemann 2, Sims 2, Edwards, Gibson 2, Page, Jordan. Extra points, Sims 3, Konemann, Jones.

Officials: Cain (Georgia), referee; Paterson (Auburn), umpire; Armistead (Vanderbilt), linesman; King (Centre), field judge.

Clinic, Instruction Keep Lufler Busy

Racquet Coach Making Final Plans For Session.

Tennis Coach William Lufler is busily engaged in the dual duty of handing out individual instruction and formulating final plans for the clinic, scheduled for October 18, 19 and 20.

Bitsy Grant and other nationally known racqueteers will participate in the activity on Clinton courts. A colorful card is being arranged by Coach Lufler and President Jacobs, who originated the idea.

An impressive and talented squad of P. C. candidates are being groomed for the net wars of 1938 by the new coach, and a state championship team may result. Supplementing last year's group are Lykes Boykin, one of the state's most promising players, other capable sophomores and some junior college men.

NATIONAL TENNIS GROUPS TO SPONSOR CLINIC IN OCTOBER

U.S.L.T.A. Will Supply Instructors. High Recognition For Local Movement.

The United States Lawn Tennis association and the Southern Lawn Tennis association have assumed sponsorship of the Presbyterian college tennis clinic which will be held in Clinton on October 18, 19 and 20, according to President William P. Jacobs of the college, chairman of the junior Davis cup committee of the Carolinas.

This is unusual recognition of Mr. Jacobs' experimental clinic held here last spring, since it puts the official stamp of approval both upon the idea, which originated with Mr. Jacobs, and upon the method used in running the clinic.

The faculty for the instruction at the clinic will be appointed by the United States Lawn Tennis association and will consist of leading amateurs and professionals from all over the nation.

Mr. Jacobs has stated that invitations to send a limited number of players from their teams will be extended soon to the high schools, prep schools, and colleges of North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia.

The purpose of the clinic is to increase the quality of tennis played by high schools and colleges in the South and to increase an already rapidly growing interest in the game.

Bitsy Grant To Assist In Clinic

In an announcement given out today the administration stated that Bryan "Bitsie" Grant of Atlanta, member of the United States Davis Cup team and an outstanding amateur tennis player, will be one of the leading figures to take part in the second annual Presbyterian College Tennis Clinic which will be held in Clinton on October 18, 19, and 20.

Bryan was one of the nationally famous tennis players who attended the clinic held here last fall. As one of the features while he was here he met Johnny Van Ryan in a match.

He highly commended the administration on the clinic idea and stated he was well pleased with it.

MANY STUDENTS LEAVE CAMPUS FOR WEEK-END

Presbyterian college observed its annual football holiday Saturday for the purpose of allowing the students to attend the Presbyterian-Georgia Tech game in Atlanta.

Observers stated that a large number of the students went home for the week-end, some for the first time since coming to college. The number in the dining hall during the week-end was smaller than usual, thus giving an indication of the number that left the campus.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

studious. The freshmen class also is much better. There is some good material in the class for outstanding students later on."

We next turned to a junior, ALVIN CHAPMAN, who said, "Of the three student bodies of which I have been a member the one this year is by far the best. The students impress me very much as being of a higher type than before. Most of them that I have met seem to be of a more serious mind, and to know why they are here, and what they want.

"The freshman class looks very good; they seem to be very versatile and have a good many outstanding athletes."

Next we turned to interview two seniors, FRANK JOHNSTON, vice-president of the student body and a member of the student council, and HUBERT WARDLAW, another of the parsons.

Frank said, "This, I believe, is the best student body we have had since I have been here. We still, however, have representatives of a good many different types of boys here. In general I think the conduct of the students this year has been about the same as in other years."

Wardlaw, a head-watier in the dining hall, gave us the low-down on the manners of the students. He said, "So far this year the boys have been much better behaved in the dining hall th anbefore. There has been little of the old-fashioned biscuit throwing. But," he added, "the year is young yet."

Thus the general opinion among the students we interviewed is that the average type of student here is much higher than in former years, with all due respect to our forebears. Maybe, however, you have different ideas.

Collegian Editor Wants More Copy

A. K. Darby, editor of The Collegian, reported today that work on the magazine is progressing well although material is not coming in as fast as he would like. He said that all is ready for the magazine to begin except the material; publishing contract for the year has been signed and the advertising has already been secured.

He wishes to urge all men who were on the staff last year to hand in their contributions as soon as possible. He said that he was also very much interested in having freshmen hand in material, and that positions on the staff will be given to those who submit material as has been the custom in the past.

DEAN'S HONOR LIST ANNOUNCED TODAY

CHANGES MADE IN FACULTY REGULATIONS FOR THIS YEAR

Dr. Whitelaw, Chairman of Revision Committee, Announces New Rules.

CO-EDS ALLOWED TO HOLD STUDENT OFFICES

Dr. Neil G. Whitelaw, chairman of the student activities committee and chairman of the committee on revision of the faculty regulations, said today that the faculty in a meeting held before the opening of school had adopted several changes in the faculty regulations which will be embodied in the edition of these regulations to be printed sometime in the near future and copies distributed to the student body.

Principal changes were made in the ratings of certain student offices in the number of points allowed for each and in the removal of the restriction of co-eds from holding student offices. The following changes in the point system were given in athletics: football captain, from 8 to 10 points; football manager, from 7 to 10; basketball captain, from 5 to 8; basketball manager, from 4 to 8; baseball captain, from 5 to 8; baseball manager, from 4 to 8; tennis captain, from 0 to 5; tennis manager, from 3 to 5; tennis player, from 2 to 4.

In the field fo publications the editor The Collegian will receive 8 points as compared with 4 in the past, and the number of points given the business manager will be elevated from 3 to 4 points.

In the field of student organizations the following changes were made: Number of points allowed president of junior class raised from 4 to 5; president of ministerial club, from 3 to 8; president of Pan-Hellenic council from 5 to 8; president of glee club, from 5 to 8.

The standing rule that no student may have enough offices to make his number of points over 25 is still in effect.

Co-eds are members of the student body on the same basis as men students and have the right to run for offices, vote or engage in any other extra-curricular activities.

Further changes in the regulations include: Excuses for absences may be given up until 12:01 Wednesday noon; the section allowing seniors to be excused from examinations in courses in which they have a grade of "B" or better is omitted; the section governing regulations for holding examinations is omitted to be covered by other regulations.

There were a few minor changes which Dr. Whitelaw said may be observed in the new copies of the faculty regulations when they are distributed. He said that these changes in regulations are now in effect and have been since the faculty meeting when they were adopted.

Chi Beta Phi To Add Members

"There are seven vacancies in membership in Chi Beta Phi which will be filled soon by issuing bids to outstanding students in the science courses," Jack Witherspoon, president of the honorary scientific fraternity, stated today.

He said that the membership is limited to twelve men and at present there are only five members.

"The fraternity will spend some time considering the best men for membership," he stated, "as we want to get the pick of the science students."

Time for regular meetings of the fraternity has been set for Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

At a recent meeting, the group discussed plans for inviting speakers to appear before the club during the year, and the matter of sending a representative to the national convention to be held in November.

Asst. Librarian

Above is Mrs. Mary Ella Osman, who, by recent appointment of the administration, will be assistant to Librarian Willard Jones. She has already taken up her duties. She is also a special student here at the college.

Glee Club Begins Regular Practices

Plans Are Made For Interesting Tours This Season.

Dr. S. M. Huntley, director, announced today that prospects for the glee club this year are very encouraging. So far, about 40 men have been out, which includes a good number for all parts. Ordinarily the glee club consists of about 35 men.

"Plans are being made," Dr. Huntley stated, "for one trip lasting about a week and for another of about three days. Parts of South Carolina and Georgia will be covered on these trips. Such towns as Rome, Elberton, Gainesville, Marietta, and Washington in Georgia, and Greenwood, Chester, York, Rock Hill, and Spartanburg in South South Carolina probably will be visited. In addition to these trips, there will be several one-day trips to nearby cities. Also the glee club will sing over the radio in Greenville, Charlotte, and other places, as in previous years. Most of the singing, however, will be in the churches of the towns visited. These trips will be conducted sometime in January or February."

In regard to the selections which will be sung, Dr. Huntley said he was thinking of using "Taps" as the last number on the programs, which would be rather unique. The glee club is also working on several numbers such as "Liebestraum" and "Bells of Moscow."

Glee club practice is held in the chapel every Tuesday and Thursday night at 7:15 o'clock.

Handbook To Be Issued This Week

The 1937-38 Y.M.C.A. student handbook has been released by the printers and will be distributed to the freshmen by the circulation staff this week.

"Upper classmen who want copies of the book must notify me personally," Editor L. G. Heckle told a reporter of The Blue Stocking today.

The publication, which was completed by its editors in May, has been in the hands of Jacobs Graphic Arts company, Clinton, the printers, since that time. But due to circumstances controlled by neither the printers nor the editors, it could not be printed until this month.

The book, edited by the publicity committee of the Y.M.C.A., is intended to serve as an explanatory guide to the campus and the various student body organizations.

DATES SET FOR PAN - HELLENIC PLEDGE SERIES

Will Be Held Week-End of November 12-13.

NEW ARMORY WILL BE SCENE OF FESTIVITIES

The first Pan-Hellenic dance of the season, the pledge dance, will be held at the armory on Friday and Saturday, November 12 and 13, John Woodward, president of the Pan-Hellenic council announced today.

The dance will be given in honor of the new pledges, and is an annual Pan-Hellenic dance.

The dance will be the first to be held in the armory, now nearing completion. President Woodward stated that no more Pan-Hellenic dances would be held at Copeland hall where they have been held in the past.

He stated that the dances will begin with a formal affair on Friday evening, Nov. 12, followed by a tea dance on Saturday afternoon, and the final on Saturday night will be an informal occasion. He said that the council already has begun plans to make this series one of the most successful of the number to be sponsored by the council this year.

When questioned as to what orchestra would play for the series, he said that the council could make no definite statement, although they had several popular bands in mind.

Woodward also said that the council plans to have four series of dances this year instead of the usual three. However, the faculty must approve this plan. No dances will be given by individual fraternities, as has been the custom in the past.

Woodward, when asked about the rushing season, said, "It seems to be coming along very well. We are expecting to get some good men in the various fraternities from among the new students."

Dramatic Club Selects First Play

The Sock and Buskin, local dramatic club, met this afternoon to discuss plans for the year. Names of 14 new members were brought up at the meeting and a play was selected for production this fall.

The play voted on was "The Ghost Train," by Arnold Ridley. Originally produced at the Eltinge theatre in New York, the play ran for 12 months in London and was brought back to this country for a successful run. It is a mystery play full of sheer, crinkling, creeping mystery from start to finish.

"The Ghost Train" will be followed by two other plays in the spring, one a comedy and the other a drama.

Robert Black, president, announced that the Sock and Buskin is looking forward to the most successful year in its history and that an unusual amount of interest in dramatics has been evidenced. The play will be produced under the direction of Dr. H. S. Fish, who is director of dramatics at Presbyterian college.

REGISTRAR POSTS HOURS AND QUALITY POINTS

Last Thursday the registrar posted on the door of her office a complete list of all the hours and quality points of upper classmen from the time of their entrance in college through the last semester of last year.

The registrar reminds the students to take note of the list so they may know how they stand. She said the students should be reminded that 130 hours and an equal number of quality points are necessary for graduation. Furthermore, to be classified as a sophomore a student must have to his credit, at the beginning of the session in September, 21 semester hours; to rank as a junior, 54 semester hours; and as a senior, 90 semester hours. Twelve semester hours in science are required for an A. B. degree.

TWENTY-ONE STUDENTS NAMED FOR HIGH SCHOLASTIC RATING

Gives Dean's List

Dean Marshall W. Brown, who today announced the official dean's list for 1936-37. This scholarship list bears the name of Dean because it is through his efforts the list is compiled.

Mrs. Mary Ella Osman Leads Student Body In Scholarship For Last School Year.

CREECH TOPS SENIORS; MISS FLEMING JUNIORS; AND BARNHILL, SOPHS

In issuing the Dean's list today, Dean Marshall W. Brown stated that the faculty has voted to suspend compulsory class attendance for juniors and seniors who are on the dean's scholarship list. The student may attend class as he chooses, except in the case where a professor may require the student to attend if he is doing unsatisfactory work in that particular course. However, the students who will receive this special privilege will have to meet all scheduled or previously announced tests. The ruling goes into effect immediately, according to Dean Brown.

The dean's honor list for 1936-37, composed of twenty-one students whose cumulative average is 2.5 or better in relation of quality pionts to hours, was issued today by Dean Marshall W. Brown. Of the twenty-one students listed only fifteen returned to school this year; the others left because of graduation and other reasons. Six of the fifteen are sophomores; four, juniors; four, seniors, and one is a special student.

Mrs. Mary Ella Osman, who is now a special student, led the entire student body with an average of 3.90. She was closely followed by Miss Laura Fleming, who leads the junior class with an average of 3.80. J. W. Barnhill, with an average of 3.65, leads the sophomores, while Norman Creech, with an average of 2.67, leads the seniors.

Second place leaders in each class are: Sophomore, H. P. Skinner; junior, R. F. Hutchinson; senior, Cliff H. McLeod.

The present list of twenty-one is less than that which was issued last spring, including a total of twenty-two, all of whom were in school at the time.

The next dean's list will be issued after the mid-term examinations in February.

The complete list, including seniors of last year, is as follows. The notation (NIS) by certain names indicates that the student is no longer in school.

Mary Ella Osman, 3.90; Laura Fleming, 3.80; J. W. Barnhill, 3.65; R. F. Hutchinson, 3.33; H. P. Skinner, 3.19; J. R. Thomason, 3.08; S. Denson (NIS), 2.92; F. Shaw (NIS), 2.92; D. W. Hudson, 2.82; F. Spratt (NIS), 2.80; Sara F. Baldwin (NIS), 2.75; C. W. McCully, Jr., 2.71; B. L. Wood, Jr.,2.69; N. O. Creech, 2.67; Marion Moore, 2.66; C. H. McLeod, 2.66; J. F. Byrum (NIS), 2.64; S. B. Campbell, Jr. (NIS), 2.59; C. D. Conrad, 2.57; E. A. Johnson, 2.55; W. Potter, 2.50.

Alpha Psi Delta, local sorority, announced today that the four following freshmen were last week pledged to the organization: Misses Juanita Thompson, Union; Adelaide Roberts, Clinton; Beth Ayers, Clinton; and Pegge Harding, Clinton. These will not be initiated until the second semester as the sorority comes under the same faculty regulations as those of the fraternities on the campus.

At the same meeting when these were pledged election of officers was held and the following were chosen to be leaders of the sorority for the year: Misses Verna McLeod, president, Ocala, Fla.; Shannon Simpson, vice-president, Clinton; Laetitia Jones, secretary-treasurer, Clinton; and Bebe Dillard, Clinton, chairman social committee.

The Inquiring Reporter

L. G. Heckle

We have as our question this week: "WHAT THREE DEPARTMENTS OF THE BLUE STOCKING, LISTED IN THE ORDER OF YOUR PREFERENCE, DO YOU LIKE BEST, AND WHAT SUGGESTIONS HAVE YOU FOR IMPROVING THOSE DEPARTMENTS OR THE PAPER IN GENERAL?"

We really received some very good suggestions, such as a radio column listing the time and stations of the best programs of the week; the insertion of pointed and informative comment on the week's movies in the theatre advertisement; and the addition of interesting features and football news on the front page. Since our purpose in getting these suggestions is to improve The Blue Stocking the way you want it improved, some of these suggestions will appear in the next issue of the paper and the others will follow.

The radio column was the suggestion of FOOTBALL CAPTAIN STEELE CALDWELL, who told us:

College Quartet Is Organized

The college quartet has already started practice and is expecting a successful year, Harris Gray, leader, stated today.

The quartet will take trips with the glee club, college deputation team, and the ministerial deputation team. In addition, the quartet probably will take part in several chapel programs.

In regard to the personnel of the quartet, Gray said that it will consist of the same men as last year, with one exception. J. L. Moss, a freshman, will sing first tenor in place of Jim Collings, who graduated in June. The other three members are M. N. Hemphill, baritone; H. G. Wardlaw, bass, and Gray, second tenor, all of whom are seniors.

Gray said the group would sing several novelty numbers which should improve the general performance of the quartet.

P. C. ORCHESTRA TO BE LED BY HARRIS GRAY

Director Announces Plans For Musical Organization.

WILL ACCOMPANY GLEE CLUB ON TRIPS

Harris Gray, director, announced today the plans of the college orchestra for the year. Mr. Gray said, "The band this year will compare favorably with the orchestras of past years in spite of the loss of several valuable men. We have some good material among the freshmen and should develop a fine orchestra."

In regard to the program for the year, Gray said he already had three engagements for the next few weeks, including the Block "P" club dance on October 15, Mamie Moor and Baxter Carpenter's dance on October 16, and a dance at Greenwood on October 23.

Gray said the orchestra will accompany the glee club on its trips in January and February, covering parts of South Carolina and Georgia. The orchestra probably will take more trips this year than last because of the success with which the organization met last year. In addition to this the band will play several times in the dining hall during meals.

As for the personnel, Gray said there will be two members from outside the college, Miss Millie Whitten, of Clinton, vocalist, and Sam Arnold, of Woodruff, sax player. Other members are: Roy Mac Spratt, of Greenville, sax; Joe Eaton, Tallahassee, Fla., sax; George Reid, Ocala, Fla., trumpet; Harris Gray, Greenwood, Miss., trumpet; M. C. Patterson, Moultrie, Ga., trombone; Keitt Darby, Fort Motte, piano, and Louis G. Heckle, Fort Valley, Ga., drums.

The brass section has been rehearsing daily for the past two weeks, and should be in good shape soon.

Prof. Sturgeon At S.I.A.A. Meet

Professor Harry E. Sturgeon, chairman of the athletic board of Presbyterian college attended the annual meeting of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association which was held in Birmingham, Ala., Saturday, for the purpose of discussing rules governing eligibility and other matters pertaining to intercollegiate athletics in the South.

Since Professor Sturgeon did not return in time, a report of the results of the meeting could not be obtained. However, before leaving he stated that he expected few changes would be made.

Hampton Talbot Is Speaker At I.R.C. Meeting

Hampton Talbot, a missionary's son from China, was the principal speaker at the International Relations club meeting last Wednesday evening. He used as his subject, "China's Side of the War."

In his talk Talbot brought firsthand information concerning the Sino-Japanese situation, acquired during his life in China. He said, "China is united and ready to give the Japs a struggle. If she sees she can hold out three months longer her chances for victory will be greatly increased."

After Talbot's talk, Jack Witherspoon, president of the club, announced plans for competitive examinations to select new members.

Complete Plans For Organization Of Military Band

Harris Gray Will Be Director. Likely To Form Drum and Bugle Corps.

Harris Gray, Jr., director, stated today, "The military band will be the largest and the best we have had in several years. The band made a favorable impression at Erskine Friday and will take several more football trips.

"We have many new numbers including several of the more popular marches. Among the numbers to be played by the band are: The Washington Post, The Thunderer, Semper Fidelis, El Capitan, Peerless, National Emblem, King Cotton, On the Mall, and Stars and Stripes Forever.

"Roy Mac Spratt who, although a freshman, has had experience with the Furman band, will be drum major. The band has been practicing every morning at drill period for the past two weeks. We expect to get up a drum and bugle corps within the next week."

Councilman

Above is Jack Witherspoon, of Cross Hill, president of International Relations club and Chi Beta Phi, who is one of the three senior councilmen this year. He has been a member of the student council the past two years and in the elections last spring was a candidate for president of the student body.

Jacobs Speaks To Young People

Many College Students Active In Local Group.

William P. Jacobs, president of the college, was speaker at the young people's service at the First Presbyterian church last Sunday night, using the subject, "Accepting Responsibility."

Just before the address, the newly-elected officers for the year were installed by Dr. D. J. Woods, pastor of the church. The officers are: Sam T. Lipsey, Savannah, Ga., president; Aiken Taylor, Clinton, vice-president; Tench Owens, Clinton, secretary-treasurer; Betty Spratt, Clinton, chairman of the program committee. The first three are college students.

Other college students elected to the council were: Bob Black, Hampton Talbot, Bill Hart, Robert Wysor, Laetitia Jones, and Billy Lightfoot.

A social to be held sometime in the near future was announced by President Lipsey. He said details would be given out later.

P. C. Grad Heads Junior College

In The Paducah (Ky.) Press there appeared on the editorial page on September 24th a comment about Dean R. G. Matheson, who for a time two years ago was connected with Presbyterian college as assistant to the president.

The comment is as follows: "Our hats are off to Dean R. G .Matheson of Paducah Junior College. For the first time in the history of Paducah a school year was opened with a municipal college in our city. The enrollment is one of the largest in the history of the five years of the college; and Mr. Matheson is responsible for the fine enrollment this year. We congratulate him!"

Mr. Matheson is a graduate of Presbyterian college in the class of 1921. For a time he was connected with the McCallie school in Chattanooga from where he came to Presbyterian. He left here for his present position in Kentucky.

Jim Collings In New York

Jim Collings, of the class of '37, is now in New York where he is connected with the Liberty Mutual Life Insurance company.

After leaving school last spring he first attended a six weeks' insurance training course at Boston.

Collings was selected from several outstanding students here last spring by a representative of the company who came to the campus for the purpose of interviewing students of the senior class.

CAMPUS CRUISING

WHAT'S WHAT ON OTHER CAMPUSES

By PETE McCORMICK

Judging by the mail that has been coming to us in the form of papers from others schools, it appears that most of the school papers are now underway again.

Our most consistently-appearing paper is the Daily Tar Heel of the University of North Carolina, which is the only daily in the South and has been spoken or by some as the best.

Among the papers from girls' schools was one from Winthrop. Seems as though the gals up that way have gotten started again, and are putting out a pretty good paper, too.

The papers coming the longest distance is The Stylus, which comes from a Presbyterian college out in Missouri.

Wofford college opened with a record enrollment of 483, and also announce that they have a new commandant up that way.

Clemson started off with a football special that proved to be very good. Incidentally, it was the issue before the Clemson-P. C. fray.

From the Hampden-Sydney TIGER, of Virginia, we have this scoop! In one of their editorial columns the writer says:

"The forum system inaugurated at Presbyterian college last year as an experiment, this year becomes a permanent part of the college's program of personalized education. Under the forum system every student meets informally with faculty members several times a year, at the home of the faculty member or at some convenient place, and informal discussions of those important phases of collgee work, not covered in the regular text books, are carried on. The entire system is voluntary, but when tried as an experiment last year students flocked to the gatherings."

Somebody up that way has been reading P. C. literature!

And another writer on the same paper says this about the aftermath of a football game: "We are inclined to agree with the definition that a night club is a place where the tables are reserved and the guests aren't."

And from Indiana university comes this one: The only permit allowing an Indiana university student to sleep through a day's classes was issued a dozen years ago to James W. Elliot, '26, who had spent 72 sleepless hours while rushed with work on the Daily Student.

And for South Carolinians this will be of particular interest: Farming is the chief vocation of parents of the University of South Carolina students. Also: More than 200 South Carolina students have signed the university's new "honor system" pledge.

Caught while trying to swipe lace "panties" from the dressing room of a burlesque star as a fraternity initiation stunt, Henry Brewer, a student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, faced criminal charges until "Kiki" Roberts, the pilfered-from, refused to press claims against him.

To good anti-Republican students at P. C., this one might be interesting: Marquette university (Milwaukee, Wis). authorities recently refused to allow a Young Democrat political meeting on the campus.

We can see more clearly how this could be when we pause to imagine a Young Republican political meeting on P. C.'s campus. Frankly, our imagination isn't that strong.

ALPHA LAMBDA TAU INITIATES TWO MEN

Alpha Lambda Tau initiated two men, both juniors, last Monday night at their meeting. They were Henry R. Fenn, of Cordele, Ga., and T. Q. Jones, Jr., of Gainesville, Ga. Both men were pledged last spring.

BOOK REVIEW

By A. K. DARBY

"ONE LIFE, ONE KOPECK"

By Walter Duranty

This very odd title gives no hint of the content or the type of literature within the covers of the volume. Actually, the meaning of the title is a statement of the theme of the book, one which presents a vivid picture of the birth of present-day Russia. One life then was worth exactly one kopeck.

The characters are endowed with an unusual amount of life and for once the pages are full of human and graphic illustrations of the situation instead of the more orthodox manner of treating the reader to a host of veiled and allegorical references to Lenin and Stalin, accompanied by a full case for or against Communism as the author's prejudice dictates.

In direct violation of another precept of commentary on the Russian scene, Mr. Duranty is and has been for many years a resident correspondent and commentator on Russia. Coupled with a remarkable understanding and perception of what he has seen, he has a rough disregard for the niceties that would serve only to lessen the rugged tenor of his theme. The Russians in those turbulent times were not gentle, and Mr. Duranty paints nothing toward portraying them exactly as they were.

In his central character, Ivan Petrovitch, he shows the violent emotional stresses that so many Russians were subjected to, with the consequence that they lost their human attachments and were led to substitute the "Cause" as their one object of devotion. In the first few pages Ivan is severely beaten by his master, his mother kills her father with an axe, and he is sent to prison in Siberia for a part in a brawl, while his noble companion goes off scot-free.

His escape and subsequent to the Red party as a means of revenging himself on the society that had so rudely treated him, his experiences in the army of imperial Russia and the deterioration of its organization; his loves and brushes with death in a thousand guises; his final sacrifice when nothing is left but the service to the party; the swift pace of the man and the stormy background against which his life ran its course make one of the best of recent novels which attempt to present Russia in its true contradictory self.

Deadline For The Collegian Is Oct. 7

All students desiring to submit material are requested to hand it in at once.

FRESHMEN GIVEN COURSE IN USE OF THE LIBRARY

An annual feature of the freshman course in English is a course in the use of the library and its catalog, which is given by Willard L. Jones, librarian.

The course embodies a study of the great libraries of the world, the various systems of cataloging, a general survey of library methods, and specific information regarding the Presbyterian college library, its system of cataloguing and how to use the reference works. A test is given at the completion of the course, which lasts about two weeks.

Classes are held in the main reading room of the library at the regular class hours.

PENNEY'S

SOUND OFF

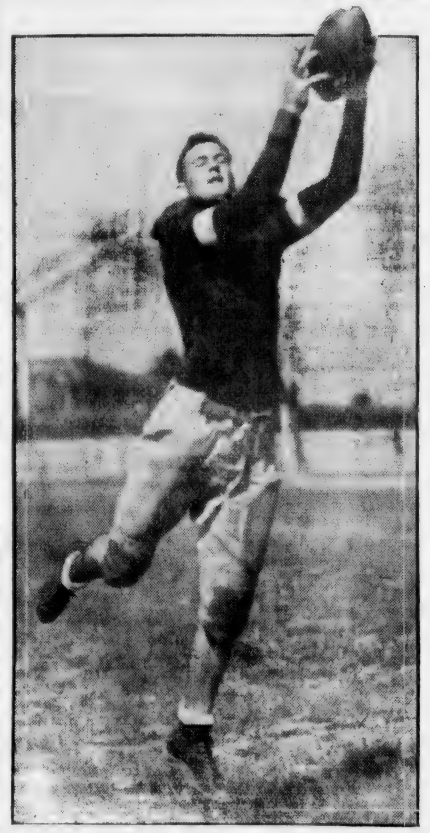
— By — E. A. JOHNSON

Rumors are afoot that the P. C. corps is in training for active duty in Alaska. At least the men are getting well-seasoned to the rigors of winter by continuing to wear uniforms without coats well into the cold season. There is some method in the apparent madness, for the general idea is to wait until the freshmen get their outfits and turn all the corps out in coats at the same time.

Now that the new men are being instructed in the manual of arms, the awkward squad is growing in size. If it continues to increase, Lieutenant hopes to get it a more dignified name and consider himself as instructor of "D" company.

When a final call went out last week for basic men to volunteer for training in special drill, the response was not all that could be hoped. Tomorrow afternoon another practice session will be held. If a full platoon does not report the whole scheme probably will be dropped. We did not realize that academic endeavor was being so assiduously pursued this year, but we discovered that all sophomores we approached about volunteering for the afternoon drills devote the hour from four to five P. M. to concentrated study.

Major Cummings and his group of senior assistants are about ready to announce some definite results of the weeks of review and practical tests of the sophomore class. This year's corporals will be picked on the basis of the ability sophomores have shown in this early work.



From the number of names on sick report each morning, we would judge that there is some danger of a return of the "gold-brick regime." However, with the O. D. sending men with minor ailments back to their companies rather than excusing them from drill perhaps there will be fewer drill cuts via the infirmary.

If the rest of the advanced corps is in anything like the position of the columnist, the first pay check of the year will come as a blessed relief in the time of need. We understand that most of the money, due some time in the next week, is spent already. One home guard who handles a bit of a cleaning business on the campus states that he will profit as much as any army man by collecting past-due bills.

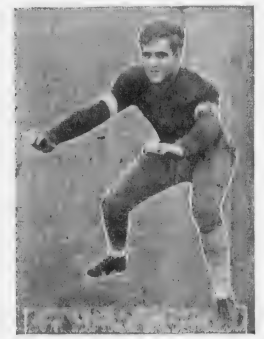
These Men Are Expected To Play a Large Part in Friday Night's Game When Presbyterian Meets The Citadel In the First Home Appearance of the Hose

Pete Holcombe, end, is expected to be one of Presbyterian's strongest points both on offense and defense Friday night. He was one of P. C.'s mainstays in last Friday's game with Erskine at Due West.

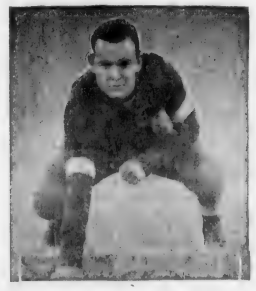


Allen McSween, end, a senior, though not a first string man, will probably enter Friday night's game.

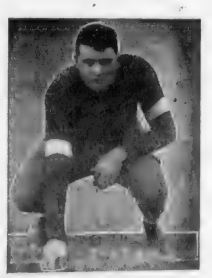
S. CALDWELL—End

Above is Steele Caldwell, end and captain of the Blue Hose, who will lead his team against Citadel Friday night in their first home appearance.

R. L. Boswell, first string tackle, is expected to be one of P. C.'s mainstays in the line Friday night.



C. W. ISOM—Back



C. W. Isom, quarterback, will be in part of the time Friday directing P. C.'s plays, as he will probably substitute for Quarterback Ritch from time to time.

Lykes Henderson, first string center, although having received an injury in the Georgia Tech game, is expected to be in good condition against the Bulldogs Friday night.

Walter Todd, right guard, a junior, has shown himself to be a strong factor in the right side of the line.

W. W. Evans, husky left tackle, probably will be one of P. C. strong points in the left side of the line in Friday's game.

ROGER HARSHBARGER · CITADEL GUARD

"KOOKSIE" ROBINSON BACK

The three above are expected to play a large part in The Citadel's attack here Friday night when the Bulldogs, having suffered a loss at the hands of Navy Saturday, will be out to wreak vengeance on the Blue Hose. Andy Sabados was the winner of the Jacobs Blocking Trophy for South Carolina in 1936, and will be a contender for the cup this year.

Thought For the Week

Watch the Last Ten Minutes

There is a saying among the English that an Englishman can face danger with greater courage than anyone else in the world, and that he can exercise that courage for ten minutes longer than anyone else. Many victories are won—and lost—during the last ten minutes. Slacking up of interest, letting down the standard, breaking down the morale, giving out of strength, loss of courage during the last ten minutes may lose a hard-fought battle.

Many grow weary of holding the line, but only the following through to the end, even when we are so tired of routine, the drudgery, the self-denial, the endless tasks—only holding on during the last ten minutes will bring victory.

What! No White Collar Jobs?

During a chapel period week before last, Professor Sturgeon, who is in charge of student work this year, made an announcement stating that each student receiving a scholarship must keep an accurate account of the hours worked by him.

This drew some unpleasant comments from students, for in the past certain jobs such as student assistants have been on a flat rate of so much a year to do the job. We were requested to write an editorial protesting some parts of this program.

The story we carried last week about students' work, however, shows why we are not protesting the program so far as has been made known to us. The part that hasn't been made known to us is what method of distribution of work will be made next year after the administration has determined this year how many hours it requires to fill the different jobs assigned students. If the distribution is made on such plan as the man who works as an assignment in some course will get no more per hour than the man who goes out and digs ditches, then certainly that part can be protested.

It will be noted that the latter system exists even under the plan being used this year. Student assistants and other jobs of a higher nature are appointed on the basis of the student's ability to take care of such work; whereas, campus workers in most cases are given a job which requires only one thing—manual labor.

Now somebody is going to be smart enough to see that this is against all the principles of fair treatment of labor—the white collar man must make more than the ditch-digger. In other words, the system of giving each student the same amount per hour, no matter what type of work he is in, certainly looks as though a good old-fashioned system of Communism has hit our student work department.

But let's us hasten to add that those who receive N. Y. A. pay according to the governmental set-up can not receive more than thirty cents an hour, no matter what work they are in; but the possibilities as seen by some who have commented to us is that scholarship wages could be put on a more just basis.

This editorial is not directed as a criticism, but as an inquiry. We still wonder why those who, by some reason, have been appointed to jobs of a higher type of work than other receive the same pay.

Yes, there are not white collar jobs at Presbyterian. "We are all one community, equally alike, one deserving no more consideration for his work than the other, no matter how much more capable he is of doing a type of work that others can not, we must all receive the same in the goods of this world, no matter how little or how much put in it."

Karl Marx would have liked that quotation.

The Dean's List

With this issue comes the dean's list of those who have attained a 2.5 scholarship rating since their entrance into school. Those on it are supposed to represent the intelligentsia of the school. Whether you accept them as such depends on your definition of "intelligentsia."

To our way of thinking, the real intelligentsia of the school are those who are able to combine scholarship with extra-curricular activities, with equally good success in both. If you will give but a brief glance at the list you will find few if any who come up to that definition.

Apparently our campus leaders have come to the conclusion that to gain scholarship-recognition means but little in life. And if those who are now on the list prove to be no better leaders in life than they are at college, then apparently the student who goes around sneering at the "book worms" certainly is right.

In our four years at Presbyterian, we have always been disappointed to find the dean's list composed mostly of a certain group whose interests in life seem to be confined a little too much to book work.

But there have been exceptions where good leaders have also proven to be good students, but these have been scarce.

So for four years we have tried to find a scholar at Presbyterian, but apparently a scholar according to our definition doesn't exist. In our definition we would say that a scholar is a student who is an outstanding athlete in at least four major sports, an outstanding Christian, an outstanding leader in student government, and is one who is of such personality as to win the election for student body president. Furthermore, we would expect him by sheer brilliancy of mind, rather than by "cramming," to be smarter than anybody in school; we expect him to be a good forensic man, and have a knowledge of music, art, science, commerce, and be able to write well, as well as top all his attributes off with a good personality.

Show us one like this and we'll admit you've found the scholar.

On the dean's list you will find those who fulfill one or more of our requirements for a scholar, but you won't find the well-rounded student in it.

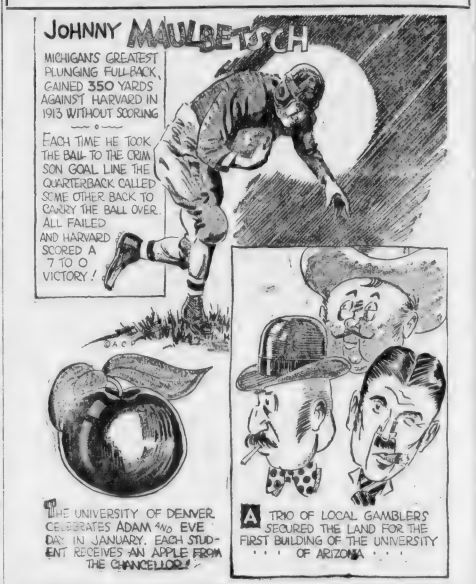
Unfortunate as this situation may be, it is not worse than that which exists in other fields of college activities. You will find outstanding athletes to be only average students in their studies, the majority of men in student government only mediocre students, the military leaders holding no' average to shout about, with the exceptions of course, and so you will find this situation true in other departments of college life.

But to aspire to be the well-rounded student—well, you've got something there.

In conclusion, we say that though the dean's list is not composed entirely of well-rounded students, neither is the football team, the student council, or any other student organization; therefore, those who have made the list are deserving of commendation as those who are participants in any other activity. And some of them have worked just as hard to make the dean's list as others have worked to make the team. The value of making one is just as questionable as making the other. Therefore, let none say, "So you've made the dean's list—so what?" for we come back, "So you've made the team, or you have been elected, or you've become a member of so-and-so, or you have been appointed to some high office—so what?"

SO THEY SAY

"If you have a Phi Beta Kappa key and a nickel, you can always get a cup of coffee." Miami university's practical Professor Vatter sounds a sour keynote.



"Education is a fairly serious business, or, if it isn't, it ought to be." The University of Wisconsin's President Clarence Addison Dykstra knows college students.

"Insanity is on the increase. Already more beds are being occupied by mental cases in the United States than by patients hospitalized from all other causes combined." A black horizon presented by Dr. Earl Crafts, Ohio State university psychiatrist.

"Presumably a college deals in character building, academic discipline and culture. Yet if we were to accept the newspaper and periodical, radio and news reel publicity as an accurate portrayal of college life, we should indeed be beguiled into thinking the wares were social and athletic." Press Agent Stores Lee, of Muhlenburg college, suggests an "about-face" in college publicity releases.

"College men are nice—except those at Yale. I was at New Haven on several occasions and they were perfectly horrid." Ann Corio, strip-teaser, bares her mind to a Daily Pennsylvanian reporter.

D. R. DINGEMAN

These COLEMANS certainly do make news—and other freshmen, too. The big one's been seen dating a Major's daughter, and you know who I mean as well as anybody else.

O, knife—O, bread—O, honey-suckle rose.

Typical conversation heard in a girl's dorm:

Chaperon: Girls, I have a man outside whom I want you to meet.

Athletic Girl: What can he do?

Religious Girl: What church does he attend?

Literary Girl: What does he read?

Chorus Girl: How much money does he make?

College Girl: Where is he?

Over the Tech week-end we saw some things happen that ought to be in this column by all means. It seems that the rats will play while the cat's away. RAT FRASER was seen escorting a certain gal around in fine style with CAB BLACKWELL and his fever-frau. That gal, in case you wanta know, wants to keep her name a deep dark secret, and it isn't in me to break a promise to such a swell gal.

Would you believe it: The Little Apple being done in the evening on the steps of hallowed Spencer hall to the music of a car radio. For my own safety, the identities of the parties concerned must be kept out of the black and white.

Oh-h boy! Mina is her name and she's a great gal. If you don't believe it, you might ask JACK. He'll be glad to tell you.

Chivalry: The age of chivalry is most certainly not dead. A certain RAT COLEMAN, the little one, whose specialty is ladies in distress, was seen fixing KITTY MOORE'S shoe the other night a a good grade of social.

Local boy makes good: RED ELLISON had one of the prominent young ladies from Greenville down to his fraternity's social the other night. And she is a nice-looking girl, if we may say so, and we do.

E. F. MacLEOD

Flash! It has finally been definitely determined that the row in front of the theatre one night last week was caused by C. D. "Student Body" JACOBS insisting up being admitted to the show on a single ticket!

JOE COMMANDER, genial president of the student body, is still receiving those daily sugar reports from Coker college. Ain't lurve grand!! "You know how it is."

Our prize goes to SADIE VINCENT for being the most adept co-ed in the gentle art of skeetin' stuff. Maybe she received her training at Columbia college as JIMMY RICHARDSON tells us inmates of that institution are equipped with the best lines in the state. Incidentally, he's the man who knows!

PETE BROOKER, known to his female acquaintances of Roddey Hall, Winthrop, as "Petie Boy," is deeply engrossed in a romantic venture at said female academy. From all we can gather, "Petie Boy" is a courtin' fool around them parts!

The following gem is dedicated to "HAP" GRAY, noted college maestro:

A tutor who tooted the flue
Tried to teach two young tooters to toot;
Said the two to the tutor,
"Is is harder to toot,
Or to tutor two tooters to toot?"

Wonder of wonders: The chief of the Holy Robbers has said that the canteen will close at ten promptly, and they mean it. They think your money's just as good after ten, but they won't take it. It may not sound true, but it is.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

When school opened this September I found that many improvements had been made during the summer. The arrangement of the new seats in the chapel was perhaps the greatest improvement. Also, there had been a great deal of painting and carpenter work during the summer.

It seems to me, however, that the "Y" building, due to its management, is not nearly so useful to the student body as it was last year. In the first place the door between the canteen and the back room of the "Y" building has been nailed shut. That makes it inconvenient to go into or through the "Y" building; consequently the building is not the gathering place it used to be.

In the second place there have been no games in the "Y" building this year as there were last year. Why is it that checkers, chess, caroms, and ping pong are not being played this year? Why isn't there a collection of books in the reading room this year? The student body is certainly not using and enjoying the "Y" building as much this year. It appears to me that if games were provided and the door between the canteen and the back room opened, the building would be more useful to the whole student body.

CITADEL HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Citadel-P. C. Clash Friday Opens Home Play

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

PRESBYTERIAN'S FOURTH

Friday night Presbyterian meets The Citadel Bulldogs in P. C.'s fourth game of the season and the first on the home field. Fresh from a good licking by the Navy, the Bulldogs will be looking for revenge. Naturally, the Blue Hose have the odds against them, as present figures show that up to date their opponents have scored a total of 125 points while they have scored none.

But prospects are bright for a good game Friday night, even though the Hosemen are somewhat handicapped with minor injuries. And as we wait for the fourth encounter, we are expecting P. C. to break its record and score.

LITTLE BO-PEEP

It was the year 1492. Things were dull around the little town of Spain and activity in an unprogressive state. Christopher Columbus, a local boy, decided to do something big. He bought a boat and discovered America. Did the boys around town appreciate it? No man, they summoned Black Maria and had Chris thrown into the county jail.

Last year P. C.'s President Jacobs decided to do something big for a little school. He brought some of America's leading racquet artists to Clinton, organized a tennis clinic, made America conscious of P. C. and P. C. conscious of tennis. Do we appreciate it?

Here's how three members of the student body feel about it:

Opinion No. 1—"The tennis program is carried too far. The development of major sports has been retarded by an unreasonable emphasis on tennis."

"Opinion No. 2—"I think it's a good thing, and believe P. C. will profit. Other phases of P. C. athletics aren't affected by the emphasis on tennis.

Opinion No. 3—"Tennis is O. K. as a minor sport, but how about spending a little time and money on football, boxing and baseball. I'm opposed to it."

And now, Professor, it's my time to speak. To begin with, I'm in favor of the emphasis on, and development of tennis.

To continue, I don't believe other sports are slighted by this newly-born enthusiasm of the court game. Moreover, the tennis addicts who have enrolled at P. C. during the past two years make up an unusually fine representation of desirable students.

And to conclude, look what it did for Little Bo-Peep. You probably haven't heard anything about her other than the sheep loss. Permit me to take up where the story-books left off:

Little Bo-Peep had lost her sheep,
And half her fortune, too—
Her health was bad, the girl felt sad,
Forlorn, and kinda blue.

Athletic stardom was her aim
Through all of eighteen years,
But recent setbacks changed all this—
Saw Bo-Peep through her tears.

And then one day the mailman brought
Some stuff about P. C.—
A place where racqueteers are kings
Of all humanity.

And so she bought a tennis set—
A racquet, balls and net;
She soon became a brilliant star

Little Po-Peep has lost her sheep,
But she don't give a heck—
She reigns supreme as tennis queen
Of P. C. Tennis Tech.

FLEET VICTORY SECOND IN 22 YEARS OF PLAY

Pressly and Mates Strike Three Times In Friday's Game at Due West.

Big Jim Pressly and his Erskine mates mixed aerial stuff with a concentrated ground attack to register a 20 to 0 win over Presbyterian on a rain-soaked Due West field Friday.

The Fleet, in annexing its second victory over P. C. in over 20 years of competition, got started early. A sustained drive was under way immediately after the opening whistle. Although unable to push over a first-quarter score, the victors kept the ball in P. C. territory and struck twice in the second period. Aultman took off for 25 yards after the Hosemen punted to the Erskine 30. A mixed attack advanced the ball gradually and Pressly took it over.

The Hosemen fumbled the next kick-off on their own 10. Herring recovered for Erskine and Pressly again plunged through P. C.'s defense for a touchdown.

An exchange of punts featured third-quarter play, with Fleet superiority keeping the ball in Hose territory. Erskine tallied early in the fourth. Burris intercepted a pass in midfield, followed Edwards' protective interference and went over standing up. Shuler made the extra point to give the Fleet two out of three for the afternoon.

Pressly's all-round play, the blocking and punting of Shuler and Edwards, work at end featured Fleet performance. Presbyterian's team lacked alertness and fight and appeared somewhat sluggish.

The line-ups:

P. C.		Erskine
LE—Caldwell		L. Edwards
LT—Evans		W. Moore
LG—Strain		Furr
C—Finney		Kerr
RG—Todd		Miller
RT—Boswell
RE—Holcombe		E. Edwards
QB—Isom		Burris
HB—Culp		Shuler
HB—Batchelor		Aultman
FB—Horne		J. Pressly

Score by periods:

P. C.	0	0	0	0	0
Erskine	0	13	0	7	20

Scoring touchdowns: for Erskine, Pressly 2, Burris. Point after touchdown, Herring, Shuler (placements).

Athletic Program For Co-eds Likely

Basketball Team Probably Be Organized, If Coach Can Be Secured To Direct.

Despite a lack of specific information, there has been an expression of opinion indicating plans for a more extensive treatment of co-ed physical education for the coming winter season. Organization of a basketball team hinges on the procuring of a coach.

Coach Walter Johnson recently approached Miss Rita Chandler with a proposition which may result in a revival of organized cage activity for P. C.'s feminine student body element. Johnson has agreed to arrange for competition and back expenses if co-ed leaders will supply the coach.

Last year, regular classes in physical training were offered and a majority of co-eds were signed up. Roy Forehand, assistant in the department of physical education, had charge of this work. A routine of exercise, corrective development, swimming and games was followed. Forehand's absence deprives the department of this type of instruction, particularly along the coaching line. He refereed girls' basketball throughout the state and maintained some knowledge of coaching.

Johnson, in the past, has emphasized and stimulated athletics and physical education for co-eds and will undoubtedly offer a program this year.

BLUE STOCKINGS HOPE TO SPRING SURPRISE ON CADETS

TRIGGER RITCH-BACK PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE

Ritch, quarterback, will call the plays for Presbyterian as the Blue Stockings meet The Citadel on Johnson field Friday night.

Coach Johnson Still Seeking Capable Toe Artist.

Presbyterian's luckless Hosemen entertain Citadel's classy convicts on Johnson field Friday evening in their third state clash of the current season. Under 72,000 watts of artificial sunshine, the P. C. eleven will be opening their home season.

The Cadets, back from their journey to, and stiff workout at Annapolis, are preparing for an apparently easy engagement. Walter Johnson, on the other hand, is still trying to develop a kicker, and toying with various combinations in an attempt to ascertain a victory blend.

The presence of three, and sometimes four, diminutive men in the backfield has made Hose play an ineffective thing so far. The presence of Batchelor and Reynolds, coupled with speed as offered by Horne, Culp, Dennard, Ritch and Isom, probably will make the rear guard a more effective unit.

Citadel's outfit, though lacking in reserve strength, is a potential unit and capable of upsetting the dope this season.

Interesting Card Set For Week-End

Clemson-Georgia Battle High In Interest of Fans.

South Carolina gridiron forces enter another week of competition with a menu including several promising and colorful engagements.

On Friday evening Presbyterian makes it home debut against The Citadel's strong Cadet eleven. The soldiers, though doped to win handily, are lacking in reserve strength and may meet a tartar in the Hose hopefuls. Erskine journeys to Wake Forest for a night affair with the Deacons on Friday.

Five tough games are scheduled for Saturday, with the Clemson-Georgia and Carolina-Alabama tussles rating highest in interest. The Bulldogs of Georgia are favored to take Clemson by a small margin, despite bountiful contrary opinion. Carolina, despite accomplishment of a 13-13 tie with North Carolina, and the fine performance against Georgia, will enter the 'Bama battle as underdog.

Furman entertains N. C. State on Greenville soil and should emerge a two or three touchdown victor. Wofford, also playing host, has an even chance to overcome Oglethorpe's bid for victory. And to top off the week's card, Newberry journeys to Emory, Va., to make war on Billy Laval's Emory and Henry pigskin professors. The teams are evenly matched.

Carolina Trounces Freshman Outfit

Carolina Biddie Uncork Flashy Play To Take Baby Hose Into Camp, 31 to 0.

Presbyterian's highly-touted frosh outfit dropped a 31 to 0 decision to a strong University of South Carolina team at Columbia Wednesday, but gave indications of power, talent and other characteristics of a coming club.

The little Gamecocks flashed a pair of dazzling ball carriers, three effective blockers and a charging forward wall to account for a touchdown in every quarter and two in the last. The Sox, on the other hand, were lacking in fundamentals finesse and smoothness of cooperative team play.

Coleman and Cooper at the ends, and Finlayson at tackle, were P. C.'s line stars. Meiskey's passing and running, and Howards' work at half stood out among the backs. Both first-half scores came after determined drives by rushing. The Biddies scored spectacularly in the third when Arrowsmith intercepted a short flat pass, followed quickly-assembled interference and went over.

Grygo, Carolina back, scored early in the fourth on a 21-yard dash around left end. After repulsing a P. C. offensive threat, this same Grygo again counted.

Presbyterian's most effective weapon came in the from of a passing attack. With Meiskey delivering and a pair of alert ends doing the snagging, an impressive yardage total was amassed.

The line-ups:

P. C. (0)		Carolina (31)
LE—Coleman		Brown
LT—Groome		Urban
LG—Fleischman		Jones
C—Rateree		Mitchell
RG—Flanders		Kroto
RT—Finlayson		Hatkevitch
RE—Cooper		Nowak
QB—McSwain		McCallister
LH—Meiskey		Grygo
RH—McIntosh		Henson
FB—Watson		Arrowsmith

Scoring: Touchdowns, Grygo (2), Lowry, Arrowsmith and Henson. Point after touchdown, McCallister (placement).

Substitutions: P. C.: Palmer, Lawrence, Frazier, Carter, Howard, Bird, Murphy, Roberts, Carpenter, Jones, McLaughlin, Embler, Barnhill and Presley. Carolina: Lowry, McDonald, Clayton, Crogan, Carna, Bozard, E. Myers, Dowling, Schuler, Patrone.

Tennis Magazine Gives Lift To Local Court Endeavor

In its issue of September 20th, "American Lawn Tennis," a magazine devoted to the sport, said:

"Presbyterian college at Clinton, S. C., where a tennis clinic was held last fall, continues to boost the game among the colleges and schools of that section of the country by urging others to take the steps it has in making tennis a leading sport among the students. President William P. Jacobs, who is also chairman of the junior Davis cup activities in the Carolinas, is largely responsible for this movement. He believes in stressing tennis for three reasons:

"1. It is a sport in which all of the students can participate.

"2. It lends itself beautifully to gentlemanly conduct and sportsmanship.

"3. It is a splendid builder of physique and intelleet.

"An attractive pamphlet has been prepared, 'Tennis at Presbyterian College,' and is being circulated preparatory to the 1937 clinic which will be held October 18 to 20. The pamphlet includes pictures of the courts and of Mr. and Mrs. John Van Ryn and Bitsy Grant, who exhibited at last year's clinic, also of Wilson Allison who played at the college in the spring, of Jack Stockton and others instrumental in furthering the cause of the clinic."

Courts At P. C. See Many Young Hopeful In Activity Under Eye of New Tennis Coach As Clinic Nears

Daily the terraced courts at Presbyterian college are filled with young racquet hopefuls as the Blue Stocking tennis team studies points and pointers at the expert hands of William C. Lufler, tennis professional of Atlanta and St. Petersburg, Fla., and recently made tennis coach at the Clinton institution.

With tennis one of the major sports on its athletic program, Presbyterian college this year plans to move even more prominently into the limelight of Southern college supremacy.

It will boast a tennis squad vastly superior to that of last year. Lykes Boykin, state junior titleholder and runner-up for the state men's championship; George Beatty, winner of the consolation cup in the state closed tournament; Robert Harper, an outstanding junior college man who entered P. C. this fall, and Bobby Glickert, another junior college star, will form the nucleus about which Coach Lufler hopes to build a championship team.

Included on its extensive tennis program this year are two outtsanding events. The second annual Presbyterian college tennis clinic, having been officially endorsed by the United States Lawn Tennis association, will take place on October 18, 19 and 20, with such nationally prominent players as Bitsy Grant taking part in it.

The South Carolina intercollegiate tennis tournament will be held on the local courts for the second conseecutive time this spring.

TO MAKE FROSH PICTURES FOR ANNUAL NEXT WEEK

Malcolm Henmphill, editor of the Pac-Sac, stated today that Nichols' Studio will begin next Monday taking pictures of members of the freshman class for the yearbook. A week will be allowed for the freshmen to get their pictures taken, after which the upper classmen will have theirs made.

Editor Hemphill also stated that he was still anxious to have snapshots from candid camera enthusiasts.

per that I like best are, first, the sports page, then Campus Commentators, and, last, general news." Then he added, "I would like to see a good radio program column each week, listing the time and stations of the week's best programs."

At this point in the interview, J. W. TODD and BE MOORE, who were nearby, told us that the paper was too serious; that what it needed was a good original joke column.

Next it was STUDENT BODY PRESIDENT JOE COMMANDER, whom we stopped on his busy round of the campus. "I prefer the sports page first, then general news, and the editorial page," he said. He was very much in favor of the radio column, then added this general comment. "I think the paper is very well as it is, but I would like to see a brief critical summary of the week's movies."

JIM BOOTH, who is taking just about everything the science department has to offer and a stiff language course for good measure, had just time enough to tell us he thought it a good paper and stated his preference for departments, in order: sports, Campus Commentators, and general news.

Said HUIET PAUL, who was also studying hard, "I read the sports page first, then the editorial page, and lastly, Campus Commentators and general news." Then he continued, "I think there should be more care taken on the sports page to give credit where credit is due; also I think there has been a little too much continued unfavorable criticism of tennis. After all, it is definitely on the upgrade and should be given a chance to prove its worth under the new program, although I am not forgetting the importance of football in this connection."

Here is what GEORGE MABRY thinks along the same subject. Said he, "I think football should 'make the front page' more often. It should be backed by the administration more than some other sports, such as tennis, because the financial returns from football would make possible a fuller program of minor sports."

George prefers the sports and editorial pages, then the Campus Commentators column.

We next talked to Freshman BILL COLEMAN ,who comes to P. C. and The Blue Stocking highly recommended by the editor of Rock Hill's Evening Herald, for whom he worked. "I read the editorial page first, he said, "then the sports page and general news." Bill, who has a technical knowledge of a paper, made this kind of suggestion: "I think it would improve the looks of the paper if more stories were carried over from the front page. Also I would suggest more features and that all fillers should be of campus interest."

If you have any ideas that you would like to see given space in The Blue Stocking, sit down and write a letter to the editor, or give them to the writer. REMEMBER, THE BLUE STOCKING IS YOUR PAPER, AND IF YOU THINK IT COULD BE IMPROVED, THEN IT'S UP TO YOU TO SUGGEST SOME IMPROVEMENTS — AND HERE IS YOUR CHANCE!

HOMECOMING IS THIS WEEK-END

QUIET HOURS CAME TO END AT FOUR P. M.

Official Rush Reason of Six Social Organizations Reaches Climax This Afternoon.

STUDENTS MAKE CHOICE OF FRATS

This afternoon at four o'clock the official rush season of the six national social fraternities on the campus culminated with the ending of the "quiet hour" lasting from Saturday noon until today, came to a close. During the quiet hour no fraternity man was allowed to speak to a freshman about fraternities.

Officers of the fraternities submitted to Dr. A. E. Spencer, chairman of the faculty committee on social organizations, lists of men to whom they extended bids. Dr. Spencer mailed to each of these men a notice informing him that he had received a bid from a fraternity. This afternoon these men met with Dr. Spencer and stated on paper their first, second, and third preferences in fraternities. He checked their choice with the bids they had received and wrote them down as pledges to the group nearest the top of their list that had given them a bid.

The quiet hour beginning at noon Saturday terminated three weeks of orderly and quiet rushing. Each of the social organiations followed a schedule made by the Panhellenic council which allowed them two socials and one smoker.

Barnhill Receives Scholarship Cup

James W. Barnhill, sophomore of Charleston, last Wednesday morning at chapel was presented with the freshman scholarship cup, given by Pi Kappa Phi fraternity for the year 1936-37, Joe Commander, of the fraternity, made the presentation. Barnhill had an average of 3.65 for the year.

The regulation concerning the cup says, "The freshman scholarship cup is given by the Beta chapter of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity to the student in the freshman class whose average in 32 hours or more of work shall be the highest."

Formerly the cup was presented at the annual graduation exercises. On account of inconvenience it was decided to present it the fall following the winner's freshman year.

Colonel Richmond To Be Here Friday

Major F. C. Harding, commandant of the R. O. T. C. corps, announced today that Colonel H. R. Richmond, of Atlanta, will be here next Friday afternoon for the annual fall inspection.

Colonel Richmond is in charge of R. O. T. C. affairs of the Fourth Corps area. He will be here for about two hours Friday afternoon, will meet the new officers, and will discuss with them their plans and problems. There will be no formations. His trip here will be more in the nature of a visit than a formal inspection.

P. C. Freshman Loses Brother

William Emiler, freshman from Anderson, after playing a fine game against the Wofford frosh Thursday night, was called to his home about 12 o'clock on account of the death of his five year-old brother, Kenneth.

A hemorrhage following a tonsil operation and weak condition was the cause of the boy's death.

"Tough," as he is known by his many friends here, has the sympathy of the entire student body in his bereavement.

Atlanta Sports Editor Writes About Fighting Spirit Of Blue Hose Team

A sports writer in The Atlanta Constitution in his column of September 24, had the following to say about the Blue Stockings just before the Georgia Tech game:

"Most any middle-aged gentleman who lived in a rural section, and who had a grandmother or grandfather, will recall hearing them speak of some one in the town as 'of an old blue-stocking, Presbytreian family.' It was a term of respect and dated back to the days when the Scots came over wearing blue stockings.

"Presbyterian is a splendid little college at Clinton, South Carolina. It has a high standard of scholarship, a fine faculty and good equipment. In fact, if you are casting about for a small college to which to send your son, you couldn't do better than Presbyterian.

"It may not win so many football games. It may not defeat its major league rivals. But the boys get a lot of hard knocks, learn to play for one another, to respect their coach, who merits it, and they probably get more out of football than some boys at larger schools.

"The Presbyterians took a rather brisk beating at the hands and feet of Clemson college last week. Today they bob up, in good shape, for a go with the heavier and more experienced Tech tonight at Grant field.

"They will lose the football game, but you may doff your hat to them as they lose. They are trying hard and they will be the same fine boys at the finish — even though a bit battered and defeated.

"The spirit of Calvin is strong, I am sure, and the Blue Stockings will take all Tech has and come back next year for more."

STUDENT STATISTICS REVEAL THEIR CHOICE OF OCCUPATION

Most Students Interested In Going Into Business.

ONE HUNDRED THIRTEEN HAVE MADE NO CHOICE

In a list of statistics issued today by the registrar, Lillian G. Brown, it was revealed that 46 members of the Presbyterian college student body plan to enter business, 34 medicine, 24 teaching, and 21 the ministry. The remaining students who have chosen their life work have preferences ranging from aviation, journalism, mortician, boy scouting, to the U. S. foreign service. One hundred and thirteen of the student body, however, state that they have no preference as to life work yet and are still trying to make a decision.

The complete figures are as follows:

S. foreign service 1, undecided 113.

Denominational Preferences

In the student statistics issued today the denominational preferences of members of the freshman class were indicated. It was found that the Presbyterian denomination leads with 56 members, and six non-members, but who prefer the church; the Baptists have 19 members, with six non-members who prefer that church. One of the freshmen expressed no preference for any denomination, while one is a Catholic, one a Christian Scientist, and one a member of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church.

The statistics follow:

Presbyterian, 56 members, with six non members who prefer that denomination; Baptist 19 and 6; Methodist, 9 and 1; Episcopal, 10 members; Associate Reformed Presbyterian, 1; Christian Science, 1; Catholic, 1; no preference, 1.

Further Faculty Rule Changes

Dr. Neil G. Whitelaw stated today that he had omitted one of the changes in faculty regulations mentioned in last week's paper. Concerning general eligibility, he said that the faculty decided that a student who has not passed on at least nine semester hours according to the monthly report on grades will be debarred from participation in college activities for the following month. The former regulation required only six semester hours.

The regulation concerning unlimited class cuts for juniors and seniors on the dean's list is also a permanent faculty regulation.

Miss Sadie Vincent On 'Y' Program

P. C. Co-ed Gives Interesting Dramatization of Well-Known "Enoch Arden."

Presenting a unique program at its weekly meeting Thursday night, the Y.M.C.A. was host to Miss Sadie Lee Vincent who entertained a large group of students and professors with a dramatization of "Enoch Arden."

Miss Vincent, coed from Laurens and member of the senior class, attended Columbia college for three years where she majored in dramatics. Her exceptional talent along that line was well demonstrated Thursday night by her excellent reading.

The extreme drama of the reading was intensified for quite a while by the absence of lights in the auditorium and all over town. Miss Vincent, however, was not phased by this extraordinary occurrence, which would have perturbed the average speaker, and continued her reading before an unseen audience.

When she had concluded the drama, the lights on once more, she was applauded long and loud by her appreciative listeners who insisted on hearing more. She begged to be excused, however, and her admirers reluctantly consented.

Miss Vincent's reading was appreciated by all who heard her and the Y.M.C.A. hopes again to be honored by her services in the future.

BLUE KEY MEETING

Frank Johnston, president, has announced that there will be a meeting of the Blue Key fraternity tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Dr. Spencer's class room. All new members, as well as old ones, are expected to be present, at which time, Johnston stated, the fraternity will take up an important matter now before it.

Debaters To Begin Work Wednesday On New National Debate Question

Forensic Coach Hugh Holman announced today that the debate question for this year has been announced by the national forensic fraternity, Phi Kappa Delta. The proposition is, "Resolved, that the National Labor Relations Board shall be empowered to enforce arbitration in labor disputes." The question is along the line of labor as was the one last year, "Resolved, that Congress shall be empowered to enact maximum wage and maximum hours legislation."

Holman also announced that the debates will open Wednesday afternoon at 1:30, at which time the question

MANY ALUMNI EXPECTED TO BE HERE FOR ANNUAL GATHERING

Newberry Will Furnish Opposition Friday Night Under the Lights of Johnson Field.

COLORFUL PROGRAM BEING ARRANGED

By Jake Penland

Walter Johnson will be aided by the alumni and military groups in his presentation of a gala, colorful homecoming program on Friday afternoon and evening of this week.

Plans call for a meeting and banquet for the old grade at five o'clock in the afternoon. Judd hall will be the scene of this activity, which will be attended by several hundred alumni.

Topping the homecoming program is the "Little Four" clash between Newberry and P. C. And between halves, to add color to an interesting get-together, the military department will stage a varied show. Major F. C. Harding, in charge of the military maneuvers, is arranging a card inclusive of drill, skirmishes and other aspects of the war game.

The encounter with Newberry should prove interesting and worthwhile to the crowd expected to witness this annual game. An intense rivalry, created many years ago, exists between the two institutions. Presbyterian is far ahead of the Indian outfit in respect to past competition. However, recent performances of the two indicate a close contest with the Indians in position to score an upset. The Hosemen haven't as yet annexed a victory and will be in there determined to put this, their fourth engagement, in the win column.

P. C. homecomings always develop into colorful, enjoyable occasions, and this year's reunion will undoubtedly be carried through successfully. Johnson's efforts have never failed to hit the mark, and the military group will contribute a great deal to the affair.

Henry Marsden Wilson, Jr., of New York, who recently joined the staff of Presbyterian college as personnel director and committeeman on personalized student guidance. Mr. Wilson is a graduate of Presbyterian, having finished with honors in 1936.

I. R. C. Elects Six New Members

Powers, Hutchinson, Boykin, Johnston, Wallace and Williams Win Places.

Last Wednesday afternoon 12 men stood the examination for entrance as members of the International Relations club. There were five vacancies to be filled.

Grades were unusually high and it was with difficulty that the winners were determined. Since three men tied for the last two places, the club created a vacancy and admitted all three.

New members (in order of grade) are: Dean Power, R. F. Hutchinson, Lykes Boykin, F. R. Johnston, J. H. Wallace, Wandell Williams.

Cummings Names New Corporals

Major A. H. Cummings, assistant professor of military science and tactics, announced today the promotions of 20 sophomores from the rank of cadet private to corporal. For the past month the sophomores have been drilling by themselves, receiving special training in giving commands. The corporals were selected on the basis of work done on the drill field in the past month.

Those promoted were: S F. Anderson, V. Atkinson, J. W. Barnhill, L. M. Boykin, D. M. Buie, W. F. Bullock, D. R. Dingeman, S. R. DuBose, J. C. Griffin, G. L. Mabry, C. C. McSwain, M. M. Norton, H. W. Paschal, J. L. Rawls, J. S. Richardson, R. B. Roach, H. M Rutledge, C. B. Thompson, C. H. Turner, R. H. Worrell.

Students Conduct Church Services

Three Presbyterian college ministerial students conducted the preaching services at churches in Clinton last night in accordance with a custom of members of the Ministerial club to conduct such services in Clinton once a month during the school year. This program was adopted two years ago and has proved so popular that the club will continue it this year.

The general purpose of this work as defined by officials of the club is to bring about better relations between college students and the churches in town as well as to give the ministerial student experience.

Those who took part in the services last night were: Hubert Wardlaw, Presbyterian church; M. C. Patterson, Baptist church; and Cliff McLeod, Methodist church. Billy Burns will conduct the services at the Thornwell Memorial Presbyterian church next Sunday afternoon at 3:30.

Wilson Speaks At I.R.C. Meet

At the first open meeting of the International Relations club, Hank Wilson, personnel director of the college, commended President Roosevelt's Chicago speech.

"President Roosevelt," Wilson said, "has definitely taken a stand on the Sino-Japanese conflict. Roosevelt, instead of condoning Japan the aggressor and accused her of violating three great peace pacts. The United States can force China and Japan to stop war under the present neutrality law."

Following Mr. Wilson's address the club's president, Hank Williamson, announced new members into the club and announced plans for the future. The next open meeting will be held on October 27.

Thought For the Week

TWO FACES

"I saw two faces crowned with whitened hair;
And one was unpleasing to see, and one was fair.
I questioned Wisdom of the cause, and she replied
That sin in one had lived, in one had died."

Editorialettes

Our editorial on the labor situation at Presbyterian brought sharp repercussions from the capitalists, who claim that all labor wants white-collar jobs. Capitalism, as usual, misinterprets labor's plea. Labor, however, has not come to our rescue—labor has not said one word. So from now on we abandon any attempt to be the voice for labor. We'll not be John L. Lewis for anybody. After all, it pays to be nice to the man who holds the money bag.

Someday the faculty is going to get over the time-worn idea of subjecting the students to six straight monthly tests at the end of the week. Someday ONE professor is going to be original and have his monthly test a week before the others. Yea—and someday P. C. is going to lick the socks off Georgia Tech. But tests are just one of the necessary evils of life.

The idea of the assistant librarian to "Learn a word a day" is evidently attracting a bit of attention.

The nickname which the students are applying to the Y. M. C. A. building broods no good for anyone.

The old agitation among seniors for unlimited chapel cuts has begun again. The possibilities, however, are that such will be useless as has been proved in the past.

The student's curse is the student assistant who, in order to make himself look good to his professor, gives low marks on everything he grades. Such a guy is the sort of white-collar worker who ought to be given a nice clean collar—and a pick and put to doing something befitting his intelligence. This sort of assistant isn't imaginary by any means; though few in number, they are too evident to be overlooked. On the whole, however, assistants grade higher than profs.

Chapel immediately after drill apparently is an improper time for it. Most religious leaders will agree that a man has to come into a house of worship in the right spirit. Hardly can a man do this after coming in from drill hot and "sweaty," and still fuming about the nice "cussing out" or "riding" he got at drill. Added to this is the thought of the student, "When will that guy get through? I gotta get my mail before class."

The general criticism of chapel by students is that generally the chapel services are poor. The average Christian can read scripture, pray, and announce a song. Worship so perfunctory as that isn't doing much good. We, too, can read, we can pray, and we can sing; but we're always glad to hear somebody's idea on the passage he reads. That really determines whether the program is effective, just as the sermon determines whether a church service is effective. Unless chapel programs become more interesting we can hardly expect the students to be as appreciative of them. Of course, we know that some are never going to like them, no matter how good they are. And, further, the programs this year have been very good.

The blanket idea of having every faculty member conduct chapel has not been very appealing to some. But to us it is an excellent idea, for it places the faculty members before the students as leaders in religious services as well as classes. However, someone remarked to us that the students who have conducted chapel have put on the most interesting programs. Since their turn comes so seldom, it behooves those who conduct chapel to put a little preparation and thought on the service.

All these ideas on chapel are not our own. They are sentiments gathered during our four years' stay here.

CAMPUS CRUISING

WHAT'S WHAT ON OTHER CAMPUSES

By PETE McCORMICK

According to W. J. Funk, publisher of the new Standard Dictionary, the ten most overworked words in the American language are: lousy, okey, terrific, contact, gal, racket, swell, impact, honey, and definitely.

Well, we've got our ideas about Martha Orr, writer of the Campus-ing Column in the Winthrop Johnsonian, thinks about the males. She dedicated a whole column last week to the faults of men—and how! Well, well—they all say the same thing about the men, but I wonder what they'd do if the boys didn't date 'em. They'd sho be left out in the cold. And of course you know boys can get out and go when and where they wanna, ad sometimes it's safe to say how they wanna (you can figure out what the "how" implies). Gals can't very well do those things. So no matter what their opinions of boys might be, they'd better at least tell the guys that they like 'em. Eh, boys?

The Mississippi Collegian went back thousands of years to pick this one up:

Mrs. Noah: "Noah, dear, what on earth is the matter with the camel?"

Mr. Noah: "The poor thing has both the fleas!"

A freshmen registered at the University of South Carolina under the name of Leonislaus Josephious, Francisko Anthonia Krotesnyski. However, he says that he gets along better socially as just "Lee Krote."

The latest dance over at Clemson Cow College for Ambitious Young Hog-Callers, etc. is the "Barnyard Shuffle." It's really a wow—and how. The rendition of the rhythm is made by leading cows and hogs, the cows acting as the brass section for the barnyard orchestra, and the hogs furnishing the drumming. You can swish and sway in somewhat the same way that the Big Apple is done. Get Curly Clements to tell you about it—he knows nothing, sees nothing, hears all (according to him), and tells everything but the truth.

Three students at the University of South Carolina were killed in an automobile accident en route to Chapel Hill to see the U. S. C.-U. N. C. football game. The young men were: Dexter Wallace (brother of two graduates of P. C.) in class of '37), C. C. Mixon of Allendale, and Jerome (Bubber) Pate of Darlington.

SOUND OFF

— By —

E. A. JOHNSON

Friday night we had the privilege of seeing Citadel's crack platoon put on a demonstration at the football game. We understand that these men made the trip at their own expense. This may be a demonstration of the zeal of the boys, but we are more inclined to think they were just taking advantage of every opportunity to make a jail break.

There has been a great deal of careful work in selecting the corporals this year. The plan of selecting them on the basis of showing made in practical examinations has worked out extremely well and should place the best men in the posts. Some of the sophomores have shown real ability in handling squads and ought to make good non-coms.

When "Private Johnnie Walker" (Ralph Waldrep) faces trial for desertion, his case will be the center of interest for the senior military class. All participants in the trial, as well as outsiders, seem to be taking deep interest in the fate of the accused. At least it is an interesting demonstration of the workings of a general court martial.

Freshmen may expect to be hard at work Thursday night getting ready for the first general inspection of the corps. Beside their own uniforms and rifles, there will be upperclassmen's equipment to put in order. Maybe it will mean advanced sales for the canteen along the shoe-polish and "Blitz" line.

With

The Campus Commentators

D. R. DINGEMAN

Well, here it is another week and the boys and girls have been cutting up again. And we're right here with a pencil. So we go to press with the latest edition of the scandal sheet.

Who, pray tell, has JAKE been dating of late? Yeah, we know already. You guess and we'll tell you if you're right. She has been seeing a lot of one of our freshman football stars previous to JAKE'S occupation of the camp.

Have you heard about our boy HOOD STRAIN. He pulled up on this fair campus the other week-end accompanied by a bevy of beautiful representatives of the opposite sex. You know, you got to be a football hero. Un Hunh!

Who was our Laurens laddie hunting for at the half of the Erskine game? He was scanning the group of anxious co-eds in the stands. Yes, GRANT ROFF did find her and she ain't bad either. Well, he goes to P. C.

Ah—women. Yes, and six of them all in one car, and they stopped in front of Spencer (dormitory, you know). This nearly caused a riot, but it was averted just in time by their departure.

A certain boy from Chahlston whose initials are J. W. BARNHILL is apparently discontented with the local talent. He has to go to Laurens to satisfy that hunger. And her name is—Aw, come on, guess. Well, if you must know, it's GRACE.

Burgess rides again. "BOBIOLA" BURGESS, the invincible, stopped in front of Spencer last Sunday in "BUBBER" FINKLEA'S limousine. Whereupon he disembarked none the worse for his trip, at which time he actually saw his folks.

Homecoming: JUNE MOORE back around these parts again and looking well and healthy and very happy. It has been rumored that June may come back with us, but he scotched these rumors by saying that it wouldn't be for quite a while anyway. Come back and see us.

Last Sunday: JESSE GOOD and PHOEBE PITTS came down to case the jernt and were accompanied by a couple of the home town boys. STEVE MOORE was with 'em. What a co hinky dinky. But—and a big one at that—where was BE. Ah yes, where was BE.

Rivalry: It wasn't told to us—we just heard that CURLY and ROGER seem to be having a little trouble about seeing the same girl down at Columbia college.

More stuff: Everywhere we see Pegge any more there, omnipresent, is MANNY MOORE. Did you notice it too? Well, fancy that. Funny how people see the same things, isn't it? Yeah, and Citadel seems to have made quite a hit with the gal to. Same old story about brass buttons and braid always dazzles the girls. And she an army "brat" at that. Turrible—turrible.

E. F. MacLEOD

With the homecoming dances in the offing it seems only fitting that we should warn all freshmen that snakes don't always crawl through the grass. Moreover, they have a peculiar mania for late dates (this form I'm speaking of). For a list of the snakes residing within our cloistered halls, I refer you to the student roster!

EDNA HUNTER and SADIE VINCENT, very popular P. C. co-eds, were quite heart-broken the other day (were they really?) when their names didn't appear among the "chosen" of a certain local sorority. (I refuse to call the organization by name). Could it have been ignorance or plain old envy? At any rate, the "social outcasts" (ha, ha, ha) seem to be acquitting themselves very nicely despite the aforesaid insult. Or was it a compliment?

Snacks

I hate women, and I'm glad I hate 'em, 'cause if I didn't hate 'em, I'd like 'em, and I hate 'em.

It is remarkable how many doubtful meanings an alleged pure-minded person can find in an entirely respectable joke.

Prof.: Gentlemen, I am dismissing you ten minutes early today. Please go out quietly so as not to wake the other classes.

The height of indifference is shown by the guy who sees a black speck in his pudding and doesn't care whether it's a fly or a raisin.

The difference between a dress tie and a noose is that one is worn without a collar.

DICK CARPENTER, second edition of the militaristic Baxter, is known to his intimate female acquaintances as "Dickie." More than that, a certain "Theresa" insists that "Dickie is so cute." And the way she said it! My, my.

Citadel Club Finds Hose Eleven Difficult

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

"WHERE MEN ARE MADE"

As long as the combination of Walter Johnson and Presbyterian college is in effect, this institution will hold its own. Outweighed, outclassed and lacking in many things, the Johnson-stimulated Blue Hose eleven put up a wonderful fight Tuesday night against The Citadel. It reminds us of that stand against Furman last season. The Johnson formula stresses two phases of the game in particular—fight and good sportsmanship. I'm proud to say, "I go to P. C."

NEWBERRY

Comes again the annual session with Newberry's naughty Indians. A week ago we were mighty pessimstic — but two things have happened to make us wake up and live. First, it seems Erskine really has a strong outfit. Second, the Citadel game. Which puts this little piggie in the frame of mind to predict as follows:

Presbyterian 6, Newberry 0.

THOSE NEW BOYS

Lonnie McMillian's frosh gridsters staged an impressive show the other night, with Wofford's group in the stooge role.

Meiskey, who can do the Big Apple at a social or on the gridiron with equal ease, took off for three touchdown runs of brilliant execution. Sharing the limelight were Coleman and Howard in particular and the whole danged team in general.

Coleman, in addition to giving a jam-up exhibition at the left flank, came through with some fancy toe work when extra points were needed. Howard gave promise of three years of varsity stardom by going to town in his quarterbacking role. And I liked the way "Chum" Ratteree pepped up the line by his stimulating chatter and spirited work at center. Would, and could, say something complimentary about every man on the team, but it's getting late and that bed sho' looks attractive.

McMillian's Men Rise And Shine

Rout Wofford Freshmen By Nine Touchdown Margin.

MEISKEY IS MENACE

By James Hafley

In a rather loosely played contest here Thursday night the Presbyterian college freshman team downed an inferior rat aggregation from Wofford by the crushing score of 59-0. The Baby Hose held the upper hand all the way through and their territory was threatened only once by a feeble Terrior drive that was subdued on the P. C. eight-yard stripe.

The Wofford frosh put up a game battle despite their disadvantage in weight and shiftiness, coming back in the third period with a pass combination, Bennett to Elias, that caused the P. C. lower-classmen considerable worry. Coach Lonnie McMillian's charges tallied in every period, starting off with one touchdown in the first and annexing two in the second, three in the third, and three in the fourth.

Many stars were uncovered in the Anklet squad, notably the punting of Howard and Meiskey, Coleman's brilliant placements, and superb runs by Meiskey, MacIntosh, Howard, Rogers, and Wienges. In the line, the play of big "Red" Lawrence, Hugh Flanders, Coleman, Moss, Frazier, and Rateree was highly commendable. The first two touchdowns were made by the elusive, hip-shaking Meiskey, who was a veritable spark-plug in the Calvinists' backfield. Both of his runs were over 60 yards. Gene MacIntosh also shook himself free for a beautiful 80-yard gallop into the promised land. Bucky Wienges scored a touchdown on a long dash that involved a pretty piece of broken field running.

The whole P. C. freshman team looked impressive although the Wofford lads offered no real resistance and were unable to put their superior opponents to the real acid test except on very few occasions. Bennett and Elias acquitted themselves nobly in the Terrier backfield, worrying the opposition continually with tricky passes and runs.

Tennis Matches Set For Tuesday

Net Contests To Be Staged Here With Number of Star Players Participating.

On Tuesday evening on the Whispering Pines courts at 7:30 P. M., a series of tennis matches showing Presbyterian and Junior Davis Cup stars will be played.

The matches are being sponsored by Robert Owens, director of tennis for the city of Clinton, and they promise to give tennis fans of the city some excellent exhibition play.

Taking part in the play will be Bill Lufler, now tennis coach at P. C., tennis professional at Atlanta, Ga., and at St. Petersburg, Fla.; Bob Harper, a junior college star who is showing that he will be a leading contender for the top-flight position on P. C.'s vastly improved tennis team; Lykes Boykin, state junior champion and runner-up for the state men's championship; Bob Kerdasha, a freshman at P. C., who is an excellent player and a member of the Junior Davis cup squad, and George Beatty, captain and No. 1 man of the P. C. team.

The schedule of matches is:

7:30 Bob Harper vs Bob Glickert.
8:00 Lykes Boykin vs Bob Kerdasha.
8:30 George Beatty vs Bill Lufler.
9:00 Boykin and Kerdasha vs Beatty and Lufler.

FLOWERS SENT TO WOFFORD PLAYER HURT IN GAME THURSDAY

During the P. C. Wofford freshman game Thursday night Moore, of the Wofford squad, was rather badly injured.

As a token of the sympathy of the school and team, the P. C. Athletic association sent a bunch of flowers to Moore Friday enclosing a card of sympathy from Coach Johnson and the school.

PRESBYTERIANS OFFER STUBBORN OPPOSITION TO STRONG CADETS

PETE HOLCOMBE - END PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE

Elongated end star who Should go to town against the Newberry outfit Friday night.

Two Scores Made By Charlestonians On Blocked Punts In 19-0 Win Over Blue Stockings. Last Half Scoreless.

Ably assisted by the famous female, Lady Luck, Citadel's Bulldogs registered an unimpressive 19 to 0 victory over Presbyterian's courageous and determined Blue Stockings under the lights of the home field Friday evening. Over two thousand spectators watched P. C.'s first home game.

The Citadel outfit actually earned only one of its three touchdowns. A concerted drive from midfield was climaxed with Mutt Gee's four-yard plunge into the land of milk and honey. On two other occasions, alert Cadets converted blocked punts into scores.

In the opening period, Captain King blocked a punt, scooped it up and took off for a 25-yard touchdown sprint. This same King blocked another P. C. boot early in the second period and Hornsby fell on the ball behind Presbyterian's goal for another six points.

The Cadets gave evidence of their much-publicized power in a first-half performance repete with effective power plays, punt returns, blocking, tackling and passing. The Hosemen gave evidence of that much-publicized P. C. spirit in the second semester by holding the mighty convicts scoreless and fighting them on even terms.

The entire P. C. personnel gave a splendid, commendable performance. Outweighed and outclassed, the Hosemen battled against odds to come through with a genuine moral victory in an interesting grid show.

The line-ups:

	The Citadel	Presbyterian
LE	Manley	Holcombe
LT	H. Rogers	Boswell
LG	Deschamps	Strain
C	Sabados	Finney
RG	Aston	Todd
RT	Horton	Evans
RE	King	Moore
QB	Huegenin	Isom
LH	Robinson	Batchelor
RH	Smith	Reynolds
FB	Gee	Horne

Officials: Causey (South Carolina), referee; Carter (Furman) umpire; Reams (Clemson), head linesman; Hill (Wofford), field judge.

The Citadel	7	12	0	0	—19
P. C.	0	0	0	0	— 0

Citadel scoring touchdowns: King, Hornsby (sub for Aston), Gee. Point after touchdown, Robinson (placement).

Ten Hurlers In Daily Practice

Galloway Starting Early With Six Varsity Moundsmen.

Ten varsity and frosh mound candidates are working out daily under Baseball Coach Chick Galloway and will continue as long as the weather permits.

Among varsity hurlers are Wilkerson, B. W. Moore, McGregor, Commander and McCormick. Only Commander of the group has had varsity experience .

A quartet of promising freshmen are in the group. They are Howard, Castleberry, Embler and McCutchen. Embler is the only left-handed hurler.

Baron Cavin, veteran basketball and baseball star, is doing backstop duty and probably will be called on for first string receiving when the season opens in the spring.

Suggs and Weldon, ace hurlers, were graduated last year, leaving the mound department weak and unorganized.

NEWBERRY WINS 13-0; HOMECOMING IS SUCCESS

BLUE KEY TO BE SPONSOR OF MUSICAL COMEDY PRODUCTION

Three Act Play, "The College Girl," To Be Presented Tuesday Night, November 2.

200 COLLEGE AND LOCAL PEOPLE TO BE IN CAST

Mrs. Kidd, Professional Director, In Charge of Production. Practices Begin Tonight.

In an announcement given out Thursday, President Frank Johnston stated that the Blue Key fraternity is sponsoring a three-act play composed of local talent, "The College Girl," to be presented on Tuesday night, November 2, at the Florida Street school. The play will be under the direction of Mrs. Harland Kidd, professional director of Greenville.

Over two hundred local people and college students, including the football team, will be included in the cast. Approximately one hundred local children, fifty girls for the chorus, and fifteen main characters, and the college football squad will be included. The football squad will do a spring ballet dance, dressed in light costumes of pastel shades such as organdie, sky blue, pink, etc. One "hefty" member of the squad will do a strip tease act which promises to be one of the high lights of the show.

Included in the main cast will be some of the members of the faculty, while co-eds will take part in the chorus.

"The College Girl" is a three-act musical comedy. Those selected as main characters were chosen on the basis of singing ability as well as acting. This play was put on last year at Clemson college by the Blue Key, and according to reports over 1600 persons attended.

Mrs. Kidd stated that regular practices will begin tonight in the chapel. Practices, as far as possible, will be held on the campus for convenience of college students taking part, although later on practices will be held at the Florida Street school.

The list followings, including incompletes for this year:

Forty Students At P. C. From Clinton

In statistics given out today by the registrar it was shown that forty students at Presbyterian college are from Clinton, which is the largest representation of any town. Laurens comes next with 15, followed by Charleston and Atlanta with 11 each.

The towns represented in school from which there are at least three students, are as follows:

Clinton 40, Laurens 15, Charleston 11, Atlanta 11, Sumter 9, Charlotte 8, Rock Hill 8, Brunswick, Ga. 6, Fayetteville, N. C. 6, Chester 5, Florence 4, Union 4, Anderson 4, Augusta, Ga. 3, Greenwood 3, Greenville 3, Kingstree 3, Gainesville, Ga. 3.

'The College Girl' Practice To Start At 7:30 Tonight

The first regular practice for "The College Girl" will begin tonight in the Y.M.C.A. building at 7:30 instead of of the chapel. Mrs Kidd will continue try-outs for some parts, however, as all of these were not completed at the session held Thursday night. Reports indicate that interest in the production is high and that a large number will be out for tonight's practice.

Some of the faculty members have been secured for parts as well as students, including the co-eds. The principal race at present, according to the director, is the try-out for the two lead roles which require characters able both to sing and act. No indications as to who would be selected for these parts have been given by the director.

Frank Johnston, president of Blue Key fraternity, the organization sponsoring the production, urges all who wish to try for parts in the play to be present tonight.

Wilson, Hemphill Get Membership In Chi Beta Phi

According to an announcement from Jack Witherspoon today, Malcolm Hemphill, senior, of Griffin, Ga., and Neil A. Wilson, senior, of St. Charles, S. Hemphill is editor of the PaC-SaC, yearbook of the college, and is active in other student organizations. Wilson, who is majoring in science, has done excellent work in that line and is an assistant in the science department.

Witherspoon said that further elections will be announced soon.

Roy Hutchinson, senior, of Lawrenceville, Ga., was elected manager of the 1937-38 debate squad last Wednesday at the regular meeting of the group. Hutchinson was a member of last year's squad and took active part in the debates held by P. C.

The new Pi Kappa Delta question was discussed at the meeting. The question is, "Resolved that the National Labor Relations Board shall be empowered to enforce arbitration in labor disputes."

Members were assigned to getting up arguments for or against the question, which they must present at the next Meeting Wednesday afternoon at 1:30.

Others here included Stuart Campbell, who was editor of "The Collegian, now teaching in North Carolina; George Checkler, Vic Correll, John Hutchinson; J. P. Beatty Is Speaker At I. R. C. Meeting

At the I. R. C. meeting held last Wednesday night, one of the most debated subjects today was discussed, George Beatty spoke on "The Alien Problem in America." Quoting statistics Beatty said: "Among the communist agitators of today, not one is an alien. The percentage of native born criminals exceeds foreign born greatly. Very few foreigners are on relief in contrast to the widely circulated opinion to the contrary." Beatty also added that many of the nation's most prominent citizens are foreign born. Today there is a large number of English clergymen and French sculptors. In conclusion, Beatty said, "Of the 4,500,000 foreign-born people in the United States, 1,500,000 have taken out citizenship papers, 500,000 are too young or haven't lived here long enough; the other 2,000,000 are too poor to pay for training in order to pass the examination for citizenship.

A round table discussion ended the program.

MANY ALUMNI PRESENT HERE AT ANNUAL P. C. OCCASION

Alumni Meeting, Dinner and Football Game Feature Celebration Here Friday.

According to some observers, Presbyterian college held one of its most successful homecomings last Friday as former students from many places swarmed to the campus. The highlight of the entertainment was the banquet held in Judd hall. This was followed by the P. C.-Newberry football game.

At ten o'clock the first of two dances sponsored by the Block "P" club was held. Several alumni remained over the week-end to attend the Saturday night dance. Most of the former students, however, returned to their homes Friday night or Saturday morning.

By Jake Penland

A superior set of backs, good punting and P. C. miscues spelled a 13-0 victory for Newberry Friday evening in a well-attended game at Johnson field, featured in Presbyterian's homecoming day program.

Aerial play filled the air as both outfits maneuvered desperately for their first scores of the season. Defensive strength kept the ball away from scoring territory in the first period. In the second, Newberry advanced to the P. C. 20 and McIntosh flipped a touchdown pass to Masters. In the third, Cooley intercepted one of P. C.'s frequent heaves and traveled 70 yards for the second and last score.

The Hosemen used the entire second half in a desperate, and oftentimes careless, attempt to score via the aerial route. Some of Horne's heaves hit their mark, but more often fell incomplete or were intercepted by an alert Indian secondary.

P. C. made its closest approach to a touchdown midway in the third quarter. Be Moore, an up-and-coming flankman, pulled down four of Horne's tosses in successive attempts to register three first downs. With the oval on Newberry's 12, Horne shot a short pass to Isom for a six-yard gain. Horne passed over the goal on the next play but no Hoseman was waiting and the threat ended. Horne inaugurated another air attack late in the period and the Presbyterians advanced to the Indian 30 before an interception gave Newberry possession of the ball.

Presbyterian made nine first downs to three for the Lachenans.

In Case of Rain, Tennis Matches To Be Held In Gym

Official sources revealed this afternoon that in case of rain tonight, the scheduled tennis matches will be held in the Leroy Springs gymnasium on the indoor court which is set up on the basketball floor.

Threatening clouds this afternoon and a slight drizzle failed to slow up the afternoon matches to any considerable degree. Some, however, expressed fear that the continual drizzle might dampen the courts to such an extent that they could not be used tonight. However, as this paper goes to press indications are that the matches will be held as scheduled on the Pines court.

Indications that "Old Man Winter" is really here were shown by the order of the professor of military science and tactics, Major F. C. Harding, that beginning with this morning's drill, members of the R.O.T.C. will wear blouses. Any member seen off the campus without a blouse will be subject to action by the military department.

Thought For the Week

"'TIS A WEARY WORLD!"

One student said this full of meaning. Perhaps we all say it in exactly the same spirit, or have done so at some time. We ask ourselves, "What is the purpose of my frail existence, anyway?" It seems that fate is jesting with us — those dreams and ambitions are as impossible to reach as stars. We say, "I can't sing as he can," or "I can't succeed in business as someone else does," and we see things, "as through a glass darkly."

Is it ours to complain if God has given us a comparatively unimportant role to play in life's great picture?

"Not till the loom is silent,
And the shuttle cease to fly;
Shall God unroll the canvass
And explain the reason why.
The dark threads are as needful
In the Weaver's skillful hand,
As the threads of gold and silver,
On the pattern He has planned."

With the coming of the announcement of D's and E's comes the first crop of the year of excuses to Ma and Pa. "You know how it is—I'm just getting settled down to things, etc."

Now that the fraternities have made their pledges, the next job is, as one professor put it, "Some of the pledges are going to need a little encouraging along scholastic lines in order to get them eligible to join a frat."

The Annual Embicile's Game has begun again —throwing of acorns. Perhaps we give the game a higher title than it should have. Idiot's game would be more appropriate, and in truth more fitting. But we have to give it the higher name for we do give the participants the credit of being pretty accurate at times.

The Blue Key Sponsors

The Blue Key starts its year of activities by sponsoring the three-act musical comedy, "The College Girl." The Blue Key decided to sponsor this play because of the success it has achieved elsewhere and because of the reliability of the producer, Mrs. Kidd, who, according to recommendations, is no amateur at the job of producing plays. And third, such an entertainment will be an unusual feature of P. C. life; no such thing has been attempted in some years by any group at the college. Its success, of course, largely depends on the cooperation of the students. Tryouts showed that many of the students are interested in the play and want to take parts in it. Of course, only those best suited for the parts will be taken.

What promises to be a big feature of the show will be the spring dance by the football team, topped off with a so-called strip-tease act by one of its hefty members.

The size of the production can be gathered from the fact that at least 200 people will take part in it. All talent used in the show will be local talent, from the college or town.

The Blue Key, thus, is attempting to bring something new in the way of entertainment to P. C. And the great success "The College Girl" has attained at other schools under the direction of Mrs. Kidd, indicates that the production here will be, in modern terms, one of the most "stupendous, gigantic, colossal, magnificent," yet hilarious, productions ever put on in this section of the country.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

I have been reading The Blue Stocking off and on for about ten years and never have I read such a repulsive article as appeared in last week's paper concerning the local sorority, written by one so-called campus commentator. It was an insult to the intelligence of the student body.

I suggest that the editor exert a stricter censorship on the work submitted by the staff. The Blue Stocking has been widely heralded as the premier college newspaper of South Carolina, and rightly so, but it cannot keep its high rating if its staff is permitted to deal in personalities in their columns.

This remonstrance is absolutely constructive, this scribe having nothing personal against the writer of the column being criticised. But I believe that my sentiments are held by the biggest part of the student body and we demand that the staff be purged of personality-dealer-inners.

REPLY TO "'38" BY THE EDITOR:

The Blue Stocking apologizes for the article referred to in your letter. The insinuations in the article were not entirely clear to the editor or it never would have been in the paper. Furthermore, the editor is not in the habit of exercising strict censorship on columns. He feels that in most cases the columnist's judgment is as good as his; furthermore, if the column is of such a nature that the editor has to make frequent changes in it, the column is discontinued. However, the editor has from time to time been forced to cut out entire columns for a week and rewrite them himself.

It is not the policy of The Blue Stocking to allow adverse criticism against any phase of campus activity.

The Blue Stocking regrets the oversight which was made. Your letter is very much appreciated, although it does make some pretty pointed statements about the editor. No column of this paper is open for personal "slamming" of any student organization, particularly those of a social nature, whether they be fraternities or the sorority.

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

The other night I happened to be in on a "bull session." During the confab the subject of "school spirit" came up. From this discussion, I determined to bring the matter before the eyes of the student body.

At the first of school, especially a few days before the Clemson game, school spirit was very evident. The freshmen were brimming over with it — but even then the upper-classmen seemed only luke-warm. Then it died a sudden death. True, a little was evident at the Citadel game, but at times Citadel's meagre representation outcheered us.

The student body MUST wake up and go to these games with the intent to yell. What's happened to that famed P. C. spirit?

This is being written on the eve of the Newberry game. I am hoping that the old spirit will be reborn tonight, and that old grads won't feel disappointed.

Perhaps more cheer leaders and better yells would remedy the situation a great deal.

No matter what sort of team we have, we should whole-heartedly support it.

—"'39."

SOUND OFF

By E. A. Johnson

We have heard some fine comments about the showing the corps made in its demonstration of formal guard mount Friday night. The demonstration was supposed to be for the entertainment of the visitors and spectators but most of the cadets learned a lot about the way a guard mount should be conducted.

Every now and then we get some sort of report on the way P. C. men are showing up in active army duty. Shoemaker and Jacobs, two of the five P. C. men now on duty under the Thompson act, were on the campus for homecoming. Both of these men are at Fort Screven and have excellent records of service. We wish them luck.

The awarding of a medal each year to the freshman who is best drilled in the manual of arms is arousing more interest than might have been expected originally. Besides the incentive it has proved to be for the freshmen, it is getting extra work out of upper-classmen. The cadet officers feel that there is enough glory reflected on the instructors of the various companies to warrant an effort and make competition pretty keen.

These blooming cold mornings certainly would be softened a bit by the wearing of blouses. They perhaps will be donned this week.

A new sergeant from Fort Benning has been assigned to P. C. as an addition to the regular army staff. Sergeant Young is not complaining of this new aid.

The CAMPUS COMMENTATOR

— By —

D. R. DINGEMAN

What with the recent dances we are able to state the weather was bad. It rained snakes and more of the same. All in all, however, the dances were really very successful. Well, there might be some exceptions, but even these were victims of circumstance.

In reference to the dances: There once was a little girl who dated a boy for a long time and expected to go to the dances; but, oh woe, he had a girl from his home town to the dances at P. C. after the homecoming game. And the little Clinton girl was s-o-o heartbroken she didn't know what to do. Sorry, folks, that we couldn't have a good ending, but this is a true 'nuff story. It really happened right here on our beautiful campus. Bad, isn't it, but he'll go back after the dances and expect a date. That's the way it works.

Flash: MARGARET LITTLE is having trouble with some competition from a certain Columbia college girl over M. D.'s heart. It comes to us that he went to Spartanburg and came back early in order to date her, so she thought, but took right off for Columbia college. Leaving poor 'ittle Margaret pining her heart away (?).

Another dispatch from Columbia tells us that "Edgar Hoover" COMMANDER has been visiting over near the capital of late. Get the details from the aforementioned. That's some word, isn't it? Whoooo-hoooo.

The plot thickens. It seems a SARAH M., who has been connected in name to CURLY, is reputedly infatuated with a home-town boy friend of hers. It may be so, but CURLY knows how to handle 'em.

One of those mystery boys makes the headlines this week: RICHARD DuBOSE was seen double dating with "RAT" McLAUGHLIN last Sunday night. And all this time we thought RICH had a gal at home what waited for him all the time. Well, it's a strange world, after all.

You gotta be a football hero to get along with the beautiful gals. Ain't it the truth. A football hero of the rat class has been dating a member of the local talent rather steadily. Her name is LIB BARNES and his name is PHIL. It looks like a budding romance or something.

The Laurens younger set came over for the Citadel game en masse. Gals and more of 'em, and all surrounding one poor little BENNETT boy. It looked bad for a while, but some of our P. C. gentlemen who were unoccupied at the time immediately rushed to his assistance. It is rumored around, however, that the same Bennett has a bad case on a gal what's named "TOT." Course we ain't sure because that was only told to us.

Did you happen to hear: One of our freshmen stating that it must be an awful fate to be able to look over a wall and still never go out with some of the nice P. C. boys that pass by every Sunday. This remark was made as our rat passed Thornwell the other day and saw all of those gals over there that were walking around all by their lonesomes. Too bad.

The very idea is good: C. R. THOMPSON has been seeing a lot of one of the Laurens gals what drives a gray Ford. You know her name as well as he does. So I don't suppose we need go any further. But he carries her books for her. It looks like more scandal can come of this yet.

For a certain Swell Peoples, Attention. Pete—and we mean PETE HOLCOMBE — is walking on air since BERTIE is here for the week, or maybe we should say was here, because this comes out Monday of next week. Oh, you already knew. Well, I just thought I'd mention it to you who don't know.

One of our enormous freshmen has been dating ADELAIDE ROBERTS His name is BILL PURSLEY. And he took her to the football game. Well, we are wondering what will come of this. She might not have forgotten JOHN BYRUM, one of the boys what didn't return to school this year. Here's to you, anyway, Bill.

Rat CARPENTER was seen talking to a gal whose name is IONE NEAL right out in her car in front of the administration building between classes the other day, and everybody seen 'em talking out there and him a freshman at that.

Around the world with HUGGINS, yes, yes. The other day JOE COMMANDER got a letter from a girl who, he thought, liked him. But, oh ho! The letter was filled with the sentiments of the sweet young thing for our boy HUGGINS. Well, we offer our sympathy to JOE and our congratulations to GORDON.

A parable: Love is blind. Marriage is an institution. Therefore, marriage is an institution for the blind.

At Newberry: That Newberry bunch is okay. We saw some nice-looking squaws down thata way, but for the life of us we couldn't find a single tepee, and we allus thought Indians lived in tepees. Well, we learn something everyday, don't we—or do we?

Also at Newberry: JIMMY GAZES, an ex-P. C. man was one of the mainstays of the Newberry line, and we don't mean perhaps. He really played a heads-up ball game.

More of the same: "CHUM" RATERREE got a date over there in the dining hall when the freshmen are there. And the number was a cute brunette. Well, what da you know. He's bringing her over for the dances. More power to him and his squaw.

THAT'S LIFE, I GUESS

The man who writes a sporting page
Is foolish I would say;
He does a lot of labor, friend,
With very little pay.

He says the local lads will win
By twenty-five to six—
The locals lose; he's ridiculed
And told to try the sticks.

Time marches on. He tries again,
Predicts a local loss—
Is called a wretched, faithless bum,
And fired by the boss.

The average man in this old world
Has got his friends and foes.
The man who writes a sporting page
Has only got his foes.

CAROLINA — CLEMSON

The classic spectacle of Palmetto football — Carolina versus Clemson, takes place Thursday afternoon amid all the brilliance, pomp and color of the state fair. Clemson is slightly favored to win, but the Gamecocks are potentially capable of winning for the first time in several years.

Carolina, without unleashing her full power, easily subdued Davidson on Saturday. The University eleven exhibited good punting, passing and line play plus several tricky backs. The Tigers spent the week-end recuperating from a series of tough battles and getting set for Carolina.

It's always difficult to predict results of this game, and this year's situation is a puzzling as ever. But somehow I believe Carolina will win, with the score something like this:

Carolina 13, Clemson 7.

P. C.'s Next Clash Is With Furman

Teams Meet In Greenville Beneath Lights of Sirrine Stadium In Greenville.

Presbyterian and Furman, perennial foes, clash in Greenville Saturday evening in a consolation battle, each having been embarrassingly upset in last week's gridiron engagements.

The state championship Hurricane eleven lost its 1937 title opportunity, its pride and a great deal of prestige in bowing to The Citadel by an 8 to 0 score at Charleston Saturday. The House of Magic had previously been picked by a popular majority to repeat their pennant-winning feat of last year.

The town of Newberry went hog-wild Friday evening after learning of the 13 to 0 Indian triumph over P. C. The Lutheran machine flashed an unexpected offensive to take the measure of their athletic rivals.

Scene of last year's P. C.-Furman game was Clinton. The Blue Stockings, doped to lose by 30 points or more, played brilliantly to hold their powerful opponents to two hard-earned touchdowns.

After this week's game, the Hosemen have four more engagements on their list. Emory and Henry will play host on October 30. Mercer comes to Clinton the following week, Carolina is met at Columbia on the 20th of November, and the season is wound up with Wofford at Spartanburg.

"Bitsy" Grant To Play Exhibition Matches Tonight

Davis Cup Player To Appear In Singles Against Russell Bobbit of Atlanta, Later Teaming With Him In Doubles.

Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, United States Davis cup team member, will play exhibition matches in Clinton tonight in connection with Presbyterian college's second annual tennis clinic. Grant, who last year was No. 2 ranking player in American tennis, is noted for his spirited method of play.

Last year Grant played exhibition matches here at the first tennis clinic, and was enthusiastically received by the fans. His type of hard playing is particularly appealing to spectators.

He will meet Russell Bobbit of Atlanta, formerly Southern junior champion, tonight at eight o'clock beneath the lights of the Pines courts. He will also team with Bobbitt in doubles play later in the evening.

The public is invited to see these matches.

P. C. Freshmen Beat Papooses

Blue Stockings Take 14-0 Victory In Newberry Thursday.

In a hard-fought game played on Thursday at Newberry, the Presbyterian freshmen defeated the Newberry Papooses 14 to 0.

The Anklets drove 80 yards to a touchdown early in the first period. A pass at the end of the second period gave the last counter.

Neither team got going until late in the third period when P. C. drove to the five-yard line, but Newberry took the ball on the first play in the fourth and started their first scoring threat that failed to pay off.

P. C. again worked to the ten, where Newberry again held, and the Papooses threatened once more. The Anklets were knocking at the goal line as the game ended.

P. C. made 15 first downs to Newberry's eight and both teams took to the air 16 times, Newberry completing nine and the Blue Hose eight.

125 PLAYERS TO TAKE PART IN SECOND ANNUAL EVENT HERE

Twenty-two Colleges From Four States To Be Represented. Instructors Are Nationally Known.

The second annual Presbyterian college tennis clinic, sponsored by the United States Lawn Tennis association, and boasting a number of noted tennis figures, began today and will continue through Wednesday under the direction of William C. Lufler, Presbyterian college tennis coach, and William P. Jacobs, president of the college, originator of the clinic idea, and chairman of the Carolinas junior Davis cup committee.

Coach Lufler has stated that more than 125 people have accepted invitation to be present. Twenty-two colleges from South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, and Florida will send representatives. Such schools as the University of North Carolina and Duke will be represented. A number of high school entries have been made. The group which will travel the longest distance to take part in the clinic will be several junior Davis cup players from St. Petersburg, Fla.

In addition to detailed personal instruction by noted tennis professionals, exhibition matches will be arranged for night play beneath the floodlights of the Whispering Pines courts. Such nationally famous amateurs as Bitsy Grant, a member of the Davis cup squad for the United States, will take part in these exhibitions.

Among those taking part in the clinic will be Russell Bobbitt of Atlanta, formerly Southern junior champion; J. P. Stockton of New York, formerly a ranking tennis player and author of "Ten Tennis Essentials," the text that will be used in the clinic; Johnny Cardegnia, professional at the Bath and Tennis club at Palm Beach, ad vice-president of the Professional Tennis Players association; John Kenfield, coach of tennis at Duke university; Harry Fogelman, coach of tennis at the University of North Carolina.

A feature of the exhibition matches will be a match between the Presbyterian college team and the Davidson team.

Bird-Tiger Tilt Tops Grid Card

The ever-colorful Carolina-Clemson state fair classic on Thursday tops this week's gridiron menu among Palmetto teams, with two more battles on Friday and two Saturday.

Citadel's Bulldogs meet Richmond university Friday night at Charleston, and Oglethorpe and Erskine tangle the same night at Anderson. On Saturday, P. C. meets Furman at Greenville, and Newberry opposes Wofford at Spartanburg in a "Little Four" meeting.

The Carolina-Clemson affair will be attended by eighteen thousand or more followers of the two teams, and due to the equal strength of the teams interest is unusually high.

STUDENTS URGED TO HAVE PHOTOS MADE

"All those who want their pictures in the PaC-SaC must go to Nichols studio and have them made before November 1," said Malcolm Hemphill, editor of the book, today.

"Football men are asked to cooperate by going down in the mornings." Hemphill requested. "During the first week only 55 had their pictures made. There will be no last year's pictures used, so it will be necessary for all the students to attend to this as soon as possible."

The Inquiring Reporter

L. G. Heckle

Due to quite a bit of comment on the subject since the last football game, we thought perhaps we could awaken a little interest in the matter by asking, "WHAT SUGGESTIONS HAVE YOU FOR AROUSING SCHOOL SPIRIT AT HOME GAMES BY A REORGANIZATION OF THE CHEER-LEADING SECTION?"

First, we talked to BILL McSWEEN, who so far this year has had to do most of the cheering as well as the leading of yells. As we talked it over, Bill, who lived in Clinton for sometime before he came to P. C., remarked on this year's spirit as compared with past years. "I've been around here almost ten years and I have never seen school spirit so low," he said. With a little cooperation from the student body, Bill is willing to reorganize the cheering section by your suggestions. Here are a few of those suggestions.

JAKE PENLAND, sports editor of The Blue Stocking, said: "I think there should be six cheer leaders; three boys and three girls uniformly dressed and capable of a snappy gymnastic routine to add to the impression. Then a touchdown by the team would do much toward enlisting the cooperation of the student body in the cheering section."

FRESHMAN JOE EATON, who was a cheer leader in a large Florida high school, suggested the addition of co-eds to the cheering section, and added, "I think mimeographed copies of the yells should be issued to the student body and have the cheer leaders lead these yells at a meeting of the student body after supper some night in the chapel."

BIG HIPP, forced by an injury received in the Georgia Tech game to watch from the side lines during the last few games, feels the same way that Joe does about the situation. He told us, "I think a real good pep meeting, led by two boys and two girls, held some night after supper, with the band present, like the one last year before the Furman game, would do much toward helping the team lick those Mercer Bears on November 5th."

With the reorganization of the cheer-leading section, and mimeographed copies of the yells issued at an early date, we feel that not only will the pep meeting before the Mercer game be a success, but that the game itself will be a P. C. victory. LET'S SHOW THAT TEAM WE'RE BEHIND THEM WHILE THEY'RE OUT THERE SMASHING THAT BEAR LINE. WHAT DO YOU SAY?

P. C. Debaters To Attend Tourney

Forensic Coach Holman announced today that P. C. will be represented in the annual Dixie speech tournament at Winthrop college, December 2 to 4. Already 21 colleges have made reservations for the tournament.

Besides entering the debates, P. C. will enter men in the extempore, oratorical, harangue, problem solving, impromptu speaking contests.

This is an annual practice tournament. The debates are non-decision, but the relative standing of the different speakers is determined.

President's Wife Loses Mother

Mrs. Cornelia Huggin Shockley, wife of the late B. F. Shockley, a prominent Spartanburg wholesale merchant, and mother of Mrs. William P. Jacobs, wife of the president of the college, died at her home this morning at 12:10 o'clock.

Mrs. Shockley was born in Spartanburg, the daughter of the late C. C. and Nancy Rollins Huggin, and was a lifelong member of the First Presbyterian church of that city.

New Record Set For Attendance At 'Y' Thursday

According to old timers, the "Y" without doubt set a new attendance record last Thursday night as it presented for the first time to the student body the campus movies which were made here during last spring. The crowds flocked for the first night showing; literally the chapel was packed as many stood around the side of the room.

Dr. Neill G. Whitelaw was the man behind the projector and added interest to the occasion when twice he ran the film backward for a few scenes. The movie was composed of three reels that lasted approximately fifteen minutes each. However, when the finished movie is completed many of the scenes will be cut to shorten it. The movie will be used by the college in its advertising program. Many commented on the excellence of the natural color shots.

Sound effects were furnished by the audience.

DR. W. N. ELLIOT TO HOLD SERIES SERVICES HERE

Noted Atlanta Minister To Be On Campus Three Days In February.

The administration announced today that the Rev. W. N. Elliot, D.D., pastor of the Druid Hills Presbyterian church, Atlanta, Ga., will conduct a series of religious services here for three days, February, 22, 23 and 24.

Dr. Elliot will conduct two services each day, one at a special chapel in the morning, and an evening service.

Dr. Elliot comes to P. C. recommended as one of the outstanding ministers of the Southern Presbyterian church and one of Atlanta's foremost preachers.

This series of services is the first of two which the college will sponsor during the year. According to the custom in the past only one series was held which lasted a week. This year there will be two series instead, each lasting three days.

Dr. Elliot is a young man and, according to reports, has a special appeal to young people. He has held several series of services for young people and has proved to be very popular with them. He is a graduate of Louisville (Ky.) Theological seminary, and has been in the ministry only six or seven years. He is a former Rhodes scholar, and attended Oxford university, England.

Reporter Discovers That Dr. Kennedy Was Once the Owner Of An Elephant

By L. G. Heckle

You have often heard the expression, "He has a white elephant on his hands" and know that it means that "he's got something there. In this case it means more than he bargained for. But did you know that one of the most dignified gentlemen of the faculty once actually owned a white elephant? Well, maybe he wasn't exactly white, but at the time we feel sure that the color made very little difference to Dr. Kennedy, who was accused by certain business men of York, S. C., of actually having kept the huge hay-burner and of disposing of it (both before) and after it died on his hands . . . and thereby hangs the story.

It seems that the Doctor was at one time a stockholder in a bank in York that held a mortgage in a small circus then making its headquarters there. Suddenly tracked in a financial manner by ye old fickle finger of fate, ye old circus company sank with the wind down the sawdust trail to a sunset of financial ruin, leaving the York bank its poles and tents — and Dr. Kennedy suddenly found himself the proud possessor (so they say in York) of a five-toed probosidian mammal, and he thought all the time he was a stockholder!

Well time marched on, leaving the poor old mastodon behind one day. And while its soul hurried on to an elephantine heaven it neglected to arrange passage for its recently departed earthly home, leaving our good Doctor the job of burying his elephantoid mortgage. (So they tell it in York).

Now if you will just stick around until the latter part of the twenty-first century you might have the privilege of shaking your hoary head with an amused chuckle at the pseudo-scientists of that time as they set out to prove by much mathematics (for the supposition such Newtonic methods produced on the same) that a herd of five-toed probosidian mammals once roamed the wilds and [illegible] YORK CITY now stand."

Baptists Make 28 First Downs As P. C. Fails To Score After Several Threats.

JIMMY DENNARD STARS FOR BLUE STOCKINGS

By Jake Penland

Dizzy McLeod's patented "Furman fury" was turned loose in Sirrine stadium, Greenville, Saturday night and directed to a 52 to 0 rout of Presbyterian's gallant but incapable Blue Stockings.

A collection of powerful, elusive backs used an extensive assortment of plays to romp behind the sturdy, rushing line in a parade of touchdown-culminating drives. The Furman eleven made 28 first downs, 507 yards with its effective rushing and passing tactics.

Jimmy Dennard, P. C. speed merchant, starred for the Hosemen by clicking off 80 yards and effectively penetrating Furman's defense when called on. Todd and Evans did some nice line work and Culp supplemented Dennard in the backfield.

Furman's scoring was evenly distributed throughout the game. The first quarter netted two scores, the second three, the third two, and the fourth, one.

P. C. made her first scoring threat soon after the game opened. The Hurricane received and punted after rolling up two first downs. Dennard breezed around end for 28 yards, placing the ball on Furman's 41. He then went over guard for 7 yards, but the Hurricane braced and Culp punted. The ball fell dead on the five-yard stripe. Gwinn got off a bad punt, the ball going to Furman's 19. Dennard swept off end for 7 yards. On the next play he squirmed through for a first down. He then fumbled on the next play and Furman got out of danger.

McLeod's Paladins then began demonstrating their superiority with flashing long runs and passes. Joe Jenkins went over from the P. C. 25-yard stripe for the first tally. Shetly rammed over after a long run to tally again and the scoring parade continued with few interruptions.

Substitutions were made freely by McLeod and Johnson, giving nearly every uniformed man a chance.

The line-ups:

'Black Spider' Is Terror To Alumni Hall

A pall of gloom rested over the inhabitants of Alumni dormitory as the unknown "Black Spider," the result of a student's imagination as well as a serial being shown at a local theatre, continued to threaten them with all sorts of terrifying notes.

The most damage done by the Spider thus far has been to tear up and ruffle bed clothes in the absence of the owners and leaves the succinct note: "Beware of the Black Spider." Further work attributed to the Spider was the placing of match stems in all the keyholes of the doors of the building — which proved to be rather disconcerting. The Spider's only attempt to obtain money was this note: "Pay me that thirty cents you owe me, or else. The Black Spider." The student who received the note looks under his bed every night now. (The thirty cents has not been paid).

Alumni inhabitants now live in terror that the Spider will strike soon and do more than write notes. Most of them already have their last will and testament ready.

Thought For the Week

GRATITUDE

Do we remember the old hymn, "Count Your Blessings"? Have we ever stopped to think from whence all our blessings of life are? Have we ever considered that the source of all the little things in life that make for supreme happiness is the "Giver of every good and perfect gift"?

In bygone days, we remember how The Word tells us that ten men who were lepers came to Jesus, and Jesus cleansed them of their leprosy. One of them was grateful enough to thank him for saving his life from a dreadful disease, and breaking down a great social barrier between him and his fellow men. We wonder what happened that the others forgot so soon!

Is it nothing to us that He watches over us each day, providing for us, and loving us? Then, let us begin each day, not only to say "Thank you," but to exemplify that spirit by the testimony of our deeds.

Editorialettes

While the editor and two members of the staff are at the state press convention at Coker, Pete McCormick will be in charge of next week's issue.

The showing of movies at the regular "Y" meeting last Thursday night indicates that maybe the student body would turn out en masse if free movies were shown each time. The "Y" deserves a bouquet, however, for making it possible for the students to see the campus movies.

"The leaves of brown came tumbling down in September in the rain" might well be applied to this campus, when we consider the amount of rain we have had and that also the leaves of brown are tumbling down.

Autumn with its falling leaves, football games, bonfires, pep parades, pep meetings, big dances, boys and girls strolling in the moonlight silhouetted against the skyline—gee, college must be a nice place.

Presbyterian College is still coming along—and now will have a weekly broadcast. Local ambitious pen-slingers now have a chance, not to get their works published, but to get them aired. In case we ever get a station we suggest the following identification letters which you perhaps readily interpret—PCTT.

"TENNIS TECH"—(?)

The general term of "Tennis Tech" as applied to P. C. is getting a bit stale; in fact, it's beginning to take on a smelly attribute. However, it looks like a name which will not be erased any time in the near future. To some, it's a joke; to others, it's a cynical slur. The harm or lack of harm it does to the general morale of the school is debatable. Certainly the students have smelled a rat in the whole tennis proceedings of the term never would have started—to some, it is but a publicity gag. While to others more sincerely interested who look at it as we do, certainly it is a good boost for P. C.

The charge by some that over-emphasis on tennis has been detrimental to other sports is a bit far-fetched. We overheard one student remark, "Better let this tennis business alone and get some football players here." That was last spring. Certainly there is no getting around the fact that tennis is definitely being emphasized.

Why the students have consistently clung to this name and have flaunted it jokingly or otherwise is not clear. Some say that the administration is trying to make a major sport out of one that is really a minor sport. This is largely due to the fact that students do not realize that tennis is fast becoming one of the major sports in the country, ranging along with football and baseball, though of course it will never attract the crowds that these two sports do.

In most schools known to us tennis is definitely a minor sport; here it is boosted as being a major sport. Certainly it is being pushed enough to be one.

Be that as it may, we do not offer explanations why the name, nor do we write for or against the sport. Long ago we learned to try not to leave ourselves open.

But P. C. will be "Tennis Tech" for many a day, and you may lay to that. It is a joke that will not die down soon.

And you will still hear the old grads say, "I'm a rambling wreck from Tennis Tech"—boastfully or sadly? Well, it's your turn to answer.

SOUND OFF

— By —

E. A. JOHNSON

Most of the men in school had their first chance to see what they really look like on a review. The moving pictures made last year showed the corps putting out in its best form. Since pictures are not supposed to lie, we are inclined to thing that P. C. has demonstrated that it can put on a first-rate ceremony.

Speaking of ceremonies, the review held Friday was a mighty creditable showing for the first attempt of the year. We learn from Major Harding that these weekly ceremonies will be a regular part of the drill routine this year. By the time that government inspection comes around the corps should be in shape to stage a prize parade just as a matter of course.

After much study and practice, Captain Hipp has developed a new salute which we think should be included in training regulations. Overcoming the handicap of an injured foot, he has developed a certain salute which is as snappy as one could wish.

We are watching hopefully for the announcement of the invention of a new safety device. We understand that there is a movement under way to perfect pads which will be placed on the rifles of all freshmen. It is hoped that this will result in a reduction in the number of casualties caused by rifles which seem to be flying wildly about in ranks.

CAMPUS CRUISING

By Pete McCormick

In the early part of last week The Citadel sent out handbills like this: "Warning — Hurricane Approaching" —and then went on to say how the Furman Purple Hurricane was growing furious up at Greenville and it would be down to Charleston on Saturday. The Citadel convicts claimed that they had organized sufficient gridiron forces to quell this violent Purple storm.

You can easily gather that this is an announcement of the Furman-Citadel football game played Saturday . . . also a statement by Citadel that they would lick the "House of Magic."

That, mine frans, is one good form of advertising, and my opinion, along with numerous others, is that this form of avertising football games should be used more often by the various athletic departments of school in the East.

America's largest social fraternity is Sigma Alpha Epsilon. It has 100 chapters and 32,500 living members.

The University of Illinois has established the first college course in "air-conditioning."

Oberlin college students learn Spanish by speaking into dictating machines and later correcting their faults after an instructor has criticized their recordings.

Glory hallelujah!The Gamecock, University of South Carolina weekly publication, has already built Dick Little up to all-American. Some stuff! He'll come as near making all-American as I will to leading the sophomore class scholastically. Of course Dick Little is good. I've seen him play football, and in my opinion he's a little better than the average football player. He'll probably make all-state, but he'll never get any further than all-Southern, if he gets that far. My prediction is that he will be all-Southern in his last year of football. Of course, I'm not criticizing The Gamecock for playing up Mr. Little, but the opinion of that publication is just one in a million. The best player on the field in the Carolina-Davidson game Saturday was flashy "Teeny" Lafferty, spark-plug of the Davidson Wildcat aggregation.

The Cow College at Clemson had the autumn ball dance series this past week-end. The music was furnished by Frank LaMarr (never heard of 'im). Rhythmaster, and his orchestra.

Remember! . . . It's better to be silent and thought fools than to speak and remove all doubt.

The CAMPUS COMMENTATOR

— By —

D. R. DINGEMAN

We ain't got a whole lot of scandal for yo'all, but what we've got we'll sure share with you. The first item is a newsy little clipping from the Georgia Tech paper, concerning one of our most charming co-eds.

The clipping we've got is worded thusly: Last week it came to our attention that there is a certain Presby senior who sorta put those Ga. peaches down Tech way to shame. A certain end of the Presby feetball team brought her down for the game and she sorta wowed tha' whole town. Her initials are BEBE DILLARD. After the various teams, and their female followings that have come with them in past seasons, it is really good to see somebody that really is easy on the eyes. It has been suggested on the campus that Bebe tryout for the past of Scarlett in "Gone With the Wind." It seems like a good idea to us. We know you'll agree.

Paradise regained: MARGARET SHEALY was really walking on air the other week-end. Her little Coolie from Chahlston was up here to see her, and this story has more to it than meets the eye. It seems in her reign as queen of the city of Clinton, she was pulled in a ricksha down the main stem of Charleston by WILSON RUMPH. Se has had a bad case on him ever since the ventful ride down King street.

Tennyis Clinic: The boys of our tennyis clinic seemed to like our co-eds. In fact, so much they had to hangout at the library every morning. It finally came to a point where they got introduced to some of our fair co-eds. One of them finally met ADELAIDE ROBERTS and he introduced his school-mates. They had a rendezvous in the library every morning. Isn't that too, too devine.

Advice to errant young men: There are three types of women. They are as follows:

Prizes.
Surprizes.
Consolation prizes.

Love in "Lap"-land, or why the nights are so long in the Arctic. "I love you" is translated "Nnivigssaerntuinalfinajuanjuarisquejak." You can pronounce it your own way.

Love is news: On this campus especially, and it hasn't been seen around here in a long time. But!!! it has been brought to our attention that one of our freshmen has a bad case on one of the local talent. We oughtn't to tell who it is, so I guess we won't. But you can find out from most any "rat."

Last week-end in Columbia: It has come to our attention that BUBAY FLEISCHMANN, a rat on this campus, has a gurl in Columbia what is by far okay. In fact, she allus brings him out to the "bummin' corner" as he can get back to school. The thing that attracted our attention, which is supposed to be terrific, was the affectionate adieus that were said on his departure.

Scandal: BILL McSWEEN has been visiting in Atlanta quite a lot for the past few week-ends, and we know why. She seems to have quite an attraction for him, because Atlanta is a long, far-piece away. Don't tell me you already knew that ,'cause I know it too.

Headed up Winthrop way: "PETIE BOY" BROOKER going up there to see his gal. I guess she has got something, 'cause he came back feeling okaldokle.

Scandal from the Johnsonian: The editor of the exchange column, MARTHA ORR by name, is shooting rather high or low as the case may be. She has been dropping some rather broad hints to the editor of the Cow College annual about getting into the "Taps" beauty section. She might make it, but don't you like the discreet manner she goes about getting in it. She just writes her hints in the exchange column of the Winthrop weekly sheet.

Hose Take On Emory and Henry This Week-End

Tennis Clinic Success Despite Weather

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

EVERYBODY MAKES MISTAKES

Everybody makes mistakes. That's why they put rubber mats under cuspidors. Last week I predicted Carolina to win from Clemson, 13-7. The Tigers trucked through Carolina for six sizzling touchdowns. I thought the Gamecocks would win because:

1. They have two strong teams and several more capable reserves.

2. Their freshman teams have been unusually strong for three years.

3. They proved their strength against Georgia, North Carolina, and Davidson.

I thought Clemson would lose because:

1. Their reserve strength is less imposing than Carolina's.

2. The loss of Captain Lewis.

3. Their showing against P. C. didn't compare with Carolina's against Emory and Henry.

I must have forgotten, though, about DON WILLIS.

CAROLINA—CITADEL

These two teams meet at Orangeburg Thursday. Despite Carolina's drubbing last week, I'm looking for a victory over Citadel because:

1. Carolina is far superior in reserve strength.

2. The game will be hard-fought and reserves will decide issues in the final analysis.

3. The battle will be waged on neutral soil (Citadel is always two or three touchdowns better at home).

4. The "mental edge" favors Carolina.

CAROLINA 19. THE CITADEL 7.

JUST ONE DESIRE

Like every other P. C. student, I'm for the Blue Stockings. But after watching them drop six games without scoring, we naturally become less spirited. There's not much to "stand up and cheer" for. It brings out the following reaction, voiced poetically:

'Mong Piedmont hills of old S. C.,
The Hosemen do their chores,
Losing every week-end session
And adding to their woes.

Some say they need a stronger line,
A flashy back or more—
I think that I would like to see
Those Hosemen make a score!

Boxing Hopefuls Begin Workouts

Johnson Optimistic Over Prospects of Good Season With Material On Hand.

By J. B. Hafley

With the wintry month of November close at hand, several members of the Presbyterian college boxing team have started taking workouts prior to a fisticuff season which will bring the Blue Hosemen against some of the stiffest competition in the Southeast. Coach Walter Johnson is elated at the prospects with which he has to work and he should develop this year's leather pushers into one of the best teams that this institution has seen since the days of Harry Bolick and Jimmy Siegel.

The pugilistic season doesn't get well under way until about the first of December, but some have already started intensive training. The men from whom great things are expected are: Captain Ed Lambright, Ralph Buchan, John Wells Todd, Curly Clements, Bill Bullock, Hood Strain, Dave Carson, Bill Burns, Jim Booth, and several others. Considerable worry is felt for the condition of Captain Lambright, who is suffering from a torn cartilage in his knee sustained in football practice. The extent of his injury is still unknown and whether he will be able to give his best is still uncertain.

There are many outstanding freshman boxers who will work out with the varsity, but will not be eligible for varsity ranks until next year. Among the lower-class glove slingers are: Davenport, Sutton, and Holmes.

Hose To Meet Laval's Eleven

Journey To Emory and Henry, In Virginia, for Seventh Encounter of Season.

Walter Johnson's Hosemen journey to Emory, Va., this week-end to meet Billy Laval's Emory and Henry eleven in Presbyterian's seventh engagement of the season.

Laval has a small squad with few strong reserves but his first string is inclusive of several good men. He will offer some tricky maneuvers against the Hosemen if past performances can be considered.

The Hosemen will be shooting for their first victory of the current campaign and are particularly anxious to penerate the scoring column.

INSTRUCTION AND EXHIBITIONS OFFERED LARGE NUMBER MEN

150 Players On Hand for Three-Day Clinic Held Last Week At Presbyterian College.

More than 150 tennis players from high schools and colleges of South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia and Florida attended the second annual tennis clinic which was held at Presbyterian college Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and received expert instruction from seven of the best professionals in the game.

The instruction corps was made up of William C. Lufler, professional at St. Petersburg, Fla., and at the Piedmont Driving club of Atlanta, Ga., coach of tennis at Presbyterian college, who was director of the clinic; John Cardegna, professional at the Bath and Tennis club of Palm Beach, Fla; Dan Watson, of the Chevy Chase club of Washington, D. C.; Eddie Kenney, of the Warrington club, Va., Harry Fogelman, coach of tennis at Duke university; John Kenfield, coach of tennis at the University of North Carolina, and James Mitchell, professional at the Richmond, Va., Country club.

In addition to this instructional work, Bryan (Bitsy) Grant of Atlanta, No. 3 ranking national singles player and member of the United States Davis cup team, played Rus Bobbitt, former Southern junior champion, in exhibition matches yesterday afternoon.

Exhibition matches between the professionals and the students occupied each evening session of the clinic.

Joe Thurston, an executive committeeman of the United States Lawn Tennis association, attended the clinic and took notes for the association with the intention of probably establishing similar clinics over the nation. He stated that the P. C. clinic was one of the most valuable moves made in junior amateur tennis in the United States and commended W. P. Jacobs, president of the college, on having originated the idea.

The work of the clinic consisted of classroom work on fundamentals, play by the student on the courts at P. C. with the professionals going from court to court and giving personal corrective instruction, together with careful instruction in the fundamentals of the game in group sessions in the gymnasium.

J. P. Stockton, prominent business man of New York, and formerly a ranking amateur, who wrote the textbook used in the course, was present and assisted in management of the clinic. He stated that the object was not to teach the students everything about tennis in three days but to give them instruction in the fundamentals so they could return home and practice better.

Junior Back

Deke Reynolds, back, who will be one of P. C.'s strong points against Emory and Henry this week-end.

Bulldogs Lead In State Race

Tigers and Fleet Also Undefeated. Carolina and Citadel To Fight It Out Thursday.

Clemson's 34 to 6 defeat of South Carolina last Thursday puts the Tigers in a favorable position to annex the state title, despite the surprising threat of The Citadel.

Erskine, along with Clemson and The Citadel, remains undefeated. The Fleet, however, is doped to lose against The Citadel and the Bulldogs will be underdog against Carolina this week-end.

Furman's furious eleven wrecked P. C. with a 52 to 0 scoring parade Saturday night to rise in favor. The Hurricane must stop both Carolina and Clemson to become a title contender.

Wofford and Newberry are knotted for sixth place, Carolina holds seventh with one loss in her only state appearance, and the P. C. Blue Stockings are in the cellar with five straight defeats charged to them.

Mrs. McSwain Tells Of Infirmary Work

Upon a visit to the infirmary, the reporter learned several facts of interest regarding the work there.

Mrs. McSwain stated that up until this time she has had a great many more patients than for the same period last year. She added, however, that she had had no serious cases. Patients with colds lead the list of her callers, while boys with minor football injuries come second. She said that even the football boys had about stopped "gold-bricking."

The institution boasts some new equipment this year, including an electric hot-plate, and an electric heat ray lamp used in removing soreness from sprains and bruises.

Something new in the way of treatment are the "flu" shots. This serum is injected in six shots and costs only $1.25. Mrs. "Mac" is anxious for as many boys as possible to take these shots. They aid greatly in warding off colds and influenza.

When the freshman team played the Wofford frosh, one of the Wofford players was hurt quite painfully and it was necessary for him to remain in the infirmary for the night. Late the following day his mother came for him. On leaving she thanked Mrs. McSwain for her kindness. Recently she received a letter from the Wofford coach, thanking her on behalf of the team, the student body and himself for all she had done. He said that the boy told him that, in spite of his injuries, he had enjoyed his stay with Mrs. McSwain.

'Y' Progresses In Spite of Difficulties During New Period

Wandell Williams said in an interview today that "Hap" Gray and his orchestra will appear on the "Y" program this week. This program is in line with the policy of getting up programs that will interest the whole student body. The college orchestra this year is undoubtedly the best to be here in several years and is prepared to be put on a "jam-up" good program.

In commenting on the accomplishments, plans, and purposes of the Y. M. C. A., Williams outlined the following ideas. Last year the "Y" thought it appropriate to have a special program in honor of Major Wysor who meant so much to the school in the eight years he was here. The program for "Major Wysor night" was in three parts—the night parade on Johnson field, the speeches and presentation of gifts in the chapel, and the reception in the "Y" building, all of which made up the "Y" meeting. This was the first big program of the Y. M. C. A. under the new administration and was a success.

The program put on by the "Y" last May, at which Dr. McSween made an address and twelve girls from Limestone college rendered the music, is recalled. Recently, the motion picture of the college, which was made last year, was shown at the "Y" meeting.

The president of the "Y" went to a great deal of trouble to put on these programs, but feels that it was worth it when se sees the response of the student body.

The "Y" has subsidized the big programs with weekly meetings, using students on the programs as fav as possible. Williams said, "It seems to me that we should get the best from our own students as well as the best from other speakers and from other schools." In accordance with the view, the "Y" has had, from time to time, outstanding and talented students on the programs. But sometimes the "Y" will slip up and put on a "dark program." For example, Miss Sadie Lee Vincent dramatized "Enoch Arden" several weeks ago "in the dark."

Among other things, the "Y" hopes to have the presidents of the various colleges to come and speak here in order that we may learn what is going on at other places.

Although the purpose of the Y. M. C. A. is to develop the well-rounded man in spirit, mind and body, it is not to be thought that the "Y" is puritanical in its attitude. The programs will be liberal and arranged so as to appeal to the whole student body. They are designed to bring out one or two serious thoughts that blend harmoniously into a program that will hold everyone's attention. In regard to this, Williams said, "We are going to put so much effort into these programs that they will be so interesting and enjoyable that the Venetian blinds in the chapel will fold up in applause at the conclusion of the programs."

Williams, not being a ministerial student, acknowledged the splendid work the ministerial club is doing, but inferred that the students should know that the "Y" is in no way directed or controlled by the ministerial club.

HOSE LOSE TO EMORY AND HENRY, 22 TO 6

P. C. Drops Seventh Straight Game To Virginians Saturday Afternoon.

ATKINSON SCORES P. C.'S FIRST GOAL OF YEAR

By Jake Penland

Presbyterian's Hosemen scored their first touchdown and experienced their seventh defeat of the season as Billy Laval's Emory and Henry eleven rellied mainly on aerial stuff to chalk up a 22 to 6 score on Virginia soil.

Presbyterian used a bewhiskered trick to effect a score two minutes before the game's end. Bogator Atkinson laid out on the time-honored "sleeping" play and took Trammel's heave for a 35-yard touchdown gain. It was the only serious Hose threat.

The Virginian's scored in the first quarter, added two points with a second quarter safety, and struck twice in the fourth. Barker, after successfully passing to Hymes for a 75-yard gain, bucked over from P. C.'s five for Emory's first score. A P. C. punt was blocked freakishly in the second semester and bounded into the end zone for a safety.

All of Emory's touchdowns resulted directly from passes. In the final period, Barker passed 15 yards to Hymes and sometime later Honeycutt intercepted a Presbyterian toss to romp 35 yards and score. Adams placekicked for both extra points.

Injuries cut deeply into the Hose ranks. Buie, a tackle, received a broken arm, and Culp was painfully hurt by torn ligaments. Holcombe suffered a foot injury, and Dennard bruised a shoulder.

I. R. C. MEMBERS HEAR TIMMONS

Members of the International Relations club enjoyed an interesting talk last Wednesday night. R. K. Timmons spoke on "Britain's Plan to Divide Palestine." After his speech members discussed the plan pro and con. They decided Britain's plan would work only in the event that she keep soldiers around Jerusalem. Thereby, she could force the Jews and Arabs to abide by the rules of the plan.

Arthur McElroy will discuss his recent trip to Europe at the next club meeting on November 10.

President Jacobs On Unemployment Advisory Board

P. C. Prexy Is Honored By Selection To State Committee.

With offices of the supervisor of examinations and advisory committee on personnel for the South Carolina Unemployment Compensation Commission having opened in the education building of the University of South Carolina, plans are now being made to carry out a merit system of selecting employees for the commission, according to an announcement Saturday by Commission officials.

Members of the advisory committee are Dr. G. Croft Williams, U. S. C. ; President William P. Jacobs, of Presbyterian college; and J. H. Gaillard, of Columbia.

These men were selected because of their interest in the improvement of public administration and in the selection of efficient government personnel.

McCormick Fills Editor's Shoes

Due to the fact that Editor McLeod and Managing Editor Heckle are away for a few days to attend the State Collegiate Press association at Coker college, this paper is being published under the editorship of Pete McCormick, who is being assisted by David Dingeman and Bill McLaurin.

The next issue, however, will be edited by McLeod who will have returned by that time.

COLLEGE PAPER RECEIVES AWARD AT PRESS MEETING

Association Convention At Coker College Friday and Saturday. P. C. Men Attend.

PENLAND TAKES FIRST IN NEWS STORY CONTEST

For the second time in the history of the publication, The Blue Stocking placed in the annual South Carolina College Press association contest for the best college paper in the state, winning third place out of the ten papers of the state entered in the contest.

This year's winning issues were edited by Cliff McLeod. The other time the paper placed was in 1935 when it won second place under the editorship of Hugh Holman, present publicity director at Presbyterian college.

Announcement of the winners was made at the annual press convention held at Coker college last Friday and Saturday. The Johnsonian (Winthrop) won first place, while The Hornet (Furman) won second place. Other papers entered in the contest besides the three that placed were: The Tiger (Clemson), The Erskine Mirror, the Indian (Newberry), The Bulldog (The Citadel), The Old Gold and Black (Wofford), The Parley Voo (Converse), The Periscope (Coker). This is the second successive year that The Johnsonian has won first place and The Hornet second.

Jake Penland, sports editor of The Blue Stocking, took individual honors in the contest for the best news story of the year by winning first place in this field out of the ten stories that were entered. This is the second successive year that Penland has won this contest, using both times his write-up of the annual state track meet.

Presbyterian college was represented at the convention by L. G. Heckle, Jake Penland and Cliff McLeod. The feature of the convention was the banquet Saturday night, at which time the winners were announced. Dr. Archibald Rutledge, poet laureate of South Carolina, was the principal speaker of the convention and gave a lecture after the banquet, using as his subject, "The Sources of Inspiration."

The Journal (Winthrop) won first place for having the best magazine in the state, the Erothesian (Lander) took second, while the Shako (The Citadel) was third. In the field of magazine writing the Erothesian won the most individual honors, while The Journal came second. The Collegian (Presbyterian college) which in the past two years won first and second place, failed to place this year.

At the annual business meeting held Friday afternoon Erskine college was selected as the place for the convention next year. Approximately fifty delegates attended the convention, representing all college publications in the state of South Carolina.

Jimmie Fuller Will Play For Pledge Series

Dances Will Begin Friday Evening, November 12, Ending Saturday Night.

John Woodward, president of the Panhellenic council, has announced that Jimmie Fuller and his University of North Carolina orchestra will swing out when the 1937 pledge dances open at the Clinton armory on Friday evening, November 12, at 9 o'clock.

Fuller has one of the best swing orchestras for dancing in the South and his Collegians have made a swell reputation for themselves.

There will be a Friday night formal dance at 9 o'clock and there's a question mark as to what time it will end. The Saturday afternoon tea dance will be at 4:30 and the closing dance of the series on Saturday night will break loose at 8 o'clock and will end at 12, bringing to a close the entire series.

Chi Beta Phi Honors Two

Wilson and Hemphill Elected To Membership.

President Jack Witherspoon, of Chi Beta Phi, announced today that two new men would be initiated into this scientific fraternity this week. The new men are Malcolm Hemphill of Griffin, Ga., and Neille A. Wilson of St. Charles. This will bring the total membership up to seven. In the near future three more men will be tapped to fill the vacancies left in the organization through graduation.

President Witherspoon also made the interesting announcement that in the next week or two the fraternity would bring to the campus a speaker of outstanding ability. There will be an open meeting and all the students of Presbyterian college will have the opportunity to hear this specialist in his particular field. The speaker has already been contacted but the details of time and place have not yet been arranged. Chi Beta Phi plans to bring a number of outstanding men to the campus during the year in order that the student's interest in scientific affairs may be stimulated by personal contact with leading scientists.

Emory Honors P. C. Graduate

A. D. Ferguson, graduate of P. C., has been highly honored by fellow medical students at Emory university.

Ferguson, who is completing his senior year in medicine at Emory has been elected president of the senior class and this honor also carries with it the presidency of the entire medical student body.

Drew, who received his B.S. degree at P. C., has made an enviable record. After receiving his M.D. degree he will serve his internership in one of the leading southern hospitals. This past summer he was associated with Dr. Fundertunke at Riegal hospital at Troup, Ga.

The many interested friends of this promising young physician predict for him a brilliant future.

Art Exhibit Will Open Here Tuesday, Another In January, Brown States

By "Pete" McCormick

Dean Marshall W. Brown has announced that there will begin here next Tuesday, November 2, an art exhibition which is being sponsored by the Living American Art Co., of New York. The display will probably be placed in the college library.

The plan, which has been so successful for the past two years, is as follows: The foremost American artists have been submitting their best works to a jury, which selects twelve paintings every three months. Those chosen are sent to a plant in Vienna, under the direction of the famous Max Jaffe are color-colotype reproduced in such a manner that they are almost mistakable for the originals.

Numerous colleges and museums of America subscribe for exhibits of these paintings four times a year, each exhibit being made in a group and faculty members are there by students, members of the faculty, and other interested individuals.

Dean Brown requests that all students and faculty members go there to carry it on for some time. Some of the leading colleges using this service are: Harvard, Yale, Notre Dame, North Carolina, Georgia, Minnesota, Princeton, Ohio State, Colgate, Cornell and Columbia.

The plan was inaugurated two months ago and was attended by more than half a million people in 225 cities in 46 states. The exhibitions will take place four times a year on set dates.

The group which will be on display here beginning next week is the second in the series of picture displays. These will remain here for a month when they will be sent back to the company. On January 3rd, a third group will be placed in the reading room of the library for examination and other interested individuals.

Dean Brown requests that all students and faculty members go there to see these paintings. It is proposed here to educate students to appreciate modern paintings, which are of so popular that the art company plans, great intellectual value.

Spencer Hall Mascot Dies

Members of the student body will be grieved to hear of the recent passing of Joe Squirrel, Spencer dormitory mascot. The death occurred on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock. Funeral services were conducted by "Cab Calloway" Blackwell at 11 o'clock on Thursday A. M.

The death was due to the development of a slight sneeze, which developed into a cold, which developed into influenza, which developed into pneumonia, which developed into double pneumonia, which resulted in Joe's death. A slight draft was the cause of the slight sneeze.

Joe is a native of Clinton. He was found, as orphan, by several members of the student body and was keeping company with a very talented cat when he was in the act of eating Joe when he was rescued by the students.

Survivors of the late Mr. Squirrel are unknown.

Holman Says Debaters To Be Stronger

"We should have a fairly good debate team," said Hugh Holman, coach of the team, when he was questioned concerning the forensic aggregation which he is building this year.

The team, consisting of Dugald Hudson, Cliff McLeod, Ashby Johnson, and Roy Hutchinson, is reinforced with a number of capable substitutes, among them Harry Robinson, Milton Norton, and Joe Gilmore. It will debate the Pi Kappa Delta question, "Resolved that the National Labor Relations Board shall be empowered to enforce arbitration in all labor disputes."

"Last year," Holman said, "we were in the position of beginning a season without an experienced man on the squad. However, the team saw much service in tournaments and had debates, and has won a creditable total number of decisions. It is proposed here to go and win debates and I believe it will."

At present the work of the team

Thought For the Week

THE SIMPLE THINGS

Man is to a large extent seeking peace and happiness, and is attempting to find these coveted things through great and complex deeds. He thinks that in order to be supremely happy he must have great wealth and as a consequence of this belief, seeks wealth with all his heart. With blurred vision he pursues the fleeting pleasures of life.

He forgets in his heart the simple things that mean so much. Home, mother, love, a smile, a kind deed, faith in Christ—all these things are not outstanding deeds in the history of the world, but they make for real happiness and peace of soul. In vain are all men's efforts to find happiness through selfish gain. Paul seemed to think that these things were important and he sums up three simple things—"And now abideth faith, hope and love, these three; but the greatest of these is love."

Attention, Students!

It seems almost impossible that such a select type of young men that composes our student body could go on for so long a period without recognizing the priceless work that is being carried on by our most important organization. I say 'most important' because without it the members of the student body would be very dissatisfied. It is my aim to call this to the attention of the students and hope that some appropriate action will be taken concerning this organization.

Every upperclassman at P. C. can realize the value of this statement: "Without the infirmary, Mrs. Mac" and "Doc" Rhame there would be much physical suffering among our students."

The infirmary is fairly well equipped but it would be to the advantage of the students if it were more thoroughly equipped. For example: tables could be placed by all the beds instead of just one table in each room which contains three or four beds. It causes a lot of extra steps for Mrs. Mac has to move all the beds and tables around in order to comfort the patients. It is not necessary to enumerate other additions which would be a great step in building a bigger and better infirmary.

"Doc" Rhame, college physician, spends much of his valuable time repairing broken arms, noses, jaws, legs, etc., of the unlucky members of the student body. Every morning, without fail, "Doc" appears at the infirmary with his little black bag and proceeds to visit his patients, advising Mrs. Mac as to their condition and doing all in his power to put them back on their feet as quickly as possible.

Mrs. McSwain, infirmary mistress, has been affectionately dubbed "Mrs. Mac." She is like a mother to all the boys and she is in turn, loved by all. However, it seems that, although the students realize how faithful and generous Mrs. Mac is, they have unconsciously failed to recognize her great work in an appropriate manner. Mrs. Mac takes orders with a smile, she never seems to tire of taking the best care of the students. Any student who is in trouble or is worried can feel sure that there is one person on the campus who will sympathize with him—none other than Mrs. Mac. She might rightfully be called "The College Mother."

It is not my policy to criticize various organizations and publications on the campus. I am merely making a suggestion or two as a result of the criticisms of last year's publications.

It is my opinion that the college annual should have a full page in recognition of the work carried on by Mrs. Mac and Doctor Rhame in the infirmary. It would also be appropriate for the Y. M. C. A. Handbook to carry a page in publicizing this highly-important organization. The Handbook is printed primarily for the benefit of the freshmen and what could be more important to the freshmen than knowing all about the infirmary and its great work?

With the above facts in mind it would seem that the members of the student body would come to the realization that this organization has been unconsciously disregarded in the past year or two and that some immediate action should be taken in order to recognize the great work that has and is being carried on in the infirmary by Mrs. McSwain and Doctor Rhame.

Are you with me, boys? —P. Mc. '40.

CAMPUS CRUISING

WHAT'S WHAT ON OTHER CAMPUSES

By PETE McCORMICK

Ask any freshman why he came to P. C. and his response is a ridiculously cute answer which was imposed on him by the local vigilance committee. Now that my "rat" days are over I feel perfectly safe in giving an answer that is more appropriate. I will begin with the various reasons why I didn't wanna go elsewhere:

Clemson (The recipients of my slap-happy jabber)—I've no desire to farm and overalls always seemed to fit me slouchily.

Carolina—To much crowing about Carolina, too much freedom, possibly (mind you, I said possibly) a little guzzling on the sly, too large to be friendly.

Furman—Too windy (Hurricane) Also too close to mine fran (grrrr) "Scoop" Latimer.

Citadel—I'm perfectly innocent, judge—you can't lay nothin' on me. Why should I gaze between bars, longingly, when I ain't done nothin?

Erskine—Tough, rough and too ready.

Newberry—I detest Indians and squaws weaken my desire to study. Papooses annoy me and a wigwam is not my idea of a good place to engage in slumber.

Wofford—The barking (Terriers) never bites. What I want is action!

Now here I am at P. C. There ain't no taking me away. I think maybe I'll be here five or six years, possibly more. Here the boys don't wear overalls, and can't juice cows. There isn't too much freedom, no guzzling and all the boys are friendly. Forty miles is ample distance from "Scoop." We have glass windows all the way around. The boys are gentlemanly and mannerly. No Indian reservation around and beds to sleep on.

Gimme the Blue Hose!

The lament of the professional football manager: "How can we put out good football teams when the colleges can afford to pay more than we can?"

"Young man, are you the teacher of this class?"
"No sir."
"Then don't talk like an idiot."

A Collitch Boy Gives Definitions:
Sunset—Rear view of a sunrise.
Deduce—Premier of Italy (Mussolini).
Convex—State prisoners.
Prism—Penal institution where convex are kept.
Lap—That which ain't when you stand up.
Feudal—Useless.
Sophomore—A freshman that has paid his tuition twice.

SOUND OFF

— By —

E. A. JOHNSON

The junior class has started work on the machine gun and is getting instruction in its nature and use. In spite of all the talk that has come out during the past few years about new military tactics, the machine gun still remains the key weapon in combat. We had heard a lot about the way the airplane and tank would change warfare, but the fighting in Spain and China shows that the fire power of the machine gun is still the deciding factor. All in all, it's a mighty nice little toy to know about.

We have been hearing a little talk lately about the possibility of a military field day some time this year. That seems to us to be a mighty swell idea. Class competition should make a good basis for such an event. Contests in machine gun drill, wall-scaling, and tent pitching between members of the junior and senior classes would be fine training for the men preparing for camp besides affording a good bit of interest. Similar contests could be arranged for the men in the basic corps.

Now that we have started thinking about it, maybe it would be a good idea to have one special "Military Day." An afternoon field contest, moonlight parade, followed by a Military Ball would give "the makings" of a big day on the campus.

This is the first time in some years that the military has been able to carry on with sufficient strength on week ends of football games. Now we have a senior class large enough to keep us supplied with officers even when the players are on trips.

The CAMPUS COMMENTATOR

— By —

D. R. DINGEMAN

Well folkies, and all of you dear little ones here we are back with a new edition of the scandal column with all kinds of assorted and sundry dirt and stuff and junk and things. More fun.

It was rumored around quite a bit that the Furman game would be a cold occasion but I don't believe anybody, including the Greenvillians, thought it could be so cold. It was so cold the spectators built fires in the stands and there was—and here's the scandal part of it—plenty of participation in that old game bundling. The Zooites were out in full glory and up to their necks in blankets and in some cases other people. Catch it?

Around the World with HUGGINS: He spent the night with his girl in Greenville with her taxi-ing him all over the textile center. Her front handle is "LOUISE," if you want any more information you may approach him at any time he is busy. He won't talk for us.

A college girl buying lipstick:
Girl: "I want some lipstick."
Clerk "How much do you want."
Girl "Enough for three rides and a house party."

A certain gal by the name of LIB Barnes seems to have made quite a hit with our boy ELDRED. He was commenting on her absence from his life the other night with a moony look in his eyes. For your information she has been going rather steadily with PHIL ROGERS.

We don't think it: On one of the few fair mornings that we have had we observed our gal (?) sitting on the plaza talking to of all people BUSSY FLEISCHMANN. And we thought he had a gal down Columbia way that monopolized all of his attention. Well I guess that you know the heart of a freshman is usually divided by that gal back home and some of the local talent.

Scoop (?): Tho' it may be a little late, we mention in passing that last week saw the marriage of one of our graduates to his true love. "COTTON" PARHAM got hitched to LIB last Sunday and thus completed a beautiful story of love on the campus and all that sort of thing. All of "COTTON'S" friends were on hand to see that the couple got off with appropriate ceremonies and rice throwing and shoes. Wishes for the best of luck, of course, are in order.

Scandal: Well, maybe it ain't, but it'll have to do until the real thing comes along. It seems that "BIG" COLEMAN sorta upset some of the gals down that-a-way—you know Charleston. He went down with "JEEP" CLEMENT and saw one of his old Charleston gals, who introduced him to a couple other gals which have been on their ears ever since. Well, the short of it is this: One of those gals what was stunning wrote to ye old scandal-monger to find out his name. She knew the campus commentator some years ago and incidentally she ain't writ to me in years. I think she's using me, do you. Well, anyhow, she knows my name now.

Opportunity: HUGH RUTLEDGE seems to have gained national recognition by discovery of some bones which are supposed to indicate that monsters once roamed over the Battery in Charleston years ago.

Boycott: The other day our happy school child, AIKEN TAYLOR, was caught writing things about Prof. Weber on the board. That wasn't so bad from AIKEN'S viewpoint, but he got caught by the one and only Prof. Weber. Is my pan pink? I blush?

News: DR. BRIMM has been bringing his dog to class in the morning. And the aforementioned dog has caused quite a bit of excitement around those parts. It seems that the dog is by nature inquisitive and goes around sticking his nose in other people's business and pants legs. For this he gets in trouble which usually causes quite a furore in the class.

Flash: "RAT" HOWARD has been down to Jaxonville again and he wants to go again. He got a telegram calling him home so he went—and how. There seems to be a girl somewhere in this set-up and there also seems to be a nigger in the woodpile. Well, in the long run this kind of thing usually pans out into a case of insomnia. But still absence makes the heart grow fonder.

MODERN HISTORY

P. C.'s team scored its first touchdown of the season Saturday afternoon against Emory and Henry. Which stimulated me to compose the following lines:

You think that Wellington was hot
In taking Waterloo,
That Roosevelt accomplished much
In cooking Hoover's stew.

The famous female Joan of Arc
Starred nobly for her France;
Ma Dionne rang the bell and put
Her husband in a trance.

But that was mighty shallow stuff
Of History's drab lore
Compared to P. C's week-end feat
Of chalking up a score.

EVERY DOG HAS ITS DAY

P. C. critic hounds had theirs last week after my prediction that Carolina would beat Clemson. That should have been enough to discourage me in the tricky art of forecasting—should have been, but wasn't. For the Carolina-Citadel game we made the following guess:

Carolina 19 ..... Citadel 6

And the actual score was:

Carolina 21 ..... Citadel 7

At the present, there ain't no fleas on me.

THIS WEEK

The coming week-end offers some interesting grid play. Three state teams take off to foreign fields—every game is against an out-of-state foe. And there's nary a one whose result is certain. Take a gander at the Pen-Point of view:

P. C. Racketeers Bow To Mighty Tarheel Outfit

University of North Carolina Tennis Men Make Clean Sweep In Singles and Doubles.

In a pre-season tennis match with the University of North Carolina Friday, the Presbyterian college netmen went down in defeat, 6-0. The match, played in Chapel Hill, was the first for both teams and will probably be the last until early in the spring.

The superior North Carolina racketwielders found no match in the netmen from Clinton and annexed four victories in singles and two in the doubles competition. P. C. showed flashes of championship form, however, and since it is rather unfair to judge a team by its early season showing against such stiff competition as the Tarheels had to offer, all feel certain that this year's courtmen are going to develop into one of the leading contenders for state honors under the able guidance of Coach Bill Lufler. Beginning in March, the local tennis team will launch a schedule that will include out of state pilgrimages and matches with the best in the state.

Summary of the North Carolina matches:

Fuller defeated Beatty, 6-1, 6-2.
Rood defeated Boykin, 6-3, 6-2.
Robinson defeated Glickert, 6-0, 6-0.
Rood defeated Gray, 6-0, 6-0.
Strain and Doyle defeated Boykin and Glickert, 6-3, 6-3.
Foreman and Rider defeated Beatty and Kerdasha, 6-2, 6-3.

Frosh Wallop Bohunk Group

Ember Stands Out Among Individual Stars.

In an exhibition football game on Johnson Field Thursday, the powerful freshmen defeated the mighty varsity "bohunks" 23-0.

The freshmen scored in the first few minutes of play when McIntosh dropped back to the "bohunks" 35 and tossed a pass of which Roberts made a beautiful one-hand catch on the one-yard line and fell over for the first score. Green shifted to the backfield from his tackle post and place-kicked the extra point. After the kickoff the "hunks" were unable to gain and Moore, when attempting to kick from his 5-yard line, fumbled a bad pass from center and was smothered by a host of tacklers in the end zone for a safety making the score 9-0 in favor of the frosh.

The next kickoff was fumbled and recovered by the frosh on the "bohunks'" 30-yard line. They were unable to gain and punted over the goal. The "bohunks" rallied and made their first threat which was cut short when McIntosh intercepted a pass in midfield. After a few line plays failed to net the necessary yardage for a first down, McIntosh flipped a forward to Davenport who received it on the 30 and continued unmolested for the second touchdown. Coleman entered the game and added the extra point from placement.

Late in the third period Wienges took the ball on a reverse and, behind beautiful interference, raced 40 yards for the third and final score of the game. The extra point was donated them by the captain of the "bohunks."

The "bohunks" drove to the 2-yard line in the closing minutes of the game but the frosh proved to be the renowned immovable object and took the ball on downs after driving the bohunks back to their 9-yard line.

The work of June Moore for the bohunks was outstanding, while Booth and Carson played bang-up ball in the line. For the frosh the running and passing of McIntosh, the defensive play of Ember, who was all over the field, and the general performance of the whole team was outstanding.

HIGHLY-TOUTED MERCER CLUB FAVORED IN ANNUAL RIVALRY

Clemson Leads S. C. Grid Race

Erskine Also Undefeated Among Home State Teams.

The only intra-state game of South Carolina's past football week altered the trend of the state championship race when the Carolina Gamecocks practically eliminated The Citadel from state and conference title hopes.

The Bulldogs, previously unbeaten in the Southern conference, went down in a 21 to 6 defeat before the Gamecocks who turned an astounding series of breaks to their advantage.

Meanwhile the Clemson Tigers clinched their claim to top honors by putting down their second consecutive Southern conference foe. They defeated Wake Forest 32 to 0 before a Clemson homecoming crowd.

The Erskine Seceders, masters of South Carolina's "Little Four" and also undefeated in the state championship race, added laurels to their crown with a 14 to 13 victory over Stetson at Deland, Fla.

Furman, only hope for halting the smooth course of Clemson's march to the mythical state title, added little to the promise Saturday when they fell before the Davidson Wildcats to the tune of 13 to 9.

The Purple Hurricane, champion the past two years, dropped hopes of retaining the title with the defeat by The Citadel. Furman and Clemson stage their important battle November 25.

Should Furman defeat Clemson, however, a scramble would likely result with probably several claiming the top honor or with the place going to none.

The Newberry Indians lost, 6 to 0, to Roanoke college at Salem, Va., Friday, and Presbyterian's college's Blue Stockings lost, 22 to 6, to Coach Billy Laval's Emory and Henry team.

The Wofford Terriers fell before Rollins college, 37 to 0, in their Florida jaunt.

The Schedule

Games next week-end:

Friday: Mercer vs Presbyterian at Clinton; Alabama Teachers vs Newberry at Newberry.

Saturday: Carolina vs Kentucky at Lexington, Ky.; Clemson vs Georgia Tech at Atlanta; The Citadel vs

Blue Stockings Still Seeking To Annex First Victory of Season. Bears Dangerous Foe.

J. B. Hafley

Riding the crest of a wave of football success, the Mercer university football team will disembark in Clinton next week-end for their traditional clash with the Presbyterian warriors Friday night. The highly touted Bears will enter the fracas as heavy favorites by virtue of their brilliant showing against Georgia Tech, University of Georgia, and others. The Hosemen, however, will be willing to concede nothing and entertain high hopes of springing an upset. Coach Walter Johnson is hoping to throw the full strength of his squad against Coach Lake Russell's galloping Bears.

There are no outstanding stars on the Mercer roster. The team is a well-balanced one, every back a triple threat, and a fast charging line that averages 195 pounds. The Mercerits proved their stubborn defense by holding the University of Georgia to three touchdowns, the last tally coming in the last ten seconds of play. The offense is a consistent ground gainer and includes numerous passes and razzle-dazzle play that will keep the Blue Hose on their toes throughout the contest. An interesting engagement is anticipated, however, as many injured Calvinists will return to the lineup to add to the Presbyterians' attack. Coach Johnson has been laying much emphasis on passing and the game may turn out to be a passing duel.

North Carolina State at Raleigh; Bucknell vs Furman at Greenville.

Dramatic Unit Makes Known Future Plans

In an interview on Thursday afternoon, Bob Black, president of the Sock and Buskin club, made public a number of plans which the club under his leadership will soon put into action.

As was formally announced in an earlier edition of this paper, the club will present the "Ghost Train." Work has not yet begun because President Black does not wish to conflict in any way with the production of "The College Girl," a musical comedy being sponsored by Blue Key. Immediately after the coming play, however, the cast for "The Ghost Train" will be selected and producaion will get underway.

Black presented a telegram received from Ivan Kohn, representative of Twentieth Century Fox Studio of Hollywood. In the message concerning the work of the local dramatic club, Mr. Kohn stated that his studio has a representative making a tour of the country scouting for talent. He said further that perhaps this representative might be able to cover the local productions and reqeested that the Sock and Buskin leader inform him immediately as to when these productions would be given. President Black immediately sent a reply by air mail giving details of the local club's work and an invitation for the studio scout to attend all coming plays.

Sixteen new members have been officially elected into the club this season, all of whom had excellent dramatic records in their preparatory schools. They are: Morgan Craig, Alvin Chapman, Guy Bradford, Walter Somerville, Alex Cruickshanks, R. H. Worrell, Bill Andrews, Carl McCully, Louie Porter, Jack Witherspoon, David Peden, Dugald Hudson, Billy Lightfoot, Sadie Vincent, Peggie Harding, and Robert Wysor. This raises the membership to thirty-two.

Wednesday afternoon in their regular club meeting, the members formally adopted the first constitution ever to govern the actions of the Sock and Buskin. The constitution, made up of five articles, states definite rules concerning the meetings of the club, the membership dues, the proceeds for productions, the presentation of plays, and the election of club officers. President Black believes that under the guidance of a definite constitution the club will be able to make greater headway.

HOLMON SAYS DEBATERS TO BE STRONGER

is handicapped by lack of material, according to Holman. However, material on the question is expected to arrive soon, and intensive work will start then.

On the first week-end in December the team will journey to Winthrop to enter the Dixie practice speech tournament. In addition to debating, Coach Holman states that he hopes to have able men in oratory, impromptu, extemporaneous, harangue, and problem solving contests, and possibly a girl in the reading, and poetry-reading contests.

This will be the first public appearance of the team unless a practice dual debate is arranged prior to the tournament.

"THE COLLEGE GIRL" WILL BE PRESENTED TOMORROW NIGHT

and a typical freshman from somewhere out in the hills, as played by Bill McSween, form the collegiate background. Then, there is Umpty, Macon Hipp, who is a star performer on a football field as long as he can stay eligible. No college is complete without a dean of men, and this part has been assigned to Dr. Neill G. Whitelaw. Miss Lois Blakely as Miss Masher, the new dean of women, and Mrs. D. J. Brimm, as the English teacher, who is continually troubling Umpty with his grades, contribute their bit of wit to the play. Then there is J. Clement as Gibb, a student, and Frank Smith as officer of the law. Arthur McElroy plays the part of an upper classman with a superiority complex, while Bill McCanless plays the part of the football coach. Miss Emily Dillard plays the part of Lena, the campus flapper who makes a specialty of collecting fraternity pins. The part of the admired and sought-after college girl is played by Millie Whitten. There are two mystery characters in the play whose names the producers of the play would not divulge.

There are two acts and three scenes in the play, all of which take place on the campus of Chadwick college at the time of the annual football game between Chadwick and Stanhope. The play is full of novelties and surprises and promises to be one of dramatic treats of the season.

Special costumes and scenery brought here by Mrs. Kidd, the producer, will be used in the play. Johnston stated that a capacity crowd is expected and that due to the limited size of the auditorium it will be better for those who desire good seats to get to the school early. The play will contain 200 local and college students, members of the college glee club, business girls chorus, high school girls chorus, kiddies preview, football team ballet, and a strip-tease act.

PAC-SAC EDITOR MAKES REQUEST

THIS WEEK IS ABSOLUTELY THE LAST CHANCE TO HAVE PICTURES MADE FOR THE PAC-SAC, states Editor Hemphill. After this week a charge of fifty cents will be placed upon any student desiring to have his or her picture in the college annual.

"Portraits are not the only pictures to be exhibited in the annual," said Hemphill, "there are the football and other athletic pictures which will have to be made in the near future." He urges all students to go up to Nichols' and have their pictures made before the end of this week.

HALF MILLION DRIVE PLANNED FOR P. C.

PAN-HELLENIC DANCES ON TAP THIS WEEK-END

Annual Pledge Series To Begin Friday Nght. Jimmie Fuller and His Band To Play.

By Jake Penland

Presbyterian college students await with anticipation their greatest set of pledge dances, annual fall social highlight, to be held on Friday and Saturday of this week in the new, spacious armory.

Jimmy Fuller and his popular, talented orchestra has been signed for the occasion, which offers promise of topping social events of the scholastic year.

A Friday night formal from ten until three will open the series. Students are asked to observe the formality of this dance. The tea dance will be held on Saturday afternoon from four until six, and the series terminates with Saturday evening's informal hop.

Because of the new significance that has been created through holding the dances in the armory, many students have expressed notions of giving their dates corsages. These may be secured at the Clinton Flower shop at moderate prices. Such a move would add color and dignity to the setting.

View of Proposed New Library Building

Above is the architect's drawing of the proposed $100,000 library building for P. C. Plans for the building have already been made. It will contain the library, administrative offices and seminar rooms, and will be somewhere on the campus facing the Plaza, the exact location not yet having been decided upon.

JACOBS GIVES OUT PLANS FOR EFFORT IN 1938

Drive For Funds To Insure Permanent Financial Stability of College Soon To Begin.

NEW LIBRARY AND OTHER IMPROVEMENTS PLANNED

By Cliff McLeod

President William P. Jacobs today announced that the Synods of Georgia and South Carolina have approved the program of the administration of the college for a campaign in 1938 to raise a half million dollars for the college.

He said that the present endowment of the college is $52,000. The value of the president's home (now occupied by the vice-president, Dr. A. E. Spencer) and the faculty homes is estimated at $75,000. In view of the income from the Synods of South Carolina and Georgia, the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges credits the college with the equivalent of $200,00 in endowment. The association requires that the college have an endowment of $325,000. The present endowment, therefore, is short $175,000.

The college has never met the financial requirements of the association, but the lack of a larger endowment has been offset by a bonded indebtedness of the college which has now been removed.

Mr. Jacobs said that both synods had enthusiastically and unanimously approved the campaign. The synods have set aside the year of 1938 as "P. C. year."

Of the half million to be raised, $100,000 will be used to build a modern fire-proof library. It will contain two large reading rooms, a two-story stack room and a fire-proof vault in which to store the Smyth and Jones collections of Caroliniana, as well as other valuable collections. Mr. Jacbos stated that after the completion of the vault a general appeal will be made for other valuable collections to be placed in the vault. It will be the only completely fire-proof depository in the state.

The library building will contain all the administrative offices, and will have four seminar rooms. The activities of the entire college will center in the building. Mr. Jacobs stated that the structure will be modern and complete in every way. It will be located somewhere on the campus facing the Plaza, the exact location not yet having been decided upon.

The balance of the expected half million dollars will be added to the endowment of the college.

In commenting on the campaign, President Jacobs said, "We are now getting the organization in readiness for the campaign. It is my responsibility to carry it on. We shall not have any professional money-raisers. I am gathering together and training some of our own graduates to do the work."

He named as some of the workers, Tuck Osman, Hank Wilson, Coach Johnson, John H. Hunter and A.

The Inquiring Reporter

L. G. Heckle

Varying slightly this week from our usual type of question, we decided to use one suggested to us in a recent "bull-session," concerning clothes and the college man. So with the help of the September issue of the Good Housekeeping magazine, and suggestions from several well-dressed "men-about-the-campus," we formulated the following question: "WHAT SHOULD THE STANDARD WARDROBE BE FOR THE WELL-DRESSED P. C. MAN?"

According to the experts, the following items are essential:

3 suck suits (brown, grey, navy blue).
1 evening suit (tuxedo, dinner jacket).
1 sports jacket.
3 pairs slacks.
1 overcoat.
1 raincoat.
18 shirts (including formal and sports wear).
8 detachable collars.
24 handkerchiefs.
12 pairs sox.
1 pair gloves.
2 sweaters.
12 neckties.
1 soft felt hat.
3 pairs shoes (white, tan, black); also sneakers, slippers, overshoes.
2 belts.
1 bathrobe.
8 pairs underwear.
2 pairs suspenders.
2 bow ties.

The campus experts who helped modify the original list to that above requested that their names be withheld. However, the names of these men, who are among the best-dressed in our student body, will be given if requested.

Thanksgiving Holidays Given

Dean M. W. Brown announced in chapel last week that the faculty had voted to set aside November 25-28 as the days for the annual Thanksgiving holiday period.

Students may leave any time after classes Wednesday and must be present for classes the following Monday. As has been the custom in the past, dormitories and the dining hall will be open for those students who do not go home or leave the campus during the holiday period.

PLEDGED BY BETA KAPPA

Hugh Jacobs, son of President W. P. Jacobs, was pledged by Beta Kappa last Monday night. Because of illness suffered in an automobile wreck in August he was unable to enroll at the beginning of the school year.

Dedication Of New Armory To Take Place Wednesday

College Battalion Will Take Part In Ceremories.

CAPT. JOHNSON TO BE IN CHARGE OF PROGRAM

Dedication exercises for Clinton's new armory at the lower end of South Broad street, will be held Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock with appropriate ceremonies.

Capt. W. A. Johnson of Battery G, 263rd coast artillery, who also heads the athletic department at Presbyterian college, will be toastmaster for the occasion and a number of civil and military officials will take part on the program.

The special dedicatory exercises will be held in the armory and will open with the playing of "America" by Presbyterian college band, followed by the invocation by Dr. Dudley Jones of the college faculty.

Capt. Johnson will extend words of welcome and publicly express his appreciation to all who have had a part in making the building possible. He will be followed by Mayor Silas Bailey, who will speak officially for the city. Following the remarks of the mayor, Major Rutledge and other National Guard officials will be introduced.

The principal address of the afternoon will be delivered by Adjutant General James C. Dozier of South Carolina. Congressmen G. Heyward Mahon of Greenville, representative of the Fourth South Carolina district, also will be heard. The program will conclude with the playing of the Star Spangled Banner by the college band.

Captain Johnson has extended the public a cordial invitation to attend the dedicatory exercises. Not only is the public invited for the opening, but urged to be present and make a personal inspection of the new building and equipment. The exercises will begin promptly at 4 o'clock.

The completion of the armory is of especial interest to the college student body, in that in the future it will be the scene of the dances and other social affairs. It is situated near the campus and its ample size and construction will do much to insure the pleasure and success of events held there.

DR. H. WADE DUBOSE TO SPEAK SUNDAY NIGHT AT FIRST CHURCH

Spartanburg Minister and Chairman of Board of College Trustees To Be Heard Here.

COMES AT INVITATION OF MINISTERIAL CLUB

Dr. Henry wade DuBose will speak at the First Presbyterian church Sunday night, November 14th, at the invitation of the Ministerial club of the college, according to an announcement from that organization today.

Dr. DuBose was recently elected to membership in the club for the state of South Carolina. He has just resigned as chairman of the board of trustees and his Spartanburg pastorate to accept a call to a church in Dallas, Texas.

Officials stated that the club is planning an interesting program for the evening, as it may be Dr. DuBose's last time to speak in Clinton before leaving for his new pastorate. On that evening he will be presented with a certificate of honorary membership in the club. New members of the club elected this year also will be presented with membership certificates.

Coach Johnson Is Invited To Dinner In Zuppke's Honor

Coach Johnson has received an invitation to attend the silver anniversary football dinner honoring Coach Robert Zuppke, who has been coach at the University of Illinois for the past 25 years. The banquet is being sponsored by the Illini club of Chicago and will be held in Chicago on December 2.

It will be held at the Palmer House and Governor Horner of Illinois will be the toastmaster and Grantland Rice has tentatively agreed to be the principal speaker. It is expected that the program will be broadcast, all or in part, by all three of the major broadcasting chains. Officials of the celebration expect to have all the Big Ten coaches present and many of the other prominent coaches, officials and sports writers throughout the country in attendance.

Coach Johnson ranks alongside of Coach Zuppke in number of years in continuous service at one college. He is to be twenty-second consecutive year at P. C.

Knowing coaching as does not know yet whether he will be able to attend the dinner.

Blue Key Play Is Successful

Between four and five hundred people attended the play sponsored by Blue Key fraternity, "The College Girl," held in Florida Street school auditorium last Tuesday night.

Officials of the organization stated that they were highly pleased with the results and wish to thank those who took part in the play as well as others who contributed to its success.

As to who stole the show—it was quite a debatable matter—but some seem to think that Hector Never Too Late (Tom Jones), the janitor, and Maggie Hore In Time (Jane Sturgeon), maid of all work, walked away with the honors. The strip tease act by "Cotton" Boswell brought down the house as well as the lights as the party became rough. For his star performance as dean of men, Dr. Neill Whitelaw was presented with a gift between acts by certain of the faculty members.

Ministerial Club Selects Eleven New Members

The Ministerial club announced today that the following men were elected to membership in the club last Sunday at its regular meeting:

J. D. Bethea, Latta; Aiken Taylor, Clinton; E. H. Overcash, Charlotte, N. C.; W. G Somerville, McConnellsville; H. V. Talbot and W. H. Talbot, Tsing Kiang Pu Ku, China; R. W. Coker, Commerce, Ga.; J. S. Walkup, Monroe, N. C.; H. B McMaster, Kingstree; E. B. Carr, Wallace, Va.; J. L. Edwards, Menlo, Ga.

These men are all members of the freshman class except Carr, a senior, and Walkup, a junior.

The men will be formally taken into the club next Sunday night at services at the First Presbyterian church, at which time they will make a public expression of their intention to enter the ministry, and will be presented with membership certificates.

The new men bring the total membership of the club up to 21.

Canteen To Give Free Merchandise

Jake Gilliland, manager of the Canteen, today announced that beginning with this issue, two names will be placed in the Canteen ad in The Blue Stocking. The persons whose names appear will receive a certain amount of free merchandise if they will call at the store.

Usually the names of a boy and a girl will be in the ad. This is the first time the Canteen has tried this, and Gilliland [illegible]

Thought For the Week

HONOR

A man of honor! What a glorious title is that. Who would not rather have it than any that kings can bestow? It is worth all the gold and silver in the world. He who merits it wears a jewel within his soul, and needs none upon his bosom. He looks you in the eye and says straight out the things he has to say, and he does unto others the things he would that they should do to him.

Honor is best won by actual worth and merit, and absolutely refuses to mix with any form of "short cuts." Clear and round dealing is the honor of man's nature, and mixture of falsehood is like alloy in coin of gold anl silver, which may make the metal work the better, but, alas! it taketh away some of the beautiful luster which cometh not again.

Friday was like the college spirit you read about—bonfire and all the trimmings. In a word, it was a new high in college spirit at P. College—or any other college, for that matter. In the Past P. C. has had at least one win to cheer for; the present student body has not even that, yet the spirit evidenced Friday night was better than we have seen in four years at P. C.

The result was a noble response on the part of the football team in which it carried the game its own way through the first half.

"P. C. For P. C."

Such is the title given to the forthcoming campaign of the college to raise a half million dollars for the college.

The plan is the culmination of the program of our president. If he ever deserved support, it is now, for the completion of such a campaign will mean the firm financial establishment of Presbyterian College. P. C. has always ranked first in every field except this one. To do away with financial difficulty would enable the college to make such strides as it has never made before.

The campaign will not be one of ballyhoo. It will be one of common sense and business. The administration has a definite and firm idea in mind as to what it wishes to accomplish.

The campaign is not an impractical theory. The administration already has practical plans made to carry on the program. We believe it cannot fail because of the present determination of the administration, and the ability of the corps of workers, if for no other reasons.

It is a program entirely for the benefit and betterment of the college. Out of its result will come an increased endowment, now rather badly needed. Out of it will come a new library building, which also will be a semi-administration building. Certainly the college needs a new, modern central building such as has been planned. And a glance at the architect's drawing shows that the one planned by the college will be one of the best.

Therefore, it is the duty of, and to the interest of the alumni of Presbyterian College, to the students and the faculty to support the campaign in every way possible.

Those who know people who would be interested in helping with gifts in this campaign should communicate with the administration.

Students should talk up the campaign and keep up with its progress as it is made known.

So 1938 will be the year for "Perpetuation Campaign for P. C." It probably will be the big year in P. C.'s history, as the college will be placed on perhaps the safest financial basis it has ever enjoyed.

CAMPUS CRUISING

By Pete McCormick

Out of 1781 students attending Clemson college, 1400 ended the first month without receiving a single demerit. Now, I ask you — Does that sound logical? It certainly doesn't sound like P. C.

A 23-year-old country boy emerges from the sticks on his way to college. He considers himself a well-educated countryman, too. He boards the train, puts his bags down in the middle of the aisle and takes a seat on them. The porter comes down the aisle and immediately stumbles over the hulking mass of ignorance. He convinces the boy that he's supposed to sit on the seats and put his bags on the racks above his head. The boy cautiously sits down but immediately jumps up when the soft cushion gives under him, thinking that it is falling. He finally discovers the secret and sits luxuriously on the seat.

His journey ended, he disembarks in a baggage camouflage. He asks a nearby spectator the way to the college. He finally sets down his baggage to get his bearings and finds himself in Clinton. After a brief rest, he nonchalantly picks up his bags and starts his trek to the college.

After losing his way several times he finally ends up by coming into the college by way of the football field and on through the gymnasium.

After many difficulties he finds his room and makes himself at home. He bears up under the hazing of the sophs for a couple of weeks. Then he writes a letter to the folks at home. Here 'tis.

The address read: To Ma, Pa, Levi, Mariar, Hestar, the Quadranglets and Baby. Chinaberry Grove, S. C.

On the inside the letter read:

P. C. College,
September 20.

Dear Ma and Pa and so forth:

i got hear al rite but i had a perty hard time on that ther train thing. they woudnt let me sit in the isle on my valises, but made me sit on a seat thet was so soff thet i coud hardily stand it. what makes train seats scratch so much? well, i had a fearly good time until i got here. these sopomors reely do like to beat us freshmens, but we have a little fun ever now and then.

the extry-coorikuler aktyvitis are fine. We dont have to take them unless we want to, bu i take abought all of them becuz they are fun. we started classes one weak ago yestiddy. i m taking six classes—inglish, militerry scince, gurman, mathimeticks, bible, and khimistry. i like militerry scince and khimistry but mathimetics are turribly hard. i ain't ever going to take mathimeticks if i kin help it.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editors, The Blue Stocking:

You may be sure that Mrs. McSwain and I, and also the student members of the infirmary staff, are grateful to The Blue Stocking for the kind sentiments as editorially expressed in your last issue.

The infirmary is still young, and still has its defects, both as to organization and equipment. Your commendation of our efforts will be a stimulus to greater efforts toward efficiency. Meanwhile the student body, through your good paper, is invited to tender its constructive criticism and suggestions, all of which will be cordially received and acted on as far as possible.

SOUND OFF

By E. A. Johnson

Memories of camp have been brought back to the present by seeing company drill carried on with a full strength company. The officers did a good job of handling the large group of men with the scant time they had. Only a few new and original commands and orders resulted from the first week's work in this type drill.

Captain "Pecky" certainly deserves congratulation for the drill demonstration the platoon put on Friday night. The platoon has put out some hard work during the past week and made a swell impression on the spectators. It was a good demonstration of how colorful a show can be made from straight gaining organization movements.

The method of calling out the platoon taught the corps a lesson which was learned by the war office some time ago. When a volunteer attempt fails flat, a well directed "draft" will accomplish the desired result.

The opening of the National Guard armory Wednesday has been used as the occasion of interest to all local military units. The P. C. corps will have no part in the officers' opening as well as in the more illustrious "dedication" over the week-end.

The CAMPUS COMMENTATOR

D. R. DINGEMAN

Well, well, and well — all things taken into account, this edition ought to have scandal in it, I hope, I hope. While we're making an introduction we might mention that we can't be leaving everybody's name out of this column, else we can't write the column. We have tried to keep from hurting anybody's feelings and shall continue this policy. So you needn't worry about us mentioning your name in the column.

Bummin' deluxe: A couple of our boys were bummin' back from the low country and they really got a ride what was a ride. They went to Columbia via airplane. Now, ain't that somp'n. I should say it is. If you don't believe that, you'll have to ask BILL MOORE or PHILIP ROGERS for the gruesome details.

When the Easly team come down here to play against Clinton Hi they really brought along a nice-looking bunch of female supporters. In fact, there was such a nice looking bunch that a lot of the P. C. boys went over to investigate. So did ye olde Commentator and found out for ourselves that what we had heard was true. There was many a gal whose name we would like to know, but we couldn't find out. The names we did learn are: "RAT" EMBLER and GLADYS KARL, ALLAN JONES and JANIE TRAXLER—and others we haven't space to mention.

More Stuff: Do you know MICKEY ROBERTS? Well, that's just too bad, 'cause she is another of the Roberts family that has set this campus on its collective ears. Well, to get to the point, one of our freshmen has been seen dating her and his name is "RAT" LLOYD. Didn't you know?

Scandal: BARNHILL used to be sure of his gal, but he ain't any more. It seems that recently he unearthed a picture of recent date in which a certain "RAT" CRAWFORD and his girl were rather that way. It was taken at one of these four-for-a-dime booths, but it was plenty clear, especially to Barnhill. I never knew nor did WALLACE—that would such a thing, GRACE, old gal.

Is my pan pink? Recently on a fair campus a car full of gals rolled up and, of all people, they had come to see "TWO-MILE" McCULLY. They were parked in front of Spencer "BUCKY" WEINGES was sitting watching the goins-on apparently with great interest, because one of the fa occupants leaned out and asked Buck if he didn't want to get up—he would be able to see so much better. Who he reads this he will probably blus He did at the time.

Rhythm Review: That name w probably strike a responsive chor in a lot of minds when they read At the Laurens county fair there w a show—and what a show. They a ways calls sich things "cooch" show otherwise. P. C. really turned ou Well, those who could muster fift cents or a pass did, anyhow.

The local talent has been gettin quite a rush around these parts late—and how. For instance, the fo lowing were dating the last week-en BILLY LIGHTFOOT and RUT MONTS, TENCH OWENS and LOU ISE JACOBS, REID WATSON a FRANCES SIMPSON.

The saga of CURLY'S woma trouble is over: He won out ov ROGER .He had her up to the P social the other night which, inciden tally, was really a big social. The even had gals down just like a dan and things. They really do thing around this P. C. campus.

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

ROSES IN DECEMBER

On the basis of observations made during the Mercer game Friday evening, we've telegraphed the Clinton Floral Shop and placed orders for ROSES IN DECEMBER to:

JIMMY DENNARD—For proving he's still among those present when superior swishing is needed.

BE MOORE—An up-and-coming flankman whose brilliant work against Mercer substantiates our boast that he's got the business.

COTTON BOSWELL—Who has been in there doing a man's work all season.

COACH—A stout fella with a stout heart. Eight defeats and he still loves his children—still peps 'em up.

THE STUDENT BODY—For carrying their team off the field after a defeat. Something new—but in keeping with P. C.'s sportsmanship.

A lot of roses I've purchased. Brother, can you spare a dime?

THAT OLD FEELING

If you gradually add water to ink, the latter will soon lose its strength and color. Three years ago, Presbyterian boasted a strong, well-balanced football team. Two years ago, the team was weaker because a weak and unpromising freshman squad had failed to offer men capable of replacing stars lost through graduation. Such was the cast last year and again in '37. We've finally hit rock bottom. Every game has been lost, some by overwhelming scores—some to teams we invariably beat.

So what? Shall we criticize Coach Johnson, one of the finest, most consistent coaches in the business? I wouldn't. Or would you rather lash out at a group of boys who have given their all against overwhelming, crushing odds? And this much-discussed thing, school spirit. Has it disappeared? No, my children. It's still among those present. Just waiting around looking for an appropriate opportunity to exert itself. Next year's eleven will approach the criterion of past years, and that old feeling will be right along with it.

POOR DON

Haven't decided yet what I want to do when I grow up. But among those things I won't offer for is coach at Carolina. To be a success down Columbia way, one must have the coaching ability of Bernie Bierman, the diplomacy of America's ambassador to Japan, the courage of a hoss-opera hero, and the magic of a Hindu. Don McCallister has demonstrated some of these qualities in his three-season tenure of office. He rated well among University supporters in October B. C. (Before Clemson). Came Clemson's classic conquest of the Gamecocks—and an avalanche of criticism and bitter denunciation from Carolina students, fans and alumni.

McCallister has put his whole being into building a great Carolina team. He made one slip to incur the wrath and fury of an unsportsmanlike following. Before the Clemson affair, he had the keys to the city. If he loses to Furman, he'll be lucky to get through the poorhouse transom. I'll stick to P. C., where men are made—and alumni can stand a loss, still love the coach, the team, and us studes.

DENNARD, MOORE, BOSWELL STAR IN FINE PERFORMANCE

Second Quarter Witnesses Spirited Offensive Show.

P. C. LEADS AT HALF-TIME

By Jake Penland

Presbyterian's spirited and courageous eleven struck fast, unexpectedly, in the second quarter to score two touchdowns and lead at the half only to give way in the final semester to Mercer, 25 to 13. The game, played on damp Johnson field Friday evening, was the last Hose appearance of the season.

Baby Dennard, Be Moore and Cotton Boswell twinkled in their respective roles as the Johnson machine made its most effective offensive performance of the year. Dennard came through with both touchdowns, passed accurately, and tackled surely to lead individual performances. Be Moore played a consistent, heads-up game at the left flank. His brainy play—analysis and pass-snagging—stood out. Boswell, until he was hurt in the latter stages, got in some nice tackling in both close and spread-out play. Al McSween gave a meritorious performance at right end.

Bears Breka Through

Paces by their versatile backfield stand-by, Owen, the Mercer outfit opened up with a crushing, hard-running attack to keep P. C. on a first-period defensive. Driving down deep in Hose territory, the Bears caught the right side of P. C.'s line and the secondary napping as Truach went over on a fake reverse standing up.

The Bears struck soon afterward and were ready to score again as the quarter ended. On the fourth play in the second period, Owen stepped through to score.

Hose Strike Swiftly

The Blue Stockings came back with a surprising alertness and spirit. A poor Mercer kick gave them possession on the 17, Dennard's pass to Moore netted 11 yards and Dennard, on the next play, stepped through the line for a touchdown. Reynolds kicked for the extra point.

Another bad Mercer kick and the Hosemen hit again. It was Dennard who again went through the line to score.

Mercer dominated second half play with two touchdowns and consistant gains resultant of a sure rushing and air attack.

Dennard Swishes

Late in the final period Dennard intercepted a pass to step 70 yards with lightning speed. He outdistanced all but one of his pursuers and missed scoring by a hair. It was the most spectacular sprint of the home season.

Freshmen Down Darlington Prep

Game Here Saturday Afternoon 26-0 P. C. Victory.

Continuing their triumphant march on the gridiron, Presbyterian's Baby Hose succeeded in turning back a courageous aggregation from Darlington prep school of Rome, Ga., here Saturday afternoon. The 26-0 victory for the frosh was an exciting one, featured by long forward passes, tricky end-around plays, and brilliant exhibitions of line plunging.

The win adds considerable prestige to the McMillian-men in view of the fact that the Darlingtonians have one of the top rated teams in Georgia and have succeeded in brushing aside all opposition previous to the defeat handed them here Saturday afternoon. The Anklets now have wins over Wofford frosh, the Newberry frosh, and Darlington prep.

There were no individual stars uncovered in the Darlington line-up, although the entire outfit cooperated and played magnificently against terrific odds. The Presbyterian goal was threatened only once late in the second period when the Rome boys opened up a passing and running attack that carried the oval to the Hose two-yard marker. The P. C. forward wall held, however, and took the ball on downs.

In the P. C. squad, the play of Embler at left end must not go unmentioned. He was constantly in on every play and showed remarkable skill in diagnosing plays. His pass-catching was also a spectacular feature. Meiskey played his usual good game and proved adept at returning punts, passing, and punting. Gene McIntosh managed to get loose for several long gains behind beautiful blocking. "Red" Lawrence brought the spectators to their feet with two long runs on end-around plays.

Team Idle Week; Birds Next Foe

Two More Games On Schedule For This Year.

WOFFORD FINAL OPPONENT

Walter Johnson's weary eleven will take to soft beds and sweet radio music this week-end after eight weeks of gruelling grid warfare.

Two more games remain on the 1937 card. Saturday of next week will find the Stockings down in Columbia, pitted against South Carolina University's strong outfit. And the season fades out with the annual P. C.-Wofford clash at Spartanburg. The Hosemen hope for a creditable stand against the Gamecocks, a victory over Wofford.

Hipp, Holcombe, Culp and Batchelor are still on the injured list, Buie is definitely out with a broken arm and Ritch should be ready to go in a few days.

Hose Win One From N. C. U.

Last week The Blue Stocking ran a story concerning P. C.'s tennis match with the University of North Carolina team in which it was stated that the Tarheels made a clean sweep of the matches. This was an error. The match was played at Chapel Hill, and the story used in The Blue Stocking was based on facts given out by the Associated Press. The error is regretted.

Instead of the match ending 6-0 in favor of the Tarheels, it ended 6-1 in their favor. The one match won by P. C. was played by R. Kordasha against Dave Early, number one freshman netman of the University. The game ran 6-3, 6-3. Early is the Illinois state junior champion of 1936.

The same team that this year defeated P. C. 6-1, last year defeated Yale's team 9-0.

O'Daniel. Perhaps two or three more will be added, who can secure leaves of absence from their present work for a year to do this work for the college.

Hugh Holman and Sadler Love will direct the publicity, which will be well organized in advance in each community.

Mr. Jacobs said that after a publicity campaign, the story of the work of the college will be given from the pulpits of churches, and movies of the college will be shown. On the week days following the presentation on Sunday the soliciting will be done.

"This is not an every-member canvass we are planning. Our soliciting will be confined to a special list of men and women taken from the church rolls. The lists are now being assembled."

The campaign will be under the direction of a committee of laymen selected from officers of the church. A campaign rally will probably be held in Clinton for a large district committee for South Carolina. It is probable that such a rally will be held in Atlanta for a similar Georgia committee.

Mr. Jacobs said, "This is not a defensive campaign. There is no question about the future of the college. The campaign is to be called 'Permanent Campaign for P. C.' The idea is that we now have solved our pressing present problems and are able to plan this program for the future security of the college. Already more than 150 men and women have been interviewed and a foundation laid for larger gifts.

"If the boys think they havent had a president for the past two years they will not have one either during 1938, for I plan to spend most of my time away from the college on the campaign. We are going into the campaign with the firm determination to establish P. C. for the future.

The campaign is the culmination of the program of the present administration, Mr. Jacobs said, following intensive efforts leading up to the fund reaching movement.

Pan-Hellenics Are Successful

What proved to be one of the successful Pan-Hellenic series ever held here were the pledge dances Friday night and Saturday in the new Clinton armory. This was the first series ever held by the students in this building and most of them pronounced it much better than Copeland hall, the scene of previous dances.

A large number of out-of-town girls attended as well as many local ones. Many alumni and visitors were also present.

The series opened Friday night with a formal lasting from ten until three, with Jimmy Faiker and his orchestra playing. The ten dance was held from ten until six Saturday afternoon. The series was terminated with the informal dance Saturday night from nine until twelve o'clock.

DRAMATIC CLUB WILL PRESENT THREE PLAYS

New Plan of Patronage Will Be Introduced To Provide Necessary Finances.

SEASON TICKETS WILL BE SOLD

The plans and presentations of the 1937-38 season of Sock and Buskin, the dramatic club of Presbyterian college, this year will include three currently favorite dramas, the first of which, "The Ghost Train," will be presented after the Thanksgiving holidays.

After admitting new members this year a committee headed by Dr. H. S. Fish, director and advisor of the club, and Robert Black, president, chose as the society's first presentation Arnold Ridley's "The Ghost Train," a recent Broadway hit, and decided to choose two more plays from a list which included such dramatic successes as "The Dover Road," "The Late Christopher Dean," "Outward Bound," "Journey's End," "Giants in the Earth," "The Man in Possession," "The Perfect Alibi" and several other plays of merit.

The try-outs for the female parts in "The Ghost Train" will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the gymnasium and the club invites any interested members of the student body to participate in these try-outs. It will be necessary, however, to become a member of the organization in order to play a part in one of its presentations. Try-outs for the male roles will be held at the biology lab at the same time Wednesday.

This year a plan of patronage is being introduced to provide adequate finances, the lack of which has so hindered former productions. Individual admissions to each presentation will be fifty cents plus tax. However, for those who are interested in the stage and mature drama, "student tickets" will be offered at a price of one dollar, tax paid, for three presentations. All seats will be reserved and each patron's seat will be reserved for the entire season, in the best possible location. By such a plan the organization can bring a much higher type of dramatic presentation to the campus and the city of Clinton than would otherwise be possible.

The college faculty and many prominent citizens of Clinton have already endorsed the plan, and are evidencing a sincere desire for its successful outcome. "Students tickets" may be reserved by filling out the coupon below and placing it in the box on the main desk in the library. Reservations will be made in the order in which requests are received, and tickets will be delivered personally by the secretary at a date which will be announced by him, at which time payment for them will also be made.

D's And E's List Is Announced

According to the report issued by the registrar today, the number of D's and E's for the first two months of the 1937 session showed a slight increase over the number for the corresponding period of 1935. There were 275 D's as compared with 248 for last year, while there were only 142 E's as compared with 178 for last year.

As for grades, the seniors seemed to get along better than the other classes, having the least number of D's and E's.

The D's, E's and incompletes, according to classes, are as follows:

YOUNG TO NASHVILLE

Beverly R. Young, graduate of Presbyterian college in 1927, on November 15 will resign as managing editor of the Griscom-Woodyard Publications of New York and West Virginia to join the Associate Press. He has been assigned to the Nashville (Tenn.) bureau.

What Is the Hardest Subject In College? Survey Shows It's Organic Chemistry

What is the most difficult college subject?

Organic chemistry.

This is revealed in a study made by the Bureau of Educational Surveys, New York.

The bureau found that the use of college outlines and other supplementary aids to study was in direct proportion to difficulty in the subject experienced by the student, and that the number of students in organic chemistry using college outlines far exceeded that of any other course.

According to the study, science courses as a group are a major source of difficulty, with history, particularly ancient, medieval and European not far behind. Study of Shakespeare's plays rates "hardest" of the English literature courses.

The subjects most baffling to students, in order of their difficulty, as recorded by the survey, are: Organic chemistry, qualitative analysis, general chemistry, quantitative analysis, trigonometry, physics, analytic geometry, differential calculus, general biology, history of the middle ages, history of Europe, American government, and English literature.

Students questioned during the study stated that the college outlines simplified their work by giving them a picture of the course as a whole in advance of the field to be covered and were especially valuable for review purposes. Faculty members, while generally opposed to their use in cramming for exams, found them useful as manuals around which to build lectures and class discussions and in encouraging students to do supplementary reading.

Dr. Henry Wade DuBose Speaks At First Church Services In His Honor

DR. H. W. DUBOSE

The Rev. Henry Wade DuBose, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Spartanburg, spoke last evening before a large audience at the First Presbyterian church at the "honorary services" conducted for him by the Ministerial club of the college.

Dr. M. W. Brown of the college introduced Dr. DuBose. He stated that Dr. DuBose had been in the ministry over 27 years and has been in this section of the country 14 years, a part of which time has has been connected with the college as chairman of the board of trustees. Recently he resigned from the pastorate of the Spartanburg church as well as from his position as chairman of the board of trustees of the college to accept a call to a pastorate in Dallas, Texas.

After his sermon Dr. DuBose was presented with a certificate of lifetime membership in the Ministerial club by the president, Buck Patterson. In accepting the certificate he said that he was pleased with the honor which the club had bestowed upon him.

Dr. D. J .Woods, pastor of the Clinton First church, on behalf of the club presented membership certificates to eleven new members. Dr. Woods made a charge to the men, exhorting them to be steadfast in their calling. The service was closed with the benediction by Dr. DuBose.

Patterson was in charge of the service. Others who assisted were: Dr. Brown, Dr. L. R. Lynn, president of Thornwell orphanage, and Dr. Woods. The First church choir and Mrs. J. F. Jacobs, Jr., organist, were in charge of the music.

Dr. DuBose is the third honorary members to be elected to the club since its formal installation in December of last year. The other two are Dr. John McSween of Chester, and Dr. S. M. Glasgow of Savannah.

The club plans another service next spring when a minister from Georgia will speak and be presented with a life membership.

NEW ARMORY IS DEDICATED LAST WEEK

P. C. Military Unit and Band Take Part In Ceremonies On Wednesday.

Impressive ceremonies marked the dedication last Wednesday afternoon of Clinton's new $40,000 armory at the lower end of South Broad street. The exercises were attended by a large audience, with many distinguished visitors being present. The college band furnished music for the occasion. The R.O.T.C. battalion marched out to the armory and assisted in the ceremonies.

Captain Walter A. Johnson of Battery G, 263rd Coast Artillery, and head coach at the college, acted as master of ceremonies. Those assisting him were Mayor Silas Bailey, who spoke officially for the city, Dr. Dudley Jones of the college, who offered the invocation, Lieut. B. F. Wingard, who spoke in behalf of the local company of Capt. Johnson, R. S. Owens, who introduced James C. Dozier, adjutant general of South Carolina, and Dean M. W. Brown of the college, who introduced the final speaker of the afternoon, Congressman G. Heyward Mahon of the Fourth Congressional district. Among those briefly introduced were Majors Harding and Cummings of the college military staff, Lt. Colonel C. C. Smith, commander of the 263rd Coast Artillery regiment, and Major Rutledge, representative of the state WPA administration.

Capt. Johnson expressed his thanks to all who had a part in making the building possible, especially mentioning John H. Young of Clinton, who gave the lot, the county delegation, city council, R. S. Owens, the R.O.T.C., head of the local American Legion post ,and others. The ceremonies lasted about two hours and were closed with the band playing the national anthem.

Twenty-four such armories have been erected in the state of South Carolina at a cost of $1,200,000. All are similar in design and construction to Clinton's new structure. The buildings have been provided by PWA funds and the assistance of communities and individuals where they are located, according to General Dozier.

FULTON TO LEAD SERVICES HERE DEC. 8, 9, AND 10

North Carolina Minister, Graduate of P. C., Will Preach Twice Daily for Three Days.

TO HOLD CONFERENCES WITH STUDENTS

The administration announced today that the Rev. Hewitt Fulton, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Laurinburg, N. C., will conduct a three-day series of services here on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, December 8, 9, and 10. This will be the first of two such three-day series of services to be sponsored by the administration during the year for the students.

Mr. Fulton is a young man who has had a particular appeal to young people. He is a graduate of P. C. and was ranked high in scholarship here. He was also quarterback on the football team. During the three-day period he will be available for conferences and will be in the president's office at certain hours to interview students who desire to talk with him.

He will conduct two services each day, one in the morning at 11:45 in the college chapel, and the other at 7:30 in the evening at the First Presbyterian church.

Student Makes Name For Self

The finding of the right lower jaw of a giant armadillo, a discovery made by Hugh Middleton Rutledge of Charleston, a sophomore at Presbyterian college, is the first scientific record of the ancient presence of that extinct animal in South Carolina.

The discovery was made during a 15-week period of biological investigation carried forward by Rutledge this summer at Edisto Beach State park for the National Park service of the Department of the Interior, according to a memorandum recently released from their regional office in Richmond, Va.

A total of 1,582 petrified fragments, embedded in deposits of the pleistocene epoch and washed to the island beach by the swift waters of the North and South Edisto rivers, was collected by Mr. Rutledge. Of those collected, 218 fragments have been identified positively and study is being continued to determine classification of the remaining bones.

Other ice age fossils discovered by Mr. Rutledge in this work have been identified and include the tooth of a giant beaver, an animal approximately four times the size of the present day rodent, and bone fragments of extinct horses, mastodons, mammoths, giant sloths, whales and sea cows. Many of these bones have been placed on exhibit in a temporary museum in the state park.

Mr. Rutledge also reported the presence of more than a 100 water, shore and song birds in the park area.

Thomas P. Rutledge, the project superintendent of the work which young Rutledge did at Edisto, stated that the National Park biologists are very much pleased with the report and the work done by the Presbyterian college student.

Thought For the Week

CHARACTER

Character is one of the greatest motive powers in the world. It exemplifies human nature in its highest form, for it exhibits man at his best, and because it is this, it is the corner-stone of individual greatness. By the forces of its momentum, it carries him through temptation and trial, and exerts a guiding and controlling influence over his life.

There is a difference between character and reputation. Character is what a man actually is, while reputation is what he is thought to be. Character is what gives a man value in his own eyes, and is the solid foundation of true greatness, for "As a man thinketh in his own heart, so is he."

Strict efforts have been made to prevent anyone from cutting chapel. The co-eds, senior military men and all must go, for there are ways of checking up on them if they are absent.

Only one thing remains and the job will be complete in fairness to the students. There should be someone appointed to take care of the many absences of faculty members from chapel.

Campus Beautification

Among the scholarship projects, one that receives little notice is beautification of the campus under the direction of Coach Johnson. During the past two years much effort has been made to make the campus more attractive. Shrubbery has been planted at various places on the campus, ditches for better drainage have been dug, the road running from the paved street around behind the infirmary has been improved, and low places have been filled. At present trees on the campus are being trimmed, and some of them are being cut down—those that are unsightly, and in the way. It has been a slow process, but one that has been steady. The results will not be very apparent for some time yet, as it takes time for the shrubbery to grow up, and for other work to be completed.

In talking with Johnson, we found that he has several plans for improving the looks of the campus. These he hopes to put into effect in the future. To him much credit is due, as well as to Mr. Jackson, for the work that has been done in making the campus more attractive.

A New Place

Last week-end witnessed the first social gatherings to be held by college students in the new Clinton armory, which was dedicated last week. For over a year the students had been looking forward to the completion of this building. With its completion passes what to P. C. students has become an institution—Copeland Hall, the scene of many social gatherings. But the new armory means a much nicer, and a more completely-equipped hall; and its nearness to the campus is not to be overlooked.

With the shift of social activities from Copeland Hall to the armory comes perhaps a lesser desire of students to have their social events on the campus in the gymnasium, as has been suggested.

Also comes the thought that the socials are closer to the campus—at least by two or three blocks. But it seems that only in that sense will they ever come close to being held here.

With the opening of the armory we believe that a problem has been solved temporarily for somebody—that is, the desire of students to have their socials on the campus. So the students are more satisfied, for they have a rather nice place in which to have their affairs now, and the faculty can sit back and more strictly and more confidently than ever say, "We'll have none of it on this campus." And so they won't.

CAMPUS CRUISING

By Pete McCormick

The following statements were taken from the Mercer Cluster, where they were found in Jack Tarver's "In the Wash" column:

"As yet we are still not convinced that the Bears are anything like the potent aggregation they should be when it comes to scoring power. In P. C. tonight they are meeting a team which should furnish them no great deal of trouble We are watchfully awaiting ,therefore, to ascertain if they are really there when it comes to that old scoring punch. They may, and probably will (such nerve) take both P. C. and Tampa in their stride, scoring enough to beat these two contenders, which at best cannot compete with the Moral Victory Bears, who, defensively, are just about the best in the league."

Well, the Bears did lick the plucky Blue Hose, but did they have a great deal of trouble? I'll say they did. And when the first half ended with P. C. leading 13-12, they had just about decided that P. C. was giving them a little too much trouble. Well, they had the scoring punch too, but they didn't get a chance to prove it as much as they thought they would. When that P. C. forward wall (which, incidentally, was outweighed from ten to twelve pounds per man) tightened down in the pinches, not even the sensational Al Owens could penetrate it, so on numerous occasions Mercer was forced to take to the air.

Of course Mercer was the favorite team, but there have been so many times in history when the favorites felt the sting of defeat. And for a while the P. C.-Mercer affair looked as if it would be a sensational upset. Mercer had a swell offensive, with Al Owens leading the attack, carrying the ball three out of every four plays and doing most of the passing. He was a consistent ground gainer for the Bears. They also had a cracker-jack defense. But as to its being impenetrable, just take a look at the score.

The P. C. aggregation is a real fighting machine. They are light, but when it comes to that pep, spirited play, and endurance, you can always it in a Blue Hose team. The game against Mercer was the best battle that the Hosemen have put up this year. Why? They were fighting for a real man, a man they love—Coach Walter A. Johnson. They were also fighting for the name of the school and for the student body, which was backing them to the last man.

I might add that, if you ever get a chance, you ask the Mercer safety man how it feels to make a tackle and then suddenly discover that you haven't made a tackle. That's what happened when Baby Dennard (the hero) intercepted that Mercer pass and out-distanced 10 men and then was tackled by a Bear, who had cut across the field, on about the 15-yard line. I'm fully convinced that that man is now a firm believer in optical illusions.

Francis King, star Citadel end, and captain of the varsity football team, received an injury in the Carolina-Citadel game and it was revealed the latter part of last week that a small bone in his leg was broken. The injury will keep King out for the remainder of the season.

From the Hampden-Sydney Tiger:

If you want to remember things, tie a string around your finger. If you want to forget things tie a rope around your neck . . . Do right and fear no man. Don't write and fear no woman . . . A bird in the hand is bad table manners . . . A teacher is someone who talks in other people's sleep . . . About the only thing that comes to one who waits these days is whiskers.

This Collegiate World

The band at the University of Illinois owns nine tons of tunes arranged by Sousa. At least 2,889 band arrangements, formerly belonging to John Philip Sousa, are in possession of the band. They weigh more than 18,000 pounds.

Title of the world's tiniest co-ed is now held by Catherine Cooper, Santa Anna sophomore. She is just 56 inches tall, nosing out her nearest competitor by 1 inch.

Bing Crosby received an honorary Ph.D. degree from Gonzaga university, his alma mater. Said he, "Bob Burns told me that now I am a doctor of philosophy in music, I should start immediately to patch up some of the things I have been doing to music in the last ten years."

The old Athenian school of peripatetic philosophers has its modern counterpart in the trailer school which Dean Guy S. Millberry of the University of California's school of dentistry has purchased to meet the demands made on him for lectures.

A co-ed at Ohio Wesleyan university earned her pin money by catching night crawlers. Armed with a flashlight and a tin can she caught them and sold them to her father for 50 cents a hundred. She went into the fish worm business several years ago.

A co-ed at the University of Missouri fainted in a history class when the professor was demonstrating the use of the German saw-toothed bayonet in the world war. He had been discussing military tactics and had become a trifle too realistic for the girls.

Courses to teach the wives of educators how not to be a drag on their husbands' careers have been introduced at Teachers college, Columbia university.

Boston has been designated as the home of the most Harvard women. New York has more than 7,000, the new alumni directory revealed.

The CAMPUS COMMENTATOR

D. R. DINGEMAN

Here's that man again with lots of dirt and stuff. We have tried to keep this column over so that we could get some dirt from the dances and, believe you me, those dances were dirty. There was mud all over the place. In fact there was so much mud around the place that it was almost impossible to snake a gal outside and sit one out. If you don't believe it, ask some of 'em what tried. Of course there was the usual quota of snakes going the rounds. But the snakes were most bothersome in the frat rooms at intermission. You know that's something that everything that crawls does; that is, bother somebody. And how it bothers some people. Well, youse guys and gals can't say I never told you nothin'. 'Cause I sure warned you about such things a coupla columns back.

To get off to a good start, we ought to give you a clever comparison we heard the other day.

An old-fashioned girl blushes when she is embarrassed, but the modern girl is embarrassed when she blushes.

So to all both of my readers I commend this little test to see what vintage of gal you been gin' around with.

Big Apple: Two exponents of this dance of the moment—well, it is up No'th, they're still trying to learn the darned thing up there—were around our dear campus the other day. BILLY STACKHOUSE and JOHNNY CAMPBELL were the guys, and they came out to school for supper. Incidentally, they had PEGGE along with them.

Tch-tch-tch: And we thought there was something to this alleged romance. And so did somebody else, I'm afraid. Because now MARGARET sits at home and pines (?). Well, anyway, BILL had somebody else down to the pledge dances. The outcome will not surprise you, because they'll probably be back together again after the dances are gone and forgotten. In fact, rumor has it that there is not any hard feeling between them as yet.

Recently read: In reading over News and Courier from Charle the other day we noticed a large ture of—now you guess. Well, it a big picture of LIB McGEE F HAM. You of course know that happy event which it told was a tle late. In fact, it was much of la it happened two weeks ago. "L and "COTTON" took the fatal in Laurens the other day. You h about it, I know. Well ,enough of because it's stale news to you pe now.

Visitors on the campus over week-end: "PUDGE" PLOWDEN honor graduate of the class of was around these parts for the pl dances, and so was LEE QUART MAN, a prominent business ma Charleston. I know you will be r to hear about their visits if you h not already seen 'em.

Heard hereabouts: She's goi much make-up on he calls her powdered sugar. We overheard recently and thought we'd pass it to you. But when you use it, let warn you you gotta give us cre It ought to be pretty new. The what told us guaranteed it was br new.

We'd certainly like to get all names of the gals what come d for the pledge dances, but we'd h to use up half the paper to tell al 'em. They may console themse with the thought that they have b instrumental in making this edi of the pledge dances one of the best that has been seen around hyr an awful long time. Of course t may not think they done so m but they helped and that's so thing. Well, the dances are over some of the boys will have go into arguments with their gals, things like that can be patched And they will be.

That's enough of this philosop ing—and there ain't no mo' room such stuff anyhow. So we close w pleasant thoughts.

Clemson Still In State Lead

Furman and Citadel Still In Race For Title.

The South Carolina football campaign of 1937 is in its next to final week with only one important game—The Citadel-Erskine clash at Charleston Saturday—on the schedule before the Thanksgiving day finales.

Cast, as usual, in the principal roles for the main Thanksgiving drama, Clemson's Tigers and Furman's Purple Hurricane will rest this week in preparation for their annual Turkey day clash after gaining well earned victories Saturday.

Clemson, after losing three tough games to Southeastern conference foes, at last came through in their fourth interconference tussle to down Florida.

It was only by the skin of their teeth, however, that the Tigers won for the score was 10 to 9, and it took an 11th hour field goal from the toe of Ben Pearson to do the trick.

Furman, paced by its great back, June Scott, displayed resourcefulness to take the measure of the disappointing South Carolina Gamecocks by 12 to 0.

The Hurricane sounded warning that it cannot be considered out of the state championship picture and that Clemson will have a battle on its hands at Greenville Thursday week.

Clemson will be favored, but so it was last year and the year before and the Hurricane upset the dope both times to come away with the state championship.

A victory for the Tigers, undefeated in the state race, would give them undisputed possession of the mythical crown, but if Furman wins, a three-way tie is foreseen among Clemson, Furman and The Citadel — provided The Citadel gets by Erskine's tough Seceders.

Erskine broke even in its iron man stunt of playing two games in as many days, falling before the Catawba Indians by 26 to 12 at Salisbury, N. C., but besting Newberry's Indians Saturday by 13 to 0.

The Newberry victory gave Erskine the season's championship of the state's "Little Four" and also set the stage for a real go between the Seceders and The Citadel's crippled Bulldogs, who took a 27 to 0 lacing from V. M. I. in their fifth straight Southern conference engagement.

The Bulldogs will probably receive the edge but are not likely to have an easy time with the strongest Seceder eleven in years.

Carolina, definitely out of the state race after the defeat by Furman, will have a "breather" here Saturday before it meets Catholic university at Washington Thanksgiving day.

The Gamecocks play Presbyterian's Blue Hose, who have yet to break into the win column and who are at the bottom of the state standings.

Newberry will journey to Macon, Ga., Friday for a battle with the Mercer Bears while Wofford, which lost a 24 to 0 mud battle Friday to Wake Forest, will have an open date.

The state standings:

	W	L	Pts.	Opp. Pts.
Clemson	2	0	80	6
Erskine	3	0	45	7
Furman	4	1	141	8
The Citadel	4	1	106	21
Carolina	1	2	27	52
Wofford	1	3	20	114
Newberry	1	4	19	80
Presbyterian	0	5	19	150

Johns Hopkins Opens Football Gates To Public

Baltimore, Md. — "De-emphasized" football is a reality at Johns Hopkins university. The football financing problem has been solved to the joy of fans by allowing everybody to go to the game on passes.

Ticket takers only glance at "guest cards." The cards are available to all askers and cost nothing.

Each card will be good for "bearer" and all comers—the card owner can play host to his relatives and friends at will.

Under the new plan never before witnessed by a modern big university audience Hopkins will never pay out except expenses, will donate its own gate and extend visiting teams to do the same.

BLUE HOSE POINT FOR COLUMBIA ENCOUNTER AFTER WEEK'S REST

Practice Routine During Past Week Light, With Emphasis On Passing Attack.

Presbyterian's eleven, refreshed by a week of inactivity, journeys down to Columbia on the week-end for a Saturday afternoon stand against Carolina.

In losing to Furman on Saturday, the University eleven experienced its second state defeat of the current campaign. Its lone victory was registered against The Citadel, conqueror of Furman.

Walter Johnson's practice routine for the past week has been light, with emphasis on passing. The Dennard-Moore aerial combination, effective against Mercer, probably will be thrust at the Gamecocks often.

The Carolina clash is Presbyterian's ninth engagement of the season. Still absent from the victory column, the Hosemen probably will have to wait for Wofford to offer them their first win.

Forgive Me

Gasoline and whiskey don't mix. Neither do sports writing and the annual pledge swing session. So please forgive me for omitting the column, "Pen-Points" and other elements of the page this week. At the present time, bed sheets have more allure than sports sheets.

Cubs Triumph Over Anklets In Mud Maneuvers

P. C. Frosh Outplay Strong Cadet Team Through Most of Fray Here Friday.

FIELD IS SLIPPERY

By J. B. Hafley

A muddy playing field and a cold, driving rain coupled with a slightly superior Clemson frosh running attack spelled defeat for the gallant Presbyterian lower classmen here Friday afternoon. The final score was 14-0 by virtue of an intercepted pass in the second quarter and a power drive to the promised land early in the fourth quarter. The playing conditions, as far as the weather was concerned, were anything but ideal. A two-day rainy spell that continued through-out the game had soaked the field until it was practically ankle deep in mud.

For the entire first half the Clemson rats were clearly outplayed. Repeated drives by the Anklets failed to net a score and the break came late in the second quarter when a flat pass intended for "Cubbie" Howard wobbled crazily and was intercepted by a Clemson back on his own ten-yard stripe. He dashed down the left sideline behind perfect interference to score. The conversion was successful, leaving the half-time score 7-0.

Inspired by this sudden reversal in happenings, Coach Bob Jones' freshmen came back in the second half to assume command of the situation and scored again the fourth quarter on a long drive. The P. C. passing attack was stopped cold and numerous fumbles of the slippery pigskin did much to stop all hopes of an Anklet touchdown.

Mention must be made of the meritorious play of "Big Red" Lawrence. Hose flankman, who ripped off several long gains on end-around plays. Meiskey stepped off tackle for several nice gains and was adept in the art of punt returning. The play of Hugh Flanders, acting captain, was highly commendable as he proved himself a veritable wall of granite on defense.

Football Given New Definition

Washington, D. C.—A new definition of football has appeared.

It is a "function essential to governmental functioning" and appears in the protest of a number of colleges against the federal admission tax on sports events.

The colleges contend that by this definition, the 10 per cent tax is unconstitutional.

With the football season upon him, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau takes the issue to the supreme court.

McElroy Speaks At I.R.C. Session

Arlen McElroy was the speaker at the second open meeting of the International Relations club held last Wednesday and discussed his trip to Europe last summer.

McElroy said he landed first in France. He went from Paris on a tour through southern France across the Alps into Italy, down into Rome. Returning northward, he went through Switzerland and Germany. He visited some time in Germany and from there went to London, through England and into Scotland.

He said that he found the Germans the friendliest of his hosts, though the English and Scots were also hospitable. Among the interesting things he found in Italy was the extreme poverty of northern Italy, and the city of Pompeii in southern Italy.

Chi Beta Phi Initiates Two

The local chapter of Chi Beta Phi, national scientific fraternitl, initiated two new members last Thursday night. They were Neille Wilson and Malcolm Hemphill.

Both these men have taken quite a bit of interest in scientific work since entering college. The intiation of these men brings the membership of the club to seven.

Up until this time President Witherspoon has not been able to secure a speaker for meetings of the group this year. However, he is contacting several men of note in the scientific world and expects to make an announcement on the subject in the near future.

Orchestra Plays At 'Y' Meeting

Thursday night after a spirited pep meeting, the weekly "Y" meeting was held.

The entertainment consisted of a musical program led by Hap Gray and his orchestra. A number of old ballads rewritten to the modern style of Tommy Dorsey were played.

This musical program is just one of the variable types that are going to be conducted this year by the "Y." Every phase of good wholesome entertainment is going to be presented during these meetings. The interest of the student body has already been shown by their increased attendance at recent meetings.

Forum System Is Growing At P. C.

Informal Meetings of Students And Faculty Members Becoming Even More Important Part of Program.

Professor H. E. Sturgeon, head of the department of chemistry at Presbyterian college, recently held a forum discussion at his home. A number of students attended this informal gathering where the various social and ethical aspects of chemistry—parts of the study which cannot well be covered in a technical course—were discussed.

This was one of many forums which are being conducted at the college as a part of its personalized type of education. In these informal gatherings the students come in close contact with the faculty members as they meet with them in their homes. Both student and faculty member profit by the exchange of ideas and professors report that new impetus is often given students as they begin by this means to realize the far-reaching importance of the subjects which they are studying.

The administration of this important phase of the college's work is in the hands of a special committee of the faculty which sees that each student is given an opportunity to attend at least three such forus in subjects in which he has demonstrated an interest.

Prominent figures in various professions are sometimes invited to hold such forums with the students. At present the division of subjects is: advertising, art, biology, business, chemistry, dentistry, engineering, history, government, insurance, international affairs, journalism, languages, law, literature, mathematics, medicine, military, philosophy, physics, politics, psychology, religion, teaching, and writing.

Glee Club To Make Extensive Tours

The Presbyterian college glee club this year will make several extended trips in South Carolina, North Carolina, and Georgia, and will give several radio programs, according to Dr. Stephen M. Huntley, its director.

Dr. Huntley, after a series of auditions, has selected forty men from which to build his organization. The freshman class has given him some excellent material with which to work, and he is now holding intensive practices twice each week in preparation for the winter schedule.

The college orchestra, which accompanies the glee club on its trips and rends several popular and novelty numbers is also rapidly swinging into shape under the direction of Harris Gray, its conductor.

The quartet, another feature of the glee club programs, had to be almost completely reorganized due to graduation of members. Hap Gray, its leader, has announced that it will be made up of himself as second tenor; J. L. Moss, first tenor; M. H. Hemphill, baritone, and H. G. Wardlaw, bass.

GAMECOCKS TROUNCE BLUE HOSE, 64 TO 0

Presbyterians Badly Outclassed In One-Sided Game.

Presbyterian's weak and weary hose eleven allowed a superior Carolina machine ten touchdowns as it was completely rounted, 64 to 0, at Columbia Saturday for the ninth successive loss this season.

Be Moore starred, every man fought hard, but it was a hopeless proposition from the first nad the Gamecock backs cashed in to the fullest. Lyon, Robinson, Snider and other University ball-toters stepped high, wide and handsome to execute numerous long touchdown runs.

Walter Johnson, in an intermission show, was honored by the Gamecocks for his contributions to state sports during 22 years of faithful and inspiring service. A group of co-eds escorted him to the Carolina side of the field and Stokes Davis, student body president, made the presentation of a silver water set in behalf of the administration and students of the school.

The Birds got started early and were seven points up by virtue of a 34-yard drive. On the kick-off, an exchange of punts in their favor, and another successful scoring drive, with Lyons stepping 38 yards off tackle to score. Subsequent play kept P. C. on the defensive, prevented them from any attempts to score, and set the stage for Carolina backfield aces to enjoy a field day.

A pair of touchdowns were recorded in each of the first three periods. In the fourth, the Gamecocks were momentarily checked by fumbles, but Snider shook loose for two quickly-executed touchdown cruises and Clary intercepted a pass to race 65 yards, and Brown went over to add another.

Be Moore continued his campaign for an all-state end berth by giving a superlative performance of effective tackling and brainy analysis of his opponents' plays. Dennard was injured on the first play of the game and was removed from the field.

Once again Thanksgiving day draws near, and as this day of national thankfulness approaches many of us begin to think of what it will mean to us and also of what it has meant in the past. Interviewing several freshmen on the question of what Thanksgiving day suggests to them, we found that while all of them gave thought at some time during the day to what they had to be thankful for, they nevertheless thought of turkey, cooked brown with all the trimmings. And who doesn't? Upon interviewing the turkey as to his thoughts upon the day, he shook his head sadly and gobbled, "Paths of life lead but to the gravy."

We present a kaleidoscope in words of several freshmen, of impressions impressions and memories of a "Most Memorable Thanksgiving Day."

ALEXANDER, CRUICKSHANKS remembers "a thrilling football game on a mud and snow-covered field, where a player caught a pass to run 30 yards for a touchdown. Later in the day at grandmother's I ate rabbit for the first time, and thought it not a bad substitute for turkey."

F. J. FESSENDEN, recalling Thanksgiving days: "I always think of ice skating, because that is what we always did on Thanksgiving day while I lived in Cincinnati; and, strangely enough, it suggests a turkey farm out in California that I once visited. There were hundreds of them."

H. V. TALBOT, naturally enough, remembers a thanksgiving day spent in China. He says, "My most memorable Thanksgiving day was spent at our missionary station in China right after the Chinese civil war of 1927. Many missionaries from near and far joined us that day and rejoiced with

Dr. J. C. Kinard, of Newberry, Speaker At Banquet As Blue Key Honors Pledges

Dr. J. C. Kinard, president of Newberry college, was the principal speaker at the Blue Key pledge banquet last Friday night. At this time the local chapter's seven new pledges took the oath of membership, which was administered by Frank Johnston, president of the P. C. chapter.

The new pledges are Macon Hipp, E. A. Johnson, John Woodward, Jack Witherspoon, Wandell Williams, A. K. Darby, and Harris Gray.

Among those who made short talks was Turk Osman, who is a charter member of the local chapter. He discussed the history of the chapter and told how Blue Key was brought to the campus. The only other charter member present was Professor Bernard H. Boyd. Honorary faculty members of Blue Key present were Dean Brown, Coach Johnson, and Dr. F. D. Jones.

Dr. Kinard discussed the need for leadership among college students in the three fields of religion, government, and society. He urged the Blue Key members to study the problems of their school and help to work with them. He further urged them never to give up in the push forward in progressing to higher and better things.

The honorary student guests at the banquet consisted of the presidents and other leaders of various campus organizations. Johnston acted as toastmaster. Other Blue Key members present were Cliff McLeod, vice-president, and Joe Commander, secretary-treasurer.

P. C. Orchestra Has Several Engagements

Hap Gray's Collegians Open Season This Week.

Playing for a university dance in Columbia Saturday night, Hap Gray and his Collegians opened their schedule of holiday dances which includes engagements on the 24th, 25th and 26th, in Greenwood, Augusta, Ga., and Winnsboro, respectively.

The Collegians were well liked by the students who attended the Block "P" dance held last month, and met with similar approval in Greenwood shortly after that when they played for The Batchelor's club there.

Playing a selection of current popular music arranged by men who are "the tops" in American dance bands, and presenting the lovely voice of Miss Millie Whitten, the orchestra rates high among Southern college dance bands.

Constituting a well balanced rhythm ensemble, the band includes three trumpets, three saxophones and clarinets, two trombones, one bass fiddle, and the drums and piano.

The students will have an opportunity to hear "Hap" and the boys when they play a program of supper music in the college dining hall in the near future.

Holidays Begin Wednesday

The annuel period of Thanksgiving holidays will begin at the end of classes Wednesday afternoon and continue until Monday morning.

The dormitories will be open, as well as the dining hall, for the benefit of those students who do not leave the campus.

Only a few are expected to remain on the campus. Most of these will include students whose homes are too far away to warrant going home for such a short period.

Reporter Reopens History of Establishment of National Fraternities and Local Sorority On Presbyterian's Campus

At the present time there are six national fraternities and one local sorority represented at Presbyterian college. Well over half the student body is affiliated with these organizations either as pledges or members.

Alpha Kappa Pi fraternity was founded January 1, 1921, at Newark College of Engineering, Newark, N. J. In 1928, Phi Delta Tau (local, founded 1925) petitioned and was granted a charter as Eeta chapter. Incidentally, the Presbyterian chapter was the first to be installed in South Carolina. John Bonner is president of the local chapter.

Alpha Lambda Tau national fraternity developed from Alpha Lambda, a local fraternity founded at the reorganized Oglethorpe university in 1916. The Rapier club, organized in 1925 on the P. C. campus, was granted a charter as Iota chapter of Alpha Lambda Tau on the 12th of November, 1927. Willard L. Jones, librarian, was a charter member of both the local and the eventual national chapter. Marion Hipp, a senior, is head of the chapter here.

Beta Kappa national fraternity was organized in 1931 at Hamline university. Alpha Eta chapter on the campus was chartered in 1930, having previously been Epsilon chapter of a defunct national fraternity, Chi Tau, and still earlier (1923) the Omega, a local club. Morris Ritch is president of the chapter here.

The Kappa Alpha order was founded at Washington college (now Washington and Lee), immediately after the close of the Civil war in 1865. Beta Pi chapter, of this campus, was installed January 19, 1924, absorbing the Aesir club, a local association which had existed for a number of years previously, and was the third chapter of K. A. to be established in South Carolina. Baxter Carpenter is head of the chapter here.

Pi Kappa Alpha, founded in 1868 at the University of Virginia, was one of the first two fraternities to install chapters on the Presbyterian campus, Mu chapter being established December 9th, 1890. The other, Phi Phi Phi fraternity, organized at some college in Texas, grew only to include two chapters, and remained actively local society after 1900. John Woodward is president of the local Pi Kappa Alpha group.

Pi Kappa Phi was founded in 1904, and friendships developed through intercollegiate relations resulted in the installation of Beta chapter here on March 16, 1907, the fraternity becoming a national to accommodate the expansion. Joe Commander is president of the chapter on the campus.

When the college administration banned fraternities in the spring of 1909, Pi Kappa Alpha and Pi Kappa Phi ceased to exist officially on the campus. In June, 1920, the ban was removed. Beta Chapter of Pi Kappa Phi was reinstated on the 5th of February, 1921, and Mu chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha followed suit on October 12th of that year.

In 1923 the Pan Hellenic council was organized in an effort to promote greater harmony during the rushing season, Graham Miller being the first president. The second president, J. J. Cornwell, first succeeded in persuading all the fraternal groups to go in together in the matter of banquets and dances, and since then that system has been retained.

Alpha Psi Delta, local sorority, was founded at Presbyterian college in 1929, and has steadily grown since that time. Verona Mitchell is president of the organization.

COACH JOHNSON HONORED BY UNIVERSITY OF S. C. SATURDAY

Presented Gift In Appreciation of Services To P. C. and South Carolina Athletic Life.

SIGNAL HONOR FOR RIVAL MENTOR IN DAY'S GAME

Walter Johnson, dean of Southern football coaches who is completing his 22nd year as athletic director at Presbyterian college, was signally honored Saturday by the University of South Carolina student body.

It was "Walter Johnson day" as the Presbyterian Blue Stockings and the Carolina Gamecocks met on the gridiron, and Johnson was presented with a silver pitcher and glasses for his "inspiring and devoted service to Presbyterian college" and for his "contribution to intercollegiate athletics in South Carolina."

The presentation was made between halves of the game in which Johnson saw his fighting Blue Hose crushed under a 64 to 0 score by the more powerful Gamecocks.

A body of Carolina students escorted Johnson from the Presbyterian bench to the Carolina side of the field, where Stokes Davis, Carolina student body president, presented the gift.

With the Carolina cheering section formed into a "J" on the field and giving yells for the rival coach, Johnson accepted with the simple statement that "I hope and I will try to do better work in my line."

Johnson, 44, a native of Milwaukee, Wis., came to Presbyterian from Battle Creek, Mich., college in 1915.

There was no gymnasium, no playing field and the only sports at the little school were football—one year old—and baseball.

Fourteen men reported for his first football practice and out of them he molded a team which won five games out of seven and placed two men on the all-state team.

Since then, Johnson's football teams, playing many of the best in this section, have won 87 games, lost 86 and tied 17. They have won from every team played except Georgia Tech and Duke, the latter being tied in 1922.

His teams have boasted many star players who won wide recognition.

Eight intercollegiate sports have sprung up at Presbyterian since Johnson took charge there. He originated every one of them and coached each at some time during its development, besides having been largely responsible for intercollegiate boxing in South Carolina and the revival of the Palmetto Intercollegiate Baseball league.

Johnson's friends here at the college and in town are extending congratulations to him upon the honor received in Columbia Saturday.

To Speak Here

The Rev. Hewitt Fulton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Laurinburg, N. C., will conduct a three-day series of services here on December 8, 9 and 10 for the college student body. Mr. Fulton is a graduate of the college.

Clinton, S. C., Monday, November 22, 1937

Everybody will get a holiday this week-end except members of The Blue Stocking staff. The paper will have to come out anyway, so that means figuring out what kind of news can happen on a campus while the students are away.

Dramatic Club Presents

The announcement in last week's paper of the final plan of Sock and Buskin for this year includes perhaps the best program that this organization has yet attempted to put on. Their idea is to present three plays during the year which is about two more than they have been putting on. To these three plays they wish to sell season tickets. For one dollar you may see all three of the productions. However, if you buy individual tickets for each play they will cost you fifty cents each. The principal idea behind this season's ticket business is not so much the money as to build a patronage for the plays. The organization wishes to bring a much higher type of dramatic presentation to the campus and the city of Clinton than would otherwise be possible. On their list are several outstanding productions from which to choose. The first of these will be "The Ghost Train," which promises to furnish quite a bit of interesting entertainment.

The students should welcome and support this plan of the club to put dramatics on a sound and higher basis than has been the case in the past. The plan is an excellent one and we feel that it deserves support. The need for more emphasis on dramatics on the campus is apparent, and we commend this organization and its efforts to meet that need more fully than ever.

Students are reminded that they may make application for season tickets now by filling out the blank that was in last week's paper and placing it in the box on the librarian's desk.

The Blue Stocking stands heartily behind the dramatic club and its efforts; you as students should do the same, for it is one of our student organizations.

The Unusual

The University of South Carolina did quite the unusual thing Saturday in setting aside that day as Walter Johnson day in honor of the dean of coaches in South Carolina and the South. In honor of his twenty-two years of service in this state, M. Stokes Davis, president of the Carolina student body, presented Coach Johnson with a gift as a token of the respect held for him by the students at the University. Other honors were also bestowed upon him. We acknowledge the University's honoring of the coach of whom we think so much. They did the unusual by setting aside one day in honor of the coach of a school not their own.

This day points out one fact that is becoming more apparent the longer Coach Johnson stays here, and that is that his popularity, instead of decreasing, is increasing. We heard some students remark that it is hard for a coach to stay at one college long, for the first time a losing team comes along he becomes unpopular, and from then on it's the hell for him. But with the years Johnson's popularity has not decreased, but has reversed the ordinary proceedings of time by increasing. This latter fact in itself is an unusual tribute to this unusual man.

So, to the University goes our thanks for their unselfish action in honoring our coach as well as asking us to be their guests at Saturday's game.

CAMPUS CRUISING

By Pete McCormick

After surveying college dancers, it has been decided that there are five principal types of dancers. Read on, if thou canst stand this senseless jabber.

1. The Swoop 'er Inner—Wraps his arms around the girl's middle, hauls her in and tries his best to find out how many interesting twists her backbone can do without cracking.

2. The Chiseler—He is the lowest of beasts. After cavorting around with the girl in breathless ecstasy (he is in ecstasy, the girl breathless) switches his grip to lean on her right shoulder, props his weight there and moves his legs like greased lightning while the girls is more or less anchored to one spot in an attempt to support the guy's weight.

3. The Pumper—He is a more or less enthusiastic member of the handshaker family. After sizing her up, he takes her right hand firmly in his left and starts his pumping process which consists of hauling her up on her toes and then putting her back down on her heels with the force of his entire weight which he hurls on her accidentally on purpose.

4. The London Bridgers—A member of the various types of cheek-to-cheek families. He presses his cheek against that of the girl and, seemingly aghast at his own audacity, he tries his darndest to keep the rest of his body as far away from the girl as possible. These kinds should be killed to death.

5. The By-D——d-I-Came-Here-To-Dance-and-I'll-Dance—This type is usually restricted to athletes only, especially the football player and wrestler. He is inclined to start the girl at one end of the hall and swoop to the other, making a path as he goes, causing many of the innocent dancers to have to leave by means of an ambulance. This type should never have been born.

Seventeen Winthrop college girls have been selected to represent Winthrop in the collegiate publication, "Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities."

Boy, I'm telling you that this Martha Orr, who writes the "Campusing" column for the Winthrop Johnsonian, just ain't got the right attitude. She seems to lay too much stress on the collegiate young man. Numerous of her columns have been confined to discussions on the whos, whats, whys and hows of Joe College. She edits poems concerning boys, she writes puns about them, and then to cap the stack, she turns around and says something mushily sweet about 'em. Incidentally, it seems that Davidson is the favorite college of Winthrop fems.

The outstanding players on the state champion frosh football team of U. S. C. are Bill Mitchell, stellar center; Leo Kroto, tackle; Al Gryco, sensational back of all-American calibre; and Dewitt Arrowsmith, pile-driving fullback.

Slurp!

"Halt! Who goes there?"
"Friend with a bottle!"
"Pass, friend. Halt, bottle!"

"Eavesdropping again," said Adam as his playmate fell out of the apple tree.

A pretzel is a doughnut gone crazy.

An adult is a person that has stopped growing everywhere except in the middle.

SO THEY SAY

"Two per cent of the people do the thinking for the remaining 98 per cent and you are a part of the 2 per cent." Dr. William F. Quillian, director of the General Board of Christian Education of the Methodist Church, South, flattered students at Birmingham Southern college.

"The educational spoon in America is handled by competent and understanding teachers, but the students should do the feeding themselves." Dr. Alexis Carrel, ranking scientist, is interviewed by the Dartmouth student newspaper.

"It may seem strange, but all great men slipped off their pedestals as soon as they began to beat a path to the bathtub." Dr. Sanders, a professor in education at De Pau university, saw this lecture remark picked up by a campus columnist.

"Superficiality is the most undesirable characteristic of a large state university located in a small town." Prof. Howard McCluskey of the school of education, University of Michigan, cited evidence of this superficiality in the overdressed women students and the stereotyped "line."

"We cannot afford to let the accident of birth cripple the educational opportunities of youths of promise. Our colleges and universities must extend their taproots until they reach all classes of society." Harvard's President James Bryant Conant justified Harvard's new policy of awarding more and bigger scholarships to promising students.

"Through proper education of American youth, and only through such means, will this country be able to ward off the menace of Fascism and Communism," said Dr. Allan Wilson Hobbs, dean of the college of arts and sciences of the University of North Carolina.

"Democracy would be wise if it would curb the education of thousands of our present school population." President James L. McConaughey of Wesleyan university takes the other side of the save-Democracy fence.

A recent survey of 93 New York advertising agencies revealed that a little more than 20 per cent preferred to train men just out of college for future executive positions. The general consensus, however, was that a man with a college background is better fitted to fulfill the creative requirements of general advertising work.

Well, here we are back again with another edition of the scandal sheet, and there's a dearth of scandal this week what with everybody planning trips home or elsewhere over the Thanksgiving holidays. You know how it is—everybody is trying to impress either their gal or somebody else's. They are trying to keep a clean slate to take home with them.

Education: It doesn't sound very exciting, but there was quite a commotion in the education classroom the other day. It seems that the rumor has circulated around enough that I won't need to tell about the gruesome details. Just ask anybody that takes education.

Scandal: I suppose you haven't heard about "PREACHER" WILKERSON and his gal. It seems that "Preacher" is going rather steady with a gal what is named BETH AYERS. He took her to the cinema rather frequently last week and will probably do the same this coming week. When you read this, "Preacher," you must not feel that any of your table-mates told me this. I seen him when he done it. But you can still tell me the scandal on "SCOOP" that you claim to know.

Hoodwinked: That is what happened to "REV" HARRINGTON of late. He received some mysterious phone calls from a gal whose initials are DOT THOMPSON. She invited him to a party on a rainy night and he was all set to go, but he began to smell a rat and at last found out that the whole thing was a hoax perpetrated by his room-mates and others. For a while "Rev" was walking on air and some of the things that are attributed to him don't hardly sound like the old boy, but you know how things like that will affect a guy.

Stuff: It has been brought to our attention that a certain faculty gal and "T. C." HORTON have been going around rather thick of late. We won't mention the name of the gal, but you can find out from anyo... that went to the Broadway a cer... two nights last week. Or maybe y... might ask "T. C." about it.

Xmas: Do your Xmas shopp... early, for it is more than a mo... to Xmas. And while we think... Xmas we might warn the freshm... that with Xmas comes the notori... Xmas presents. If you haven't deci... what you want, you had better ... busy, 'cause it ain't long now.

Recent readings: We came ac... the fact that Tribble of the transit... al poetry and scandal skeeter at ... olina has resigned from the Ga... cock rag, and he put some ra... strong reasons for retiring in his... cent and last column. We hate to b... that the freedom of the press is ... ing ground elsewhere and we ... there will be no such thing in a ... or two.

More stuff: It seems that M... ORR, of the Johnsonian staff, obje... to having her name in this colu... So just for spite we print it ag... and pronounce the following sentr... Well, we don't need to sentence ... 'cause she didn't make the ... beauty section and that will proba... be enough for her.

Walter Johnson Gunning For Victory Over Terriers

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

THE FOOTBALL HERO

Through season in and season out,
He showed his flying heels
With smooth, elusive touchdown sprints
On home and foreign fields.

The crowds stood up and cheered his name
And praised him to the skies;
They idolized this super-man—
This Greek god in disguise.

The press was lavish in its praise,
And crammed its sporting sheets
With stirring stuff about the guy—
The drama of his feats.

He very seldom met a class,
Was furnished "chicken feed,"
His classmates voted him the one
"Most likely to succeed."

But that was several years ago;
Now things aren't quite the same.
He's working hard for ten a week—
And I've forgot his name.

WE HAIL THEE, CAROLINA!

The action of Carolina's student body in honoring Walter Johnson and in presenting a blanket bid of admission gratis at the game to P. C. students Saturday is highly commendable. It was apparently a friendly, good-will gesture in line with Carolina's current policy. We are appreciative, and assure them their efforts weren't in vain. But that wasn't any excuse to beat us 64 to 0. Or maybe that explains the preliminary sofe-soaping.

PREDICTIONS FOR 1938

1—Carolina will win the state championship (mark my words).
2—Presbyterian will take "Little Four" honors.
3—Be Moore will make all-state.
4—June Moore will get the blocking trophy.
5—I'll be looking for a job.

Frosh Bat 600 During Season

Win Three and Lose Two In Meritorious Campaign. Will Add Strength To Varsity.

(By Jake Penland)

Despite losses to Carolina and Clemson, Lonnie McMillian's 1937 crop of frosh gridsters came through with a meritorious and impressive seasonal performance. Victories were registered over Wofford, Darlington Prep and Newberry.

Pre-season observation revealed the presence of a well-balanced collection of capable men inclusive of several with outstanding high school records.

The group journeyed down to Columbia for an opening engagement with Carolina. An apparent lack of cooperation and practice was evidenced by their 31 to 0 loss to Al Gryco and his Biddy mates. Individual performances stood out, but team play and fundamentals appeared rough and unorganized. Meiskey and Howard looked good in the backfield, and J. Coleman, Cooper and Finlayson dominated line honors.

Coach Lonnie used the ensuing week profitably and had his charges in prime condition for the opening home stand against Wofford. A smoothly functioning club, well versed in fundamentals, plays and execution, ran through the baffled Terriers for a 59 to 0 win. Meiskey's long sprints were uncanny and he went to town when given the oval. Howard's punting and general play was heartening and McIntosh made some beautiful runs. Coleman's placekicking and tackling and heads-up work all along the front wall made it easy for the ball-toters.

The McMillianmen found Newberry stubborn, but shoved over a pair of touchdowns in the first semester to annex their second victory. P. C. effected 15 first downs to eight for the Papooses and proved superior in an aerial attack.

Come Darlington Prep and their third successive seasonal win. The strong Georgians were decisively repulsed by an attack featuring long forward tosses, deceptive end-around plays and well-executed line plunges. Meiskey again took offensive honors and McIntosh supplemented his work with some lengthy cruises for nice gains. Ember played a jam-up game at one flank and Lawrence left his flank position to take off for a pair of thrilling sprints from the end-around set-up.

The frosh wound up by losing to Clemson in the maze of Johnson field mud. After outplaying the Cubs through most of the first half, P. C.'s eleven saw an intercepted pass spell disaster as a Cub back stepped 90 yards to score. The Cadets scored again in the second semester after P. C.'s offense was rendered ineffective by fumbles and incapable handling of the slippery pigskin. Lawrence ripped off some nice gains from end-around plays, Groom blocked a Clemson punt and continued his consistent line play, and Flanders looked good at guard.

A galaxy of stars have emerged from the '37 campaign and graduation of the group to varsity rating will materially strengthen Presbyterian grid chances for the coming years.

Final Grid Menu

The following games are offered as final fare of the 1937 season:

November 24

Presbyterian vs Wofford at Spartanburg.

Newberry vs Rollins at Orlando, Fla.

November 25

Carolina vs Catholic University at Washington, D. C.

Clemson vs Furman at Greenville.

Oglethorpe vs Citadel at Charleston.

BADLY CRIPPLED LINE-UP TO MAKE FINAL WIN ATTEMPT

Wind, Tigers In Feature Clash

Outcome of Thursday's Battle Settles 1937 Title Race.

CITADEL THIRD

South Carolina grid outfits call it a day Thursday with the Clemson-Furman clash at Greenville topping Turkey day play in the 1937 campaign finish.

A victory by Clemson will give the Tigers undisputed claim to title honors and shove the Hurricane down a couple of notches. Should Furman win, as it has surprisingly done for the past two years, a three-way tie including Citadel will result.

Citadel's Bulldogs meet Oglethorpe at Charleston to wind up an impressive season. The Charlestonians knocked off Furman to gain prestige within Palmetto confines, lost to Carolina and came back to smash Erskine, the "Little Four" champs.

Carolina's Gamecocks, sadly out of the picture, revenged a disappointing record by crushing P. C.'s eleven at Columbia Saturday.

P. C. meets Wofford Wednesday in a game that will either give the Hosemen their first victory or serve to better Wofford's unimpressive record.

The Newberry aggregation, victorious only over P. C., concludes with a Wednesday session against Rollins at Orlando, Fla.

The state standings:

	Won	Lost
Clemson	2	0
The Citadel	5	1
Furman	4	1
Wofford	1	3
Newberry	1	4
Presbyterian	0	6

Dennard Hurt In Saturday's Game

Jimmy Dennard, P. C. back, who was taken from the field after the first play against Carolina Saturday, is in the college infirmary suffering painfully from internal injuries. The diminutive Hose ace spent a restless Saturday night and Sunday. He will not be able to play against Wofford Wednesday.

Rout By Carolina Leaves Several Men Injured.

JOHNSON DETERMINED

Walter Johnson's Presbyterian eleven, weary from a tough, disappointing series of grid wars, ring down the curtain with a Wednesday afternoon shot at victory over Wofford at Spartanburg.

A weak and poorly balanced lineup, rendered even more ineffective by numerous injuries, will throw its last resources at the Terrier team in a final assault on the win column of state standings. The crushing defeat handed them by Carolina left several players nursing injuries and several members of the team personnel will be unavailable against Wofford. The Hosemen have experienced nine successive defeats and shoved over only three touchdowns, but rumor has it that Johnson is gunning for Wofford and victory.

Co-ed Cagers To Get Started Soon

Waldrep To Begin Practice Immediately After Holidays. Outlook Is Bright.

Co-ed athletic activity gets under way immediately after Thanksgiving holidays with the beginning of basketball practice for the 1937-38 season. Ralph Waldrep, P. C. senior, will coach the group.

Walter Johnson, who is responsible for the co-ed sports program, is dickering for games and has lined up tentative engagements with Lander, G. W. C. and Newberry. It is probable that each of these teams will be met at home and abroad, thus giving P. C.'s feminine athletic element a fairly complete card.

Prospects for a potential cage squad are good. Several members of last year's fast-stepping Thornwell sextette plus some of Clinton high's former satellites will supplement material of the upper classes.

Intercollegiate basketball is one feature of a co-ed athletic program which should prove bigger and better this year than in the past.

Forum System Runs Smoothly

Series of Informal Discussions Continues At Rate of Two Each Week.

At the beginning of school each student was asked to check from a list of subjects at least three which he or she was particularly interested in, so that an accurate schedule for student and faculty forums could be drawn up. This was done and a schedule arranged by Hugh Holman, chairman of the forum committee. The program calls for forums in the different subjects, with a maximum attendance not to exceed twenty students and the teacher in that subject, along with the chairman of the committee.

The married members of the faculty hold their forums either in their homes or the forum room as they choose. The single members conduct their's in the forum room.

To date five forums have been conducted. A list of these and the subject matter discussed follows:

October 19 — Chemistry forum at the home of Professor Sturgeon for sophomores and freshmen interested in chemistry.

November 10 — Psychology forum conducted by Dr. Jones in the forum room. Special forum with entire class present to discuss material to be covered during the course of the year.

November 11 — President Jacobs conducted a forum at his home. The possibilities of having a radio program were discussed and many prominent figures of the campus were present.

November 16—Forum for students interested in physics and astronomy conducted by Professor Whitelaw in the forum room. "The World In Which We Live" was the subject of the discussion.

November 18—Professor Boyd led a forum for freshmen who were interested in religion. A general discussion was conducted.

For the remainder of the year forums at the rate of two a week will be held and every student will have an opportunity to attend one forum in each of the three subjects he chose at the first of the year. Faculty members are cooperating in every respect and the students are urged to do likewise in order for the most good to be derived from these forums.

REED WATSON remembers: "Year before last on Thanksgiving day, in Greenville, I saw Clemson beat Furman 8-6 on a muddy field. Later that day I enjoyed a swell dinner at my aunt's with all my family present. And last, but not least, I went to a swell dance that night." (End of a perfect day, we would call it)

JOE CARTERr Reed's roommate, recalled his most memorable, but not necessarily his most enjoyable Thanksgiving day. He told us, "I remember it very clearly because I broke one of my mother's nicest lamps . . . the rest of the day is rather hazy in my memory."

MORGAN CRAIG recalled "A trip to Baltimore and Washington where, during the day, a squadron of army airplanes swooped low over our car as we rode along." He also remembered "a swell dinner."

Kincaid Presents Picturee At 'Y' Meet

Last Wednesday night, Rev. M. G. Kincaid led the "Y" meeting, giving a lecture and showing views of the Holy Land.

Mr. Kincaid, of Fountain Inn, made a tour of Palestine in 1934. During the trip he photographed picturesque places that figured in the life of Christ. Among them were Bethlehem, Jerusalem, the Sea of Galilee, Nazareth, Mount of Olives, and the Red sea.

The pictures were vivid and realistic, being shown with a projector. Mr. Kincaid gave an interesting discussion of each picture and he presented it. He is to return on a similar tour in the near future, and it is hoped that

R.O.T.C. TO PUT SIX MORE MEN ON PAY STATUS

More Members of Non-Pay Junior Military Students To Receive Compensation.

WILL BE CHOSEN IN COMPETITION SOON

In about two and a half weeks the military department will hold competitive examinations for those men in the first year advanced course who are now serving on a non-pay basis," Major F. C. Harding, professor of military science and tactics, told a reporter for The Blue Stocking today, "and," he continued, "six men will be admitted to the advanced course on a regular pay basis."

When this plan was first announced recently, before confirmation from corps headquarters, Major Harding told those juniors who would apply that the final selection of the number alloted by the government would be made not only on the results of the competitive examination, but also on each man's cumulative grade and general record from his enrollment in military up to date.

There are thirty-two men taking the advanced course in military now, and of this number fifteen are on a non-pay basis. This gives a fair idea of what the competition will be when "the fifteen are called and six are chosen." The examination will not, of course, apply to those who are now on Uncle Sam's payroll.

The examination will include questions and problems pertaining to infantry drill regulations and problems and duties of the non-commissioned officer in regard to infantry drill, as announced by Major Harding recently. Whether or not the examination would consist in part of practical problems in infantry drill was not disclosed at this time.

As for plans for the corps until Christmas holidays, nothing unusual was announced except that the band will play for the annual "Santa Claus parades" which are held in Clinton and Laurens prior to the holidays. Considering the bombardment of fire crackers tossed by "innocent" bystanders, last year, the band probably will be issued helmets for their annual "baptism of fire."

Swimming Team Down To Work

After putting the men through almost two weeks of intensive practice, Coach Hank Wilson and his managers, Ralph Stowell and C. D. Jacobs still feel that "although the men who have reported for the swimming team are showing that they know their business in the water," expressed the belief that there were other men on the campus just as capable who have not come out for the first few practices.

Besides the fact that there is a strong possibility of the state swimming meet being held in the Presbyterian college tank this year, according to Coach Wilson, the team is also to make a southern trip which will include meets with Stetson, the University of Miami, the University of Georgia, and Auburn.

The team will continue its intensive practice until the holidays begin, then on its return after Christmas there will be only a short period of training before it begins its tour.

To date about twelve men have reported for practices. Others are urged to come out. Practices are held every afternoon at the pool in the gym.

INTRAMURAL FOOTBALL TO BEGIN HERE FRIDAY

Intramural football will get underway here next Friday afternoon when the first game will be played.

There will be four teams this year. Each of the R.O.T.C. companies will have a team, while the fourth will be composed of members of the "home guard."

COVINGTON TO MARRY

Benjamin Wilson Covington, Jr., will be married to Miss Nonn McWilliams on Wednesday evening, December 15th, at Prattsville, Ala.

Covington is a former editor of The Blue Stocking and was graduated from P. C. in 1932.

New Best Sellers Received By Library, Including Fiction and Non-Fiction

To those who enjoy a good novel every week-end, Willard L. Jones, college librarian, suggests several new best sellers of both fiction and non-fiction recently received.

The number includes, among those of fiction, "And So Victoria," by Wilkins, "Northwest Passage," by Roberts, and "The Citadel," by Cronin. As for the latter, it might be well to say that it has nothing to do with "Sing Sing on the Ashley," as our genial sports editors call our Charleston contemporaries

As for non-fiction, these are most notable: "How To Win Friends and Influence People," by Carnegie (although, as some one expressed it, he should have included a chapter on how to get it out of the library). To continue the list however, "The Return To Religion," which is on reserve at present, is well worth reading, and "City Editor" shows that, although the royal road to fame in journalism" is pretty rugged, it nevertheless has its exciting and profitable moments. "The Way of a Transgressor," by Farson, although not a recent book, is certainly entertaining.

Several other new books have been ordered, the most notable among the fiction being "The Rains Came," by Bromfield.

EDITORS ARE CHOSEN FOR CLASS ISSUES OF THE BLUE STOCKING

Coleman Names Freshman Staff

The following freshman staff will edit The Blue Stocking to appear next Monday:

Bill Coleman, editor.
Harry McInvaill, assistant editor.
Walter Somerville, Y.M.C.A. editor
Jerry Roberts, columnist.
Brooks Sheldon, sports editor.
Bill Andrews, assistant sports editor.
Hampton Talbot, religious editor.
Robert Wysor, R.O.T.C. editor.
Staff reporters: Hugh Flanders, Alec Cruikshanks, Pinkie Barnhill, John Weldon, Joe Carter.

Coleman, McCormick and Heckle To Edit Special Papers.

FRESHMAN NUMBER TO APPEAR NEXT MONDAY

As has been the custom each year, class editors have been selected to edit special issues of The Blue Stocking. The following men have been selected by the staff to edit issues for their respective classes: Bill Coleman, freshman; Pete McCormick, sophomore; L. G Heckle, junior.

Each editor will select his staff from his own class, and the paper will be entirely under his direction. The regular editor will assist the various class editors but will not be responsible for the issuing of it, or anything contained in the papers.

The first of these special issues will appear next Monday, and will be the freshman issue under the direction of Bill Coleman. Coleman has had previous experience in newspaper work and comes with good recommendations as to his ability. The staff for this issue is announced elsewhere in today's paper.

It is tentatively planned to have the junior issue, under Heckle, follow the freshman issue on the following Monday. Heckle holds the elective office of managing editor of The Blue Stocking. His staff will be announced later.

The sophomore number will appear after Christmas. McCormick, who will edit the paper, is assistant feature editor of The Blue Stocking and was editor of the class issue during his freshman year.

The senior issue will appear late in the spring. It is usually in charge of the regular editor of the paper who retired in January.

The present editor, Cliff McLeod, will edit only two more papers before his retirement. A new editor will be elected the second Tuesday in January and will take over his duties the latter part of the month.

Young People To Have Charge Of Sunday Services

The young people of the First Presbyterian church will have charge of the worship services there next Sunday evening at 7:30. Hampton Talbot and Bill Talbot of China, and Aiken Taylor of Brazil, all of whom are sons of missionaries, will be speakers on the program. Sam Lipsey, president of the young people's society, will be in charge of the service. A special solo will be rendered by Hubert Wardlaw.

The program will be on foreign missions, past, present and future. The collection of the evening will be used to purchase a share in foreign mission stock of the Southern Presbyterian church.

This is the first service of the kind to be presented in Clinton.

College students have been invited to attend the service. The choir will be made up of members of the young people's organization.

Reporter Writes of Life of Dean Marshall W. Brown In First of Series of Biographical Sketches of Professors

Dean, as he is called by P. C. students, seemed quite startled when approached for an interview. He seated himself at his desk, rumpled his hair, and then began his story.

Although he is much too modest to admit it, Marshall Walton Brown is a versatile man. He has traveled extensively, has studied abroad, likes art, music, and literature, and is a leader in civic affairs. He first saw the light of day on January 8, 1907, Newbern, Tennessee, is his home. In 1918 he graduated from Castle Heights Military academy, Lebanon, Tenn., with honors. He began his collegiate career at the University of Missouri, did summer school work at the University of Michigan, and spent his last two years at Centre college.

While at Centre, Dean roomed with Bo McMillin, all American football player on the famed Praying Colonels team. McMillin is now head football coach at Indiana.

After receiving his A B. in 1921, Dean became professor of history at McCallie school, Chattanooga, Tenn.

In 1922 he went to Europe, accompanied by Henry Lilly, who is now professor of English at Davidson. They had sailed to Europe with the intention of studying at Oxford, but changed their minds and ended up at the University of Vienna. While in Europe Dean traveled extensively. Not a town of any importance in Germany, France, or Italy escaped his notice. With his friend he traveled on foot through Sicily, shortly after Mussolini's march on Rome. The nations of Europe were seeking to readjust themselves after the war, and thus Dean saw much history in the making.

Returning to the United States he resumed teaching at McCallie. In 1925 he became professor of history at P. C., and in 1928 he was made Dean. During the summer of 1925 he was married to Miss Lillian Gross, of Chattanooga, Tenn.

In 1929 Dean received his M A. degree from the University of Wisconsin. He has completed much of his work toward his doctorate at the same institution. Davidson college awarded him an honorary degree, doctor of pedagogy, last June.

While at Centre he was a member of Beta Theta Pi, social fraternity; Omicron Delta Kappa, national leadership fraternity, and of Ye Round Table, Centre college scholastic fraternity.

He is a member of the American Historical association, of the Historical association (England), and a charter member of the South Carolina Historical association. He was president of the latter in 1934-35.

His favorite recreation is playing tennis, and he rates No. 6 in Clinton at present.

His hobby is playing the violin, although he finds very little time to play. All music seems to hold an appeal for Dean. He said, "Wagner is my favorite composer. Of the seventy different operas I have seen my favorite is 'Die Walkure'."

When questioned as to his favorite literature, he replied that while he read more history and biography than anything else, he liked lyric poetry best, with Shelley his favorite.

Although Dean is "on the go" continually, he is never too busy to help one of us get some knotty problem straightened out.

WOFFORD TERRIERS BEAT BLUE HOSE, 19-0, IN SEASON'S FINAL

Sensational Runs By Wofford Feature Loosely Played Game Wednesday in Spartanburg.

HORNE STARS FOR P. C. IN FINAL QUARTER

In their last game of the season the Presbyterian college Blue Hose were defeated 19-0 by the Wofford Terriers at Snyder field at Spartanburg last Wednesday afternoon. For the Blue Hose it was one of the most poorly played games of the season. Characterized by fumbles and lack of consistent defensive play, the Presbyterian allowed Hilton of Wofford to make touchdown runs of 72 and 65 yards. Hilton led the attack for Wofford and was the outstanding man of the game. Besides making two long runs for two of the Terriers' touchdowns, he also tossed the pass to Dick Bell which netted the third score.

With less than three minutes of the game elapsed, Hilton snatched a P. C. punt from the air on his own 28-yard line, skirted a sold wall of Blue Stockings, cut over to the right sideline, and sped for the end zone and a touchdown. He had good blocking after passing Wofford's 40-yard stripe.

A fumble by Shorty Horne of Presbyterian set the stage for the second touchdown late in the first quarter. Hilton recovered for the Terriers on the Wofford 48-yard line, and two plays later shot a 25-yard aerial to Bell, who made a sensational overhead catch and loped 27 yards to the goal line.

There was no more scoring until near the end of the third quarter when Hilton tore loose again for a pay-off gallop of 65 yards. The play was from scrimmage and Hilton swept around left end, eluded many tacklers and sped goalward down the center of the field, several paces ahead of a horde of Blue Stockings.

The hard-charging Wofford line, with Captain Jim Ariail leading the way, kept the visiting backs from doing much damage. The Hose didn't get inside Wofford's 20-yard line until the final quarter, and were in Wofford territory on the offensive only four times during the game.

Although getting eight first downs to Wofford's four, P. C. failed to combine its forces to score. Definitely lacking the punch which has characterized its previous games, the Hosemen played mediocre end passes and that allowed the Terriers to pull several sensational runs including the touchdown trips.

Shorty Horne starred for P. C., taking the initiative in a desperate drive in the final quarter. He turned in a beautiful 26-yard run that put the ball on Wofford's 29-yard line and picked up 10 more yards, but the attack bogged down on the Wofford 11-yard stripe.

Campus Deserted For Thanksgiving

Presbyterian college, during the past four days, might have been termed the original "Deserted Village," as most of the students were away at various places during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Little excitement prevailed on the campus, only about thirty students being here. Most of the interesting times centered about the dining hall at meal times.

Faculty members who remained here passed their time in various ways. Business Manager (Nimrod the Mighty Hunter) Hunter is reported to have gone rabbit hunting on Thanksgiving day. However, no evidence was produced that he did go.

While the library was open, no report has come that there was a stampede on the part of students to get books for studying.

A quiet time was had by all.

DEBATERS WILL ATTEND ANNUAL FORENSIC MEET

Winthrop To Be Host To Southern Group Thursday, Friday, Saturday of This Week.

Presbyterian college will enter four men in the forensics tournament to be held at Winthrop college Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. The men entering will be E. A. Johnson, Roy Hutchinson, Cliff McLeod and Dugald Hudson.

The tournament will be attended by teams from every college in the South and east of the Mississippi river. Each school will enter both a negative and affirmative team in five debates during the three days of the tournament. The query for the debates, which is given by Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic fraternity, is "Resolved that the National Labor Relations board should be empowered to enforce arbitration in all labor disputes."

No announcement of team standing will be made until the end of the tournament. All debates will be non-decision competitions. However, contests will be held also in oratory, extempore, impromptu, after-dinner speaking and harangue, the winners of which will be announced. The P. C. men plan to enter these various speech contests as well as the debates.

Although the team has had no debates thus far this year, it has been rounding into shape in preparation for the tournament. All the men on the team were members of last year's group.

To Nominate Frosh Officers Tomorrow

Nominations for a freshman student councilman and officers for the first-year class will take place tomorrow morning at a special meeting of the class after chapel. The following officers will be nominated, in addition to a councilman: President, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, censor, and a class historian.

Election of these officers and councilman will take place Friday, December 10th. This will allow time for the nominations to be published in the college paper, which is required by the student body constitution.

The men elected will serve until elections next spring when class officers will be elected for all classes.

Thought For the Week

GIVING

There is an old story of an artist who painted a picture that was touched by a lovely and fascinating crimson that no other artist was able to imitate. They studied this picture and sought for its secret in vain. But when the artist was dead and they were preparing him for burial, they noticed above his heart a half-healed wound. Then it was that they understood. As this artist had painted he had dipped his brush into his own heart's blood. That was the secret of the winsome crimson they could not imitate. That was the secret of the fascinating picture that had cast its spell upon them. They could not paint as he painted because they were unwilling to pay the price he paid. The picture that is beautiful is costly. And the giving that is beautiful is also costly.

The Next Editor

Immediately after the Christmas holidays, on the first Tuesday in January, nominations will be made for a new editor for The Blue Stocking, as well as for other offices connected with the paper. Only two more issues are left for the present editor. The other two issues between now and then will be edited by class editors. After what seems a rather brief but stormy career on the ocean, the editor finally sees in sight the shores of freedom—the isles of the blest—where no one will be calling for more copy, where no one will be after the editor for this or that. But it hasn't been reached yet.

As the editor looks forward to this election the prospects of getting a good editor seem good. While at the present there are really no outstanding journalists to be found here, there are some pretty good ones, any one of whom would make a good editor. Whomever the students select as editor, he should be one who will try to give them a good presentation of news regardless of what it is or who makes it, regardless of the editor's opinion one way or the other.

The time is yet early, but the students should be considering whom they want.

Forensics

This week-end the forensics group makes its first trip of the season when they go to Winthrop. Handicapped by lack of experience last year, the team did not do so well. At present forensics is at a rather low ebb due to this lack of having a number of experienced speakers.

However, with the return of all the men from last year, the group is expected to make a better showing this week-end. This will be but a practice tournament and results, of course, will not be announced except in certain events; but at least it can be determined how well forensics will fare this year.

The End of the Season

Last Wednesday's game with Wofford at Spartanburg marked the end of a football season. That is about all it can be called. Oddly enough, the team has been the most loyally supported since we have been here. Lacking experience and weight, this years team has fought as well if not better than most teams. The student body may, however, look forward to next year's team with hopes of a much better squad. Most of the men from this year's varsity will return, while a number of excellent freshman players will be eligible for varsity ranks.

While it is a bit out of order for us to be writing about sports on this page, we cannot refrain from paying at least one more tribute to a group of college students who, on the playing field, showed themselves to be what we expect college students to be—men.

RAISIN' CAIN

By the Observer

Contrast or don't be so prosaic:

Frosh: Wot a night for love!

Soph (upstairs): Freshman, get up here and polish my shoes!

And the dream girl faded into the night.

The height of absent-mindedness: Locking your pocket and putting the key in the door.

Pity the Frosh

He gets it when he does it.
He gets it when he doesn't.
He's in a mesh
Of troubles and care.
His only consolation:
Him you may hear,
"Just wait'll next year."

The shiek and president of the student body, Joe Commander, like the proverbial sailor having one in every port, has one in every girls' college.

Personal Nominations

Biggest shiek on campus: Pelensky.
Cutest co-ed: Robbie Rogers.
Handsomest: McCully.
Best all 'round (w'ay 'round, too): C. D. Jacobs, Jr.

Thoughts: William P. Burns, member of the leftist element of the Ministerial club (liberals), habitually carries a pipe that he never uses . . . Clyde Conrad, brilliant science student, still stands as the quietest, therefore the most mysterious, of the seniors . . . Artemus Keitt Darby stands as the most versatile student as far as the liberal arts are concerned; he is not only a good writer and musician, but also is well versed in the knowledge of current affairs . . . Bebe Dillard, if she keeps plugging, will be the first co-ed to graduate from P. C. with a degree of bachelor of science . . . Blue Key Frank Johnston has a lady friend over Greer way as well as at Queens-Chicora that has him going these days . . . Still going strong is the McCrary-Blackwell combination, as well as the Jacobs-Black combination . . . Ministerial Club Patterson claims to have found the one and only somewhere down in old Georgia; at least that is what we found out . . . For the public's information, Jake Penland has another name; it is John Benjamin . . . E. A. Johnson has a time keeping his roommate, B. Gaither Shaw, from partaking of "Zip." Johnson fears Gaither will get fat (or fatter?). . . . After some years the Ralph Waldrep-Kathryn Owens combine seems to be running along smoothly.

Hubert Golden Wardlaw, perhaps better known to some by the name "Smooch Hound" Wardlaw, which he gained in a questionable (?) affair with a young lady in Georgia last year on a glee club trip, seems to be settled down this year to a "steady." However, there will be more glee club trips as well as perhaps more girls' colleges to be visited on them. However, don't take seriously what we said about him. Everybody has his fun—even Gran'ma.

Giles Batchelor, recently elected best all-round athlete, seems to be doing right well along the courting side, too. 'Tis rumored he's squiring a fair miss over in College View.

Jay Gilliland's idea of giving away a certain amount of merchandise each week to a boy and a girl was a pretty good one. The trouble is, some will never get it on it. But of course that can't be helped, as time would not permit it.

Some students thought they might pull a good one on Prof. Graham the other morning when they placed a "whistle bomb" in his car. The result was that when he was sitting in his car as the bomb went off he took everything calmly, much to the boys' chagrin; they thought he would take to his heels. There is a story which has now become a classic among P. C. stories concerning Dean Brown's action when such a bomb went off in his car. 'Tis said he took off like a bird.

Musings: Joe Commander is keeping company over Coker college way now . . . Bebe Dillard and Al McSween seem to be getting along uncommonly well just to be friends . . . After years of waiting and hoping, Harris Gray had his girl from Mississippi up for one of the Pan-Hellenic series. She is rumored to be the one and only. At present she is studying at the U. of N. C.; hence the reason why she was able to come. Perhaps we may look for her more often, Mr. Gray? . . . PaC-SaC Malcolm McDowell Hemphill seems to be doing pretty well over at Lander college. He had the fair miss over for the Blue Key banquet . . . Elrod "One-clap" MacLeod is still steadily making tracks for Lander every week-end or so . . . Co-ed Sarah Salters is entertaining a ministerial student these days . . . Nancy Young and Hammond Adams are still "steadies." Puzzle of the day is whether or not Co-ed Adelaide Roberts is still yearning after John Byram, sophomore of last year who is now at Duke . . . Junior Classman C. Huntley is courting a certain lady of the town whom he accompanies to the Baptist church these Sunday nights . . . Business Man Wendell Pope (superlative contest winner for best business man) bears the nicknames "Miser" and "Silas Marner." . . . Aggie Jones and Morris Ritch are still doing all right by themselves. . . . Shannon Simpson is receiving mail from an army post these days . . . Campus Commentator David Dingeman is turning out to be an excellent announcer . . . Jane Sturgeon is P. C.'s own horsewoman who, according to reports, rides a horse as well as anybody . . . "Boy Scout" Timmons still remains tops in his good-looking (?) uniform.

Don't it awful how mad they get when they get their names in the scandal column (and how tickled they are that it got there).

The CAMPUS COMMENTATOR

— By —
D. R. DINGEMAN

Yeah, you had a big week-end and you hated to leave your girl and you didn't want to come back to school but you can't stand the demerits. You're no different than anybody else. They don't want to leave home either, they would like to stay at home and eat some more or maybe they'd like to see their girl some more. But console yourself that with Thanksgiving upon us, Christmas can't be far away.

I suppose that some of you more unfortunate ones will have to do some explaining to that girl back home for some of the things that she has read in this column about your mistakes while away from home. If that be true, don't let it get you down, 'cause most of the time you tell your girl that all I write is a lot of stuff and in some cases it's the truth. But mind, if you do make any slips you'll have more explaining to do.

More advice: This time a bit to the girls: The following rules for the correct behavior of a girl have been compiled:

1. She shouldn't eat much
2. She should be able to dance well.
3. She shouldn't eat much.
4. She should be good-looking.
5. She shouldn't eat much.

So you gals what ain't found out how to behave right can take this to heart and do all your eatin' at home.

Chemistry: That may sound interesting to you, but the rest of this will sound a whole lot more interesting to anybody.

It seems that in the course of events a test in chemistry was coming around and so first crack out of the box a certain lovely co-ed invited some of the more studious pupils around to her house to impart their knowledge to her. That don't seem plausible to me, how about you? Well, we've the seeds of doubt, so we dont duty. Unh-hunh.

We pause to wonder: Who is sing our friend DOT ADAIR days. We know, do you?

What goes on around these pa when we have gone? Maybe the la lads get a chance with all of the P boys gone home or places.

Astounding: This little bit came our ears recently and we can't k it for a later date. The story g thus: DUGALD HUDSON has m a bargain with "RED" ELLISON teach him how to study if "Red" teach him to raise Cain and thi We print it as it came to us an from reliable sources and so couldn't ignore this newsy bit.

By way of remindre: You know now that it is "BOB" THOMAS ardent desire to get a car. Why? W so he can go to Converse any It seems that as things stand no can go only on the week-ends. bad, ain't it, Bob?

While we speak of Spartanburg might say that it is a poor town. town constables wanted to lock couple of the boys for bumming. M be they haven't heard that Gover Johnson okayed the bumming of lege students right after the law passed putting the ban on "t travel.

This is the week-end when ev body does things at home so the al column runs out of dirt to about the college boys—but they come back and the scandal co will have something to print 'em. So with this apology for a poor column we sign off

It is rather difficult to analyze the '37 season. To offer cold and colorless facts would be an unfair, inaccurate explanation. Ten games were played, ten lost and three touchdowns recorded. But can we let it go at that? On the other hand, to adopt high school journalism and dwell on our past glory, school spirit and other remote aspects would take us to the other extremity. So let's take the middle ground.

Intelligent pre-season opinion of the seasonal outlook was lacking, leaving followers bereft of an accurate conception of prospects. They, expectant of standard Hose stands against Clemson and Furman, triumphs over Newberry, Erskine and Wofford, were disappointed.

THREE LITTLE WORDS

Three little words—lack of material, correctly pictures the situation in September. A weak, poorly-balanced team, lacking in many of the requisites, was being groomed to take the field against Clemson, Tech and the rest. It wasn't Johnson's fault, it wasn't the team's fault—we were just getting set for an inevitable bad year. Napoleon had his troubles at Waterloo, Hoover had his in '32, and we were due for ours in '37.

TWO FINE STANDS

The Hosemen gave splendid performances against The Citadel and Mercer. The Bulldogs, in full stride when they invaded Clinton, were hard pushed in a session from which they were fortunate in picking up three touchdowns. Mercer's best team in years came to town grinning confidently like Bears in a briar patch. They went back to Georgia with scattered cases of coffee nerves. For they were set back on their heels by a spirit-crazed collection of Calvinists until the latter stages of play.

ONE UNFORGIVABLE LOSS

Against Newberry, the eleven appeared sluggish, disinterested and dumb. Frequent fumbles, poor judgment and a mental and physical let-down marked the gloomiest, least interesting game of the season.

SEVEN PARDONABLE DEFEATS

Carolina, Clemson, Georgia Tech and Furman registered overwhelming victories against a team lacking in resources, overcharged with courage and fight. They did their best—who could ask for anything more?

Erskine and Emory and Henry profited by P. C. miscues, but both clubs were due to win. Wofford beat our second and third string. They would have run into trouble had our original line-up taken the field.

'38

Boswell, the Moore brothers, Dennard, Holcombe, Atkinson, Batchelor, Reynolds and others form a framework upon which Walter Johnson will build his house. From the frosh ranks will come punters, passers, fleet backs and big, capable linemen. Those of you who have criticized should feel foolish. You who have been patient will find in '38 — that patience has its own reward.

Clemson Takes State Leadership

Cops Rag Despite Furman Deadlock Thanksgiving.

CITADEL IN SECOND PLACE

Despite being administered its annual Turkey day headache by Furman, Clemson copped state championship honors for 1937 by emerging from the campaign an unbeaten eleven.

The Tigers were held to a scoreless tie before 18,000 fans in Sirrine stadium Thursday by a fighting Furman outfit, holder of titular honors for two years. The 0-0 result knocked them out of rag ownership in the Southern conference. Furman had one defeat, to The Citadel ,on its records.

The Bulldogs, surprise club of the year, ended second with five wins and one loss, to Carolina. Furman ran third and Erskine's Fleet finished fourth with one loss to four starts. Jake Todd's outfit took "Little Four" honors by stopping P. C., Newberry, and Wofford.

South Carolina's disappointing Gamecocks beat The Citadel, P. C., and lost to Clemson and Furman to place fifth with a .500 average. Wofford topped P. C. and Newberry to finish up ahead of the Indians, and Presbyterian sat in the cellar with seven defeats and no wins in her lap.

Biggest surprise of the season was Furman's stand against Clemson. The Baptists were outplayed and outgained but rose to great heights on every occasion that their goal was threatened.

Final standings:

Clemson	2	0	1
The Citadel	5	1	0
Wofford	2	3	0
Newberry	1	4	0
Presbyterian	0	7	0

Pitt To Cease Giving Grants To Football Players

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The University of Pittsburgh is "putting its house in order." It has announced that it will cease giving "special grants" to football players.

James Hagan, director of athletics, said that future Pitt athletics "should be conducted in accord with the best traditions of intercollegiate practice," and that the university has set up an agency to "secure employment for students with athletic ability on the same basis such help is given to other students . . ."

After 1940, when present commitments expire, Pitt will reduce the schedule of its Panthers to eight games. These schedules will include none but major teams because, according to Hagan, "a football game is no longer a football game when teams as powerful as ours can run roughshod over teams of schools which under normal conditions do not attract an abundance of football material."

"If it (cessation of special grants) means weakening our teams, then they will have to be weaker and there will be no criticism of our coaches as a result of defeats that may come our way," Hagan said.

It has been understood that Pitt intends to bring its schedule into eastern territory almost exclusively.

Included in the rules of the new policy is one that no coach will be permitted to initiate a contract with any athlete or attend any game with the idea of "scouting for athletes."

PROMISING COLLECTION OF STARS HAVE CHAMPIONSHIP CALIBRE

Meiskey Honored By Frosh Mates

Half-Pint Halfback Named Captain of Yearling Squad.

BIG SHOT ALL SEASON

Dick Meiskey, offensive ace of P. C.'s frosh football team during the past season, was elected honorary captain of the group by his team-mates last week.

A captain is appointed by Coach McMillian for each game and at the season's end an honorary is chosen by the squad.

Meiskey was the feature attraction in each of the five appearances of the team and his clean, inspired playing was responsible for his team-mates' action.

Spring Practice For Grid Squad

Johnson To Hold Sessions For First Team.

TO BENEFIT SOPHOMORES

According to an unofficial announcement, Walter Johnson will inaugurate spring football practice this year for the first time in several years.

Johnson is the only state coach who has heretofore omitted spring practice from his grid program. A majority of athletes are engaged in both spring and fall activity which probably explains Johnson's past action.

Although a promising '38 team is in the making, the eleven will be drawn in the main from frosh ranks, and spring practice sessions should aid materially in putting a well-organized team on the field next September.

Batchelor, Holcombe, Holden, Cavin, Johnston, and Maybe Waldrep, Form Crew.

IS SEASONED OUTFIT

Cage practice, unofficially began some time ago, gets under way in earnest this week with a large group of capable men on hand.

Coach Lonnie McMillian will preside over daily practice periods as he goes about whipping his squad into shape and preparing for what promises to be a successful campaign. Practically the entire personnel of last season's outfit is back and eligible to play. Heading an imposing array of talent is Captain Giles Batchelor, an all-round smoothly performing courtman. Les Holden will be back at his pivot position, Pete Holcombe is slated for another season at his forward post, Johnston, a senior, is available for a guard job, and Jake Cavin will be used at forward or guard.

Ralph Waldrep, captain of last year's team, will hold down one of the forward jobs if his condition permits. A back injury kept him from grid service this season.

Up from the frosh eleven are the Griffin brothers and others to supplement junior and senior men. Following a few pre-Christmas practice tilts, the group will open up against collegiate competition in a determined attempt to annex state title honors.

Military Training In U. S. Far From Being Compulsory

Washington, D. C. — Compulsory military training in colleges—particularly land grant colleges which receive federal funds—is often the target for criticism by peace organizations. However, the way in which our college students are, in some instances, forced to take military training contrasts strongly with the manner in which young men are trained for war in foreign countries.

In Switzerland, Italy, France, Romonia, Peru, Germany, Algeria and Iraq all young men are compelled to undergo a period of military training. And this is not in conjunction with college work. They have to serve a year or more in the army, just as do regular soldiers.

Military service in Turkey is regarded as so important that it is practically impossible for a young man to get a job unless he has completed his military term.

Co-eds are not always omitted in training for the national defense in other nations. For instance, the Woman's Home Defense organization in Estonia trains young women for their part in war through an organization called the "home guards."

The Boy Scout organizations in some countries have been drafted as military training agencies. Boy Scouts in Brazil, for instance, are financed by the government and receive training for war under the ministry of war.

Military training is compulsory in Argentina between the ages of 18 and 21. However, all youths are not required to undergo the training. Lots are drawn and the trainees are selected in this manner.

So, after considering the compulsory military service of more militaristic nations, drill two or three times a week in college R.O.T.C. units may not be so bad after all.

Jacobs Blocking Trophies To Be Presented Tuesday

REV. HEWITT FULTON TO LEAD SERVICES HERE THIS WEEK

North Carolina Minister, Graduate of P. C., Will Preach Twice Daily for Three Days.

WILL BE AVAILABLE FOR STUDENT CONFERENCES

The administration announced again today that the Rev. Hewitt Fulton, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Laurinburg, N. C., will conduct services here on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. This will be the first of two such three-day series of services to be sponsored by the administration during the current school year for the students.

Mr. Fulton is a young man who has always had a particular appeal to young people. He is a graduate of Presbyterian college where he ranked high in scholarship, and also was quarterback on the football team.

During the three-day period he will be available for conferences and will be in the president's office at certain hours to interview students who desire to talk with him.

Mr. Fulton will conduct two services each day, one in the morning at 11:45 in the college chapel, and the other at 7:30 in the evening at the First Presbyterian church.

All P. C. students as well as residents of Clinton are urged to attend these meetings.

Editor Hemphill Says Yearbook Progressing Nicely

Wants More Material From the "Candid Cameramen," and Names of Frat Members.

Presbyterian college's year book, "The PaC-SaC," is rapidly taking shape, according to information received from Editor Malcolm Hemphill today. All class pictures have been taken and their selection completed.

Hemphill encourages the "candid cameramen" to begin work immediately as only a few campus snapshots have been turned in. All presidents of the six fraternities are requested to turn in names of their fraternity members and pledges within the next two weeks. These names must, without fail, be in before this time elapses.

Also pictures of sponsors are to be in before the first of the year.

Cooperation in these matters is requested due to the short period which will be left after Christmas holidays in which to complete work for the book.

"Y" NOTES

By WALTER CRAIGE

One of the most important features of the work of the Y.M.C.A. is helping the freshmen to get acquainted with the college and its surroundings. At the first of the year the "Y" and the faculty had a reception for the freshman class. At this time an effort was made to have the new boys meet the young ladies of the town and surrounding country. Perhaps some of the newcomers found the girl of their dreams that night. Who knows? Later in the year the Y.M.C.A. issued a handbook and gave one to each freshman. This booklet contained much useful information about the college,

BAND TO GIVE CONCERT

The band will give a concert in the gymnasium Tuesday night before the banquet at which the Jacobs trophies are to be awarded. Harris Gray and "The Collegians" will play at the banquet.

Athletic Council Awards Block Ps To Squad Members

Only Nine Men To Be Lost To Team For Next Year.

At a meeting of the Presbyterian College Athletic council last Tuesday, ten varsity football men were awarded service stars for brilliant performances on the gridiron during the past season. Also 18 block letters, an 8-inch "P," were awarded to other players for the first time

The stars went to Macon Hipp, tackle; Jimmy Dennard, back; R. L. Boswell, tackle; "Large" Evans, tackle; Pete Holcombe, end; Giles Batchelor, back; Lykes Henderson, center; "Deke" Reynolds, back; Steele Caldwell, end (Capt.), and Allen McSween, end.

The 18 men who were awarded block letters for the first time are as follows: Walter Todd, guard; "Lukie" Culp, back; "Trigger" Ritch, back; Emmett McRae, tackle; "Buck" Finney, center; Be Moore, end; Hood Strain, guard; Billy Kee, center; Bill Bullock, guard; Carlisle Griffin, back; "Bo-gator" Atkinson, end; "Piggie" Isom, back; Joe Hollis, back; "Shorty" Horne, back; Billy Burns, guard; Charles Trammell, back, and Jim Booth, back. Bill Peeksen also received a letter for his services as manager.

Out of these 28 men who help make up a squad of 45, Presbyterian will lose only six letter men and three others. They are: "Mac" Wicker, tackle; Capt. Steele Caldwell, end; Emmett McRae, tackle; Francis Blalock, tackle; Joe Hollis, back; Billy Burns, guard; Macon Hipp, tackle; Allen McSween, end, and Lauritz Jacobsen, back.

Talbot Boys Lose Mother On Dec. 1

In behalf of the student body, the freshman staff of The Blue Stocking wishes to extend to Bill and Hampton Talbot its deepest sympathy at the illness and death of their mother, which occurred on Wednesday, December 1.

Incidents In Cadence

By "BUD" WYSOR

An order was read at drill period Thursday morning declaring that white gloves and belts hereafter would be required each Friday morning at inspection. Also it was ordered that all cadets be outfitted with brown gloves by Monday morning drill period. What a pity there is no issue of hot water bottles.

We freshmen have been drilled during the past week in the art of being used as "cannon fodder." Probably the only encouraging thing about this movement is the fact that a broken line is used. This gives a fellow a chance to be "on his own" when things start "popping."

It seems that our band has taken a turn to the symphonic side of music. On returning to the armory after drill period last week the band was found rendering a concert overture, "The Western World."

Who have you picked for the winner of the Army-Home Guard game? Not that I wish to influence any of the readers of this column, but this department is giving the Army a three-to-one edge over the "non-mil" boys. Now's the time "first-year men" may pick to settle all grudges. But, a word to the wise: These games will last only four days.

ANNUAL BANQUET TO BE HELD IN THE COLLEGE DINING HALL

Willis, Watkins and Monsky Will Be Honored At Notable Gathering of Coaches, Officials and Sports Writers.

DR. SIKES, FRANK THOMAS, EDWIN CAMP SPEAKERS

Proceedings To Be Broadcast Over Three Station Hook-up.

By AL CRUICKSHANKS

Tuesday evening at Judd hall on the Presbyterian college campus the three Jacobs blocking trophies will be presented to the winners, when the Rotary club of Clinton will be host to approximately 250 guests at a banquet.

The trophies are awarded annually by William P. Jacobs, president of the college, to football players in South Carolina, the Southern conference, and the Southeastern conference, the selections being made by ballots of sports writers, coaches and football officials in each of three divisions.

Included on the program as speakers, in addition to Mr. Jacobs, who will make the presentations, are Dr. E. W. Sikes, president of Clemson college; Frank Thomas, coach of the Rose Bowl-bound University of Alabama team, and Edwin Camp of The Atlanta Journal, known as "The Old Timer," who is regarded as one of the best football reporters in the South.

Proceedings at the dinner will be broadcast over a three-station hook-up, originating with WFBC, Greenville, and being relayed over WIS, Columbia, and WCSC, Charleston. Jimmie Thompson, sports reporter for the Greenville station will be the announcer.

Winners of the trophies are: for South Carolina, Don Willis, halfback, of Clemson; for the Southern conference, George Watson, halfback, of the University of North Carolina; for the Southeastern conference, Lucien Mosley, all-American guard, University of Alabama. These men will be present at the banquet Tuesday night and will receive the trophies. Dean of ... of Mr. Jacobs, the donor.

In addition to the trophies, which will be held by the schools represented for one year, each player will receive a gold medal which becomes his personal property.

Mr. Jacobs conceived the idea of presenting the trophies ten years ago when he offered the first to the best blocker in South Carolina. He later included the Southern and Southeastern conferences. Mr. Jacobs' motive in presenting the trophies is to give honor to the unsung heroes who clear the way for the ball carrier, whose feats are heralded far and wide, and who, more often than not, would be unable to accomplish his breathtaking touchdown gallops without the assistance of the blocker.

Present at the banquet Tuesday will be more than 200 football coaches, officials and sports writers of the Southeast who have accepted invitations, as well as members of the all-state football team team selected by the Associated Press. A picture will be made of the team, this being the only occasion when all members of this mythical eleven are actually assembled.

For the South Carolina trophy Willis received but his team mate, Al Suggs, by half a vote. Third in the running was Conrad Shuler of Furman.

Dr. Huntley Praises Work Of Glee Club

Organization Is Coming Along Nicely As Practice Continues. Plans Made for Tours.

Dr. S. M. Huntley, director of the Presbyterian college glee club, today announced a part of the proposed program for this year. Before Christmas holidays the club will make only short trips to nearby towns. After the completion of mid-term exams the club will make an extended tour through Georgia, Rome and Gainesville being their first two stops.

The club is composed of thirty members who show great enthusiasm, and give promise of being the best club here in several years. The baritone and tenor section show great improvement over that of last year.

A. K. Darby will act as pianist for the club, and the college orchestra, under the direction of Harris Gray, will accompany the club on all its trips.

As an example of style in performance, Dr. Huntley, with a group from the glee club, attended the "Don Cossack" performance in Columbia last Tuesday night.

Dr. Huntley stated that it is his opinion that the glee club this year would do a much larger college proud with the performances they intend to present this year.

Staff At Work On Next Collegian Issue

Editor Darby Urges Freshmen To Submit Material for College Magazine.

The second edition of The Collegian, college magazine, probably will be out shortly before the Christmas holidays begin, according to the a statement made today by A. K. Darby, editor.

Among the writers for this edition will be Cliff McLeod, editor of The Blue Stocking, and Adelaide Roberts, co-ed, both talented writers, who turned out some very good material for the last issue. Other writers will be Charlie Thomson, Max Jones, Robbie Rogers, Dave Dingeman, and Pete McCormick.

Darby urges that any freshman wishing to write for The Collegian see him as soon as possible. There have been few contributions from the freshman class as yet. Darby suggests that especially the 27 editors of high school papers, now in the freshman class, contribute to the college magazine.

WATCH DEMERITS, DEAN SAYS

Dean M. W. Brown, in an announcement in chapel last week, cautioned students as to demerits, and instructed them to watch the bulletin board to help check demerit errors.

No Thought For the Week

With reference to an unwritten law enforced by our most loved upper-classmen: Rule 9, Article 18, Paragraph 3, Page 11. Quote: "No first-year man, commonly known as a 'rat,' is allowed to think under any circumstances." Therefore, dear reader, the freshman staff of this Blue Stocking edition humbly regrets that it can give no "thought" to the upper-classmen.

Where Credit Is Due

By HARRY McINVAIL

To those men who fifty-seven years ago first predicted and then saw the birth of Presbyterian College, the students and graduates of this institution owe much. And now, for the first time in its history, P. C. has dedicated to these great founders and educators a suitable memorial.

On the walls of the college chapel, framed in deep gold, hang five new paintings of the men who had the vision and foresight to see that a liberal arts college could be successfully established and maintained in the city of Clinton. These men made the history of P. C. These men are the history of P. C., and the unbroken line from Dr. William P. Jacobs, I, to his grandson, William P. Jacobs, II, consists of a distinguished group which every devotee of Presbyterian should love and honor.

In what could be termed Presbyterian College's historical art gallery, hang these portraits from the brush of the artist, M. Rae. It is a collection which we, the students, should be proud of, since it is almost a living memorial to the men who made P. C.

The first painting is that of Dr. William P. Jacobs, I, who founded the college in 1880 and served as its first president. The others are of former President Neville, in whose administration many of the present buildings were constructed, and Dr. D. M. Douglas, who saw the college vastly enlarged. The last two are of Dr. A. E. Spencer, vice-president and former president of the college, and Mr. C. M. Bailey, a great benefactor of P. C.

But today, as we honor these great men of Presbyterian college who have done so much for it in the past, we cannot refrain from thinking that perhaps the period of greatest progress for P. C. lies yet ahead. With the vision which the present administration has and the plans which it will soon put into effect, there is every reason to believe that such is the case.

But to those great leaders of the past who gave the best years of their lives for the betterment of P. C., we, the class of '41, pay tribute and trust that the future may find Presbyterian College still larger, still a Christian institution, dedicated to the ideal with which they endowed it.

Thanks!

For three days now, the freshman staff of this issue of The Blue Stocking have been racking their brains in search of a way to show the upperclassmen how much they appreciate the opportunity of putting out an issue of the paper. We've written article after article, but none seemed to express our feeling as we wanted them to. Well, finally we found exactly the words we were searching for! No, they're not elaborate and flowery, but short and full of sincerity and gratitude. To all you upper-classmen we say—

"Thanks a million!"

Congratulations and conglomerations to our swimming coach and third trumpet player. They were seen "double featuring" with the Whitten sisters. Don't get your lines crossed, boys.

A member of this proud student body is truly affected with a severe case of dizzy spells and blinded with moonlight in his eyes (po' thing!) And who wouldn't be with three Margarets on the brain.

The pride of the freshman class has finally made up his mind for second semester, to attend classes at P. C. and live at Carolina. It's a shame that Fleischman can't get credit for those many hours in "astronomy" from Carolina.

Attention, Femmes: Freshman Rose wishes it known that his name is spelled R-O-S-E and not G-A-B-L-E. He hails from Gable, S. C., and not "Rose," S. C. He wants to get along on his own merits—and not those of the nation's No. 1 lover.

There should by all means be a cavalry unit at P. C. P. C. Students as a rule have one quality needed to make superb cavalrymen.

Freshman Willis made a bold promise before last Turkey day holidays. He promised faithfully to return with an explanatory epistle from his once-wuz true love and post it on the bulletin board for the student body's okay. Well, Willis? You're here and so's the bulletin board!

CAMPUS BRIEFS

Jimmy Dennard is able to be out after being in the infirmary for a period of ten days due to an injury received in the football game between Carolina and P. C.

Bill and Hampton Talbot, freshmen, were called home last Wednesday at the death of their mother. Mrs. Talbot was ill for only a short period.

Louis Culp, junior, and Macon Hipp, senior, who received injuries in football this season, have practically recovered, but both are still accompanied by a slight limp.

The "Sock and Buskin," dramatic club, will present a play entitled "The Ghost Train" on Monday night, December 13th. The play will be presented in the Florida Street school auditorium.

Professor Sturgeon, director of the National Youth Administration on the campus, urges all students to have their reports in by tomorrow morning at the latest.

All students who have not purchased the books which they signed for at the beginning of the first semester are requested to do so at once.

Arthur McElroy, coach of the fencing team, soon will announce the proposed schedule for the team. One of the teams which they will meet this year will be Rollins college, of Florida, Southern champions.

Bruce Hair, freshman, while hunting during the Thanksgiving holidays, received serious injuries when he was hit by a stray shot fired by a hunting companion.

The debating team returned Thursday night from Reed Hill, where the members attended a debating meet at Wm. Thorp college. The results of the meet will be released in the near future to teams participating in the contest.

Clash Between Army and Home Guards Wednesday

SPORTS COMMENTS

By BROOKS SHELDON

The scrapping freshman football teams from Georgia Tech and the University of Georgia put on a mighty good exhibition of football in Atlanta Thanksgiving day, but we couldn't dismiss the idea from our minds that our own freshman squad was any weaker than either of these teams. Of course both teams had larger and more material than the Anklets, but they would find it hard going to match the team work and spirit of our boys.

Our freshman football team turned out some fine performances this fall. Opening a most eventful season, with the Carolina "Biddies," they were not confident and lacked the spirit to play real impressive ball. This opening clash ended with the freshmen Blue Huse on the small end of a 31-0 score. After marching through the second string varsity, they defeated the capable Darlington prep school eleven of Rome, Ga., 26-0. After beating Wofford 59-0, these boys began to show their real power, and defeated the Newberry freshmen 14-0 the following Saturday.

The Clemson game was a tough one to lose, with mud three inches deep on the field and the ball rain-and-mud-soaked. The Tiger Cubs were surprised that this lighter but much faster team could play such hard football. The Clemson boys stayed back on their heels most of the game. Clemson made a score in the second quarter by returning an intercepted pass 95 yards for the tally. In the final quarter the Anklets were scored upon once more after a bad punt and a hard push over the Blue Hose goal stripe.

It was in this game that little Mike Mieskey showed the Tiger backs how to run on a rain-soaked field. Mieskey was truly the sparkplug of the team the entire season. It was only the natural thing to do when his team-mates elected him captain at the end of the season.

But the freshman squad showed several other promising men! Keith Fleischman and Powell Fraser, both filling guard slots, were outstanding and are looked to as promising material for the varsity squad next fall.

"Red" Lawrence, J. C. Coleman, and "Tuffy" Embler took turns in starring at end.

Rateree and Palmer, centers, played reliable and heads-up football at this position all season.

In the backfield, Gene MacIntosh, triple threat man, with an exceptionally good passing arm, was a thorn in the side of every opposing team.

"Grubby" Howard and Harry McSween held down a tough assignment at the quarterback position.

Fagan Finleyson, "Dougal" Groom and "Mac" McMillan turned in some excellent work at the tackle positions. Also two other members of the team, Hugh Flanders and Joe Carter, will see plenty of action on next year's varsity.

Your writer, like everyone else, sees nothing but a season of victory ahead for next fall. Stick with 'em, "Rats," you've got what it takes!

Varsity Cagers Begin Practice

Giles Batchelor Leads Most Likely-Looking Team Seen Here In Recent Years.

By "RED" FLANDERS

Coach Lonnie McMillian called his basketeers together last Monday for their first practice in preparation for the coming cage season. There were about fifteen men out for the initial workout, including such veterans of the court as: Batchelor, Holden, Waldrep, Holcombe, Cavin, Johnston, Woodward, and the Griffin brothers.

The team this year is one of the most promising and most experienced teams to take the court for P. C. in many seasons. With "Lonnie Mac's" coaching and their ability, the Presbyterian cagers should be on top of the state's basketball ladder this year.

The 1938 crew will be practically the same as last year's team. Heading the squad is Captain Giles Batchelor, a smooth and consistent player, filling one of the guard positions.

Lester Holden will be seen in his pivot position again, and Jake Cavin, Frank Johnston, and J. C. Griffin are capable performers at the guard position. The forwards are Ralph Waldrep, Pete Holcombe, Johnny Woodward, M. R. Griffin, Bill McLaurin, McGregor, and F. McLeod. B. C. Jarrard probably will give Holden plenty of trouble for the center position.

The squad has been working out every afternoon to get in perfect shape for their opening game shortly after the Christmas holidays. All the men are going about their work with a diligent and serious attitude and are working with a great deal of precision. When the regular intercollegiate competition begins the boys should be in the pink of condition, ready to start out on a championship drive.

Ring Contenders Take Spotlight

Twenty-three Men Report for Work. Several Experienced Fighters Form Nucleus.

Prospects for the boxing team are the best they have been in a number of years. Twenty-three men have drawn equipment to date, and there are several others expected to turn out within the next few dyas. The team is coached by Walter Johnson, head coach and athletic director, who will be assisted by Billy Burns, a member of last year's varsity boxing team.

The freshman class promises to supply a number of good mitmen. Davenport is about the best prospect, never having been defeated in this state. He received an honorable mention from the Ring Magazine, which is the national boxers' rating manual. This is quite an honor and one seldom reached by an amateur.

There are a number of meets this year, as well as the A. A. U. matches, which always attract a good many P. C. boxers The team this year will be led by Ed Lambright, captain. Clements, champion in his weight last year, is looking good. J. W. Todd and Carson are depended upon to turn in some good performances also.

Promising Tank Team At Work

Sport Returns To Program After Lapse. Prospects Look Bright As Candidates Get In Trim.

Swimming makes its return to Presbyterian college this winter after an absence of several years. Under the tutoring of the new coach, Hank Wilson, the tankmen are daily whipping into shape for a schedule that begins soon after the Christmas holidays. Appearing on the schedule are a number of larger colleges and Y. M. C. A. teams in this and surrounding states.

Prospects are becoming brighter each day with the appearance of new candidates for places on the team. Hunet Paul, sophomore, is proving to be a diver of high calibre. With the decision of Broughton to swim instead of play basketball, the breast-stroke berth is considered filled. Reed, sophomore, shows signs of becoming an excellent dash man. Reid, sophomore, who has had much experience, also will prove quite an asset.

With these men as a nucleus and several other good men the tankmen should be able to excell all past records.

"B" COMPANY MOST LIKELY TO MEET NON-MILITARY TEAM

Final Contest In Campus Intramural Football Series Looked Forward To With Interest.

HOME GUARDS WINNER FOR PAST TWO YEARS

Intramural football rolls around again with the Home Guards whipping into condition almost two teams to meet the winner of the company playoffs. Among the men reporting for practice are: Backs J. W. Todd, Pete McCormick, G. Player and Manny Moore. This foursome will prove to be considerable trouble for the Army team. The passing of McCormick and the running of Moore will be quite an asset to the Home Guards. In the line, at ends, are Red Heeth and Bill Peeksen, both rangy fellows with plenty of "umph." Tackles Allen Jones and Potter, Guards Horton and Huntley will see plenty of action in the skirmish. The center slot will be filled by Hugh McCutchen.

Last year the Home Guard team plowed through the Army to gain a 14-0 victory, making the second consecutive win for the non-military boys over the Army.

This tilt never fails to be the feature game of the "intra-murder" football program.

As the playoff progresses, "B" company, with its heavy line, and backfield to match, is out in front after defeating Company "A" 8-6, and probably will go up against the Home Guards with colors flying.

The ends for "B" company to see most action will be Huggins and B. McSween. Tackles will be Henley and Sullivan. Flanking Erwin at center will be guards Cavin and Ballard. The latter trio will be really tough to handle. Forming "B" company's backfield will be "Slick" Hanes, "Buck" Patterson, T. Q. Jones and Hayne Taylor.

Stage Prepared For Intramural Games

Four Teams Organized for Campus Football Series. Company "B" Given Edge.

By BILL ANDREWS

Time for the annual intramural football "struggle" is finally upon us. With a team from each military company and one from the Home Guards, the series this year should be one of the best ever staged. As has been the custom in the past, the teams will be coached by varsity football men in their respective companies. The coach for the Home Guards will come from their own ranks. As usual, there is a lot of talk about the prospects for the best team .

It looks to this reporter that "B" company stands a good chance of claiming the spoils that go with victory. The Home Guards are howling louder than ever this year and they may have something. June Moore is directing the Home Guards, assisted by Yank Beeman, coach at Thornwell orphanage, whose team lost only two games the past season.

Steele Caldwell, captain of the varsity football team, is coaching Company "A," with W. Todd as his assistant. "B" company is being directed by Joe Hollis and Emmet McRae. Macon Hipp is coaching "C" company, assisted by Ralph Waldrep, who was assistant freshman coach this year.

"B" Company Winner Of First Grid Encounter

In the first intramural football game of the season, "B" company nosed out the lighter, but scrappy, "A" company eleven, 8-6.

"A" company was outweighed 10 pounds to the man, but put up such a terrific fight that they held a 4-point lead throughout the game until the last few seconds of play.

The first tally came early in the first period when T. Q. Jones of "B" company fumbled an attempted kick and Hammond Adams recovered the ball for "A" company behind their opponents' goal line. Erwin came in from center to block the attempted kick for conversion. As the second quarter opened "A" company had their backs to their own goal line. Louie Porter was hit hard behind his own goal while attempting to punt. The safety ended all scoring until the fourth period.

Score: "A" company 6, "B" company 2.

The line smashing of Buck Patterson coupled with Haynes' shifty running gave "B" company three first downs in the first half to "A" company's none.

The second half opened with a long drive by "B" company from their own 20-yard line to "A" company's 23-yard stripe before losing the ball. Five successive first downs were chalked up by "B" company in this drive.

A movie finish came in the last five minutes of play. Porter dropped back to his own five-yard marker to kick. "A" company was leading 6-2, and this punt was the balance between victory and defeat. The ball came back low and before Porter could make the kick he was smothered by a host of "B" company linemen.

"B" company scored with two line thrusts after receiving the ball on "A" company's five-yard line. The try for point failed.

Final score: "B" company 8; "A" company 6.

ternities, activities, and other matters pertaining to P. C life.

Taking the phrase, "a harmony between education and religion," as its theme, the Y.M.C.A. has this year introduced a series of programs designed to interest more of the student body than regular religious services. Among the programs presented so far have been a dramatization of "Enoch Arden," movies of college life, and a program by "The Collegians," the college orchestra. By presenting clean, entertaining programs, the Y.M.C.A. hopes to make its meeting reach far more men in the future.

For those who wish some form of entertainment during these winter evenings, the "Y" has provided several games and magazines for the student body. For those who wish an evening of quiet recreation there is a warm fire and ping-pong, chess, carroms, checkers or monopoly awaiting you at the "Y" building. Go in and make yourself at home.

FROSH NAME OFFICERS AS CLASS BALLOTS

Harry McSween Chosen President; J. C. Coleman, Vice-President; Tench Owens, Secretary-Treasurer.

BROOKS SHELDON TO STUDENT COUNCIL

Going to the polls for the first time in their college career at the first class or college election held this semester, the freshman class last Friday chose Harry McSween of Charleston, as president of their class.

Brooks Sheldon of Atlanta, Ga., was elected by the student body to represent the freshman class on the student council.

The freshmen elected J. C. Coleman of Brunswick, Ga., as vice-president of the class, and Tench Owens, of Clinton, as secretary-treasurer. Joe Moore of Charleston, became class poet, and J. C. Hanes of Charlotte, N. C., was elected historian.

All of the men elected on Friday took office immediately, except Sheldon, who will be oficially sworn in as a member of the student council at the student body meeting in chapel tomorrow morning. At this time he will repeat the student council oath of office as directed by Joe Commander, president of the council and student body, after which he will be a full-fledged "G-man," one of the highest honors that the student body can confer on one of its members.

Of the six men who were elected, all are pledges of local fraternities, representing five of the six chapters here, and all six men are outstanding members of the freshman class.

Sheldon is a Pi Kappa Alpha pledge and was sports editor of the freshman issue of The Blue Stocking; McSween is a Beta Kappa pledge, and was a member of the frosh football squad; Coleman is a Pi Kappa Phi pledge and was also a member of the Blue Sox squad; Owens and Moore are Kappa Alpha pledges and have done work on The Blue Stocking and football squad, respectively. Hanes is an Alpha Lambda Tau pledge and played intramural football as quarterback.

And again, "The editor, managing editor, and business manager of The Blue Stocking shall be elected on the Tuesday of the week preceding examination week ending the first semester."

Therefor nominations will be in order for these offices on Tuesday morning, January 4th, which is the first chapel meeting of the student body after the holidays.

MAJOR MERRILL TO REVIEW CORPS AT NIGHT PARADE

Spartanburg Man To Address Student Body Wednesday.

INTERESTING PROGRAM IS PLANNED FOR EVENT

On Wednesday night at 7:30 the last parade and review of the year by the military corps will be held on Johnson field in honor of Major Howard N. Merrill, commander of the Officers' Reserve corps, of Spartanburg, who will address the student body at a special meeting of the Y.M.C.A. in the college chapel immediately after the review.

Major Merrill had an interesting and varied experience during the World war, and since has been active in the movements of various veterans' organizations of the state.

Besides enjoying distinction as a military leader of note, Major Merrill is known as an after-dinner speaker.

The review will be of especial interest, as it marks the culmination of more than three months of intensive training. After the holidays the corps will begin training for the annual government inspection to be held in the spring, which, judging by the experience and knowledge the freshmen showed in the special drill platoon some time ago, should be as successful as in years past.

Paintings Hang On Chapel Walls

Founder, Former Presidents and Friends of College Honored. Unveiling Held Today.

At a special ceremony at noon today in the chapel, seven large portraits which were presented by an anonymous donor, were unveiled in the presence of the assembled faculty, student body and visiting friends.

The donor gave the commission to execute the portraits to M. Rae, New York painter.

The paintings are of Dr. William P. Jacobs, the founder of the college; C. M. Bailey, for many years a member of the board of trustees; Captain Ellison A. Smyth, who has contributed much to the school, and who made the initial gift toward building the Smyth dormitory; Dr. A. E. Spencer, four times president of the college and now vice-president and treasurer;

Last Issue Of Current Year

This will be the last issue of The Blue Stocking before school closes for the longest Christmas holiday period in the history of the college. Classes will end at noon Friday, December 17. The college will be closed until Monday night, January 3.

The first issue of this paper after the holidays will be edited by members of the sophomore class.

GLEE CLUB TO MAKE TOURS IN JANUARY

Several Trips In Store For Men After Holidays. Twelve Numbers On Program.

Appearing before an audience for the first time this season, the college glee club, under the direction of Dr. S. M. Huntley, sang for the Wednesday night service at the First Presbyterian church last week.

Following the Christmas holidays and examinations the club, composed of 35 men, will leave on January 24th for their annual tour which this season will include performances in the northern part at Georgia at Gainesville, Rome, Elberton and Marietta, and a performance in Greenwood on their return will complete their five-day tour. Besides the tour the group will give performances at nearby schools and churches and will be heard on the annual college radio program.

The program this season will consist of twelve numbers, sung in groups of three, and will include "Liebestraum," "Allah's Holiday," "In the Time of Roses," "Ole Carolina," "The Rosary," "College Melody," and "The Song of the Volga Boatman." Besides these selections, a humorous skit has been arranged and the college quartet, along with voice, saxophone, and trumpet solos, will complete the program.

Although not as strong as previous years in some sections, the club nevertheless shows promise of a successful season.

Heavy Barrage On Four Fronts Announces Bo-Rat Week Is Here

All during the past week, the heavy barrage of deafening artillery has been going on all through the corridors of four fronts. This can mean but one thing: an attack is sure to follow; and with the time so short it must surely come any moment now. You must have guessed it by now. THIS IS BO-RAT WEEK on one front, and the TIME FOR GIVING ALL THE LITTLE FROSH THEIR CHRISTMAS PRESENTS! on the other front (?). And P. C. expects every man to do his duty!

For too long has "OAKIE" GILMORE disturbed the peaceful diners of Judd hall by his late entrances. Are we to tolerate such conduct during the quiet sequestion of our daily fare?

Then, as a special favor to the father of FRANK "VAN WINKLE" McLEOD, who must be very weary of urging his son to purchase an alarm clock we must make sure that he is properly aroused for his morning classes.

As for "BUGLER" GAUNTT (late of Milledgeville, Ga., where he claims he attended one of two state institutions) we refer him to a cotton-headed clarinet player in the band.

Is it necessary to remind the freshmen that it is their peculiar privilege to anticipate their sophomore year a bit by joining in the general horse welcome? And is it also necessary to tell them at the same time that after the holidays these same hornets will enjoy the peculiar privileges of all other upperclassmen? . . . . We don't think so.

MORE JUNIORS ARE PLACED ON PAY BASIS

Announcement Follows Three Days of Competitive Examinations To Choose Winners.

TWENTY-THREE MEN NOW ON SELECT LIST

Following the completion of three days of competitive examinations came a special report to The Blue Stocking this afternoon from Major F. C. Harding, professor of military science and tactics, that the six new men admitted to the advance military corps on a pay basis are as follows: L. H. Adams, Charlotte, N. C; R. R. Burgess, Sumter; W. P. Jacobs, Clinton; C. W. McCully, Sharon; W. E. Pope, Attapulgus, Ga., and L. D. Sullivan, Laurens.

After receiving authorization from the Fourth Corps Area headquarters in Atlanta, that the Presbyterian college R.O.T.C. unit would be permitted six vacancies, Major Harding announced that the 15 juniors now on a non-pay basis would be given not only a practical competitive examination, but that each man's cumulative grade and general record would be considered before the selection would be made.

With the addition of the six new men, the number of men now on Uncle Sam's payroll will be 23, leaving nine men still on a non-pay basis. These men will go to camp at government expense and will receive commissions as second lieutenants of infantry upon graduation along with their army classmates. Besides this, they will be eligible for equal rank with their colleagues.

With 15 men competing during the three-day exams, there was keen rivalry for the coveted six places.

Debating Team Back From Meet

Forensic Group Has Successful Trip To Winthrop.

Although a spring schedule has not yet been decided on, the Presbyterian college debating team will take several trips, making this the most active year in the history P. C. debating. Many dual debates will be arranged and the team will participate in several tournaments.

The debating team composed of C. H. McLeod, Ashby Johnson, D. W. Hudson and Roy Hutchinson, recently returned from the Dixie Practice tournament held at Winthrop college, Rock Hill. The team was quite pleased with the tournament and feels that much valuable experience was gained.

While at the tournament the Presbyterian college group debated the University of North Carolina, Asheville Teachers' college, Erskine, Wake Forest, Dartmouth, and others. Although the results have not yet been announced, indications are that the team gave a good account of itself.

The debate team prepared for the first tournament of the year by several weeks of intensive work on the subject, "Resolved, that the National Labors Relations Board should be empowered to arbitrate all industrial disputes." This is the question chosen by the national forensic fraternity.

An Appreciation!

The Junior Class takes this means of expressing not, only for itself, but also for the student body, its warmest appreciation to the Administration for the additional holidays this year and at the same time to wish for the faculty, the board of trustees, and the student body a Very Merry Christmas and a Most Happy New Year.

We Pause To Wonder . . .

Maybe Coach Thomas of Alabama thought he was going to be given a degree.

And wager that those six additional juniors who are now on Uncle Sam's army payroll believe in Santa Claus.

And announce that WE TOTA TRAY, local waiters' fraternity, will be setting the annual Christmas feed before us most any night now. (And if you try to find out WHICH night, you will be about as successful as a League of Nations disarmament conference).

And ponder which side of Alumni hall will be the first to fall if those campus-shaking explosions continue.

And to congratulate President Jacobs, not only for his fine idea of the annual presentation of the blocking trophies, but also for the fairness he has shown in his selection of the winners.

And also to congratulate Professor Sturgeon for his excellent handling of the trophy banquet and also of the gentlemen of "The Fourth Estate."

NOW WE CEASE WONDERING, AND KNOW THAT YOU JOIN US IN THANKING OUR P. C. SANTA CLAUS FOR THE ADDED HOLIDAYS AND WISH FOR HIM A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

A Christmas Gift

At the blocking trophy banquet the other night President Jacobs restated the purpose of his annual award of the trophies and at the same time emphasized the importance of recognizing unselfishness in sports, and of rewarding those who represent this fine ideal.

Christmas day is not so far away now, and at this time, before the flash and crackle of cellophane torn from beneath red ribbon, and the noisy horn of a waiting automobile drown out the real meaning of Christmas, it is fitting that we pause now and think of it.

Our first thoughts should be of those at home who, every day in the year, are in the background "blocking" for us, while we stay out in front in the limelight "carrying the ball" and getting the credit for those "touchdowns" which, without them, could never be possible.

Let us think now of a fitting way to show them on Christmas day in a special way that we realize our debt to them. Let's give THEM a blocking trophy!

Then in the months to follow let's not forget them but strive continually to carry their hopes, interest and confidence in us to greater touchdowns of unselfish achievement.

Ring Out, Wild Bells!

For us the chapel bell on Friday at noon will sound the real beginning of the Christmas season. Then on Christmas night the church bells will ring out the joyous news of the anniversary of the birth of the Christ Child, and then on New Year's night other bells will toll out the last few hours of the departing year and ring in the first hour of the new year.

Over a thousand years ago, in a humble stable in Bethlehem a Child was born, and from the tinkle of the three tiny bells hung on the heads of the camels of the Wise Men as they left the city of Christ's nativity to tell the glad news, on down to the glorious peals and chimes from the ivy-covered tower of some grand old cathedral, the bells are still ringing out the joyous story.

As each bell from a cross-crowned steeple sends out a different peal and note of the Christmas song of gladness, so can we by telling the story to some little child this year, bring happiness, not only to him but also to ourselves as well. Our story, just like one little bell, can tell the story that expresses "the hopes and fears of all the ages," and "peace on earth, good will to men." Our telling of the great glad tiding perhaps will be only one little note or chime of the vast carillon that will be ringing from the thousands of stately cathedral towers and white steeples of Christianity, but it can be as powerful as a tide that leaves the smooth sands of some continent to splash upon the distant shores of another.

The Christ Himself was only a babe in a manger when the magi paid adoration to Him, but from the time that the camel bells of the Wise Men died away in the night air of the first Christmas on the plains near Bethlehem, until the bells on Christmas night in the year 1937 take up the refrain, there never has been nor ever will be a greater sound of joy and happiness to fall on the listening ears of a Christian world.

A Christmas In England

By Prof. Kurt Weber as Told to Alvin Chapman

"I had the privilege of observing an English Christmas not long ago," said Prof. Weber in an interview recently. "The schools and colleges give a six-week holiday for Christmas in England. On this particular Christmas I was a guest at a country estate in Buckinghamshire. The festivities began on Christmas eve, when all the tenants and servants were invited to join the master in the celebration.

"The great hall downstairs was beautifully decorated. There was a tree at one end piled high with presents. At the other end an iceberg had been constructed as the background for a Christmas play. Distribution of presents followed. Then everyone danced the Sir Roger de Coverley, which is somewhat similar to the Virginial reel. During the dancing the children played games such as the Music Chair, similar to the American game, "Going to Jerusalem." The overseer of the estate supervised all these activities, since the mistress was exhausted from her preparations. The merrymakers departed and dinner was served to the house-guests It consisted of the traditional English fare for this occasion: Plum pudding that had been boiled for nine hours, turkey, and a rare bird called capercailzie. During the meal we were entertained by the villagers who sang carols outside the windows.

"At breakfast on Christmas morning guests placed Christmas cards in each other's plates. We then attended services at a small church, from the tower of which flew the flag of St. George. The parishoners partook of Communion if they desired.

"At lunch the guests had to wait on themselves, since this was a holiday for the servants.

"Christmas day was foggy and the sun shone only a little at noon. Trees are vaguely seen in the misty atmosphere and do not stand out clearly as they do on a December day in Carolina."

FALL IN!

By Pete Holcombe

Six new men are now in the advanced corps on a pay basis. Congratulations to them for their interest and persistence that won for them a place on the army pay roll.

It was a surprise to all concerned when a new sergeant was added to our military department, and it was still more of a surprise when he was taken away and transferred to Riverside Military academy. We all thought a great deal of Sergeant Knox and we wish him the best of luck at his new post. Although a new man is to take the sergeant's place, corps headquarters has not revealed who it will be or when he will report.

We feel that congratulations are in order to "C" company for their fine game the other day which brought an Army victory over the Home Guards for the first time in several years.

Advice to Coach Lonnie Mac: Come out some morning to drill and pick a good 440 man from among "Coach" Harding's and "Assistant Coach" Cummings' army ath letes.

We also commend the plan of letting the company having the fewest "D's" and "E's" wear the French Croix de Guerre, or shoulder cords, which will be in the college colors.

CAMPUS ODDITIES

WHAT DID THE CRAWFISH SAY

By BILL McSWEEN

Unaccustomed as I am to public peeping, there are a few things going on in and around this school that are too good to keep under cover. For instance . . .

"DEKE" REYNOLDS and KEITH FLEISCHMAN went to the Capital City one afternoon last week, and assured their respective, if not respectable, roommates that they would be back by supper-time . . . By twelve bells BOSWELL began to worry and at two he began looking around for another roommate. Ah! even in the fall a young man's fancy lightly turns . . . and turns . . . and turns.

The orchestra has been holding out on us! You can't tell me that excitement alone made Maestro "HAP" GRAY sing into the back of the mike, and even if you did tell me I'd think about thet cartain group of co-eds who adorned the band-stand and answer the question asked by the title of this column. "Music hath charms," they say.

Long live the king! At last the revolution is over and peace reigns supreme! After much controversy and adverse criticism the feud has been settled, and, by the ruling of nonpartisan judges, the old king remains on the throne . . . "SNAKE" TURNER, the king of them all!

We wonder if you happened to notice what we did in the Broadway last Wednesday night. Two of our football heroes were escorting a couple of the lovely co-eds of our beloved campus. If only "BERTIE" knew how her big, handsome boy gets around!

Wanderings and Wonderings

How do the boys in "A" section get anywhere now that "Ya STOWELL has stored his car fo winter?

Are women ever worth what guys go through for them? PEECKSEN and BILL McSW got up at 6:30 a. m. and stood o the sub-par weather to get ba school Monday morning. Ain't grand? By the way, the folks in berry are beginning to think tha "bills" come every week inste every month . . . Whew! That s

CAGERS GET UNDERWAY

SPORTS IN REVIEW

By JAMES HAFLEY

The season for the King of Sports, Football, has quietly taken the background but the issue hasn't been buried yet. 'Tis truly an interesting thing to find out how many capable and willing post-season "quarterbacks" we have left who could have won certain games by using such-and-such plays. All-American teams command the spotlight and interesting questions arise over the Associated Press choice, Grantland Rice's choice, Mid-Western coaches' choice, etc., etc.

Ole Timer (Edwin Camp to us sports intimates) was loud in his appraisal of football here in the fair Palmetto state and stated that leather-luggin' is definitely on the up-grade. Although short in all-American material, he said there are many South Carolina gridsters who could not go without mention for meritorious service. Such stars as Don Willis, rip-snortin' line plunger from ye olde Cow College; June Scott, Furman back, who by the way, has been the recipient of several big time pro offers; Charley Woods, Clemson pivot man, and Kooksie Robinson of The Citadel, have done much throughout the season to cause sports authorities to focus their attention in this direction.

TRIBUTE

Donated by an unselfish man to an unselfish cause each year are the William P. Jacobs blocking trophies. More trouble and opposition was encountered this year than ever before in the selection of the three men to receive the coveted awards, but after careful deliberation and unprejudiced consideration the trophies were presented here last Tuesday night at an elaborate banquet sponsored by the Clinton Rotary club. Unsung heroes who were saluted at this gathering were: Don Willis, Clemson, South Carolina winner; George Davis Watson, University of North Carolina, Southern conference winner, and Leroy Monsky, University of Alabama, winner in the Southeastern conference.

INTRAMURAL FOOTBALL

At this writing the final game is yet to be played, being scheduled for Monday afternoon, with an anticipated attendance of something near 200! Finalists will be "B" company and "C" company, the former having eliminated "A" company, and the latter proved conclusively that military organization is a vital factor even in winning football games.

It might be well to pause here long enough to name a tentative ALL-CAMPUS TEAM, and this writer dares anyone to do better. The following men are installed on the basis of their good all-round showing made in games played thus far:

Name	Position	Team
Joe Donnan	Left End	Home Guards
Bill Pursley	Left Tackle	"C" Company
Bud Huntley	Left Guard	Home Guards
Hugh McCutcheon	Center	Home Guards
Bill Moore	Right Guard	"A" Company
J. P. Ballard	Right Tackle	"B" Company
Bill Jacobs	Right End	"A" Company
John Woodward	Quarterback	"C" Company
"Slick" Haines	Left Half	"B" Company
Curly Clements	Right Half	"C" Company
George Paul	Fullback	"C" Company

Honorable mention: Adams, g; Wardlaw, t; Johnson, c; McCormick, hb; M. Moore, hb, and Commander, hb.

Trophy Banquet Staged Tuesday

Willis, Watson and Monsky Get Recognition for Work As Outstanding Blocking Backs.

"OLE TIMER" OF ATLANTA JOURNAL IS SPEAKER

Last Tuesday evening Presbyterian college acted as host at a banquet and gathering of football notables, coaches, and sports writers from all parts of the South. The banquet was sponsored by the Clinton Rotary club and three trophies were awarded to the best blockers in the state, the Southern conference, and the Southeastern conference.

Activities at the banquet were broadcast over radio stations WFBC, Greenville, WIS, Columbia, and WCSC, Charleston. Honored guests at the gala festival were Don Willis, of Clemson college, who was adjudged the most outstanding blocker in South Carolina; George David Watson of the University of North Carolina, who led the balloting for the best blocker in the Southern conference; and all-American Leroy Monsky of the Rose Bowl-bound Alabama Crimson Tide, who was unanimous choice for the distinction of being the best blocker in the Southeastern conference. The three men received the Jacobs blocking tropies for 1937.

Coach Frank Thomas of the University of Alabama, was unable to attend the function due to his busy program prior to the departure of his charges for California sometime within the next two weeks.

Edwin Camp, known to readers of The Atlanta Journal as "Ole Timer," paid a tribute to Presbyterian college and South Carolina football in his address. "Ole Timer" is regarded as a football authority throughout the South.

Before the banquet, various coaches from South Carolina held an informal meeting and discussed plans for athletic schedules for the balance of the year.

Boxing To Begin Here Next Month

The noble art of self-defense will command the sports spotlight beginning in January when Coach Walter Johnson's pugilistic charges will settle down to intensive training workouts prior to a boxing season that should prove most successful from the Calvinistic point of view. Prospects for this year's team are anything but dull and the squad is composed of capable men with much experience in glove-slinging competition.

Captain Ed Lambright, who has not yet fully recovered from an injury to his knee sustained in the early football season, has been working out each day with his teammates and shows promise of developing into a rugged and aggressive fighter. Curly Clements, a flashy lightweight, will be ready when the bell rings and will be sure to give a good account of himself. In the 119-pound class, Ralph Buchan should go undefeated throughout the season. This diminutive Tarheel is fast as lightning and is crafty and experienced in ring behavior. Other lettermen of note who have been showing up remarkably well in practice are John Wells Todd, Bill Burns, Dave Carson ,and Manny Moore. Numerous sophomores will don the gloves this year in an effort to dethrone their highly-rated team-mates. They are: Bo-Gator Atkinson, Bill Bullock, Squirrel Worrell, M. D. Shuler, Jimmy Richardson, Lykes, Boykin, and Mickey Cogburn.

Several members of this year's squad are looking forward to the Golden Gloves tournament which is to be held in Greenville sometime in January. Last year Bill Burns gained a decision over his opponent in the finals and laid claim to the novice class championship. It is hoped that several of his team-mates will meet with the same degree of success in this years' matches.

Intramural Tilts Are Successful

Company "C" Defeats Home Guards On First Downs After Extra Period Is Scoreless.

LAST GAME IN SERIES SCHEDULED FOR TODAY

Last Wednesday afternoon after five quarters of flashy offensive and defensive football, "C" company emerged victor over the Home Guards by virtue of the fact that the former tallied 13 first downs to the latter's four. At the end of the fourth quarter the score stood deadlocked, 0-0, so by mutual agreement a fifth period was played, but neither team was able to cross the double stripe. The army lads were pronounced victors on the basis of their deadly offensive drives which netted them 13 first downs while their opponents were making only four.

The game was an exciting one throughout, with neither team being able to gain any important breaks, but it was evident that the play of "C" company was somewhat superior to the non-military boys.

"C" company was to have met a strong "B" company eleven in an effort to decide the campus championship this afternoon.

Outstanding in the Home Guards ranks were: End Joe Donnan, who proved a veritable defense rock and a deadly tackler; Center Hugh McCutcheon, who demonstrated an uncanny ability to diagnose the direction of plays; Guard Bud Huntley, who was the outstanding lineman on the field; and Halfback John Wells Todd, who was a serious running threat.

Mention must be made of the following Army men who played bang-up ball throughout the fracas: Bill Pursley, who played a stellar and consistent game at tackle; Witherspoon, who was impenetrable at the left guard position; Ashby Johnson, who was deadly accurate with his passes from the pivot position and a constant menace on defense; Curly Clements, who was responsible for many first downs with his pile-driving charges, and John Woodward, who called a brilliant and smart game at the quarterback position.

The starting line-up for the game this afternoon was to have been as follows:

"B" Company	"C" Company
LE—Bill McSween	Wannamaker
LT—Sullivan	Pursley
LG—Ballard	Witherspoon
C—Erwin	Johnson
RG—Cavin	W. Williams
RT—Henley	Wardlaw

Swimming Team Hard At Work

The first call for swimmers brought an overwhelming response and Presbyterian college should be a real threat to opposing teams this year. Under the capable tutelage of Coach Hank Wilson, P. C.'s tankmen are showing flashes of championship form and precision. Freshmen are working out daily along with the varsity and, although not allowed to enter regular varsity competition, will gain many valuable pointers and much experience Coach Wilson is being assisted by Manager Ralph Stowell in instruction and practice grinds.

Arrangements have not yet been made for a definite varsity schedule but should be concluded some time within the next week or two. This schedule undoubtedly will be an interesting one and probably will include a meet with the University of Florida in Gainesville. Many other teams are being considered as possible opponents for the Presbyterian swimmers.

The varsity men who have been showing considerable promise in practice are: George Reid, Buck Patterson, Johnny Braughton, George Beatty, David Dingeman, Bill McSween, Charlton McSwain, and Hunet Paul.

Football Receipts Quarter Million

Columbia, Dec. 1.—South Carolinians paid approximately a quarter million dollars for tickets to football games played in the state in the 1937 season.

An Associated Press compilation of attendance records showed that South Carolina's eight college teams played to a total attendance of 316,000. Of these, 167,300 attended games played in South Carolina. Palmetto teams played before 148,800 spectators out of the state.

The University of South Carolina led the list by playing before 110,000 fans.

Clemson was second in the state, performing before 96,500. South Carolina played 12 games and Clemson played nine.

Court Men Look To Bright Year

Experienced Men Form Nucleus of Promising Basketball Outfit for Approaching Season.

McMILLIAN PUTTING MEN THROUGH PACES DAILY

With the graduation of several basketball players from last year's freshman team into the varsity ranks and the addition of a few junior college transfers, stock in Presbyterian college's championship cage hopes rise considerably. Coach Lonnie McMillian should be able to mould a winning combination that will take the hardwood in the first game of the season shortly after Christmas. The schedule for the Hosemen has been tentatively drawn up but will not be announced until a later date this week. The schedule will be a hard one and will probably include engagements with several out-of-state teams. The aggressive Calvinists should be able to meet any resistance with an abundance of offensive power.

Captain Giles Batchelor, who handles the basketball as he does the baseball, will form the nucleus for the P. C. team. Batchelor, an exceptionally fast and alert forward, is generally adjudged one of the best in the state and should give his opponents an example of his prowess and rare ability in the opening game.

In the pivot position will be found Lester Holden, the tall and bespectacled center who tallies field goals from all angles of the court with an unerring ability. Ralph Waldrop, one of the best all-round players in the state, will prove an excellent forward by virtue of his ability to get points and his defensive ruggedness. The guard positions will be well fortified with Pete Holcombe, Baron Cavin, Frank Johnston, and Dannell Jarrard seeing much service in the defensive posts' position. Also such able and capable reserves as Carlisle Griffin, Reynolds Griffin, Bill McLaurin, Louis Folley, John Woodward and numerous others should have many occasions to demonstrate their ability.

The varsity has been working out strenuously for the past two weeks and should be in the peak of condition for the curtain-raiser to be shortly after the holidays.

COACH JOHNSON ATTENDS THE ZUPPKE TESTIMONIAL DINNER

Friends Honor Veteran Illinois Mentor On Twenty-Fifth Anniversary.

GOV. HORNER AND JOE E. BROWN ON PROGRAM

In an interview with Coach Walter Johnson about his trip to Chicago, he reported he had a marvelous time during the entire trip.

Coach was a guest at the celebration honoring Coach Bob Zuppke of Illinois on completion of his twenty-five years of service to that school. The banquet was attended by 2,000 people, with Governor Henry Horner of Illinois acting as toastmaster. An interesting feature of the Zuppke testimonial dinner was the arrangement. It was divided into four parts, each representing a quarter of a football game. During the first period music and entertainment was furnished by the Inter-Fraternity Sing club of Chicago under the direction of Ford Morris. And, of course, an excellent dinner was served during the "second quarter."

A welcome address was given during the "second quarter" by Governor Horner and Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago. The "third quarter" was broadcast on a coast-to-coast hook-up, with Quinn Ryal as director and Governor Horner as "quarterback," and coming "into the game' 'at this time was Joe E. Brown, leading the cheering. Harold "Red" Grange introduced Coach Zuppke, who made an address. In the fourth "quarter" presentation of honors was made by Joe E. Brown.

Coach Johnson said that of all the tributes paid and gifts presented to Zuppke, he thought he was most pleased with a monogrammed sweater from the University of Wisconsin, where he (Zuppke) formerly played as a coach on the team.

While on the trip, Coach Johnson spent several days with his mother in Milwaukee. Coach said he didn't get lost, didn't miss his train, and didn't get anybody else's hat.

It will be the privilege of any student body member to suggest candidates for the several offices to the committee. The committee will nominate those found capable and submit the same to the student body for election."

The Board of Publications Control consists of the editor of The Blue Stocking, the editor of The Collegian, the editor of the PaC-SaC, and three members elected from the senior class by popular vote of the student body, and three faculty members of the student activities committee. No fraternity may have more than one member on the board except in a case where two or more editors of student publications are members of the same fraternity.

It is the privilege and duty of every P. C. student to consider nominated candidates for student offices in order that he may be able to vote intelligently.

With no military drill or chapel, classes will begin at 8:00, and periods beginning at 8:50, 9:40, 10:30, and ending at 11:20.

Fulton Closes Service Series

Using "Christ At the Door" as the subject of his message delivered in the First Presbyterian church Friday evening, Rev. Samuel Hewitt Fulton brought to a close a three-day series of services which had been opened with a meeting held in the college chapel Wednesday morning. During the three-day period, services were held in the college chapel in the mornings and at the First Presbyterian church in the evenings.

Mr. Fulton, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Laurinburg, N. C., and a graduate of P. C., was chosen by the administration to lead these services because of his particular appeal to young people.

The services proved to be very successful, being attended both by college students and residents of Clinton. In addition to leading the services, Mr. Fulton held interviews with students who wished to talk with him.

Blue Key Frat To Begin Sport Fete

Frank Johnston, president of Blue Key fraternity, which sponsors the annual intramural sports program on the campus, announced today that with intramural football ended, the organization is now making plans for a schedule of boxing and basketball which will take place shortly after the beginning of the second semester. He also said that a ping-pong tournament also is being planned.

The organization, which is a unit of the national leadership fraternity, plans to hold future meetings downtown at the hotel or some other suitable place and invite members of the faculty who are alumni of the fraternity to attend. The meetings occur once or three times a year.

At the beginning of the second semester the fraternity plans to take in about three new members from the junior and senior classes, who have shown outstanding qualities of campus leadership.

College Band Gives Concert

Appearing before an audience for the first time on a concert stage last night, the college R.O.T.C. band, under the direction of Harris Gray, presented a program of marches for an appreciative audience at the State Teaming school here in Clinton.

Aided by the inspiration and stimulus which only a concert audience can impart the band of twenty-one men from every class in college exhibited unusual poise and ability as they played the program of five famous marches, appropriately ending with "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The applause after each number was a good indication of the appreciation of the audience, later expressed by many compliments, not only by the institution's staff but also by many of the children.

P. C. Students Lead Services

The young people of the Presbyterian church presented a foreign missions program at the church Sunday. Sim Lipsey, president of the group, conducted the program.

William Talbot, Aiken Taylor, and Hampton Talbot spoke on the past, present, and future of foreign missions, respectively. The Talbots are from China and Taylor just returned from Brazil.

The collection of the evening will help to boost a share of foreign mission work.

Chi Beta Phi Going To Georgetown

Group To Invite Dr. C. J. Milling of Columbia Here For Address Early In Year.

At a recent meeting of Chi Beta Phi, local chapter of the national scientific fraternity, the organization voted to invite Dr. Chapman J. Milling, psychiatrist connected with the State hospital in Columbia, to address the society.

Dr. Milling, who enjoys an enviable record of successful scientific achievement in the field of psychiatry in the state, will speak before the annual meeting of the fraternity shortly after the holidays and the student body is invited to attend.

At a recent meeting of the group, Malcolm Hemphill spoke on "Photography" and Neille Wilson addressed the club on "Radio Activity." Both talks were interesting and instructive.

Later in the year the organization plans to visit the paper mill in Georgetown, to make an inspection and study of the chemical processes involved in the converting of wood pulp into paper for commercial use. Some members of the scientific fraternity plan to enter work of this kind upon graduation. Two of last year's graduates, Carl Johnson and M. E. Norton, are now employed in the chemical research department there now.

There will be no more meetings of the organization until after the holidays, President J. A. Witherspoon announced today.

Pi Kappa Phi Frat Honors Hutchinson

Last Saturday night Roy F. Hutchinson was awarded the Pi Kappa Phi scholarship key at their Founder's day banquet held in the Clinton hotel. This is an unusual honor, as there are only nine such awards given over the entire country and the fourth given to a P. C. man since the founding of the local chapter in 1907.

Tonight the P .C. dramatic club will present its first play of the year, "The Ghost Train." The play was first produced in England and ran there for over a year, enjoying great success. It was brought to New York where it also ran for over a year, being acclaimed one of the best comedies to be shown there for many years. It played in Columbia a couple of weeks ago before a capacity crowd. Can so many people be wrong? It must be good.

The play is a mystery comedy. The setting is in the railroad station of a small town in northern Maine. Thrills, chills, laughs, romance, and—oh, oh,—murder. To look on this train which seems to pass the station every night means certain death. Come to see what is done to curb this deadly phenomenon.

The cast is as follows:
Richard Winthrop—George Beatty.
Elsie Winthrop—Jane Sturgeon.
Saul Hodgkin—Sam Lpisey.
Charles Murdock—Louie Porter.
Peggy Murdock—Pegge Harding.
Miss Bourne—Mrs. Mary Fish.
Teddy Deakin—Eldred MacLeod.
Julia Price—Adelaide Roberts.
Herbert Price—H. T. Wallace.
John Sterling—T. Q. Jones.
Jackson—Robert Wysor.

You will split your sides at the antics of Saul and Teddy. You will howl when Miss Bourne goes on a spree.

The play will take place at the Florida Street school auditorium. Admission for students is 35c, and 55c for adults.

Religious Club Members Speak

Ministerial Students Conduct Services During Holidays.

During the holidays many of the ministerial students filled pulpits in various churches in four states, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and Virginia, and conducted other religious services. They led six Sunday services, five Wednesday evening prayer meetings, and 12 religious talks were given by the students.

This work is part of the plan of the Ministerial club to make its members familiar with conducting religious services.

Several reports have been received commenting favorably on the work these students did in their various assignments.

Leading Company To Receive Award

Citation To Be Given, Also Holidays, To Group Highest In Scholarship.

In the interest of scholarship, the military department, through Major F. C. Harding, has contrived a method of rewarding the leading military organization by the award of a citation cord to the members of the company having the highest scholastic standing. The military department is cooperating with the administration in order to boost the scholastic standing of the entire school.

The rules governing the award of the cord are as follows:

1. All organizations, including the band, will be rated each grade period on the least number of "D"s and "E"s.

2. All "D"s will count one (1), and all "E"s will count two (2).

3. The total of each company will be divided by the number of men in each company. The organization having the lowest score will be declared the winner for that period.

4. The winning company will wear the citation cord for the ensuing grade period, will form on the right at all reviews and parades and will be excused from three drill periods during that time.

The first award will be made at the beginning of the second semester, based on the first semester grades. Subsequent awards will be made each grade period.

Local Human Fly Thrills Students

Scales Administration Building Wall To View Activities On the Roof.

Members of a local fraternity were on top of the administration building erecting a radio aerial. They had reached the top by means of a ladder in the store room of their fraternity rooms, but had pulled the ladder up after them so they could use it in putting up the wires.

The boys were busily engaged in erecting the aerial when they heard a voice saying, "What's going on up there?" Someone went to the ledge and peered over. A head was thrust from the fraternity room window on the third floor. The head-thruster-outer asked, "How'd you get up there?

"We climbed up the side of the building," was the reply, and the question-answerer disappeared.

The workers continued. Soon one of them heard a scraping sound and turned to see a hand grasping the ledge of the administration building. He was afraid to say anything for fear he might frighten or distract the attention of the wall-scaler. Soon afterwards two arms were thrust over and a head and shoulders appeared, "Hi, boys," said the human fly. They turned to see the guy pull himself up and sit down calmly on the ledge.

He then told them that he figured he could do it if they had. They then informed him that they had come up by ladder.

Blue Hose Quint Drops Opener To Tigers By 41-27

McFadden Stars, Waldrep and Kitchens Amuse Fans. Candid Cameras Numerous.

By BILL McLAURIN

With a last period scoring spree that turned a so-far thrilling game into a near riot, the Clemson Tigers defeated P. C. 41 to 26, Saturday night at Clemson.

Banks McFadden, 6 feet 4 inches of sophomore dynamite, stood out head and shoulders above the other men on the floor. His unerring ability to retrieve rebounds from the backboard and uncanny eye for the basket from close range enabled him to tally 22 points in a beautiful exhibition of center play. Watson McGee, football flash, played a consistent game for the Tigers and scored 11 points for runner-up position. Captain Cheves directed the floor play in a consistent manner and deft at the art of defensive play.

Ralph Waldrep led the Blue Hose defensive with 12 points and played an outstanding game from his forward post. His long-lived feud with Ed Kitchens, Tiger star, was renewed and they thrilled the large crowd with their playful antics. Les Holden did a fine job of holding McFadden to eight points in the first half and played on even terms with him. Both had eight points as the half ended. His magnificent one-hand shot in the first few minutes of the game brought the spectators to their feet. Captain Batchelor played a nice game until a leg injury early in the second period slowed him up considerably. Hol-

The program was based upon the theme, "Facing Our World With the Living Christ," and included platform addresses, discussion sections, a panel discussion on "Kingdom Building Today," a program of sacred music, and exhibits.

Among the speakers and leaders participating in the program were Dr. A. McKay, president of Princeton Theological seminary, Dr. Robert E. Speer, Dr. Oscar Blackwelder, Dr. W. T. BELIEVE IT OR NOT

By Hugh Rutledge As Told To Pete McCormick

I worked last year as a student technician for the National Park service at Edisto Beach State park, Edisto Island, S. C. The work covered a period from June 1 to September 15.

The purpose of the work was to make a check on the animal life in the vicinity of Edisto Island and its surrounding waters. Included in the check were birds, mammals, mollusks, fossils and marine invertebrates.

During the course of the work 105 species of birds were identified and their possible abundance checked. Of reptiles, there were 20-odd species, some of which were very abundant. Twenty-four species of mammals were found on the island. There were 93 species of mollusks. Fragments of the remains of 12 pleistocene vertebrates were found and identified. The remains of one of these animals, a fossil giant armadillo, was the first record of the remains of this animal found in South Carolina. A total of 1500 fragments were found during this period of work.

The chief object of the work was to gather some idea of the abundance of marine invertebrates in the vicinity of Edisto Island. The National Park service is endeavoring to establish a marine biological research station at Edisto Beach State park. It was my purpose to determine whether there was enough marine invertebrate material to adequately supply such a station. During my work several very interesting species were day buffalo, but being about three found, one being a mud shrimp which times as large, inhabited Edisto Isis described in 1818 and very few land. The giant beaver, an animal specimens have been taken since, and about the size of a bear, made his no complete specimens preserved. Edisto Island was found to be literally covered with these animals. A species and sand bug, several crabs and brit-to regional headquarters at Richmond, tle-stars (a specie of star far) all of which were thought to be very rare, were found in abundance on Edisto.

Very few people realize that in the past ages South Carolina was the home of a great number of enormous and odd-appearing animals. Several species of elephants roamed these parts, these animals being members of both the mammoth and mastodon families. A giant ground sloth, an animal almost as large in bulk as an elephant, but not so high, roamed the forests. Camels were numerous at that time. The royal beast, which looked very much like our present, port pertaining to the work was sent

"Thou Shalt Not Kill"

Twenty years ago our fathers realized the uselessness of war. They came to the realization that war was one way, the worst, of settling international disputes. Today there is not a single, sane man who experienced the horrors of war in the struggle of 1917-18, or even one who remained at home that would, under any circumstances, agree that war is a satisfactory means of settling disputes. Just walk up to any man on the street and ask him.

War is savagery! This thing called "fighting spirit" is a noble thing but it does not go so far as to include "killing spirit." A country is not wholly civilized as long as it continues to war against its neighbors. In my opinion a warring nation is anything but civilized. Would a sane man seek to murder half a dozen people for some reason which he hardly understood? That's what war is—MURDER, the most God-forbidden crime.

In the World war we had many fine young men slaughtered and trampled. Those men, for the most part, would have been great men, but they did not live to have the chance. They were forced to fight someone for whom they had no hate. In many accounts of World war veterans we find that many times a U. S. boy would feel like throwing down his arms and quitting because he felt he was murdering men, in cold blood, for no reason other than some international argument. Murdering innocent men to save the pride (bah!) of the U. S. government. Has our government any pride? And if it has, is it right to sacrifice hundreds of thousands of young lives, valuable lives, for it? Many of them were brave, heroic, and were glorified. They might have been more glorious had they lived. Hundreds of thousands of mothers and wives were left stunned and horrified by the privations that such a world catastrophe had brought! Is it worth it?

Today there are wars and rumors of wars. Will the same thing happen again that happened in 1917-18? Imagine yourselves in the same horrible predicament in which our fathers found themselves back in '17. Today there are thousands of fine young college men preparing themselves for business and setting their goals. There are also those who are as good as we, maybe better, but who didn't get the chances we have. Many of us will fail in our efforts to reach our goals. Others will succeed in attaining their goals and some will excel. Is is satisfactory for us to die to settle a dispute, or is it necessary? In this country we stress justice. We do have justice to a certain extent, but is mass murder justifiable? Of course not! Then why should we go to another country and do something that would mark us as the worst type of criminal if we did the same thing here? Murder is murder in any language, in any country, and murderers should be punished. In war we murder freely and are murdered, but does punishment result? The only punishment is seeing and knowing the horrors of war.

Rotten, corrupt politics is a great cause of war. Plotting politicians and munitions manufacturers can ruin all hopes of peace. In our own country we have some of the foulest, rottenest, most corrupt politics found anywhere. Money is the root of this as of all other evils, but what is money when there are millions of lives at stake? However, crooked politicians and munitions manufacturers think only of their personal gains.

As college men there isn't much we can do at present except express our wholehearted disapproval of war, but in a few years we will be out in the world of business where our actions and opinions will mean a lot. Many of us will be in politics and prominent professions or offices where we may be able to break or make a town, city, state or even the nation. Seeing these United States as they are today we should realize the rottenness of the whole business and hope that our methods of government and politics will be much cleaner and more improved. At that time we can make or prevent wars. Will we do it? Is is not better to lose our over-publicized governmental pride than to lose millions of priceless lives? You, in future years, can answer this challenge. What will your answer be?

—P. Mc. '40.

"AND IN FIFTY YEARS—"

By HUIET PAUL

If you should visit Clinton in 1988, you would be impressed tremendously by the vast improvements which shall have taken place at the college during the last fifty years. It is not improbable that you would send the following observations to your room-mate in the class of '40 who has not been able to return to the old place in the last fifty years:

Dear "Grandpaw":

You wouldn't recognize the old place, except for its traditional spirit. Two modern dormitories have taken the places of Laurens and the old hall we used to call "Frog Hollow" and "Hog" Wallow." They have also constructed another dormitory across South Adair St. from the time-honored Spencer Hall. All are identical three-story structures, accommodating 100 men each. All five dormitories are filled and prospective students find it necessary to make reservations a year or two before coming in order to obtain that nationally-famous "Personalized Education."

The new dormitory suites are equipped with television, radios, sound-proof walls and floors. All buildings on the campus are air-conditioned, have indirect lighting and are fireproof. The indirect lighting had aided the students in studying under more satisfactory conditions.

The fact that there are 200 more students now than in our days doesn't impair the congenial, family atmosphere which we experienced because all of the present-day students are hand-picked as carefully as they were in our days.

The school has constructed an additional hall for classes and research. The half-million dollar library, which was under construction when we left renders unbelievable services and pleasures through means of its large forum room, reading parlors and book shelves.

The dining room has been doubled in size and a public address system has been installed for making announcements. "Little Hawk" Hunter makes all announcements.

After many seasons near the top in Eastern competition the football team has come through the season, scoring 381 points and trampling all opponents, most of them by large scores. At last the greatest of small schools has made the Rose Bowl and, as you know, P. C. beat Stanford 27 to 0. The season's scores were as follows:

P. C. 40	Clemson 0	P. C. 12	Colgate 0
P. C. 27	Duke 0	P. C. 175	Wofford 0
P. C. 21	Ga. Tech 0	P. C. 20	Notre Dame 0
P. C. 14	Pitt 7	P. C. 9	Minnesota 0
P. C. 36	N. C. State 0	P. C. 19	Harvard 0

Rose Bowl: P. C. 27 Stanford 0

Incidentally, there were five P. C. men on the all-American first team.

The basketball team is taking to the hardwood this week to begin defending their 1988 Southern Conference championship.

There are ten sports in which the school competes intercollegiately, including a new, fast swing ball game.

The enthusiasm of the alumni organization in the past is credited with most of these accomplishments. The school of '88 is very grateful to them.

Let's go to Homecoming this fall, or can you still walk? I'd like to see the '88 Blue Hose play Dartmouth. I'm a little deaf but I'm good for a couple more years. Write me.

Your buddy.

The Reviewing Stand

The new plan instituted by the military department has become the topic of much conversation. Already "D"s and "E"s are in retreat. Company officers are working on those men who have low grades in order to raise the standard of their respective companies. The company having the lowest per cent of "D"s and "E"s will have the honor of wearing distinctive shoulder cords. Also, the company will be excused from three drill periods during the next month. This itself seems inviting enough to warrant the men pulling their grades up. Much interest already has been shown and should increase because of the keen competition between companies. Who will be the first to wear shoulder cords?

We have a new sergeant in the person of Sergeant Comstock. Welcome to P. C., "Sarge."

The drill, especially close order, is quite improved. This is brought to our attention by the congratulations of an outsider. This unknown friend told Major Cummings, "The drill at P. C. is better than ever."

Hint: There's a lot to be learned by reading the Military Manual. Reading it more would help the quit as a whole, as well as increase our limited knowledge of military. Study something every good leader has.

Reminder: Those who fail out for rook pull ratings next year had better think about "make-up" drill.

Resolution: Get longer rating again this year. Bring back more cups from camp this summer. Work hard for perfection in everything.

"PETE" McCORMICK

Financial sorrows dominated public sentiment during 1937 and yours truly (your friend and cigarette moocher) has accumulated no more wealth than nothing and no less than the least. However, it was a great year. The Yankees won the world series and I won two-bits on the Joe Louis-Tommy Farr fight.

Now for a round-up of 1937. Heah goes:

There was and is a revolution in Spain (yah, I know you know) . . . Japan expanded some 15,000 square miles at the expense of China . . . Hilter shaved off his mustache 'cause he thought it looked like that of Clark Gable . . . Mussolini gave all three-year-old Italian boys nine-pound rifles for Christmas . . . Stalin continued his one-man revolution in Russia . . . Japanese dropped some firecrackers on board U. S. ship "Panay" . . . Chinese introduced ketchy song-hit called "Sing Hi, Sing Lo" . . . Everybody celebrated his birthday . . . Clemson tied Furman . . . Coach Johnson completed his twenty-second year as head coach at P. C. . . . Bim Gump found a baby on his front porch . . . Meisky was declared the ugliest man on P. C. campus . . . Mickey Mouse was winner of the Academy award for best individual performance . . . Hailie Selassie selected to African Academy of Arts and Sciences . . . Mahatma Gandhi changed sheets . . . Supreme court declared everything unconstitutional except Joe DiMaggio's contract with the Yankees and Joe was a holdout himself . . . "Swell People" celebrated her 17th birthday last January 10th (one year ago today) . . . "The Big Apple" was originated . . . C. D. Jacobs gained 10 pounds . . . Mickey Finn got in the movies . . . Jim Booth shaved twice . . . Franklin D. Roosevelt went fishing . . . and Dingeman changed underwear.

And now, to change the subject, we will kinda look into the future and see what we shall see about the coming 12 months of 1938. The following predictions were originated, compiled, accumulated, and voted on by McCormick, McCormick & McCormick, Inc., Predicters, patent pending, copyrighted 1927, disorganized and reorganized the same year. P. S. Disorganization in progress at present. Let's get back to the subject.

Looking into '38. Heah goes:

Japan will expand over all China and will be denying that she has any troops in that section, that she has any troops at all, and that there ever was such a place as China. She will name the whole territory "Ja- and then some fool will write a about "Japina" and a certain flour company will change its to "Old Aunt Japina." She will be next to Russia and will try pand a little more, but this they'll be working on the five- plan . . . Joe Penner will start farm . . . A party of Individu will work on plans to have the and Duchess of Windsor nomin for king and queen of the U. S. There will be war scares weekly will make a total of 52. and d the excitement the U. S. will be ing the Eskimoes to emerge their igloos, Germany will pass order that Hitler must wear his tache, Italy will declare Il Duce gible for being bald-headed, and make identifications much easier Isia will pass an order that all be must be shaved . . . There will census taken in Africa . . . Stalin have Russia to himself . . . A dance craze called the "Extra-St Grapefruit" will be introduced The Yankees will win the A. L nant again and will play the St. L Cardinals in the world series Jim Farley will resign as postma general to take a job with Hearst I will clean up my room . . . P. C win S.I.A.A. championship in f ball . . . Mae West will marry H Herbert . . . There will at one t be a nationwide strike by every w ing man except the men who p the signs saying what the strikes for, and then they will go on s because of too much work . . . Be Goodman will be recrowned "King Swing" . . . Huey P. Long's g will return to Louisiana, knock on state-house door and say, "Open damned door or I'll call out the litia . . . The Briar Hopper boys be promoted to California (I h . . . Dizzy Dean will catch lock and lose every game he pitches Supreme court will declare the A ican constitution unconstitutional Roosevelt will have that tooth pu . . . All football players will be salaries and can be traded as in football . . . Max Schmeling will heavyweight crown from Joe Lo . . . There will be another Christm . . . And I'll still insist there a na Santy Claws.

P. S. If you don't understand above prognostications (ah! I fina got that big word in) just send blank sheet of paper to McCorm McCormick, Smith & McCormick, In Predicters. (Notice: we've added other member to our corporate Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C

SPORT SNATCHES

By BILL McLAURIN

Throughout the season, for a losing cause, the typical "P. C. Spirit" was displayed by the football team. We quote, "For when the one great scorer comes to write against your name, he writes—not that you won or lost—but how you played the game." What more need be said for a gallant little band of gridiron warriors and a matchless coach . . . With the veterans Holden, Captain Batchelor, Holcombe, Waldrep, Johnston, Cavin and Folley to form a "nucleus" and several outstanding freshmen performers as the "protoplasm," Lonnie Mac should be able to form a winning "cell" for the hardwood encounters this winter.

Outstanding among the freshman ranks of basketeers are Meisky, High Point high flash; McMillan, all-stater from Charleston; Moore, another Charleston boy; Embler, southpaw from Anderson, and Willis, from Moultrie, Ga. . . . Swimmers may be seen stroking into shape almost any afternoon. Coach Wilson has arranged a southern trip for his amphibians . . . The most promising group of boxers in years are taking off weight and adding muscle and ability under the tutelage of Coach Johnson. Capt. Lambright, Clements, Buchan, Todd, and Carson are the veterans.

Sutton and Davenport are the frosh leather-slingers showing promise . . . Two former P. C. stars coached high school teams to successful seasons. Bill Clark, Union boy, and his North Charleston lads were runners up in the "B" class division in S. C., losing to Honea Path, 13-6 . . . Dana McLendon, Bennettsville lad, who turned our several state championship teams at Beaufort, S. C., does the trick at Griffin, Ga., and had an undefeated season. Only 12 points were scored against his boys and that was while the second team was laboring in a 38-12 victory . . . "Goof" and "Vic" had a heartbreaking season over Chester way. The cyclone just couldn't get started roaring . . . George Cleckler, '37, is coaching basketball at his home town, Menlo, Ga.

New block letters, given out before the Christmas holidays, lending that certain "twang" to college life . . . "Large" Evans was the iron man of the football squad, having missed only 15 minutes in the 10-game schedule . . . Be Moore, sophomore star, was second with 526 out of a possible 600 minutes . . . Congratulations to "Cotton" Boswell upon being elected captain of the 1938 Blue Hose football machine. (Their New Year's resolution was not to lose 10 games next year). . . . Pete Holcombe is Boswell's alternate. Both are rising seniors.

Unusual what college can do for a boy. Some of the frosh football players put on as much as from 10 to 20 pounds snice entering school . . . Sounds good, huh, Coach? . . . FLASH!! Seen, in the low country, several hefty boys (all-conference) who would like to play under Coach and attend P. C. . . . Alberto Luisetti, Stanford senior, shot 23 field goals and 4 fouls for a total of 50 points in 38 minutes in a recent game with Duquesne. He has already broken the three-year collegiate scoring record and is just beginning his last year. Wataman!

Leroy Monsky, Alabama captain and all-America guard, and winner of the Jacobs trophy, was the heaviest man on the Tide team at 197. If you heard the game you know he played an outstanding game in the Rose Bowl . . . With the next issue of The Blue Stocking the regular staff calls it quits. We wish at this time to commend Jake for putting out one excellent sports page after another. We enjoyed it, Jake, even if the poemtry did "stink" Think it's time I quit, too; don't you? I thought so.

FROSH QUINT WINS COUPLE

Defeat Joanna and Slater Mill Teams In Two Thrillers.

Previous to the varsity game with Brandon mills the Blue Anklets defeated Joanna, 35-20. The frosh used 20 players in the fray, no team remaining in the game more than five minutes at a time. Paul McMillan led the scoring with nine points, Moore with six, and Fleischmann with five, followed in close order. E. Abrams tallied nine points and Morse and Prater four each to lead for Joanna.

Thursday of last week the frosh came from behind to win again. This time Slater mills were their victims by a score of 25-17. Trailing 13-7 at the half, the frosh put up a stone wall defense the second half and held the Slater lads to four points and a total of 17, and also displayed a fast offense of their own.

Howard was the sparkplug. He played a beautiful floor and defensive game and was high scorer with eight points. Embler and Meisky followed with five and four points, respectively. Pinson, P. C. graduate, and coach of the Slater boys, led the night's scoring with 10 points.

Baby Blue Sox Lose To Cubs

First Loss Out of Three Starts. Cockley Twins for Clemson, and Coleman, for P. C., Star.

In a rough-and-tumble affair, filled with thrills and spills and plenty of good basketball, the Clemson frosh spilled the Blue Anklets of P. C. by the score of 38 to 26 at the Clemson field house Saturday night, in a game that preceded the Clemson-P. C. varsity contest.

The entire Clemson team played bang-up ball, their offensive game being excellent and their defensive play invincible. The Cockley twins, Washington, D. C., cage flashes, led the Clemson "rat" offensive, always shooting unerringly at the basket and playing unexcelled floor games. Buchanan also played good ball and figured highly in the scoring.

J. C. Coleman, elongated forward, led the Blue Anklet attack with a stellar offensive game, while Meisky, diminutive flash, and McMillan, all-stater from Charleston, played nice defensive and floor games.

The game was the third played by the frosh and the loss was their first of the year, having defeated the mill quints from Joanna and Slater.

Crawfordville, Ga., high is the next quint on the Baby Sox program. The game will be played in the college gym on Thursday night at 7o'clock.

combe tallied his four points.

The game was a colorful affair with Kaldrep and Kitchens kidding each other, and numerous candid camera fiends flashing away with shots of the outstanding plays of the game. The gym bore a resemblance of the Democratic convention so often did the flashlight cameras flare.

It was a tough game to lose, but it may be said that the Hose lost to a brilliant quint. Furman will be entertained in the college gym tomorrow night in what promises to be another colorful affair.

Galloway Calls For Pitchers, Catchers

Chick Galloway, baseball coach, requests that all varsity and freshman pitchers and catchers who are eligible for baseball the coming spring, report to the gym as often as possible for work-outs. There will be a chart in on the wall and all candidates are urged to fill it out according to the directions attached. Galloway states that this chart will provide him with the necessary information which will resault in his choice of pitchers and catchers for both the varsity and frosh baseball squads.

Coach Galloway has high hopes of successfully defending the state championship which was won by last year's varsity club and he urges that all men work regularly and hard so that this can be done.

P. C. Basketeers Take First Two But Drop Third

Defeat Brandon and Monaghan Mills, Lose To Pacific.

In two practice games before the holidays, the Blue Hose were victorious over Brandon and Monaghan mills. Both games were played on the local court.

Brandon was met on Monday night and the crafty Hosemen took an early lead to win 53 to 30.

Holden was the sparkplug of an early scoring spree, tallying 10 of the first 12 points. He found the range with beautiful one-hand shots. Waldrep led the second half scoring. He also used one-hand shots to effect. Holden with 12 points, Waldrep with 11, and Johnston with seven, led the scoring. McDonald with nine points and Price with eight, were outstanding for Brandon.

The Hose clicked early and held their lead. Holden was high scorer again with 11 points. Pete Holcombe and Ralph Waldrep followed closely with 10 points each.

PREVARICATIN' PRATTLE

— By —
D. R. DINGEMAN

Well—comes the end of New Year's and Christmas vacations and with it the end of fun and the beginning of work—so you tell your folks. But you've got to realize that exams'll get you if you don't watch yourself. This is probably a poor way to start a column because everybody already is well aware that the old grind is started again and everybody knows that exams ain't fur away—but just a gentle reminder of this dire news.

What with New Year's and all that sort of thing we bring you some of the resolutions that have been unearthed on the campus and some that didn't get unearthed but ought to have been:

PETE HOLCOMBE has resolved that he won't turn on his new electric razor when B. Goodman is playing.

JOHNNY NEXSEN has decided to start studying again and quit bowling so much.

MUSSOLINI or MUSCLE-INI has decided to give Ethiopia back to Haille Selassie and give him some modern guns so they can go to it again and maybe have a better fight.

The Japs have decided to help the poor Chinks out by trying to get the Americans into the war by blowing up Hawaii next week and they solemnly swear they won't blow up the Panay (pronounced Puneye) again.

BE MOORE has decided to change sheets at least once every six months whether they need it or not.

HAMMOND ADAMS has resolved to censor all telegrams from strange women to his gal asking for all sorts of things. It seems that one unknown woman wrote a long telegram to his gal asking for for some little mementoes that he had given his A-1 gal. Bad business that, don't you think.

A little item involving some of the local talent. It seems that our "ROMEO" Hall has been making some time with MICKEY ROBERTS while she was away for the holydays. Tch, tch.

It was recently brought to our attention that a certain prominent member of the Ministerial club returned a bit early from the Christmas holidays to be with SHIRLEY WILKES. If you want to know more we will tell you in a later issue.

With a BOB THOMASON'S face and grocery of love. Well, it has come to us that he got a letter from his gal in which there was a picture and it was such a nice one but the dresser is kinda small and so we have been wondering where he is gonna put it.

Speaking of college men the holidays did not cause us a person so engaged as "SUNSET" FLEISCHMANN. He has, since you once knew as blonde, comes back with a decidedly reddish tinge. And how. That, incidentally, is where he got "the most" ... more.

Rumors were twice out of dear ole Georgia last week concerning four bits it seems to suite the Big Apple. Incidentally, the Apple seems to be spreading over the country. But it's shameful the way everybody professes to know the original and only Apple and none of them seem to know the original. Every locality has its own style of Appling and some of them ain't so hot.

Lamar Castleberry has resolved to quit wearing towels 'n stuff under his pants when he visits these vicious sophs. Somebody discovered his secret before Christmas . . . Footsie Cooper resolves that he will wash his feet at least once a week as well as take an occasional bath . . . All baseball players have resolved to try to keep from being in "Chick's" famous double "P" club . . . Joe Commander has resolved to get more suits for Royal . . . M. D. Shuler has resolved to wear that hoboish-looking hat all the time . . . Pete Brooker says he is going to comb his hair for an hour a day until it will lie down perfectly . . . Darby resolves to quit punning and talk sense . . . Henry (the janitor) resolves to tell McCormick and Dingeman a few things about their room—he says he is tired of wading through a foot of garbage every morning when he comes in to clean up . . . Timmons resolves to be the best sophomore in military . . . C. D. Jacobs is going on a diet . . . Ballard is going to use Lifebuoy from now on . . . W. P. 10 SENIORS WILL BE HONORED

NAMES WILL BE ENTERED IN AMERICAN COLLEGE YEARBOOK

Commander, Johnston, Williams, McLeod, Johnson, Gray, Hipp, Darby, Dillard and Hemphill Chosen For Places.

COLLEGE TO HAVE PAGE IN NEW PUBLICATION

Dean Marshall W. Brown announced that ten members of the Senior class have been selected as Presbyterian's entries in The American College Year Book to be published in April. These ten have been selected in accordance with the rules of the editor of the book which states that each must be chosen for some one outstanding honor achievement received in college, such as Best all round, Best speaker, etc. The ten students and the superlatives for which they will be put in the book are as follows: Frank R. Johnston, as The Most Likely to Succeed; E. Asby Johnson, as The Best Scholar; Macon Hipp, as The Best Athelete; Cliff H. McLeod, as The Best Journalist; Wandell Williams, as The Best Speaker; Joe Commander, as The Best All-Round; Artemus K. Darby, as The Best Magazine Writer; Harris Gray, Jr., as The Most Talented; Bebe Dillard, as The Most Popular Co-ed; and Maycolm Hemphill, as The Best Business Man.

The selection of these ten is based on the recent superlative contest sponsored by The Blue Stocking and The Pac-Sac for the Junior and Senior classes. Only ten members of the Senior class are eligible for inclusion in The American College Year Book; therefore, in cases where a Junior won first place in a superlative and the Senior second, the Senior was selected because the Junior is not eligible for selection until his Senior year.

In the book each college sending in entries will have one full page which will contain the pictures of the ten students as well as brief biographies of each, a message from the president of the college as well as two or more scenes from the college campus. Beside the picture of each student will be written the superlative for which he was chosen such as, The Most Likely to Succeed.

This book is being published by Harry E. Fry of New York and has as its object the giving of a dignified and permanent annual reference book for giving national scrutiny to the outstanding graduates of the leading colleges and universities. It is different from the regular Who's Who in that selection for it is not based on all round outstanding ability but for

Orchestra Makes Season's Plans

Harris Grey, director, announced today the plans of the orchestra for the coming months. The orchestra has two new members, Jack Pascal and Morgan Craig, wheih brings the total up to twelve including a vocalist.

The orchestra already has several engagements for February among them being the President's Ball at Chester. Later on in the spring they will play for the Limestone Junior-Senior.

Grey also stated that the orchestra had been rehearsing a great deal for the glee club trip which starts Monday, January 24. During the holidays he collected several special arrangements for the orchestra and Kent Darby, pianist, has arranged them.

Anyone wishing to learn how to play any intrument this spring should get in touch with either Patterson or Grey as soon as possible. Several are learning now.

Sock And Buskin Gives First Play Of This Season

"The Ghost Train" Given Monday Night. Is First of Three Plays To Be Presented.

Last Monday night at 8:30 in the Florida Street school auditorium the Sock and Buskin, P. C. dramatic club, presented its first play of the current season, a three-act drama, "The Ghost Train."

Observers were of the opinion that Eldred F. MacLeod, "stole the show" in his impersonation of the English detective from Scotland Yard who posed as a silly young English playboy up until the climax. Using the Englishman' brogue effectively, McLeod several times caused the audience to burst out in laughter.

A creditable performance also was given by Mrs. Harold Fish who played the part of the lady in her early thirties, Miss Bourne, who passed out during the middle of the action due to an over-indulgence in the contents of the Englishman's flask.

The play was one of deep interest using as its theme a ghost train which passes by a certain station house during the night. Several times the action became so eerie as to cause the audience to burst out in exclamations.

Others who took part in the play were Jane Sturgeon, Sam Lipsey, Louie Porter, Pegge Harding, Adelaide Roberts, H. T. Wallace, T. Q. Jones, Robert Wyson and George Beatty. Most of these gave very good performances.

For the first time in the history of the club reserved seats for the season were sold, a situation that has turned out to be very satisfactory according to officials of the club.

MID-WINTERS TO BE FEATURE OF THIS MONTH

Annual Series Will Be Held the Week-end of Jan. 28-29.

DEAN HUDSON'S BAND WILL FURNISH MUSIC

John Woodward, president of the Pan-Hellenic council announced today that the annual Pan-Hellenic mid-winters will be held the 28th and 29th of this month in the new Armory building.

Dean Hudson and his orchestra will furnish the music. This band has been very popular at various schools and other places it has played. Featured with Hudson's orchestra is the vocalist, Miss Frances Colwell.

Woodward said that some who have heard the band state that it will be the best orchestra to appear here in some years. The series will open with a formal Friday night at 10 o'clock, a tea dance Saturday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock and an informal Saturday night from 9 to 12 o'clock.

He also said that the price for block tickets to the series will be $3.75.

This is the second of the Pan-Hellenic series ever to be held in the new Armory.

WITHERSPOON RESIGNS AS I. R. C. PRESIDENT

On Friday night the I. R. C. met for the last time this year. President Jack Witherspoon tendered his resignation since he will graduate at the end of the semester. Dugald Hudson had charge of the program. He spoke on the Ludlow Amendment. By a unanimous vote the club decided that it was not in favor of this proposed amendment. Before adjourning the club appointed Vice-President George Beatty to finish out Witherspoon's term.

Dugald Hudson was given ninth place while Cliff McLeod was ranked eleventh.

The tournament was attended by 227 delegates from 35 colleges from the eastern, western and southern sections of the country. This was the sixth annual Dixie Forensic tournament to be held. Colleges as far east as Dartmouth, as far west as Nebraska State Teachers college and as far South as Stetson, Florida, attended. Results of the tournament were not given out until a few days ago.

Out of the forty men and women speakers entered in the Impromptu speaking contest Dugald Hudson won third place.

All debates entered in by the team composed of Johnson and McLeod, negative; and Hudson and Roy Hutchinson, affirmative were non-decision practice debates. However, the individual speakers were ranked according to the ability which they showed.

McCORMICK AND McGREGOR ALSO WIN STUDENT ELECTION

Editor, Managing Editor, and Business Manager Are Chosen In Annual Race.

WILL TAKE CHARGE WITH JAN. 31ST ISSUE

In the annual student body elections for offices of The Blue - Stocking, which were held last Tuesday and Wednesday Louis G. Heckle, a senior, of Fort Valley, Ga., was elected editor for the next two semesters of school. D. M. (Pete) McCormick, a junior, of Clio, was elected as managing editor for the coming year while Julius S. McGregor, Jr., a sophomore, of Ruby, was chosen as business manager.

In the first run-off held last Tuesday Heckle defeated his only opponent, James Hafley, while McCormick defeated Bob Thomason and Robert Ellison. The second run-off had to be held in the race for business manager when Milton Norton was eliminated on Tuesday; in the election Wednesday McGregor defeated the other uneliminated candidate, Lykes Boykin.

Heckle will succeed Cliff McLeod as editor and will take charge of the paper with the January 31st issue. He has served as managing editor of the paper for the past year and has been conducting the column for the paper, The Inquiring Reporter. McCormick succeeds Heckle as managing editor. He has been on the staff the past two years and has been conducting a column of news on other campuses called Campus Cruising. The other winner, Julius McGregor, has served as circulation manager for the paper during the past year. He will succeed John Bonner, a member of the junior class.

All these men will serve until the middle of the next school year, at which time the regular elections will be held again.

Observers reported that the elections this year were not as spirited as usual, although the voting was heavy.

Illness Prevents Heckle Taking Over Next Issue

The next issue of The Blue Stocking will be edited by the present editor and staff at the request of the new editor, L. G. Heckle, who is sick and unable to take over his duties as editor.

The present issue was prepared as the last of the present staff because the new staff is supposed to take charge with the next issue; therefore, the next issue will be considered as having been issued under Heckle's administration. This is the last one under C. H. McLeod's administration.

Because of his illness Heckle was unable to announce his staff this week but will give it out next week.

PAPER NOW IN 19TH YEAR OF PUBLICATION

The Blue Stocking Founded In 1919 By Class of '20.

FIRST PUBLISHED EVERY OTHER WEEK

This year The Blue Stocking reaches the age of nineteen. Founded in 1919, the paper has been published every year following up to the present time. The first editor, C. W. McMurray, started the publication as a bi-weekly. Three years later, under the editorship of C. J. Milling, now a psychiatrist at the State Hospital in Columbia, the publication date was changed to make it a weekly and a weekly it has remained ever since.

Many stories are told concerning the problems of the early staffs, who worked in the days when sources of campus news were few and far between. One early issue came out, a sheet but slightly smaller than the one now used, with only three news stories on the front page. A three-column streamer head captioned one story, an done-column heads on each of the outside columns headed the other articles. In the articles themselves, the author, when he had said all that could be said about the matter, did not stop but set about repeating the whole thing in a novel way, just in order to make sure the article filled space.

Some of the former editors are now engaged in newspaper work. W. J. MacFarlan and R. S. Latimer are doing newspaper work while T. H. Wingard is editor of the Independent of Kannapolis, N. C. Hugh Holman is director of publicity at P. C.

The list of editors are as follows:
1920—C. W. McMurray, now a minister.
1921—R. G. Mathieson, now president of a junior college in Kentucky.
1922—J. T. McDonald, deceased.
1923—C. J. Milling, psychiatrist State Hospital, Columbia.
1924—E. D. McMahan.
1925—H. J. McLaurin.
1926—W. J. MacFarlan.
1927—T. H. Grafton.
1928—L. W. Jackson.
1929—R. S. Latimer.
1930—C. W. Grafton.
1931—O. W. Chapin, now a minister.
1932—L. C. Jackson.
1933—B. W. Covington.
1934—T. H. Wingate, editor of The Independent, Kannapolis, N. C.
1935—Frank Gruse, Rock Hill.
1936—Hugh Holman, Publicity Director, P. C.
1937—Sadler Love, Jacobs and Company, Clinton.

INTERVIEWS

— By —
"PETE" McCORMICK

The new staff of Lykes Boykin will take over this paper beginning with the next issue. For the past year the paper has been a very good one and we give its editor, C. H. McLeod, full credit for having done a swell job. The staff has cooperated wonderfully and should also be given due credit.

At this time however, it would be very appropriate to publish student opinions in regard to the question: "HOW CAN THIS PAPER BE IMPROVED DURING THE COMING YEAR?"

Well, the first person to be interviewed was HUBERT (Frog) WARDLAW, president of the Ministerial club, head waiter in the dining hall, member of the glee club and quartet. We put the question to him. After a few minutes of serious thought and discussion, he said: "Well, there should be one radical change made, if possible, and that is to enlarge the paper to six pages, That, of course, would mean that more money should be allowed by the administration. It is impossible, naturally, to make a six page paper with the allowance which the administration gives us. Secondly, there should be more humor and a higher type of humor—for instance, there should be a humorous column orginated by one of the staff members. Third, the paper should carry one or two items of world interest each week."

Then we spot WILLIAM (Cuke) BLACKWELL, captain of the '38 baseball team and a high-ranking cadet. The question was put before him, and he immediately answered

"PETE" McCORMICK

Well, we all know that Coach Don McCallister has resigned from the University of South Carolina. He goes, we know not where; but we have a sneaking suspicion that with him will go that Erie, Penn. freshman football team that was so powerful, being led by the all-powerful, all-American candidate Al Grygo, flashy halfback. They may also miss the great services of Leo Kroto and Arrowsmith, as well as McCallister's brother, Bill, who was the brains of the Carolina Biddie team. Hard luck, Carolina football team. Now maybe P. C. can get a little revenge for that drubbing you gave us the past fall. It's mighty hard to forget that we had a very powerful frosh team, and we see only a few varsity men.

SOUND OFF

— By —

E. A. JOHNSON

To many of us, perhaps, exam week seems not without its blessings. At least for an entire week we can sleep peacefully in the early morn without having to hurry into a uniform and get ready for drill. Then, too, there is the added privilege of going without a shave for a few days without worrying about getting called up by a company commander.

This is the week when the new company competition in grades is expected to show results. The units have been running along so close together that the showing made on exams will do much to determine who will be wearing the extra bit of decoration next semester. It will be a rare sight to find men going about the campus during exam week worrying about other boys' grades.

The day of the "gold brick" is doomed. Since on cold mornings the sick report has grown about as large as the roll call, some action seems necessary. A few well-placed doses of castor oil and sessions of make-up drill in the afternoons are expected to show results. In fact, we believe that the general health of the campus will be greatly improved when men who are sick too often have to make up time after hours.

The editorship of this paper is not the only thing that is changing hands with the new semester. This column, too, will be beat out on another typewriter. The irregular and uncertain manner in which this column done his job for the last year may even discourage the new from carrying such a feature. A rate, with a sigh of relief fro (and probably the editor and dents) this marks the end of o erary effort. Let us, then, tak opportunity to thank the stu (student) who have (has) rea column for the past year. We extend to the one who will writ column in the future the wa "Carry on."

EDITOR WRITES OF PAST EXPERIENCES WITH PAPER

REVEALS ALL EXCEPT LOVE AFFAIRS (None To Reveal)

NOW I KNOW

By CLIFF McLEOD

With this issue I conclude my period of editorship of The Blue Stocking. Like other editors, I can only say that though it has been much work, it also has been lots of fun. During the past eyar I have been on the inside of many an interesting incident in our college life because of my connection with the paper. It has been quite a bit of fun to get hold of a "scoop," hot for the press, keep it secret from anyone else for a week and then dish it out Monday night through the paper. Really big stories like that did not come often, but when they did we made the most of them. Of course, the dean's list, cadet appointments, Blue Key elections and similar sources of news always were good for headlines. But our day of scooping the "scoops" are over.

During the time we have had the opportunity to see many types of people. Those who were lazy, indifferent, unreasonable, stubborn, narrow, unreliable, stupid and ignorant, all have come across our path. But more often have come those who were helpful, suggestive, constructive in their criticism, and in general have tried to understand the problems of an editor.

When I was first elected there came to my hearing great tales of how I, because I am a ministerial student, was going to turn the paper into something similar to the Christian Observer and give it a new name such as Christian Light, and what not. Though these barbs stung a bit, I purposely ignored ever mentioning them in the editorial pages because I could see little need in so doing. But I mention them now to point out to the good gentlemen who made those cracks that, while their satire was a bit good, it did not turn out as they expected.

The ambition of every editor of The Blue Stocking is to have his paper place in the state contest held each year. Out of our year's work our most satisfactory experience has been to have The Blue Stocking place this year, though only third. Such is doubly gratifying when we consider that the paper has placed only once before in its history in a state contest. That was when the paper was edited by Hugh Holman, present publicity director of the college. I'm still wondering if those gentlemen think I have been putting out a Christian Observer or something of that nature. Evidently the newspaper judges thought not.

During my editorship I have been in hot water several times through things that occurred in the paper, things of which I was aware but did not realize their significance. Such, of course, is the experience of every editor. We have made mistakes in our policies in the paper, but have been quick to admit them and remedy them wherever possible. If somebody is still bearing a grudge against us of the staff because something appeared in the paper that he did not like, unfortunately, that cannot be helped, and in some ways really doesn't matter.

The previous editor of The Blue Stocking wrote of the harrowing experiences of the editor, saying, among many other things, that the editor went through many a nerve-wracking moment watching the clock each Monday afternoon to see if the paper would get out on time. I, too, have gone through many of those experiences. Somehow, however, we always managed to get the paper to the dining hall at least while the evening meal was going on, if not sooner. Such experiences we gladly leave to the next editor; we have added enough years to our age. Let him add a few now. The peculiar thing is that while many times we have walked the floor and watched the clock wondering if the presses would ever start, the paper has always come out on time. But the calls have been too close for smug comfort. The most deflating thing in such cases, when you have sweated all afternoon trying to get the paper out on time and bring it in during the meal, is to hear some wise guys (we can name them) crack out, "What the h—l is the matter with The Blue Stocking!" The Greeks had a word for such a "crum," but we don't print that sort of stuff.

Writing headlines for the paper has been quite interesting, but sometimes we have slipped up. Perhaps the worst headlines we wrote was this one: "Newberry Wins 13-0; Homecoming Is Success."

Our editorial policy has not been very good because it was too mild. We have not offered constructive criticism when it should have been given. Certainly some things have been going on in student activities and school that The Blue Stocking should have protested against. I am hoping that the next editor will be a little more fearless and not mind calling a spade a spade. It is too late for us to remedy our faults.

During my editorship a few new features have been added to the paper as well as some old one lifted from other papers. Among other things, we have had a column, "This Week" (later abandoned, pictures of the various columnists in their columns, a feature that is being gradually adopted by all college newspapers, "Campus Cruising," containing news of other colleges. Among the features added from other papers was "Along Greek Row" and "Thought of the Week."

Furthermore, for the first time we have excluded other news than sports from the sports page and have placed little sports on the front.. This was due to the fact that such is the correct newspaper policy, and The Blue Stocking has been criticized much in the past for not confining sports to the sports page where it rightfully belongs. You may look at any of the large dailies and see that this is true. Only on exceptional occasions have we mixed general news and sports news on the same page. I also added for the first time in the history of the paper a co-ed staff.

Statistics

During my editorship thirty-three papers, including this issue, have been printed. Twenty-seven of these were edited by me, two by L. G. Heckle, two by Pete McCormick, and one by Bill Coleman. During my editorship I have had to write nearly four hundred articles, including forty-eight editorials, six columns, nine features and three hundred twenty-five news stories, not including those in this issue. Every editor has to write this many and more. So you see the next editor has not stepped into a political position, but has a real job on his hands.

But the most fun we have had was during the time we wrote two of the scandal columns. It's a lot safer to write such stuff under an assumed name. We wrote under the name "The Observer." We wrote only because it was necessary, for the regular columnist had not handed in his material. Furthermore, we had to substitute for every columnist in the paper at least once, except Penland and Robert Black.

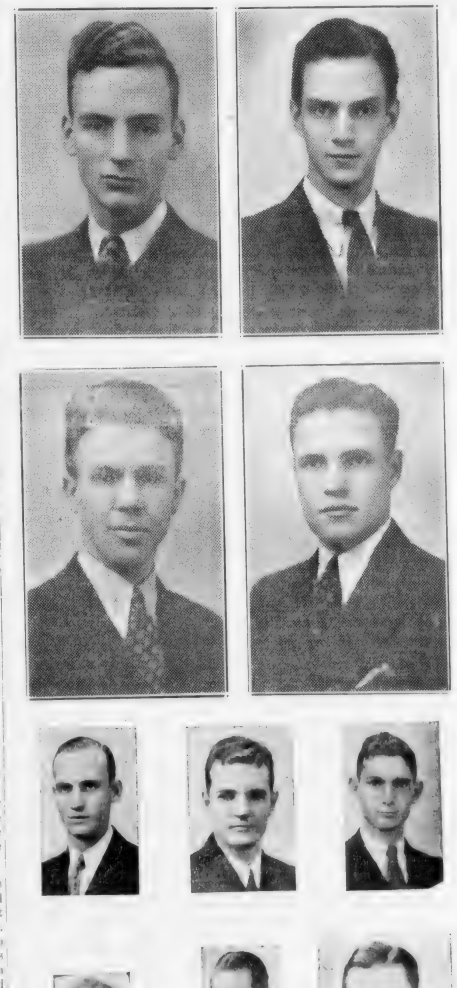
We hope these ramblings will give you an idea of the next editor's job, so that you will be a bit more appreciative of the work which he has to do.

I should like to say a final "thanks" to the staff members who have so ably worked during my editorship. L. G. Heckle has been the editor's right-hand man, always coming through when necessary. To Jake Penland goes a bouquet for his splendid handling of the sports page. While I was at the state press convention an editor of the paper of another school told me I was certainly lucky in having Penland as my sports editor, he said, "he is the best sports editor in the state."

The columnists have come through well. D. W. Davis of "Skeetin' Stuff" fame did a good job and we were sorry he did not get back this year. However, David Dingeman has done a good job in taking his place with "The Campus Commentator." Robert Black with "Along Greek Row," E. A. Johnson with "Sound Off," Geroge Reid with "Airlanes," Pete McCormick with "Campus Cruising," L. G. Heckle with "The Inquiring Reporter," and others, have added to the interest and life of the paper, and all have done a good job. E. F. MacLeod did a splendid job as Y.M.C.A. editor. Others who have held the lesser jobs and yet have been the ones who did the work of reporting were: James Hafley, assistant sports editor; Keitt Darby, features editor; H. G. Wardlaw, religious features editor; Alvin Chapman, alumni editor; W. P. Jacobs, III, art editor, and staff reporters: Dugald Hudson, Fred Allen, S. T. Lipsey, Bill McLaurin, D. M. Morrison, Frank Johnston, Bebe Dillard, Martharene Pitts, and Robert Ellison. To Bill Coleman goes much credit for his good work on the freshman issue.

Well, I hope everybody has his bouquet now, so hold on to it!

Naturally, during the past year we have had opportunities to study the spirit of the student body as well as the quality of those who compose the group. Obviously, the present student body is the best in four years as far as general conduct is concerned. There are evidently more gentlemen here than the average student would have us believe.



In some ways student activities have been slipping. One student asked us what had become of the student interest in things around this college. The student council has failed to do any work worthy of mentiin this year. Whether the students have been so well behaved that they have needed no council is one question; but the purpose of the council is not merely to discipline, but to be also an aggressive organization. Certain elections that were supposed to be held, were not held. Furthermore, the Y. M. C. A., another student body organization, has been failing to hold regular meetings each week. Yet we must add that in many ways student activities have progressed very much, making in some ways a strong spirit for the student body.

Some editors somehow feel that they are privileged enough to discuss quite profoundly the future of the college since they are in close contact with its progress. I do not feel such, but I add a word about the college's future. In the first place, there are plenty of colleges that have as good or better equipment than P. C., and will have, no matter how well off P .C. may become in the future. There are many that have and will have a much higher standard of scholarship than P. C. And thus, there are many small colleges that have as many features, or more, than P. C. But the distinctive element in the college must be that of turning out men trained morally as well as mentally. Only in this phase can P. C. be distinctive from all other colleges. It can dare to be different by emphasizing moral development equally along with other development.

Whether or not the college will be one that dares to be different depends entirely upon whether it develops the facilities for developing character—that is the distinctive feature it must have to be different from other schools. If it fails to emphasize this, then the college will turn out to be no more different from other schools than black is from black.

No doubt this issue seems to have the editor's name written all over it. But overlook it this time, as this is my last chance and last roundup.

Thought For the Week

TRUE NOBILITY

There is much in this world that is artificial, so much that glitters in borrowed light. In view of this fact, it is not singular that it is no slight task to discriminate rightly between the true and the false. By a man's possession, man judgeth the greatness of his fellows. But God looketh on the heart—"For as a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." And, after all, there is no true nobility except as it displays itself in good deeds. The greatest man is he who chooses right with resolution, who resists the sorest temptations, who bears the heaviest burdens cheerfully, and who is calmest the time of storm. To the character of this type there shineth a luster as of the true diamond, which cannot be confused with false rays, as of imitation stones.

FINALE!

In an editorial in my first issue of The Blue Stocking I wrote, "A college paper that does not try to cover extensively, fairly and impartially every phase of college life fails to serve the purpose for which it was founded." This has been my text in editing The Blue Stocking. Whether I have practiced what I have preached in thirty-three issues is for you to judge.

I was a cub reporter on The Blue Stocking staff when I was elected editor; I had never edited an issue of the paper. Much water has passed under the bridge since then, but I have not forgotten how the student body honored me by electing me when I had shown so little ability in newspaper work. As I close this term as editor I look back and sincerely hope the student body's trust in me was not displaced. I tried hard to follow my text. If I have failed, count it to human error.

To the new editor, Mr. Heckle, I wish him the best. A student who has helped faithfully with me a year and has gained much experience, I am expecting him to do a good job.

To all those who so generously gave of their advice and counsel I offer my appreciation. I am indebted to Mr. Layton of The Chronicle office, whose suggestions as a man who knows the newspaper game, have helped me over many a rough spot. To Miss Woodruff, also of The Chronicle staff, the paper is indebted for her help.

So, with this bit of sentimental yet sincere farewell I pass on to a new and younger order the tough but enjoyable job of editing the ole Blue Seek. May it ever wave! So, cheerio—and I'll be seein' ya.

—Cliff McLeod.

Does It Really Matter?

For one year now we have had the opportunity of watching religious activities on the campus from the eyes of an editor. For one year we have made no reference in our editorials to any religious organization on the campus except occasional bits of commendation. We have criticized no religious organizations of the campus or the religious spirit of the student body. Often we have been asked why we did not say something about the general attitude of students toward religious activities. This not a religious gazette, but it is published on a Christian campus and cannot ignore religious activities as part of the news of the campus. Therefore, for the first time we take sides as to the general state of religious activities on the campus.

We repeat, as we have done so often in these editorials, that the present student body seems to be composed of a group of fine Christian young men with some exceptions. That there is much opportunity for development of students' interest in religious activities is evident; we cannot deny that.

There is only one student body organization on the campus for the control of religious activities. This is controlled and run by the student body which has delegated its powers to certain officials. Thus far this organization this year has failed to hold regularly scheduled meetings as has been the custom in past years. The purpose of these meetings was to bring religious speakers, among other types, to the attention of the students. This, we repeat, has not been done regularly.

Furthermore, no other religious meetings, with the exception of one series, have been held on the campus or sponsored by the administration or the religious organization of the student body. Sunday afternoon services, which were so popular with students last year, have been abandoned.

Furthermore, the failure of students to attend the evening sessions of the series of religious services before Christmas is an indication that something is rotten in Denmark. This failure was largely due to the failure to interest students in them. A week of prayer was not held prior to the services, as has been the custom in the past.

Another such series of services is coming soon. One of the most prominent ministers in the South will be here. If he receives no better reception than the minister before the holidays he will have truly found a good place in which to do some religious work.

Do not mistake us; this is not our opinion entirely; but is the expression of the sentiments spoken to us by the interested students on the campus. As one of them put it, "The only religious service held on this campus is chapel—and that is compulsory." As cynical as that statement sounds, it is too nearly true.

One is thus inclined to wonder — does it really matter to the students and faculty that this situation does exist on the campus? We are inclined to wonder whether it is of any use to mention it in an editorial. But because this is a student paper we can no longer withhold the opinions of some students who are interested. In fairness to the faculty, it must be said that the slack in religious activities is not very much due to their failure, but it is due to the failure of the students to show interest.

Whether the religious services next month turn out to be a repitition of what happened here before Christmas will depend upon whether or not the students get behind the services and make preparations for them.

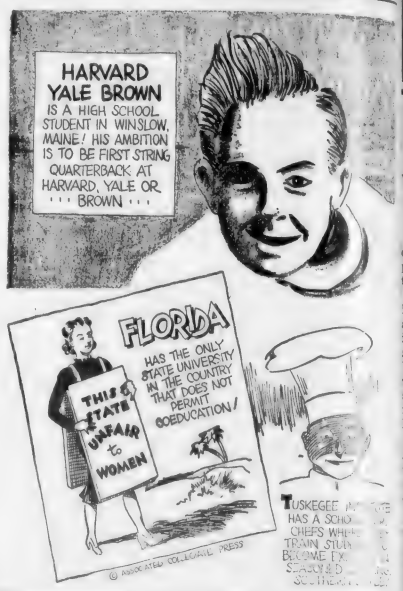
We do not mince words; the situation is the worst we have seen here. Indifference on the part of both students and faculty have brought it about. Nothing but the renewed urging of students and faculty to their responsibilities will bring about again the proper situation.

Have we been fair in this? The presentation of truth must be fair always.

Along Greek Row

With Robert Black

Though coming exams occupied much spare time during the past week plans are being made for mid-winter dances January 28th and 29th. Dean Hudson and his band will play for the dances which will be held in the new armory.



Pi Kappa Alpha began the new year and ended the old semester with a social in the usual manner. Sports clothes outlawed coats and silk hose.

Pi Kappa Phi officers recently elected for second semester are: President, Eddy Jones; Treasurer, "Curly" Clements; secretary, Walter Brooker.

Kappa Alpha plans a banquet during the dances.

With this, my last column, to bid the Greeks farewell—working for you all good health, happiness, good dances, and a good year.

CAMPUS ODDITIES

The CAMPUS COMMENTATOR

— By —

D. R. DINGEMAN

With everybody's minds on exams and such stuff, the scandal column has suffered for want of news and such, but we'll struggle along as best we can.

First off, we just gotta say somp'n about the bicycle fiends that seem to have over-run the place, especially when they get to riding around the campus picking up some of the wandering college boys. You probably know who I mean. They sorta cruised around the campus on their wheels and had a big time. If you want to know the names ask PEECKSEN or WOODWARD. They know all about it—they got a ride.

We saw some people getting together at the P. C.-Furman game the other night. We saw PEGGE and one of the local lads who attends Furman. And we saw AGGIE there with her old standby, T. BETHEA, and we saw "RAT" CRAWFORD there with some one. Oh, you already know? Well, I just thought I'd mention it in passing.

Something clever we picked up over the holidays comes to mind, and we quote it here.

1st stude to 2nd same: "What you don't know won't hurt you. And you're invulnerable."

Not so hot, but we thought we'd pass it on (one of you might pull it one of these days.

Remember how there used to be a certain freshman who saw a lot of "LIB" NELSON. Well, there has come a change in all that and Lib is keeping company with "JUNE" MOORE now. Well, don't take it too hard, COOPER.

A certain guy by the name of McLAURIN is back in circulation again. It seems he and his gal had a fallin' out that made things break off, and he's on the loose again. All women interested may reach in care of this column.

Female hearts may come to as they read the news that MICK is out of the running for mances. It seems that he has finally met his Waterloo in women. Shucks pip, too. I don't see how he lost her. Well, 'stoo bad that such a thing should happen to him when we always thought that he was such a fem heart-breaker.

Another in much the same vein is BOB ROACH. This ain't a today affair—it's been going on for years. She also is a frequent visitor to Ballard as if there was a magnet of the double cross somewhere in the wood-pile. It seems that every he wants to go to see her he gets a telegram or letter trying to stop him off.

We're welcoming back in our midst one "JEEP" CLEMENT. He was out of school for a while. It seems that there was a bit of trouble with his health and it's all settled.

This is the last column that your correspondent will write under the present administration (editors are stuff to you). And we have enjoyed writing it a great deal. We hope that you have enjoyed reading it. We probably write a scandal column for the paper put out by the new editor, but we ain't sure about that. It may be under a new name.

THE CITADEL CADETS LEAD RACE WITH THREE VICTORIES

Wofford, Clemson, Newberry Fall Before Foes.

Only three state cage fives remained undefeated following a week of play that witnessed action by each of the nine clubs.

The Citadel's unheralded Bulldogs had top ranking with three wins against no losses. The Charlestonians whipped Erskine by a four-point margin to maintain their position. Wofford's Terriers slipped in behind the Cadets with two victories and no slip-ups. Wofford successes were registered over Newberry (47-43) and Presbyterian (30-19).

Clemson's capable cagers dropped a pair of engagements to out-of-state foes but remained in good state graces with their week-before-last triumph over P. C.

Presbyterian, Erskine and College of Charleston were knotted in fifth position with a record of one win and two losses each. The Hosemen stopped Furman in their opening home game but dropped one to Wofford Saturday evening to split even for the week.

Furman and Newberry are eighth and ninth, the Baptists having won one and last three, and Newberry having one defeat against no victories.

Magazine Tells Of Local Tennis Clinic

The November 20 issue of "American Lawn Tennis" carries a long article featuring the tennis clinic held at Presbyterian college in October.

The article refers to the clinic as "one of the largest and unique groups of players ever assembled in the United States." It gives a detailed story of the activities of the three-day session and lists the outstanding figures who were present.

Of Joe H. Thurston, national committeeman of the United States Lawn Tennis association, who attended the clinic to observe with an eye to having the U. S. L. T. A. establish similar clinics all over the nation, it says, "Thurston was very enthusiastic in his approval of what he saw."

Work Of College Band Progresses

M. C. Patterson, commander, announced today that the military band has a new addition, Hugh Jacobs of Clinton, which makes a total of 23 in the band.

The band has traveled more this year than ever before, taking part in parades, playing at football games, both here and at other schools, at the dedication of armories, and at fairs. It is unique that both the commander, M. C. Patterson, and the director, Harris Gray, haved served two consecutive years in charge of the band, and the success of the band is largely due to their leadership.

HISTORY FORUM HELD

The fate of the world has finally been settled. A history forum met last Thursday night at Dean Brown's house to accomplish this. All important current history was discussed and compared to incidents in the past. The sentiment of the group seemed decidedly against the Ludlow Amendment. All present decided that it seemed likely that the U. S. and Japan would fight at some time in the not-too-far-off future.

Terriers Trip Hosemen Abroad

Wofford's Court Crew Maintains Lead Throughout. P. C. Offensive Held Powerless.

Wofford's Terrier quint used a smooth offense and close guarding to top Presbyterian's five, 30 to 19, in a hard-fought battle at Spartanburg Saturday.

The Hosemen opened scoring but their lead lived only three minutes and was never regained. At half-time the Terriers were seven points up and this margin was increased to eleven before the final whistle.

Terrier scoring was evenly distributed among the five-man personnel. Lark rang four baskets to take top honors and only one man, a sub, failed to tally.

Les Holden flipped in three field goals and a foul toss to lead the Presbyterians, but close Wofford guarding kept Hose offensive activity at a low ebb. It was the second state collegiate setback for Lonnie McMillian's cagers.

Furman Five Is Handed Defeat

Hosemen Open Week's Play By Trouncing Baptists. Holden Sets Pace For Crew.

By JAKE PENLAND

Les Holden's relaxed basket accuracy stood out in Presbyterian's victorious 26-19 opening home appearance against Furman on Tuesday evening.

McMillian's men opened up quickly, maintained a healthy half-time lead and fought off Furman's last period spurt to emerge on the sunny side of the street. Hose defensive work, lacking in smoothness and sureness, nevertheless checked Furman's offensive effectively.

"Looping Les" got the scorekeepers started with a neat one-hand follow-up of the tip-off play. Frank Johnston ripped the net with a long toss, and Waldrep and Holden added a pair more. The Baptists seldom got under the wicker, refused to make daring shots. Frequent P. C. substitutions slowed down the scoring, but first semester scoring included nine goals.

Only two field goals were registered by Presbyterian's five in the second half and the Baptists had Lonnie chewing his Havana weed a time or two before the game ended.

CAMPUS CRUISING

out of all this publicity about $15,000-a-year football coaches and emphasis on the "win or else" policy.

Years ago he was a football coach himself at Southwestern university in Georgetown, Texas.

"My Southwestern team was one of the strongest in the state," he related. "One day the president of Southwestern and I were strolling across the campus.

"Our football team is doing well this season, isn't it," the president remarked.

"Yes, it is making a fair record," I replied.

"By the way," commented the president, "who is the coach this year?"

"A man should remember what you say and not how you said it." Professor Lee Norvelle, head of the speech department of Indiana university, argues that good speech should be as unobstrusive as a man's clothing.

I want to take this time to say that I have enjoyed very much working under our retiring editor, Cliff H. McLeod. He has done a bang up job as editor of this P. C. rag and it was due to his supreme efforts that the paper was ranked third best in the state. Cliff, we salute you!

This, dear friends and readers, is the last Campus Cruising column you will read. But I don't want to disappoint you (for that toothth not his own horn the same shall not be tooted), so I will say that you'll be reading more of my nonsense in a new column after this issue.

I wish to thank all three of my readers, including the proofreader and linotypist, for observing the column of Cruises.

And now, as far as you and I are concerned, there will be no Campus Cruiser after this issue.

P. S.—Acolumnistleadsahelluvalife.

THE DEAN GIVES INFORMATION ON REGISTRATION AND COURSES

Three Changes To Be Made In Schedule of Courses.

Dean Marshall W. Brown announced today three changes in the schedules of courses for next semester.

At the request of a number of students a course called The History of the West will be taught by Dean Brown at eleven o'clock Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. The number of the course is 146 and will be given instead of history 153 which is given on the printed schedule. This course will trace history of American frontier from 1763 up into the disappearance of the frontier in 1890.

The Bible course 107, Rieglious Education, which is taught by Dr. F. D. Jones will be given at 11:00 Monday, Wednesday and Friday, instead of 9:10. Although the primary purpose of this course is to train laymen in methods of religious work, the course will be beneficial to ministerial students, stated Dean Brown.

He also said that for the benefit of those men who did not pass first semester mathematics 1 (College Algebra) Dr. H. E. Spencer will again teach math 1 at 11:55 Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Students now in math 1-B who pass Algebra this semester will take Trigonometry next [illegible] in section math A or [illegible].

Students To Sign For Next Semester Work On Tuesday.

Dean Marshall W. Brown announced today that official registration will be held next Tuesday, January 25 in the college dining hall from 9:00 A. M., to 11:30 A. M., and from 2:00 in the afternoon to 4:00. Students who wish to register after 4 P. M. will have to pay a late registration fee of $5.00.

Students who wish to register earlier may do so from January 17 to 22. However, no registrations will be taken on the 24 because administrative officers will be busy on that day on compiling first semester records.

The procedure for early registration is first to secure from the business manager a receipt for payment of college fees. The student will then use the printed schedule of classes in consultation with his faculty adviser in planning his next semester's schedule. After the card is filled out it must be initialed by the faculty adviser of the student, and then be taken along with the business manager's receipt to the registrar's office where it will be filed. All blanks on the card must be filled out. Registration cards and schedules are available at the registrar's office.

Second semester classes will not begin until 8 A. M., Wednesday, January 26th.

INTERVIEWS

"There should be a better grade of scandal. The scandal columnist has the ability but he can't afford to overdo it because he has no bodyguard. The scandal should be somewhat along the line of the column which was written by the former scandal-monger of the staff. There should be more humor and the paper should be enlarged to six pages, if possible.

HUGH RUTLEDGE was busily engaged in figuring up some biological problems, etc. Incidentally Hugh is president of the Sophomore class, is student assistant in biology, and during vacations he works as student biological technician of the United States National Park service. His opinion was somewhat similar to that of the preceding two. He stressed the fact that the administration should allow the paper more money in order to make a six-page paper. "Another great improvement," he said," would be to carry news of the outside world. We live here as one family in a little world all our own and I will vetnure to say that thirty-five per cent of the students do not read the daily newspapers which are in the library every day. They all read The Blue Stocking, however, and if subjects of national and international interest were printed the students would read them."

The fourth victim was PETE HOLCOMBE, alternate captain of the '38 football team, outstanding junior in military, member of student council, member Y. M. C. A. cabinet, "ye olde ladies man," member of varsity basketball team and all-round student. "Well,," he said, "I think there should be more humor, both original and exchange, so that the students may get an occasional laugh. If possible, try to enlarge the paper to six pages and carry news of world interest. Carry all campus news of interest and take more advantage of the lawful 'freedom of the press'."

Several others were interviewed but all of these were of practically the same opinions as the above mentioned. Some of them, however, suggested that a religious column be inserted to cover all religious activities except for occasional events of great import-

CADET PROMOTIONS ANNOUNCED

PRESIDENT IS HONORED BY CLEMSON FRAT

Made Honorary Member of Phi Psi, National Honorary Textile Fraternity.

JACOBS IS PRINCIPAL SPEAKER AT BANQUET

William P. Jacobs, president of Presbyterian college, was formally inducted into Phi Psi, national honorary textile fraternity, at Clemson college as an honorary member last Monday night at the fraternity club room preceding a banquet at which he was the principal speaker.

The Clemson Tiger, newspaper of the college, in announcing President Jacobs' nomination for membership, said:

"Not only is Mr. Jacobs known in the business world, but he also figures prominently as a sportsman. Tennis is his major port, but he is also vitally interested in football. In speaking in the Clemson chapel before the student body last year, he stated his pleasure as president of P. C., to see Presbyterian college in the field with the Clemson eleven. Each year he presents the Jacobs blocking trophies for the best blockers in South Carolina, the Southern conference, and the Southeastern conference.

"In selecting Mr. Jacobs for membership, Phi Psi continues its tradition of striving continually for high standards in textile work and education. Since 1908, when the fraternity was first organized at the Philadelphia Textile school, Phi Psi has become a progressive force in the welfare of the textile industry."

The paper also spoke of him as being the secretary of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of South Carolina, and that he is an authoritative writer and speaker on varied subjects.

Other guests at the Phi Psi banquet were Dr. E. W. Sikes, president of Clemson; Co. C. W. Weeks, commandant, and J. C. Littlejohn, business manager. Dean H. Willis of the school of textiles nad members of the textile faculty also were present.

IS OUR HONOR SYSTEM DOOMED?

A LETTER TO THE EDITOR

EDITOR'S ANSWER IS ON PAGE TWO

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

Does P. C. have an honor system? We have the "Constitution of the Presbyterian College Honor System" printed in the Y. M. C. A. handbook, pages 96 to 106. The purpose of the honor system, in the words of the preamble, covers of the following subjects, "tests, examinations, our conduct in all class rooms, library and study hall, observance of order for regular study periods, care of college property, conduct in the mess hall, conduct on the campus, in the dormitories, and at all gatherings on the campus." The Constitution sets up a set of rules comprehensive enough to cover all the things mentioned above. We have a splendid Constitution for an honor system.

Does P. C. really have an honor system? The answer to that question depends entirely on enforcement. The Constitution amply covers the enforcement feature. Every student councilman swears, when he takes office, that he will uphold the Constitution and the honor system. Every student signs the matriculation pledge sating he "will observe all the rules of this institution," pledging himself to uphold the Constitution. Article X of the Constitution reads as follows:

"Sec. 1 It shall be the duty of every student to report any known violation of the rules of the student government as outlined in this Constitution to any member of the student council.

"Sec. 2. It shall be the duty of every student who observes cheating or fraud in any class, test, or examination to report the same to the president of the student council. Or he may rise in his place in class, test, or examination and give the following words: 'I suspect cheating in this class, (test) or (examination).' If this warning shall not be heeded, the student observing the irregularity shall report same to the president of the student council."

The blindest optimist could not say that the honor system is enforced here. I do not know of any student (outside the student council) who ever did, or for that matter ever could, obey Article X. The members of the student council have done very

WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO THE 'Y'?

A LETTER TO THE EDITOR AND HIS ANSWER

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

Will someone kindly tell us what has happened to the "greatest brotherhood on earth." It has been rumored that, like old man Mose, it is dead. Interest in the Y.M.C.A. doubtless has reached a new low this season. Things are in a bad way, when it takes a swing band to fetch in the only fair-sized crowd of the year. By the way, can anyone tell us when Buck Mix in "Who Stole My Horse" is appearing at the local chapter of tea-suppers.

Let us exercise more discretion in the selection of officers for the coming year. Promises of spectacular meetings with plenty of "umph" should not be taken seriously when the voters of Presbyterian college trek to the polls to cast their ballots for new officers.

When we select a new administration we should endeavor to place in office those who will strive to make the Y.M.C.A. function again as a definitely Christian organization. Let us move with caution.

—Disgruntled.

EDITOR'S ANSWER

In an editorial last week we pointed out where the Y.M.C.A. had fallen down in its duty this year. Unfortunately, what you say is too true. However, it is up to the students as to what will happen to the "greatest brotherhood on earth," as you term it. Unless they do something about it, the "Y" will just about cease to have any effectiveness. However, that's the students' problem.

E. ASHBY JOHNSON NAMED CADET COLONEL IN NEW R. O. T. C. SET-UP; C. L. ANDERSON IS LIEUT. COLONEL

Mid-Winters Will Be Feature Of This Week-End

Social Activities Will Get Underway Friday Night.

John Woodward, Pen-Hellenic council president, announced today that Hudson's orchestra will not play for the tea dance Saturday afternoon. Hudson will have to be in Charlotte to make some recordings to fill a previously made engagement. However, he will play for the dances Friday night and Saturday night. Harris Gray and his orchestra will play for the tea dance Saturday afternoon.

The annual Pan-Hellenic mid-winters will get under way in the Clinton armory with a formal next Friday night at 10 o'clock. This will be followed by a tea dance Saturday afternoon from four to six, and an informal Saturday night from nine until twelve.

Dean Hudson and his orchestra will furnish the music. This band has been popular at various schools and other places it has played. Featured with Hudson's orchestra is the vocalist, Miss Frances Colwell.

From all reports Hudson's band is expected to be one of the best to be heard here in recent years.

Further reports indicate that there will be a large number of girls and other out-of-town visitors present for the week-end. This will be the second Pan-Hellenic series to be held in the new armory.

According to the Pan-Hellenic council presidents, block tickets for the entire series will be $3.75.

Glee Club Leaves On First Tour Of 1937-38 Season

The college glee club left yesterday afternoon for Union to present the first program on its first extended tour of the year. After the program of the evening the club was entertained in the social home of the First Presbyterian church at a reception given in their honor to which were invited many girls of the city.

Today, between 11 and 12, the club gave a concert at Lancaster which was sponsored by the Woman's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church, following which lunch was enjoyed in the social hall of the church.

Tonight the club will sing at Fort Mill under the sponsorship of the Lions club of the town. The funds realized from the entertainment will be used by the Lions for charity work.

Wednesday at noon the club will be entertained with a lunch at Clover by the Presbyterians. Also between 2:30 and 3:30 the club will present its program in the high school auditorium. That night the Presbyterians of York will entertain the club, after which they will sing in the York high school.

Thursday morning the club will present its program in Gaffney, and from there go to Greer for a night performance.

Friday night will find the club at Chester where it will be entertained by the Presbyterians of that city, where Dr. John McSween, former P. C. president, is pastor. The club will return sometime Saturday morning.

M. A. Hipp and E. U. McRae Named Cadet Majors.

WOODWARD, HOLLIS AND McSWEEN COMMANDERS

First Class Privates Also Announced By Commandant.

In an order this week Major F. C. Harding, professor of military science and tactics, announced a unique set-up in the Presbyterian college R. O. T. C. E. A. Johnson was appointed cadet colonel and becomes the first cadet of that rank in the history of the corps. Also for the first time the corps sas two majors and a lieutenant colonel at the same time. C. L. Anderson become lieutenant colonel, while M. A. Hipp and E. U. McRae were appointed cadet majors. This military set-up is unusual, for in the past it has been the custom during the second semester to have only a lieutenant colonel and one major.

As a result of these boosts in ranks several other cadets were given higher ratings. Those who were lifted from first lieutenants to captains are: W. Blackwell, J. M .Hollis and W. R. Williams. H. M. Hemphill was boosted from second lieutenant to first lieutenant.

Captains appointed company commanders are as follows: A. C. McSween, Company "A," to succeed C. L. Anderson; J. M. Hollis, Company "B," to succeed E. U. McRae; and J. Woodward, Compahy "C" to succeed M. A. Hipp.

Cadet officers of the junior class remained the same in ranking. There were no changes in senior ratings in the band. Harris Gray and M. C. Patterson are captains in the band, being the only senior officers.

Major Harding also announced the appointment of eighteen sophomores to the rank of first class private. The corporals, so far as is known, will remain the same for the second semester.

The complete ratings of the senior class are as follows:

Staff

Corps commander—Cadet Colonel E. A. Johnson.

Battalion commander—Cadet Lieutenant Colonel C. L. Anderson.

Battalion executive—Cadet Major M. A. Hipp.

Plans and training officer—Cadet Major E. U. McRae.

Thought For the Week

FAREWELLS

Farewells come all through life, because the things of life are unstable and, like radium, are constantly breaking down into other forms. But when we come to these farewells they are usually accompanied by a resume of the job done, and a sizeup of how lasting the results will be. If advantage has been taken of the opportunities then may come the satisfaction of duty well performed, which will sing a song of joy on those rusty strings which otherwise would have been a discordant note of remorse. As this writer lays down his pen, he hopes that life to each reader may mean something worth living every moment, and that each may "quit himself like a man."

May the will of each reader be in harmony with that of God's for this life, and may he truthfully purpose within the secret chambers of his heart that "for me to live is Christ, and to die is gain." Then when that last "farewell" comes there will be no regrets, but that happiness, heretofore unknown, may abide into the ages.

IS OUR HONOR SYSTEM DOOMED?

little if anything to enforce the rules.

Students have been able to pass many classes by cheating. In certain classes on tests and examinations many of the students open their books and copy the answers straight out of the text. Almost everyone in these classes knows who cheats and all about it, but never is anything done to stop it. In almost every class of any size there will be plenty of cheating unless the professor stays in the class room, and even then there probably will be some cheating.

It is interesting to note that it is in those classes where the professor leaves the room during tests and examinations, putting the students on their honor, that the greatest amount of cheating occurs. In some classes this happens so much that the students can pass the course and never know anything about it. It would be unheard of for a student to report anyone, or even to take the milder step suggested in the last part of Article X, Section 2. The average student certainly does not believe in the Constitution or he would make some effort to support it.

In many classes there are no student councilmen. Here the honor system is doomed to be a dismal failure, and from all reports certainly is.

The classes in which there are student councilmen are little better. The councilmen have done exactly nothing this year. There have been cases where student councilmen have seen cases of cheating and could have obtained the necessary proof, but did nothing. The president of the council has not done his job. He has made no effort in any way to stop the cheating or even to warn the student body against cheating. The president and council members have either directly violated their oath sworn to uphold the student body, or else they have succeeded in according every case where they expect they might see something. Furthermore, the student council has done nothing about gambling, drinking, and destruction of school and private property on the campus—all of which they know of, or could know of, and could get proof of. The president of the student council, who should be the executive and driving power behind the student government, has shirked his duty. The student council this year has shown no desire to enforce any of the rules.

Who wants the honor system? I have never heard a student or a professor say he thought the honor system worked here. I have often heard it said in no uncertain terms that the honor system does not work here. I cannot remember seeing any article in The Blue Stocking for the past three years complimenting the honor system as it works here. I have seen several editorials stating that the honor system does not function.

Obviously, the honor system, as it is now, helps only those who cheat (and they are really hurting themselves). Cheating injures the morale, prestige, and reputation of any college and lowers the value and significance of the grades of the students who do not cheat.

What can be done about it? We can do one of two things. One would be to make the honor system work. But to do this would take the wholehearted support and cooperation of the student body and student council, neither of which we have now, or are we likely to have unless some radical change takes place. The other thing we could do would be to abolish the honor system. We would be destroying nothing. Any system would be better than the present one. It would be better to plainly state that we do not intend to have any student body rules to control cheating than to say we have and know we haven't. The only real check we have against cheating is the professor, for the honor system with the student council. Why not recognize the facts?

I am sick and tired of hearing one side of this question. If anyone has a good word to say for the honor system as it functions at P. C., please say so. The student body president has not done his job. He should by all means answer this or resign.

—A MALE STUDENT.

The Editor's Reply

The editor finds himself in a peculiar position in answering this letter, for he must agree entirely with every word of it as being true and justifiable, though he himself would not put it in such bold terms. Therefore, The Blue Stocking goes on record as approving the sentiments expressed in this letter.

Certainly the writer is accurate; in fact, too much so, in his description of the cheating wave which has swept over the campus this year so as to even make the cheater himself feel ashamed of his school.

We must well agree that the president of the student body and the student council might as well not be in existence as far as their usefulness is concerned this year to the student body. Not only do student councilmen ignore the cheating that goes on in the classes where they sit, but it also has been brought to the editor's attention that one councilman, while not cheating himself, sat next to one student who cheated and that the student councilman did not even try to keep the student from looking on his own paper!

Furthermore, the editor knows definitely that six professors of the school know definitely of cheating in their classes. Of these, three know of definite examples, yet did not report them to the student council. This is an indication that the professors themselves know that the honor system is a rotten failure at P. C.

Furthermore, other examples of extreme violations of the rule against cheating have been done. As one student remarked, "There is more cheating on the campus now than I have ever seen." We must conclude that somehow our honor system is a failure.

May the editor add that all this has been brought to his attention through the urging of certain interested parties to write an editorial on the extremely large amount of cheating that went on during the past examination week. The editor was contemplating writing such an editorial when he received the above letter, which has saved him the trouble of expressing the same sentiments.

Cheating has come to be a damnably abominable prevalency on the campus, and not only are the students, councilmen, and student body president ignoring it, but certain of the faculty are doing likewise. Too many instances that this is true have been brought to our attention to ignore them any longer.

Certainly we cannot blame all of this upon the student councilmen and the president of the student body, though it is quite evident that they have betrayed the trust which the student body put upon them in electing them. But the student body must learn that it is better to elect men with some degree of conviction rather than because they have a cheerful word for everybody they meet. A student councilman, if he does his job, is either going to be unpopular or do his job so well that he cannot help but draw admiration.

Furthermore, may the editor bring to your attention the following opinions which the students have given him. They are statements from persons on the campus interested in the student government. One said, "The failure of the student council lies entirely with the president of the student body. He has failed to lead them as he should have." Another said, "The council has failed to show the proper courage this year that we would expect of them." Another said, "I know a councilman who purposely ignores any cheating in the class where he sits."

But let us hasten to add that much of the failure of the student government has been due to the failure of students to cooperate. But of course no student is going to turn up a case of cheating or anything else if he feels that the council will do nothing about it.

One naturally asks: Well, what will it amount to? The Blue Stocking goes on record as warning the student body that unless the present evils of student government are remedied that the faculty will be forced to abolish it in favor of the practor system, faculty control of all tests, examinations, etc. Wouldn't we look like primary school kids in college with a professor standing over our heads in a test to see that we did not cheat? Any student with an iota of courage, or what we term in more common language, "guts," would certainly revolt at that thought. Are we college men and women or children who can't be trusted out of sight of mama?

Yes, the faculty has seen too much of the evil of cheating during the examinations just held to be fooled into thinking that students can be left alone in a room and not cheat.

As to the future, there will be, as we have said, either of two results: The cleansing of the present system, or the abolishing of it. The evidence at present is heavy against it.

Do you still want the honor system? Someone said to the editor they "would like to have it, because under it they would be much more able to cheat than if they had a professor in the room watching them." Certainly this is not true of the average conservative student, but the likelihood of its being true with some is too evident.

The student body can no longer ignore the problem that is before it. It made student government; it must remedy its present evils or expect it to be abolished.

This Collegiate World

The latest thing in winter nightwear for coeds is not sophisticated satin and lace, but pajamas of outing flannel that have hoods and feet attached. Woolly snuggle puppies give the girls something to cuddle up to on cold winter nights.

A senior at Union college wanted an organ when he was a freshman but figured it would take him a life time to save the $25,000 necessary to buy one. He set about building one, and now owns an instrument that has three manuals, a full set of foot pedals and seven ranks of free reeds. He has rebuilt it three times.

Freshmen at the University of Vermont are on the average younger, heavier and taller than the freshman class of 10 years ago.

The CAMPUS COMMENTATOR

D. R. DINGEMAN

Just to keep the records straight, we ought to tell our public (?) that this is a sorry attempt at a column. It is well nigh impossible to write a scandal column about nobody. And with exams most of the week and holidays the rest of the week there just ain't no scandal for your reporter to report. So with this excuse to start things, we get under way.

In reading over the papers and things we find that over around Clemson way, besides having the king cat among the trumpet men they have one outstanding frosh. It seems that in his book purchases there was a slight mistake, for he purchased an advanced military manual and after six weeks he went to the head of the section and told him that this here machine gun was a little too difficult for the frosh. Anyway, the thing has been straightened out.

It seems that the picture, "Lost Horizon," has caught the popular fancy; at least it really did around these prats. In spite of exams and such, there was no difference in picture attendance. While we are speaking of pictures, why is it that the week of exams always seems to bring the best pictures here. By way of suggestion, we might ask the operators that they sorta hold off the good pictures till exams are over and sorta try to get pictures here that we would like to see on days other than holidays and exams. If necessary to bring 'em here during days, try to get 'em back for us does that strike you?

We have received some fan mail last, and it's from "Violet Dee (?) of Winthrop college. It seems wants to make some exchange friends with some others, as that's the way it struck us. glad to receive such letters, and body who cares to may read addressing the letter to the at the top of this column.

We might mention the news that we have seen around the of late. Gibbes, one of the students around here, is back midst to complete his locate Reed, from Presbyterian Junior lege, is down to help out ball team in the short position.

Prize boner of the week: went into the hinterlands turned to find that he had few exams. He got things all okay.

We have been promising would be the last column and weeks and this, as things positively the last that you under this name concerning If we have offended anyone only in the spirit of fun.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

In the last issue of this paper, there appeared the statement that the chapel program is the only religious service held regularly on our campus, "and it is compulsory." I should like to question the accuracy of this statement.

Is, in your opinion, the average chapel program a "religious" service in the true sense of the word? If it is then the world has witnessed the birth of a new religion.

I was under the impression that these chapel services were primarily for the worship of our Heavenly Father; but just think what goes on there.

Worship? Is it worship to go into a jabbering group of disinterested students who are compelled to attend a "religious" service from which they get no spiritual uplift? Is it to sit in that mass and have get up, announce a song, which he reads a passage of which has never meant anything him, only to close with a prayer approaches nigh unto being in its blatant insincerity?

I dare say that seventy-five cent of our chapel programs had adequate spiritual prep Something must be done, away with. Here is God's about his matter:

"I know thy works, that neither cold nor hot: I would wert cold or hot. So then, thou art lukewarm, and neither nor hot, I will spue thee out mouth."—Rev. 3:15-16.

HOSE CAGERS MEET NEWBERRY HERE TONIGHT

FROSH AND VARSITY OF BOTH SCHOOLS IN DOUBLE-HEADER

Play Will Get Underway On Home Court At 7:00.

TEAM TO GO ON TRIP THIS WEEK

Tonight at 7:00 both the varsity and frosh teams of P. C. will meet the Indians from Newberry college in a doubleheader in P. C.'s gymnasium in the first games of the week for the Hose. This will be the busiest week of the 1938 season.

This will be the first encounter of the season with Newberry. The Indians lost the game played here last year, but managed to get revenge when P. C. played their second game at Newberry.

P. C. recently lost a game to Wofford and so did the Indians, but the margin of loss for the Blue Hose was much larger. This theoretically, gives the Indians the edge.

The frosh game will get under way first and will be followed by the varsity soon after.

On Wednesday the varsity leaves Clinton on a tour which will take it to the City by the Sea, and during which it will play two games, and to Columbia for one game. The first on Thursday night, will be with the College of Charleston, against whom they scored an average of two points a minute as long as Coach Lonnie McMillian allowed the regular to play in a game at Clinton a week ago. The following night, January 28, they meet the Cadets from The Citadel.

On Saturday night the Blue Hose will meet the University of South Carolina Gamecocks at Columbia.

To date the Hosemen have played four games, winning two of them. Saturday night's standing will give definite indication of how justifiable was their followers' pre-season enthusiasm.

Citadel Boxers Whip Hosemen

In their first boxing matches of the season the Blue Hose went down under an 8-0 defeat from The Citadel Saturday night at Charleston. It was also the first meet of the season for the Cadets.

Three decisions and five forfeited bouts gave The Citadel their blanket win. Two P. C. freshmen fought exhibitions with Leonard and Lempesis, Citadel.

The results:

119 pound—Hughes, Citadel, outpointed Buchan, P. C.

129 pound—Forfeit to Leonard, Citadel.

139 pound—Todd, Citadel, outpointed Lambright, P. C.

149 pound—Mitchell, Citadel, outpointed Lambright, P. C.

139 pound—Todd, Citadel, outpointed Clements, P. C.

159—Forfeit to Lempesis, Citadel.

169—Forfeit to Deas, Citadel.

179—Forfeit to King, Citadel.

Unlimited—Forfeit to Orville Rogers, Citadel.

Boxing Team To Meet Georgia Here Tomorrow Night

First Home Matches Of Current Season At 7:30.

After having suffered a whitewash in their first match of the season with The Citadel last Saturday night in Charleston, the P. C. boxers are getting in shape for their match with the University of Georgia team here in the Leroy Springs gymnasium next Wednesday night, January 26.

The Blue Stockings will be suffering from two evils, both of them common to Hose fighting crews for the past two years. They are inexperienced, most of them being sophomores and juniors; and they have a paucity of material.

However, Coach Johnson has been working hard on the boys and believes that he has rounded them into fighting shape. Some of the weights are weak, but he hopes to put a fighter in the ring in every division.

Johnson's greatest hope will be in "Joe Louis" Clements, Golden Gloves finalist who tips the scales at about 140; Ed Lambright, 160-pounder, and Ralph Buchan, flyweight scrapper. There will be eight bouts in the match.

Three New Teams Added To Hose Grid Schedule

Centre, Oglethorpe and Stetson Placed On 1938 Football List.

Presbyterian college's football team will meet three schools not on its 1937 schedule in 1938, according to an announcement by Athletic Director Walter Johnson, who also states that while the Blue Stockings will play ten games during the fall, the complete schedule is not yet ready for announcement.

Of the three schools added, two are institutions which the Hosemen have never met. On October 22 they will invade Danville, Kentucky, where, for the first time in Presbyterian college history, they will play Centre college.

On Thanksgiving day they will go to Deland, Fla., to close their season against another school new to Blue Hose grid schedules, Stetson university.

The third addition to the schedule is Oglethorpe university, which the Hosemen will play on September 24 in Atlanta. P. C. has formerly played the Stormy Petrels.

Johnson also indicated that there would be four home games for the Blue Stockings, each of them played at night, though the details of dates are not yet certain.

Three schools on the 1937 schedule are not present on the 1938 slate. They are Georgia Tech, Furman, and the University of South Carolina.

HOLDEN, BATCHELOR LEAD IN SCORING

The score at the half was P. C. 28, College of Charleston 23, and that was the closest the Charlestonians got to the lead.

Holden, P. C. center, was top scorer with 16 points. His team-mate, Batchelor, was not far behind with 15. Waldrep was also high in scoring, amassing 14 points.

IN THE BASKET

Well, tonight P. C. meets its old rival, the Newberry rage team. For several years these schools have been vieing with one anther in all phases of sports activities.

In speaking of the game tonight, a writer in the newspaper of Newberry college says: "The Blue Stockings have practically the same quintet that performed so well last season and as one may recall it was a fighting, consistent and cracker-jack five."

In speaking of the Indians' defeat here last year, he says, "This year it is going to be a different story and it will be made so if the Trible will get out and scrap from the first whistle to the last and play ball as they really should and can." Be that as it may, we shall see tonight.

At present the cagers' record stands with two lost and two won. This week's strenuous play will determine to a large extent the result of the season for them. If they come out well we may expect a good season. If not, then we may expect anything.

The team at present is in pretty good condition, with only a few minor ailments to bother the members thus far, and should do as well on their first extended trip of the season as on their first.

We were beaten by a larger score at the hands of Wofford than were the Indians. Thearetically, this would make the Tribe have the edge. But as the Newberry writer said, "that can be overlooked because the battle will take place on the Blue Hose's home court."

"One never knows, does one?" said Little Lord Fauntleroy, or was it gran'ma? Anyway, here's our prediction for tonight's score: P. C. 32, Newberry 27.

MacLEAN TO LEAVE NEWBERRY

Announcement has been made that Coach "Dutch" MacLean has resigned his position at Newberry college effective at the end of the school year. He has accepted the position of athletic director at Porter Military academy, Charleston. MacLean has been coach at Newberry for 18 years. He is a graduate of Newberry, in the class of 1915. He is second only to our own Walter Johnson in length of service as a coach in South Carolina. MacLean has done an excellent job at Newberry, having developed some good players and teams during the course of his long service, not only in football but also in basketball, track and baseball. The Blue Stocking, while regretting to lose him as a rival coach and near neighbor, is gratified that he is to remain in South Carolina. May his stay at Porter be as long and the quality of his work as brilliant as was his connection with Newberry!

JACOBS TALKS AT MEETING IN CHICAGO

Eddresses Executive Committee of Education Association.

President William P. Jacobs of Presbyterian college on last Wednesday evening addressed the executive committee of the American Association of Colleges and Universities at a meeting in Chicago, giving them particulars of his plan for an amendment to the revenue act of the United States to stimulate the contributions to endowments of privately owned educational institutions.

Mr. Jacobs, in his address, stated that statistics show that contributions to endowments of privately own educational institutions have decreased from 70 million dollars in 1925-26 to 33 million in 1935-36. He stated that these figures were unchallenged by the American Council on Education.

"High income tax brackets have [illegible] in the former sources of large gifts for privately controlled institutions, while public institutions have increased their incomes by 800 per cent, most of its resulting from federal grants," he said.

Fearing such a trend would lead to the destruction of the church-owned colleges and orphanages, Mr. Jacobs stated that he had asked Washington for an amendment to the revenue act to protect private institutions in this emergency.

He said he had been called to Washington six times during the past two months in regard to his plan.

Following his address before the executive committee of the American Association of Colleges and Universities, Mr. Jacobs will go to Washington and New York in regard to the plan.

Jacobs Quoted In New Book By Robinson

President Jacobs has just received a copy of "What Is Christian Faith?" by Dr. William Childs Robinson, professor at Columbia Theological seminary, autographed by the author.

In the book Dr. Robinson quotes from the pamphlet, "If Ye Have Faith and Doubt Not," which President Jacobs wrote in 1936. He uses the following quotation in his chapter on the faith of Abraham, "By faith Moses refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter, choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season; accounting the reproach of Christ greater than the treasures of Egypt."

Dr. Robinson has spoken to the student body at P. C. several times, and, as he states, in the beginning of his new book, some of the material used in it was that on which he spoke to the students here during the occasions he visited the campus.

INTERVIEWS

— By —
"PETE" McCORMICK

Comes the end of exam week and the exam question is very much discussed and cussed at this particular time. So we decided that this would be an appropriate time to publish some student opinion concerning the abolition of exams, exemption from exams, and other questions relating to that subject.

The questions this week were mainly these three: "DO YOU THINK EXAMS SHOULD BE ABOLISHED ALTOGETHER?" "SHOULD SENIORS WITH AN AVERAGE OF B OR MORE BE EXEMPT FROM EXAMS?" and "SHOULD THOSE STUDENTS WHO ARE HONORED WITH PLACES ON THE DEAN'S LIST BE EXEMPT?"

Our first victim was BILL COLEMAN, freshman journalist and member of the frosh football team. We popped the question to him and he didn't waste any time in giving the following answer: "I think exams should be abolished and be replaced by cumulative four-week tests, which are used by most of the professors anway. This would prevent that unnecessary loss of time twice a year and would mean lses work on the students. I do think that seniors with an average of B or more should be exempt from both semester exams, that if, if their average for the past three years has been a B or more. Those on the dean's honoh list should not be exempt unless they are seniors."

CURLY "JOE LOUIS" CLEMENTS, flashy leather-pusher, was next in the line of victims. He was very serious about this exam question (most of us are), and thought a little while before he said: "I am in favor of exams being abolished and replaced by four or six-week tests. I think examinations should be required in all high schools, but should be banished from college requirements. I am in favor of B average seniors being exempt from exams for they deserve such a privilege after three years of work. That should be established as a rule. I don't think anyone, other than seniors, who is on the dean's list should be exempt."

ROLAND "SQUIRREL" WORRELL, member of the glee club and one of the champions in the 1937 intramural leather-pushing contests, was very emphatic in saying: "I the members of the student be agree with me when I say th ams should be done away wi them be gone with the wind. I think seniors with an averag or better should be exemp exams. I am not in favor of t emption of honor students exams."

REGISTRAR REPORTS INCREASE IN SECOND TERM ENROLLMENT

FEW STUDENTS FAIL TO RETURN TO SCHOOL

Transfers and New Students Increase Number Here for Second Semester.

Presbyterian college student enrollment reach a new high following the second semester registration. It was revealed that there are 345 students enrolled, which is seven more than the number during the first semester, Mrs. Marshall W. Brown, registrar, announced.

Four students completed their work at the end of the first semester, namely, Allen Jones, Mary Motes, Neill Wilson and Jack Witherspoon.

There were several transfers and new students to sign the college roster:

L. E. Timmerman of Evans, Ga., a freshman.

Mac Reid, of Presbyterian Junior college, Maxton, N. C., a transfer.

Fayette White, of Holyoka, Mass., a transfer from Miami university, enters the freshman class.

J. B. Gibbes, of Ivanhoe, Va., who attended school here several years ago but was forced to stop for a time, has reentered the junior class.

Terence Huck, who graduated from Boys' high, Atlanta, last week, will come here during the week to take up his studies as a freshman.

Christina Sowers, of Clinton, entered as a special student.

Dorothy Dillard, of Goldville, entered as a freshman.

Three students were forced to leave school at the end of the first semester. Horace Cassels, freshman, left because of sickness. Joe Alexander left school on account of a defect of the eyes, and Bill Bullock, sophomore, was called home due to a death in his family. It is uncertain whether he will return this year.

Due to the fact that there was some misunderstanding concerning late registration, Dean Brown made the following statement: "Although there is a fee of $5.00 charged those who are late in registering, the glee club and orchestra members have been granted special permission to register on their return from the trip due to the fact that they were scheduled to leave before registration day. All others who register now will be charged $5.00."

Midwinter Dances Enjoyed By Many

Hudson's Band Proves Very Popular With Students.

Dean Hudson and his Florida Clubmen swung out in good fashion the past week-end and brought a very successful set of mid-winter dances t oa close Saturday at midnight with his famed theme-song, "Annie Laurie."

Hudson and his orchestra swung Friday and Saturday nights for the formal and informal dances, respectively, while Hap Gray and his P. C. Collegians furnished the music for the Saturday afternoon tea dance.

Hudson's orchestra rates as one of the best in the South and the members of the Pan-Hellenic council, student body and all who attended were more than satisfied.

Hap Gray, leader of the P. C. orchestra, made the following statement: "Dean Hudson has the best orchestra that has ever played here. We had the best bunch of girls we've ever had. The conduct of the crowd was very good ,and the dances, as a whole, were very successful."

Johnny Woodward, president of the Pan-Hellenic council, said: "Speaking for the council, I think we could not have done better in the selection of an orchestra. The crowd was fine, the conduct good, and the dances very successful. I want to thank the student body and the various fraternities for their support and cooperation."

Joe Commander, president of the student body, said: "These were the best dances I've ever attended and I think the entire student body feels the same way. There was more latedating and less snaking. There was the mostest of the bestest girls we've ever had. The orchetra was grade "A" and I think that before many latedates have passed Dean Hudson and his boys will race along with Glen Gray, Jan Garber, and Kay Kyser."

Leaving P. C., Hudson will play at Dartmouth's mid-winters along with Tommy Dorsey. Hudson and his boys will be holding forth at one end of the large Dartmouth dance hall and the incomparable Dorsey at the other at the same time.

Coaches Decide S. C. Track Meet To Be Held Here

P. C. Track Continues To Be Scene of Meet. Scheduled for Week-end of May 6-7.

STATE TENNIS MEET HERE BEGINNING ON MAY 11

On last Friday Presbyterian college was host to the South Carolina Coaches association which met in Leroy Springs gymnasium to arrange schedules for the various sports of the coming spring season. Coach Tatum Gressette, of The Citadel, who is president of the association, was in charge of the meeting.

Among those present were Coaches Jess Neely and Bob Jones of Clemson; Dr. Charles N. Wyatt, faculty chairman of the Furman Athletic association; Coach Setzler of Newberry; Athletic Director Jules Carson and Coach Robinson of Wofford; Coach Jake Todd of Erskine, and Athletic Director Bill Harth of Carolina. Also present from Carolina was "Catfish" Smith, who is the newly appointed baseball coach at the university. Athletic Director Walter A. Johnson represented the Blue Hose coaching staff at the meeting.

The association succeeded in formulating the baseball, tennis, and golf schedules of the various state colleges, and also finished incompleted track schedules for the coming season. These schedules are to be released next week.

The coaches unanimously agreed to hold both the South Carolina intercollegiate track meet and the state tennis tournament at Presbyterian college.

The track meet will begin with the freshman events and varsity trials on Friday, May 6. Varsity finals will be run off as usual on the following night, Saturday, May 7.

The annual tennis tournament will begin on Wednesday, May 11, and will continue through Saturday, May 14. In former years only varsity matches have been held, but the association decided to have both a varsity and a freshman tournament this year.

Having completed other minor business the coaches proceeded to Judd ming hall where they were guests of the college at lunch.

LARGE NUMBER TO PARTICIPATE IN OPENER OF R. O. T. C. BOUTS

Forty-four fighters are anxiously awaiting the sound of the opening gong which this week will begin the first of 22 scheduled scraps. Of the 44 pugs, there are 43 freshmen and one sophomore. The boxers weigh in at every class from the 119-pound group to the unlimited class. There will be several fights in every weight except unlimited, and possibly the 179-pound class.

The first series of fights will begin at 7:30 tonight, with the second and third series coming on Wednesday and Friday nights, respectively. classes will put on the show tonight, The fighters in the lighter weight the winners engaging in the semi-finals later. Glee Club Tour Proves Successful

P. C. Singers and Orchestra Give Performances In Nine Towns.

Completing successfully its sixth tour under the baton of Dr. S. M. Huntley, the Presbyterian college glee club returned to the home campus on Saturday morning. The tour, which lasted five days, covered a great portion of the Piedmont section of South Carolina and performances were presented in nine different cities.

The first concert given at Union found the club singing well, but not quite up to par. After the performance the members of the entire troupe were entertained at a reception given in their honor in the social room of the First Presbyterian church.

The second performance, given at Lancaster, showed much improvement and the Woman's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church, sponsors of the program, entertained the club with a luncheon in the social hall.

Following the first two engagements the club visited Fort Mill, York and Greer, presenting evening concerts in each city. They were royally entertained at each stop and all performances were quite successful. Luncheon engagements were given in Clover, Gaffney and Inman, respectively. The last performance found the club in the city of Chester where, before its former president, Dr. John McSween, it completed the first tour of the season. After the last concert the orchestra played for the President's ball, held in the Chester city hall.

The entire trip was quite successful and Dr. Huntley has expressed his approval of each performance.

Gray To Head Science Group

At a recent meeting of Chi Beta Phi, scientific fraternity, one new member, William B. Peeksen, was initiated and new officers were elected to head the group.

In the election of officers, Harris Gray succeeded Jack Witherspoon, who graduated at the end of the first semester. Abram Briggs was elected vice-president, Francis Blalock, secretary, and Frank Johnston, treasurer.

Arrangements have been and are being made to have a number of out-of-town speakers visit the campus and address the fraternity. This is to promote more student interest in scientific activitie on the campus. All members of the student body have the privilege of attending these special addresses.

SOUR NOTES — from the — GLEE CLUB TRIP

By A. NARYTONE

No, as many will have will come out of the glee club trip this year as last, but there are a few things that are too good to let pass without [illegible] inside dope.

Wilmington and [illegible] and tell this extremely befuddled college [illegible] all the luck? One of our well-known ministerial students really ran into something good in Union and again in Chester, and either his conscience warned him or his brain (if any) ceased to function, because he let both opportunities slip through his fingers. HART luck.

For shame, you fraternity brothers, stealing each other's women! GILMORE thought he really had something there too. GRAY and PATTERSON work fast, though.

Pity the poor boys that stayed out in the country on the coldest night we had. They had to wash up in rain water from a barrel on the roof, and not even the much heralded farmer's daughter to console them.

Freshman BEARD seems to get around. His late date after the dance in Chester was slightly O. K. She danced in the floor show, and, gentlemen, what a show! Nothing like having those home-town connections.

Ask anybody:

Why they call GILMORE "Plunger."

Why SPRAT tried to get left in Gaffney.

Why GRAY was so Sleepy the day we left York.

Why JUNE MOORE was in such a hurry to leave Chester.

Why this darn stuff doesn't stop. It does . . . right here.

BELL STREET CHORUS SINGS AT "Y" MEET

The Bell Street (Negro) choir, of Clinton, sang before a large group of students and visitors at the Y.M.C.A. meeting held in the college chapel Friday night.

The program was made up of spirituals sung by the choir and their faculty quartet. Selections included on

Horace Cassels Ill At Johns Hopkins

Members of the student body will be sorry to know that Horace Cassels, freshman, who was recently forced to leave school because of illness, is in serious condition and has been moved from his home to Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore.

G. Beatty Made I. R. C. President

George Beatty, senior, was recently elected president of the International Relations club, succeeding Jack Witherspoon, who completed his studies here at the end of the first semester. Beatty held the office of vice-president of the club prior to his elevation to the presidency.

Meisky Is Given Red Cross Medal

In recognition of his meritorious service in saving the life of Katherine Burton on June 4, 1937, at a swimming party at Crystal Lake, Winston-Salem, N. C., Richard Meisky, outstanding Presbyterian college freshman athlete, was awarded a national Red Cross certificate.

"Mike" received the award at the chapel services of High Point, N. C., high school during a visit to his home on January 21.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

The eyes of the student body turn this week to Leroy Springs gym and "intromurder" boxing. The bouts this year are expected to be interesting, so we picked this issue to publish the opinions of some of the fighters. The matches will begin tonight at 7:30. The statements of the fighters answer the following questions: "ARE YOU IN GOOD SHAPE? WHAT DO YOU PREDICT FOR THE OUTCOME OF YOUR FIGHT?"

A match that has created plenty of interest in the one between "TOUGH" EMBLER and "MURDERER" MEISKY. Meisky says: "He's a good man, and it'll be a tough fight. I had a good workout the past weekend at the dances 'little appling' and 'truckin'. I'll coast the first round.

Students To Vote Tomorrow On First Constitutional Amendment Following Honor System Controversy

Tomorrow morning the student body will vote on the first amendment to the constitution of the student government that has been proposed since the adoption of that document instituting student government.

The amendment was proposed at a formal meeting of the student body last Friday following a recent controversy concerning the ineffectiveness of the honor system under the present constitution.

The controversy arose following the printing of an a letter signed, "A Male Student," in The Blue Stocking, and addressed to the retiring editor of the paper. It contained vigorous accusations charging leaders of the student government and Y. M. C. A. with "neglect of duty." The editor of The Blue Stocking agreed with the author of the letter and presented facts to prove that many of the accusations were true, and warned students that faculty action might be taken to abolish the honor system unless something were done.

At a student body meeting following the publishing of the accusing letter and answer, the president of the student body admitted that the accusations were true "to some extent' 'and expressed admiration for the courage of the editor in daring to state the truth. The president also added that he intended to take steps "to do something about the situation" at an early meeting of the student council. He closed his brief address by inviting student comment and suggestions for improving the honor system at the next meeting of the student body. Following this talk the president received a unanimous vote of confidence in a verbal plebiscite.

At the meeting on Friday many suggestions and comments were offered, but the suggestion of E. G. Lambright, of Brunswick, Ga., put in the form of a motion which was carried, will form the basis of the proposed amendment. The substance of the proposed amendment is as follows:

"In the case of the first offense of a person convicted of cheating (instead of two weeks suspension), he (she) will have the privilege of making a confession of guilt followed by an apology before the student body at a formal meeting of the latter. In case of a second offense, permanent expulsion will be mandatory." The amendment corrected in full will be stated on tomorrow's ballot sheet.

Article XVI of the constitution concerning amendments is as follows:

"Sec. 1. Amendments to this constitution may be proposed by the council and if approved by the faculty shall become valid when adopted by the student body.

"Sec. 2. Any motion involving a change of policy or monetary expenditure shall lie on the table for a period of two days after the motion is made before a vote, or same shall be taken by the student body."

At the same meeting in which the amendment was proposed Allen McSween, of Chester, offered the suggestion that a group of unofficial student councilmen be formed by having students so inclined sign a pledge stating that they would report any cheating just as a councilman is obligated to do. Following the meeting 41 students signed the suggested pledge.

A New Keyboard — A New Day

It is with mixed feelings of grateful pleasure and deep thoughtfulness that we begin to tap out these, our first words as editor of your paper.

Although twice before we have had the privilege of editing issues of The Blue Stocking and filling these editorial columns, now it is different. It must be, for now the full responsibility is ours, and responsibility guides and tempers a man as nothing else can. It is a hard but just master.

In realizing this fact, we can do no less in the months to come than to recognize problems of the administration and student body as they arise, and then to present them fearlessly, conscientiously, and above all, impartially. We mention this first in the light of the seriousness of a recent editorial vitally concernng both the student body and the administration.

In regard to a definite policy of the new editorial staff of The Blue Stocking we pledge no sensational or revolutionary change. As we take office, The Blue Stocking ranks as the third best college weekly in the state, having received this rating in competition with ten other college papers. This contest was arranged by the South Carolina College Press Association and judged by editors of nationally famous dailies. The past editor is to be heartily congratulated. It is our duty to keep this rating, and our fervent hope is to better it. This will be our goal.

Now as to specific changes of policy. Although letters to the editor will be encouraged, beginning with this issue, they will not be printed anonymously. They must be signed with the complete initials and class date of the author.

We shall endeavor to emphasize feature articles, pictographs, and a column of clever humor of campus activities and personalities.

Before us is a clear road. Not to success (however strongly we may wish it), but to the opportunity for gaining success. The goal is not easily won, but we can attain it without the aid of luck or rare gifts or miracles — simply by practicing the common everyday virtues that bring success in any human ventures.

Now, finally, this thought, expressed partially by a famous contemporary author and slightly added to by us, seems to sum up our general policy and purpose:

"We may be serious, but never solemn; flexible, but not spineless; frank, but not obscene; vigorous, but not rude; refined, but not prim; true, but not trite; successful, but not smug; suggestible, but not credible; wrong, but never false."

A Gentleman and a Journalist

Two issues ago, Mr. McLeod completed his term as editor of The Blue Stocking. As he typed his last "story" and editorial, he was able to cover his typewriter with the feeling of the completion of a job well done. He had every right to feel this way. As we mention above, under his guidance The Blue Stocking again was able to claim a place among the three best college weeklies in the state.

Probably no editor of The Blue Stocking ever before sat in the editor's chair with less experience in the field of journalism than Mr. McLeod, as he himself has pointed out.

Experience, however, was all that was lacking, for ability and tenacity of purpose were certainly his. Therefore, he set to work, carefully picked his staff and soon enlisted their cooperation. Although the going was rough at times, he made the grade. He has written at least one article in every department of the paper and one, following a holiday when news was as scarce as "AAs" he wrote almost the entire paper himself.

After he had completed his job and earned a rest, fate gave him one more edition to run through the press. Like an avalanche there descended upon him the responsibility of a momentous decision. The right answer to the problem was so obvious that his reply could not have been otherwise, as has been since officially indicated. It is, however, a regrettable fact that the president of an organization or the editor of a paper nearly always receives the greatest blame for the mistakes and faults of an organization, and then when the condition is reversed, he receives the least credit.

We say, therefore, to Mr. McLeod, that we appreciate his acting as editor during our illness. We add that it has been a privilege and a pleasure to have worked with such a gentleman and journalist. The student body must appreciate a man who has given them The Blue Stocking every Monday night that it was scheduled to come off the press—and, moreover, the third best paper in the state. More could be said, but certainly no less.

The Round Trip Ticket

With the second semester behind us and exams a thing of the past, we can start out with renewed courage and a clean slate. Most of us realize by now what our obligations are and that, although we might be able to fool other people that it doesn't matter whether or not we make high grades, nevertheless we have to live with ourselves, and we know it does make a difference.

We have already run the risk of being trite by even mentioning the idea of self analysis, in the above terms, so without further comment on our part we pass on to you this story for what it is worth. (That depends entirely on you, according to the person who told it to us).

Once a man rushed into a ticket office in a terminal station in a large city while his friend waited patiently for him outside. Soon the man returned holding his ticket proudly in the air for his friend to see. As he reached the side of the car in which his friend sat he excitedly exclaimed, "Well, John, I guess I put one over on the railroad that time."

"How was that?" his friend asked.

"Well," said the man, still beaming, "I bought a round trip ticket and the joke's on the railroad, 'cause I'm not coming back."

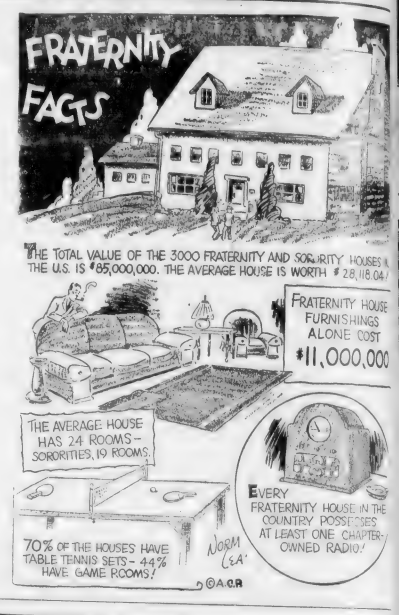
SCANDAL SCOOP

By The Snoopers

Boy, did you see that blonde venus that GORDON (Round the World) HUGGINS was trying to keep up with this past week-end? Boy, was she a honey? For the benefit of those who were at the end of the line or were seriously injured in the rush, her name is ELIZABETH EDENS. She cavorts at Myrtle Beach every summer and she never fails to catch a male eye; they all meet her by some method. Round the World has really turned the trick again. And does she love him? If you don't believe it, just ask him!

PETE HOLCOMBE was mighty anxious to get down to Charleston this week-end to play basketball (?). He even left a day ahead of the basketball team. He must have been very anxious to play. Holcombe ain't noted for playing basketball by himself—that is, unless he's changed to a one-man cage team lately.

I'll bet a nickel it's a girl,
'Cause Pete's in love,
He's in a whirl.
He'll bill and coo and turtle dove.
The girlie is BERTIE withouta doubta.



RALPH WALDREP ain't all smiles here of late for nothing, either. We have an idea that it's all because of a mighty sweet girl by the name of KATHRYN OWENS. We notice with particular interest also that this sweet someone of Ralph's has been attending basketball games regularly.

The score stands tied at thirty all.
The game is very close.
Twenty seconds left to play.
The crowd is in a roast.
Ralph grabs the ball and drops one in.
The crowd has gone hog-wild.
He turns to the gal with the velvet gaze,
And gives his sweetest smile.

There is a guy named CLIFF McLEOD who likes a girl named Scarley.
She's medium height, weight one-fifteen, has hair that's blond and curly.
There is a point and I dust think we should get down to it.
The love bug's pretty bad of late; and that guy has been bit.

Now you realize why the author would not allow his name to be placed at the head of this column. The poetry smells highly, but that's just our way of expressing things. Of course we had to use words which were not appropriate at times, but our policy is "Make it rhyme somehow" and that's just what we did. If you've got any kicking to do, you may report to Coach Johnson. He says we need a good kicker for next year's football team.

CAMPUS ODDITIES

Just Jargon

— By —

"PETE" McCORMICK

Well, comes the time when friends must part and this rag changes editors, staff, etc. You are now reading a crummy column which will replace the former Campus Cruising column, written by the same insane student, with little or no object in view and in constant fear of being killed by an avalanche of fists stirred up by warring members of the local student body. Remember, though, no deadly weapons may be used on the campus.

In a recent editorial in the Furman "Hornet," the honor system was discussed and explained for the benefit of Furman freshmen. The editorial revealed that the Furman honor system has been criticized rather severely at times and the question of having faculty members remain in the rooms during tests, exams, etc., has arisen. The honor system means that every student should confine his remarks on examination papers, tests, etc., to what he can reproduce out of his unassisted memory. Any student who does more than this is to be dealt with in a most unpleasant manner."

The editorial was issued more as a warning than as an accusation to the freshman class immediately prior to examinations.

The Hornet also stated that the accusation is sometimes directed at the Furman honor system ,as follows: "The faculty has the honor and the students have the system."

Let's bring up a subject which is often ignored by the best of people but is a much discussed question among the more observative college boys.

Do you know what a doodler is? This question takes much consideration, so don't try to answer it now. Let me do it in my own quiet way. A doodler is the lowest type of individual and one who always carries some tool as a pencil, chalk, knife, fingernail file or piece of crayon, and with it manages to mark up the best people's home and cover telephone booth walls with markings of his own moronic originations. Now to explain this definition.

Often on trees you see marks of a doodler. Such things as one's initials carved in a tree-trunk. In telephone booths we find guys' telephone numbers and various and sundry things of an inhuman character. Of these animals walk along street and when they come to with the windows covered with writing, they make it a point to their fingers the length of the dow, making a long mark. On occasions they have been known walk back by the store and make more complete job of it. A doo motto is, "If one doodles a all, he should doodle it well!"

Here is a little pome by a columnist pertaining to these

SPORTS FOLIO

By JAMES HAFLEY

WITH APOLOGIES TO JAKE

We shall express our hopes in verse,
Let's hope for better and not for worse;
Ole Jake's stuff was pretty good,
Poor fellow! He did the best he could.

The style has been to write sports in rhyme,
But, oh no, my friends, not this time.
Maybe it's because we can't write the stuff,
And maybe it's because everybody's had enough.

McLaurin and Hafley will do their best,
Sportanic eruptions from east and west—
I know not what difference this verse makes,
But somehow, folks, I still like Jake's!

Little, but loud — such is the boxing team that represents Presbyterian college. And the boys proved it conclusively Wednesday night against a powerful aggregation of leather-pushers from the University of Georgia. Although Coach Johnson's men were the victims of four forfeits, they ecquitted themselves nobly by winning three varsity decisions and losing only one.

In the non-decision matches, "Dib" Wyman, Frank Sutton, and John Wells Todd clearly outpointed their opponents. Coach Johnson just can't wait till next year when Wyman and Sutton enter varsity competition. (And he's got two good uns there, too!) Sutton's match was the outstanding one of the evening for, after fifty seconds of fistic flurries in the first frame, his opponent, Van Riper, was flat on his back!

In the varsity matches, Buchan, Clements, and Kee did a good job in winning over their respective opponents. Ed Lambright fought hard and looked good all the way through his match with Saffald but dropped a close decision. Next year's boxing team prospects should be anything but gloomy with such men as Wyman, Sutton, and Davenport in Walter Johnson's advanced corps. Maybe even Clemson will have to look to their laurels!

Baseball, the king of spring sports, hasn't been formally ushered in yet, but when it is Coach Galloway and his state champs will be ready. Already the resounding plunk of the rawhide into the big mitt is a familiar sound down at the gym where pitchers and catchers have started working out already. Chick's gonna have a hard time replacing such moundmen as "Coon" Weldon and "Lefty" Suggs, but he's a miracle man!

You can always tell baseball is just around the corner when Dizzy Dean and Branch Rickey start their disagreements over the former's salary. Maybe the fans will remember what happened last year in the controversy over the matter of Dean's signing a contract with the Cards. For about three months Jerome Herman Dean called the Cardinal bosses everything he could think of and swore by the green graves of his sires that he would never sign for the sum stipulated. Diz even swore at eleven o'clock one day that he never would sign a contract with any team and that he was through with baseball for good. Even some of the sports writers and fans believed him when he called it quits, but by noon of the same day he had signed up at the terms laid down by his bosses. Well, they're at it again this year!

TANKMEN MEET U. OF GA. FRIDAY IN INITIAL TILT

Coach Wilson Reports Team In Good Shape.

Presbyterian college's first swimming team in several years will get their initial test Saturday, February 4, at Athens, when they meet the University of Georgia. This is the first of a series of meets which includes contests with Clemson, Georgia Tech, and probably Auburn.

P. C. will enter Steele Caldwell, George Beatty, Huiet Paul, John Broughton, Charlie Thompon and T. Q. Jones in the sprints; Paul and Beatty in diving; Broughton, Beatty, Caldwell and Paul in the relay; Broughton in the breast stroke, and Beatty in the back stroke. Several freshmen, including Lloyd, Beard, Brooks, Lightfoot, and Boggs, will make the trip to swim in preliminaries. Lloyd was second in the South Atlantic swimming meet last summer in the 100-yard free style.

Hank Wilson, tank coach, made the following statement: "The team should be in fine shape for the meet. We are going to give them all we've got." Assistant Coach Stowell and Manager Jacobs will accompany the team.

P. C. Quint Downs Newberry, College Of Charleston

By BILL McLAURIN

With a last-period spurt that netted 17 points, the much-improved Blue Hose took a thrilling game from the Newberry Indians in Leroy Springs gymnasium Tuesday night, 35 to 28.

McIntosh and Cromer sank beautiful field goals from the middle of the court to give the Indians an early lead which they held at 21-18 at the half mark.

P. C. launched a scoring spree early in the second period and with Holden and Waldrep leading the way they were in a tie with the Indians at 28 all. With three minutes left to play, Hilden, versatile Hose center, sank a snowbird, Folley added two more with an overhead shot, and Holcombe sank another two-pointer to put the game on ice.

Cromer led the night's scoring with 10 points, followed by P. C.'s Holden with 9 points to his credit. Holcombe held Schuler, the Indians' high scorer to a standstill. The little forward didn't scratch.

P. C. 24; Charleston 20

Folley entered the game in the closing minutes and dropped two fouls and a field goal to give the Blue Hose a 24-20 victory over the College of Charleston Maroons in their first "City by the Sea" game.

The game featured the very close guarding of both teams and the inability of the Hose to hit the hoop. Although they missed numerous shots, P. C. led at the half, 13-7.

The game was exciting all the way, especially in the waning minutes of the second half when Folley did his job and did it well.

Waldrep, Batchelor and Holcombe led the Blue Hose with five points each. Frystowsky and Lee, with seven points each, led the Maroons.

Bulldogs Trounce Blue Hose Five

The Citadel Bulldogs ran roughshod over the Blue Hose Friday night to the tune of 37 to 18, in a game played in the Citadel gym.

The Bulldogs took an early lead which they never relinquished. They led by 21-10 at the half way mark.

Burroughs, sophomore sensation, was the sparkplug on the Citadel offensive, tallying 11 points to lead the scoring for the night. McNeill, all state guard, was a granite wall on the defensive and led the floor play of the Bulldogs. Johnson was high scorer for the Hose with five points. Holden played his usual fine game at center, handling the backboard responsibilities in a skilled manner. Holcombe played a very consistent game.

HOSE WIN HARD FOUGHT TILT AT UNIVERSITY FIELD HOUSE

TAKE EARLY LEAD TO WIN THRILLING CONTEST.

By BILL McLAURIN

In a thrilling climax to a successful road trip, the Blue Hose quint won a hard-fought game from the Carolina Gamecocks in the University field house Saturday night by the score of 32 to 28.

The Hose, with Waldrep leading the way, gotoff to an early lead which they held throughout the game. Waldrep dropped four successive field goals in the first few minutes to put the Hose out in front. At the half the Hose led, 21 to 15.

The Waldrep-Holcombe scoring combination, which the Gamecocks found to be one of the best they have yet run up against, turned on the big guns again in the second half and rolled up the score to 28-21 with five minutes to go. From there the Birds started a rally which brought them to within two points of a tie at 28 all. Holcombe slipped in a beauty and he and Johnston dropped in free tries to put the game on ice with only 20 seconds of play remaining. P. C. was freezing the ball as the game ended.

Waldrep and Holcombe, with 12 points each, led the Hose offensive, while Batchelor held Hutto, all-state guard, scoreless. Holden covered Lipscomb in fine fettle, although the tall center droped in four pretty field goals that Les couldn't do a thing about. Cavin and Johnston did their part as did C. Griffin. The win was the fifth in eight starts for the McMillianmen and places them fourth in the state race.

Erskine will be entertained here Thursday night in a doubleheader which will open with the frosh of the The varsity contest will start immediately following the freshmen.

against the Erskine yearlings in a game preceding the varsity tilt Thursday night.

Georgia Boxers Win Close Bout

Four Forfeits Cause Loss of Evening's Bill.

The Presbyterian college boxing team acted as host here last Wednesday night to the pugilistic charges from the University of Georgia in a series of close and exciting matches. Being the recipient of four forfeits and one decision, the Athenians emerged victors, 5-3, but not until after the Hosemen had proved their prowess in Buchan, Clements, and Kee.

In the 115-pound class, Ralph Buchan spotted his opponent, Rowland, nine pounds, but proceeded to hammer out a clear decision in three fast rounds of fistic flurries. "Curly" Clements won a close decision over Fredrickson, of Georgia, in a match that brought the spectatros to their feet many times. Billy Kee proved that his pugilistic ability is a thing of no little power in his colorful win over McMahon. In the 145-pound class Ed Lambright fought an uphill battle all the way only to lose a close decision to Saffald, captain of the Georgia boxing team. Forfeits in the 125-pound class, the 165-pound class, the 175-pound class ,and the unlimited class contributed to the Calvinists' defeat.

The exhibition matches were non-decision, of course, but Coach Johnson was well pleased with the showing made by his three entries, Wyman, Sutton and Todd. The Hosemen will engage a strong boxing team from Clemson some time next week and the athletic department wishes to take this opportunity to ask spectators to pease cooperate with the intercollegiate rules which prohibit cheering during progress of rounds.

P. C. Frosh Win Over Indians

The sensational P. C. Blue Anklets trounced a much taller Newberry first year team, 64 to 41, in a preliminary to the varsity game Tuesday night on the local floor.

Meisky and crew started off like a house afire and built up a commanding lead which they never lost. They displayed uncanny accuracy in shooting the basket and unerring ability at handling the sphere. They shot field goals from all angles and cashed in on a majority of their charity shots to win going away. Meisky tallied 21 points, being followed by Fleischman with 11 points, and Coleman 10.

Coppola, sensational Papoose star, who tallied 43 points against Erskine, and 26 against Furman, shot field goals from all angles to aggregate a grand total of 19 points to bring his total for three games to 88.

The frosh will get their next test take it kinda easy the second, and then I'll probably pull a double poop-out in the third." Embler says: "I'm too tough for him. I'll kayo him in the third. I'm in tip-top shape and that dynamite left of mine is working swell."

Another fight that has created much interest is the unlimited scrap between the PURSLEY BROTHERS, BILL and GENE. Bill ("The Slugger") gives his opinion: "I've got the advantage over him in weight, height and reach, but am in foul shape. I'm still his big brother, however, and if you don't believe it just come out Friday night and watch me cool him off." Gene ("Two-Ton") objects with: "This big-brother stuff doesn't go with me. Im in pretty good shape. To prove that I'm the best man, I'll make him kiss the canvass in the second."

Another classic is the bout between "KING KONG" BILL GIBSON and "BUTCH" BEGGS. Gibson is a little pessimistic and gives the following statement: "I'm just learning how to wear shoes, and due to sore feet, I won't be able to run so I guess he'll get me. I'm thinking of playing possum in the first round. However, if he gets in the way of one of my feets I'll kayo him." "Butch," the freshman class killer, is very optimistic. He says: "I'm in swell shape. I've got a mean right hook which oughta get him in the first thirty seconds. Watch me go."

ROBERT ("One-Punch") WHITAKER has just informed us that he is very glad that they didn't match him with anybody because he was too chicken-hearted to hit these third-class boxers.

One of the feature bouts of the series will be the match between "BATTLER" JOHNNY BETHEA and "KAYO" COKER. Johnny is sure of himself and says: "I have been in better shape, but I oughta get him in the first round. He can't mess with with my famous left haymaker." Coker says: "I'm in tip-top shape—never felt better in my fight career. This guy Bethea ain't so hot 'cause I never heard of him. I'll kayo him in the third to satisfy the boys."

Willard Jones' Grandparents Celebrate 62nd Anniversary

Willard L. Jones, librarian, attended the celebration of the 62nd wedding anniversary of his grandparents, Leonard T. and Mary Smithson Jones, of Westminster, Oconee county, on Thursday, January 20.

This aged couple were married at the Old Retreat in 1876. They have five children, thirteen grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren, all living.

Mr. Jones stated that the celebration was not a formal one, but was attended by close friends and relatives. There were several present who were in the wedding sixty-two years ago.

"HONOR" AMENDMENT BECOMES LAW

OUTLINES AID TO HIGHER GRADES

Eight P. C. Students Included In National Poll Which Rendered Verdict In Favor of Helps.

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

College outlines are a definite aid to improved grades, in the opinion of students using them, a poll conducted under the auspices of the Bureau of Educational Surveys, New York city, shows.

The poll, covering a period of several months, embraced 3,720 students in 223 institutions of higher learning. Eight students from Presbyterian college were included in the poll.

By far the largest number of students reported grade increases from fair to good, following the use of these study helps. A second large group reported improvement in grades from failure to passing. In a few cases students previously receiving failing grades reported final "A" ratings.

The consensus of opinion among the students was that by stating the facts concisely, the college outlines simplified study, enabled them to quickly grasp the essentials as well as get the most out of the recommended text and auxiliary reading.

The professors included in the poll, in the main, approved the use of outlines by the students on the ground of their value as a supplement to their own lectures and as a means of getting the subject together in a coherent and concrete way. Quite a few expressed the belief that they helped the student who might otherwise get lost in an introductory course. "As great a help to the student as any one factor," was the opinion of a Baylor university professor.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

"ARE YOU IN FAVOR OF THE ADMINISTRATION ALLOWING THIS COLLEGE TO GROW, OR DO YOU THINK IT IS BETTER AS IT IS?"

H. G. WARDLAW: "I deem it necessary that, in order for us to have athletic teams which will compete successfully with the various teams in the state, the student body be enlarged to five hundred. Out of the present enrollment of 350 there are not enough versatile students to form high ranking organizations in every department."

M. G. PATTERSON: "By raising the enrollment to five hundred, P. C. will be raised from the small college class and elevated so as to hold its own among other colleges not only athletically, but scholastically. The added number of students would demand a larger and more varied faculty, thereby offering the students more freedom in the selection of their courses. With the elimination of athletic scholarships the added number would be needed to furnish material for the athletic fields. With an enrollment of five hundred students the school could show proof of results in the improvement program now under way."

Sannie Van Reenen was sixteen. She realized that soon she must choose a mate, for that was, after all, the purpose of woman in this world. However, Sannie was stubborn and determined to take her time about choosing one. The great wagon train of the Boers, trekking northward, seeking freedom from British interference, had but few eligibles. Strangely enough, Sannie's choice narrowed down between Hendrick Van Der Berg and Beemam, his son. She was wife to both for a while, but neither satisfied

Cub Reporters To Be Rewarded

Editor To Give Keys For Best News, Feature and Sports Story During Semester.

At the first meeting of the new staff of The Blue Stocking, the editor told of plans for the coming year and announced that he would give three keys at the end of this semester. One key will be given a cub reporter who writes the best feature story of the semester, another will be awarded the reported who submits the best news story, and a third given the cub sports reporter for the best story of that nature.

"These keys wil be awarded," said the editor, "in order to encourage close cooperation between the editors and their staff, and thereby improve the various departments of the paper and the paper as a whole."

The keys, for which five new reporters will be working, bear the college seal on a gold plated background with "The Blue Stocking" in raised letters above the seal.

Places Open At Army Air School

Mental Exam Not Required of Those Who Have Completed Two Years of College Work.

By a special congressional provision the United States army air corps school at Randolph field, near San Antonio, Texas, has been permitted to increase its enrollment above the usual number. This allotment allows 39 men to be selected from the Fourth Corps area, in which Presbyterian college is located.

Men who are between the ages of 20 and 27 years and who have completed two years of accredited college work are not required to take the mental examination.

Applications for the physical examination, which is required of all candidates applying for admission to the air school, should be made through the military department of the college several weeks before March 1, as a new class begins its course of study at that time. Other classes begin on July 1 and October 15.

Major F. C. Harding, professor of military science and tactics at P. C., stated today that pamphlets containing additional information concerning requirements for admission and details of the physical exam could be obtained by calling at his office.

Students Criticise S. C. "Gamecock"

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Some time ago we received a note from F. F. Williams, Jr., telling us of his troubles on the University of South Carolina Gamecock. We haven't heard from him lately, so we can't give you the final details, but you will be interested in his first letter:

"Here is a good item for your ACP service, especially since it ties in with the recent convention in Chicago and goes along with the new style of make-up recently sent out in one of your releases:

" 'Students at the University of South Carloina voted recently to instruct the editorial board of The Gamecock, student weekly, to stop the "freakish and radical" make-up being used by the present staff.'

" 'The editor, F. F. Williams, Jr., attended the recent ACP convention in Chicago where he got his ideas on streamlining a newspaper and carried the idea back to Columbia, S. C. There the students were not able to appreciate the new makeup and voted in a campus balloting to revert to the old style of makeup.

Johnson Is Ahead, Records Reveal

P. C. Coach, After 22 Years, Still Has Less Losses Than Wins Despite Bad Season.

In a recent research made among the football files of the Presbyterian college athletic department, it was revealed that, in spite of the poor results of the past season due to a lack of experienced material, Coach Walter A. Johnson is still ahead in the football game. During his 22 years of coaching the Blue Hose squad Johnson has played a total of 189 games, having won 87, lost 85, and tied 17.

Since coming to P. C. as athletic director in 1915, Coach Johnson has met 28 different institutions on the football field, including such large schools as Georgia Tech, Duke, Howard, Clemson, Citadel, Carolina, Furman, N. C. State, University of Chattanooga, Davidson and Wake Forest. Two new foes, Stetson university and Centre, will be met for the first time during the coming season.

Of 129 games played with South Carolina colleges, Presbyterian has won 60, lost 59, and tied 10. This record includes all games played with the large institutions of the "Big Four" conference.

The record of the Blue Hose as a member of the "Little Four" conference composed of Erskine, Newberry, Wofford, and Presbyterian, is a fairer record since these schools compare with P. C. in size. During his teams' participation in this conference, Coach Johnson has played a total of 66 games, has won 48, lost 14, and tied 4.

P. C. Debaters To Meet Furman

Presbyterian college will debate Furman on Wednesday night at 7:30 in Greenville, it was announced today. The query for the debate is, "Resolved, that the Ludlow amendment should be adopted." Cliff McLeod and D. W. Hudson will uphold the negative side of the question.

The Ludlow resolution is of special interest at the present time as it was brought up for consideration during the present session of congress while the president was negotiating with Japan over the sinking of the Panay. The measure, which would prevent the declaration of war without a popular referendum except in case of invasion, was defeated in the house by a vote of 209 to 188, after having been opposed by the administration and the war department.

The measure was discussed before the Furman student body who, by a large majority, voted in favor of it. The amendment was brought up at the last meeting of the P. C. International Relations club and the vote was unanimously against it.

D. W. Hudson was chosen substitute manager in the absence of R. F. Hutchinson, who is unable to take part in the debates due to sickness.

Campus Is Veritable Haven For Gray Squirrel, Student Naturalist Finds

By HUGH RUTLEDGE

Some call them squirrels, some cat squirrels and some gray squirrels, but regardless of what they are called, have you ever wondered why they are so numerous on the P. C. campus?

Although very few people give them credit, these little fellows are very intelligent. It takes them only a short time to realize the safety of certain places. They know that here on the campus they are fairly safe from many of their enemies. The hunter and his gun are not supposed to bother them. Very few, if any, of their natural enemies are to be encountered. The numerous loose logs and hollow trees make excellent homes. The campus is a haven for the squirrel.

Some of you may wonder where our squirrels find enough food to take them over the winter. During the summer and fall when the pecans, hickory nuts and acorns are ripe they are busy from dawn until dusk gathering and storing them away for future use. Each squirrel, or small family of them, have their own storehouse. They will not touch this supply until it is absolutely necessary. Even when you see them digging in the leaves or under a coat for some little time, you can be sure that nearly all their hoards are there in perfect supplies waiting for the "rainy day." Their habits are a lesson in conservation.

Although they think no harm from human hands will befall them, while they live on the campus, they are not always right. For, sometime ago a banquet of parboiled squirrel was held in one of the dormitories. The unfortunate fellow used for the main course at the banquet may or may not have been one of your little friends from the campus. If it was, we hope that it will be the last he or they are really interesting even when you take time to become acquainted with them.

FACULTY, STUDENT ACCEPTANCE MAKES NEW AMENDMENT VALID

Continuance of Honor System Is Assured By Faculty Acceptance of Move.

ADDITION IS FIRST IN HISTORY OF CONSTITUTION

At a formal student body meeting last Friday morning the recently proposed amendment to Article IX of the student government constitution concerning cheating was unanimously passed.

The amended article now reads:

"Sec. 1. Penalty for cheating: First offense, two weeks suspension or public admission of guilt with apology to student body, or indefinite suspension as the case demands. For the second offense, expulsion shall be the mandatory penalty."

The original article differed from the amended one only in the clause allowing "public admission of guilt with apology" instead of two weeks suspension.

The amendment was proposed by E. G. Lambright of Brunswick, Ga., following the printing of a letter signed, "A Male Student," in The Blue Stocking and addressed to the retiring editor of the paper. It contained vigorous accusations charging leaders of the student government and Y.M.C.A. with "neglect of duty." The editor of The Blue Stocking agreed with the author of the letter and presented facts to prove that many of the accusations were true, and warned the students that faculty action might be taken to abolish the honor system if something were not done.

Early Friday morning the president of the student body received word from the chairman of student relations of the faculty that that body had approved the proposed amendment. Immediately following acceptance by the student body the first amendment to the Presbyterian college honor system constitution became law.

"Collegians" To Play At Converse

"Hap" Gray Announces Schedule for Orchestra Includes Several Important Engagements.

After successfully completing a tour with the Presbyterian college glee club, Hap Gray and his collegians returns to the campus last week and began a season of strenuous practice for the heavy schedule of spring engagements confronting them.

Four performances already have been booked, according to a report released today. On Friday evening, February 11, the orchestra will play for a Bachelor's ball in Greenwood. This will be followed by an engagement with Alpha Psi Delta sorority of Presbyterian college for a girl-break dance on February 18.

The junior class of Converse college has booked Gray and his orchestra for their junior-senior reception on Saturday, February 19. This will be another girl-break.

Later on in the spring the orchestra will play at the Limestone college junior-senior dance.

After being temporarily crippled by the loss of L. G. Heckle, who, because of his duties as editor of The Blue Stocking, tendered his resignation as drummer, the orchestra selected Ned Beard to replace him. Beard accompanied the band on its last trip and proved to be quite a valuable player.

Dr. Nabers Will Address Y.M.C.A.

Tomorrow night the Y.M.C.A. meeting will be conducted by Dr. Charles Haddon Nabers, minister of the First Presbyterian church in Greenville. He will show pictures taken in Europe and the Holy Land during his trips abroad.

Dr. Nabers began his traveling at an early age, being a teacher at a mission school in Cairo, Egypt, at the age of twenty. He is the author of "The Monuments of the Nile," "When Rotary Hosts Trek Eastward," "Youth Choosing," and many other interesting books. Presbyterian college conferred the degree of doctor of literature upon him last June.

This program is another in a series planned to bring outstanding ministers of the Presbyterian church to the college to speak at Y.M.C.A. meetings.

MISS FLEMING LEADS CO-EDS IN GRADES

Mrs. Lillian G. Brown, registrar, states that among the 27 co-eds attending Presbyterian college, Laura Fleming, of Laurens, heads the list as having the highest scholastic ratings for the first semester. She made but one "A"—the rest were "AA"s.

I. R. C. To Be Host On Wednesday

The International Relations club at its regular meeting this week will be host to a group from Newberry college who plan to establish a chapter of the organization there soon.

President George Beatty, recently elected, will preside over a program that will endeavor to make clear the purpose and work of the I. R. C.

The national headquarters of the I. R. C. referred the group from Newberry to the chapter at P. C., which will be instrumental in helping the Newberry chapter become established.

The P. C. chapter of the I. R. C. already has made plans to send delegates to the national convention of the organization to be held sometime in March, but as yet definite delegates have not been chosen.

Increase Of 13 For Second Semester

At the second semester opening of Presbyterian college, 13 new students were added to the enrollment, two of them being sisters, Christine Stone and Frances Stone, from Greenville.

Men students are Lee Moore, Rock Hill; L. E. Thompson, Lancaster; J. R. Harvey, Greenville, N. C.; A. F. Barber, Charleston; Ben Carruthers, Georgia; F. O. White, of Marietta, Ga.; J. B. Graham, of Virginia; Mac Reed, of North Carolina; Terrence Hook, Atlanta, Ga.; Harry H. Mitchell, Tallahassee, Fla.; and W. H. Gardner, Jr., Sarasota, Fla.

Quiet, Please!

It is requested that students, when leaving the auditorium between quiz periods, be very careful and quiet so as not to disturb those in examination.

Old Man Journalism To Wed Miss Nettie Radio?

In a recent sermon Bishop Finlay expressed the fear of resulting consequences should one of the great radio networks and newspaper systems be owned and controlled by one interest. There is very reason in the world for him to have such a fear, and it would not require a political dictatorship to accomplish this as the situation is in Italy and Germany today. Despite the efforts of President Roosevelt to curtail the far-reaching powers of big business, the fact remains that it would be very advantageous for some corporation that had a big interest both in a newspaper and a radio company to combine these interests. It would be advantageous not only from a strictly business monetary sense but also from a political point of view.

A large newspaper like the Hearst system, for example, always expresses the political views of one certain party. Then when that party wins an election the paper continues to support the policy of the party. Now, if a radio corporation and a great news syndicate were combined would it not be a big temptation for the radio corporation to drop the impartiality for which it is now respected, and join the newspaper in its attempt to put in a political party that will insure about a million dollar increase in its income later on?

This, of course, has considered so far only the reward to big business, but suppose the political boys get real ambitious? With a bigger reward dangled before their eyes would it not be probable that the journalists with hands already soiled, would yield to the temptation? "Conscience scared by gold counts not the flaws," and so, forgetting the the immortal words of Voltaire, "I despise everything you say, but I will fight to the death for your right to say it," the journalists will let one of their most cherished principles slip through their fingers. And then, perhaps, there will be a repetition of the condition in Germany and Italy—who knows? As we have pointed out, this could hardly be accomplishide without the aid of radio. Therefore, this merger should never be allowed to take place.

Pretty young Miss Nettie Radio should guard her now spotless virginity of propaganda from the evil intentions of old man Newspaper Journalism as zealously as the brave Horatius at the bridge.

Taps — For College Glee Clubs

Each succeeding generation sees the passing of some movement or article or institution that was popular during the preceding era. We saw the feeble death struggles of the chautauqua, an institution that played a large part in the entertainment and education of our fathers and mothers. The movies and ease of transportation and communication between cities and communities lessened interest in chautauquas. The coming of the radio dealt the final blow.

Universal education, improved transportation, the radio, and the use of modern products in even the humblest of homes have combined to lift the smallest town out of its provincialism. People's tastes and desires no longer are satisfied with amateur efforts and things of their own communities. They will not support a concert simply because it comes to town. In former days such was not so. There was not much else to do, and to while away the time most people in any given community went to whatever form of entertainment happened to appear in town.

This is not to say that lyceum programs and chautauquas did not serve well. On the contrary, they did. They simply came to the end of their usefulness when they were supplanted by something else.

College students are witnessing the passing of an organization right under their noses. It has served long and well; but its days are numbered. We refer to the college glee club. The same things that caused the death of lyceums and chautauquas also have placed their fingers in a stranglehold upon the throats of college singers. Dissolution has not yet occurred, but it is only a matter of time—and it is short. Their demise will cause no national period of mourning.

Overlook the Motes

Editor's Note: The following editorial tribute to the splendid historical work that Dr. F. D. Jones is doing in South Carolina history appeared in The State for January 29.

"Any brave soul who attempts even the humblest sort of writing based upon historical data is well aware of the pitfalls thereupon attendant. Unless he is a genuine scholar, he depends for the information needed upon some printed work of history which to the unaware bears earmarks of authenticity.

"If he has time and inclination to pursue his research, he is dismayed to find almost without fail discrepancies in dates and other facts as presented by other authors. Therefore in ordinary factual writing there are errors apparent to the student who has pored over original sources of information, not available or practicable for the less serious amateur.

"Dr. F. D. Jones, professor of philosophy at Presbyterian College in Clinton, is also an authority on South Carolina history and on botany. He has made delightful avocations of these two sidelines. Doctor Jones has a kindly attitude toward the historical and botanical writings of others.

"Asked if a recent charming volume was not filled with inaccuracies, Doctor Jones replied, with a generous spirit that might well be remembered by others: 'There are some minor mistakes in the book, as there are in most books. But suppose you didn't have the book at all? Then you would be deprived of a great deal that is accurate and delightful.'

"Doctor Jones' kindly attitude was voiced by Pope in these lines in his 'Essay on Criticism':

" 'Whoever thinks a faultless piece to see,
Thinks what ne'er-was, nor is, nor e'er shall be.
In every work regard the writer's end,
Since none can compass more than they intend;
And if the means be just, the conduct true,
Applause, in spite of trivial faults, is due.'

"And applause, as due, is herewith accorded Pope—disregarding that 'none' can compass more than he 'intends'."

CADET SERGEANT QUAITE JONES

The increase in the number of Ds and Es for the past few years has been alarming; but, at last, thanks to Major Harding, a solution to this problem has been found. "A" company is now wearing the citation cord and they really look impressive. The question is, how long will they continue to wear them? Time will tell.

Since we have seen a citation cord, we should like to relate the story that came to us about its origin. It seems that once when the mighty Napoleon was fighting a battle all his soldiers turned and ran from the enemy. After some difficulty, Napoleon gathered them together again, and shot every fifth man. He then put a hangman's noose in the knapsack of each one left and told him to go back and fight or else hang himself with the noose, because if he didn't fight he was going to shoot him. His men went back into action and completely routed the enemy and captured the majority of them. They were so proud of their defeat of the enemy that they made fun of Napoleon by wearing the noose on their shoulder. When they did this Napoleon told them that from then on he would let any man of great courage and valor wear a cord similar to that as a mark of distinction, but that he would leave the hangman's knot there to remind them not to run from the enemy. Today we have this same cord with, of course, a few changes, and we call it a citation cord.

From authoritative sources it is reported that the corps again this year will put on a sham battle at spring inspection similar to the one last year, but on a larger scale and better. This means that we have a lot of work ahead of us in order to be prepared for anything that may come up along this line. After all, as the inspector said last year, that's what brings home the bacon.

What has happened to the morale and spirit of the corps? It does not seem to have as much vim, vigor and vitality as it had at the beginning of the year. Maybe the company commanders can help the situation to a large extent. After all, spring inspection isn't as far around the corner as prosperity.

"Intra mingles" has come and gone, but, like the song, for many of the contenders "The Memory Lingers On." Both the heads of military and athletic departments seemed to enjoy the bouts and were well satisfied with the sportsmanship of the men throughout the contests. We nominate McIntosh, Fleischman, Haines, Boggs, Rawls, and Embler as the most likely prospects for Coach Johnson's varsity squad next year.

"PETE" McCORMICK

Youse guys can pack your bags and buy advance tickets to the Okeychihobee swamps down in the low country, 'cause Uncle Sam is really licking his lips and looking with a warring glint in his eye at these healthy specimens of youth. Of course we're hoping for the best, but when slant-eyed sentries start slapping American Ambassys in the mug it means that something' going to break loose, and I don't mean that bulldog in Mr. Swingosky's back yard. No matter how much we, as the representatives of American youth, object to acts of war by the U. S., it still seems that war is an exhaustible threat. For the last couple of months there has been at least one act of war on the part of Japan or some other country, mostly Japan, which has caused much controversy in some neighboring country, each week. A thing like that just simply cannot continue for so long without some disastrous results. The U. S. is doing her best to keep out of war but it seems inevitable. I am not being a pessimist, but am looking at this from a factual survey angle. Japan is the root of all the present trouble and it seems that the only way to end it is to crawl Japan in a hurry and wipe her off the map even at the risk of another world war—it will be a world war when it does get started. In other words, the only way to look at it can be expressed as follows: "War can only be ended by more war!"

While we are on the subject of war it would be very appropriate to print this loose-jointed pome which yours truly wore out three fountain pens composing. It is written in flowing form and entitled "Jargon Philosophy":

Spring Practice Under Way

SPORTS FOLIO

By JAMES HAFLEY

Intramural sports are becoming more popular here each year and it is surprising to note what a large percent of the student body participates in some phase. Football and boxing have been completed on the extensive intramural program and many are looking forward to basketball, which will get under way within the next month, closely followed by tennis and baseball.

As a result of the recent fisticuffs sponsored by the military department, many colorful and talented boxers were uncovered for Walter Johnson. We liked the looks of Embler, McIntosh, Red Rawls, and Buddy Lloyd in the squared circle and this column sincerely believes they will go to town on the boxing team next year. Ask Robert Harper if we can pick pugilistic ability!

There's no stopping these Charleston boys! Matt Moore was the third high man in qualifying in the state golf tournament held recently in Charleston, and Huiet Paul was the only Presbyterian merman to take a second place against a highly-rated University of Georgia swimming team! Incidentally, Georgia has the most outstanding swimming team in this part part of the country, due mostly to the presence of one Bill Walters in its ranks.

Coach Dutch MacLean has resigned his position as coach at Newberry to accept the post of director of athletics at Porter Military academy in Charleston. Some might think that Dutch has lost faith and loyalty in his alma mater, but if such dubious-minded sports fans could have witnessed the recent P. C.-Newberry basketball contest they would promptly change their mind because of the way in which the fightin' Dutchman registered his disagreement over the official's decision.

Chick Galloway Getting Baseball Ducks In Row

Presbyterian college will raise the curtain of the baseball stage at Durham, N. C., in a game with the Duke Blue Devils on April 1. On this jaunt into the Tarheel district, Coach Chick Galloway is arranging for games with Davidson, North Carolina State, and possibly North Carolina university. This trip, along with a game with the Philadelphia Athletics on April 7, will form the highlights for the 1938 baseball season and should furnish a high grade of competition for the Palmetto State champs.

Although regular practice has not gotten under way yet, it is expected that Coach Galloway will issue a formal call to his charges for extensive workouts about March 1.

Some of the outstanding candidates and their positions are as follows: Calvin, Atkinson, and June Moore, catchers; Wilkerson, Commander, McGregor, Christian, and Bill Moore, pitchers. The infield will be composed of four of the following candidates: Folley, Blackwell, Horne, Mabry, Be Moore, Mac Reid, and Batchelor. The outfield will find many seeing service, namely, Erwin, Clements, Dubose, Strain, and others.

Coach Galloway made the following statement concerning the destiny of his diamond men: "We have plenty of material on hand this year and I don't see why we shouldn't be state champs again; but everybody's got to hustle to make a regular spot on the team. No positions are cinched by anybody yet."

Hose Frosh Win Over Fleet Five

The fast-moving Blue Anklets defeated the Erskine first year team 55 to 35 in a fast game preceding the varsity contest Thursday night. It was their third win in four college competition starts.

The game was see-saw for the first few minutes and then Coach Chick Galloway sent in his regulars and they gained a 20-point advantage which was held throughout the entire game. The contest was well played and furnished the varsity coaches of both schools with thoughts of their next year's team. Many outstanding prospects showed their basketball ability.

Meisky was again the spearhead of the P. C. frosh attack, tallying 23 points. He used every offensive weapon in the books as he broke fast for crip shots and sank the long ones with a great degree of accuracy. Fleischman, Coleman, McMillan and Kerdasha performed in a skilled manner in the one-sided victory.

Simonton, Jones and McKee (Clinton High product) played outstanding ball for the Erskine frosh.

Swimmers Lose To Ga. Bulldogs

Georgia University Makes Clean Sweep of First Places In Meet Held In Athens.

Presbyterian college's swimming team lost its initial meet last Friday afternoon to the University of Georgia in the Athens Y.M.C.A. pool. The final score was 58 to 12.

P. C. failed to register a single first place. Huiet Paul was the only Presbyterian representative to get a second place, and this was in the diving event. He was nosed out of first place by Johnson of Georgia.

Captain Bill "Tarzan" Walters, of Georgia, took first place in both the 50 and 100-yard sprints. Walters, Southeastern champion in both of these events, is the outstanding performer on the best swimming team Georgia has turned out in several years.

This year marks P. C.'s first attempt at a swimming team in three years, and with experience and practice, the team should turn in some creditable enough performances.

Georgia is probably the best team that will meet the Blue Hose this year, so the meet last Friday may not be as disastrous as the score indicates.

Blue Hose Sink Erskine Fleet

Holcombe for P. C., and Edwards for Due West Men, Play Superb Ball.

The Fleet was in Clinton Thursday night but Admiral McMillian and his boys sank it by a score of 37 to 28. In other words P. C. basketeers won their only game of the week when they met Erskine in the local gym last Thursday.

McCown, for Erskine, dropped in a foul shot to open the game, but the lead was short lived as Waldrep dropped in a charity toss to tie the score. From then on it was the Hose's game. Batchelor and Holcombe dropped field goals and Holcombe added two more to put the Hose eight points in the lead. Close guarding by both teams featured the remainder of the first period with P. C. leading by 17 to 11 at the half.

The second half saw Erskine, with Edwards leading the way, climb to within two points of tieing the Hose, but Holcombe put through two difficult snowbirds and Folley added a field goal and two foul tosses and fed Jarrard a crip shot which he sank to crunk the score up to 35 to 27. Batchelor added the 37th point in the closing minute to sew up a thrilling game between two classy teams.

The Hose proved to be the faster at bringing the ball down the court, frequently leaving the Erskine boys far behind in their rush for the basket. Erskine displayed a smooth-working block and screen system of offensive play, but the Blue-clad boys were on the alert and broke through on numerous occasions to take the ball from the boys from Due West, and sped down the court to tally those two points that win games.

Holcombe, with 12 points, Batchelor with 7 and Folley with 6, led the Hose offensive. Edwards led the Erskine attack with 10 points and played a whale of a defensive game at center, so close did he guard Holden, lanky center, he was able to tally only 4 points. Waldrep was bottled up by the close guarding of Phillips. McDonald was the sparkplug of the Fleet while he was in the game, and Massey performed well with his floor work from the pivot position.

Intramural Boxing Champs Declared

Gridders Start Early Practice

Large Number of Applicants for Positions Report. Several Men Given New Posts.

By BROOKS SHELDON

Spring football practice at Presbyterian college entered its second week today with the squad hard at work on the elementry phases of the game. Extensive blocking, tackling, and punting drills are featuring every afternoon's work.

The persistent problem facing Mentors Johnson, McMillian, and staff is the discovery of a punter to carry the burden of next year's kicking assignment. Stock in the local squad boomed skyward when Charlie Thompson reported for practice and he has been getting off long aerial drives to Coach Johnson's complete satisfaction. June Moore, "Tiger" McIntosh, Meisky, and Harry McSween have been steadily improving along kicking lines and show great promise of being excellent quick-kickers.

Coach Lonnie McMillian has formed two teams from his linemen and these teams have been running plays against each other. Billy Kee and "Tough" Embler have been cavorting around as backfield men and are proving that they missed their calling by not entering upon their gridiron careers as backs. Red Lawrence has been converted into a line-crashing fullback and promises to be hard to stop.

Both line and backfield have been blocking and tackling with mid-October form. June Moore, who was in second place for the Jacobs blocking trophy in 1936, has been cracking the ends in blocking practice like he really means it.

This year marks Coach Walter Johnson's first attempt at spring practice here and it promises to help very much in building a team for next fall. Captain-elect Cotton Boswell remarked that the spirit of the team is about the best he's ever seen anywhere. If it takes hard work and sincere cooperation to mould a winning team, the Blue Hose are on their way to the top once again.

Anklets Defeat Murray Vo. High

The classy Blue Anklets let loose with their big guns here Saturday night to down a hard-fighting but outclassed Murray Vocational high school team of Charleston, by the overwhelming score of 61 to 31 for their eighth win in 10 starts. The only losses were to Clemson frosh and Spartanburg high.

The lose' frosh opened up fast and gained a comfortable lead of 12 points in the first few minutes of play. Fleischman was leading the way during this search of two-pointers and before the half ended he had dropped seven field goals for a total of 14 points in an exhibition of shooting skill. Meisky was playing his usual fine floor game and fed the sphere to Fleischman, who put it through the hoop.

Murray displayed a floor man of no mean ability in Abner Denahey. This little mite was all over the court directing his team's play in a creditable manner and guarding the versatile Meisky very closely. The half ended with the Anklets on the long end of a 36 to 12 score.

The second half proved to be more interesting from a spectator's standpoint as the Charleston lads put on a scoring spree of their own and tallied 17 points during the last period. Braddock, lanky forward, used an overhead shot to tally eight points to lead his mates in this department. Dengate and Murray also figured in the scoring and Denahey continued his brilliant floor work. The high school boys never gave up and were fighting hard at the final whistle.

The play of the entire frosh squad was outstanding, there being no individual stars.

EMBLER MOST COLORFUL

Friday night marked the finish to the 1938 edition of intramural boxing here after three fast, furious nights of fistic flurries. Thirty-nine freshmen and one sophomore took part in the fights and they were pronounced a hilarious success by all spectators. Much credit is due the military department for the efficient way in which the shows were put on.

Knockouts and T.K.O.s were numerous as the freshmen fought with an unsurpassed vengeance in an effort to get rid of their opponents in some way. Red Rawls ably proved that the lowly freshman is still a rat when it comes to dethroning the upper-classmen. Victims of Rawls' dynamite blows were Tommy Brooks, Buddy Lloyd, and George Douglas. One of the best fights of the entire three nights festivities was the match between Lloyd and Rawls. So close was the match that Judges Boyd, Wilson, and Jones were unable to reach a decision and an extra round was needed to prove Rawls the conqueror.

Winners of the different weights may be able to give further examples of their prowess in varsity boxing next year as Coach Johnson viewed the matches Friday night and seemed well pleased with the prospects. They are: 129-pound class, Bill Coleman; 139-pound class, Tench Owens; 149-pound class, Red Rawls; 159-pound class, McMillan; 159-pound class, Embler; unlimited class, Aubry Groom.

Coleman reached the finals by decisioning Holmes and Crenshaw. Owens won his weight by virtue of two hard-fought matches with John Weldon and King. Rawls was the standout of the three nights engagement and handily disposed of Brooks, Lloyd and Douglas. Willis came through to decision McLees and Boggs in two slow and rather uninteresting matches. McMillan slugged his way to victory over his two game and flashy opponents, Tannery and Winges. Embler showed why he has earned the nickname of "Tough" by disposing of three aggressive and clever fighters, Meiskey, Hanes and Fleischman. Groom laid claim to the championship of the unlimited class by beating the colorful Red Lawrence.

her. Then Zwart Piete, adventurer, came along. Love was inevitable; so Sannie forsook her husband, her children, everything for Zwart. From this point the story gathers momentum that leads to a dramatic conclusion, in which the Kaffirs attack the Boers and kill them all.

Stuart Cloete, the author, is evidently very familiar with his scene. His graphic descriptions of the velds, the mountains, and the animals of this section of Africa point to that. He has taken a girl, Sannie, and her quest for a great love; and around her has woven a thrilling story. The hardships of the Boers, who, discontent with British rule in South Africa, trekked northward in 1838 to find new homes, are used as a background for the story.

If the reader is seeking a well-written story that provides excitement plus romance, he will do well to take an afternoon off for reading "The Turning Wheels."

CO-ED RIFLE TEAM MAY BE FORMED

Since all hope for a co-ed basketball team has faded, it appears that the attempt to organize some sport for the girls is doomed—that is, almost. An interview with Sergeant Young gives some encouragement for a co-ed rifle squad sometime in the spring when the outdoor range can be used. There was quite a successful girls' team here about two years ago and it is hoped that one can be organized this year.

WOFFORD COMMANDANT WILL BE R. O. T. C. INSPECTOR IN APRIL

Major Charles C. Loughlin Designated By War Department To Make Annual Inspection.

SHAM BATTLE TO FEATURE AFTERNOON'S ACTIVITIES

Major Charles C. Loughlin, commandant at Wofford college, Spartanburg, has been designated by the U. S. war department, through corps headquarters, to act as inspector during the annual government military inspection to be held on April 21st, according to an announcement from the military department.

Major F. C. Harding, commandant of the R.O.T.C. battalion here, told a reporter for The Blue Stocking that the inspection would last one day and would begin with a formal inspection following a dress parade. After the parade and review, the remainder of the morning will be spent in demonstrations of infantry drill, calisthenics, first aid, map reading, aerial photography reading, and an examination on the automatic rifle. All of the demonstrations of theoretical problems will be carried on at the same time on Johnson field while the inspector observes each group by turn. This will be an unprecedented feature of this year's inspection.

The commandant said that in the afternoon the inspector would observe a practical problem illustrating the principles and weapons involved in actual combat of infantry units. The sham battle will be fought in the wooded area beyond Smyth dormitory and will include most of the units of the battalion.

"From now on," Major Harding told the junior military class, "special emphasis will be placed on preparation for the inspection. There is no reason," he added, "why this year's inspection should not be as successful as last year's, providing every man does his part."

The aim of every R. O. T. C. unit is to rate a grade of 90 on the annual government inspection, which entitles it to wear the blue star on the uniform sleeve, awarded units making such a grade.

Louisville Theological Seminary President Speaks On "Crises of Tottering Worlds."

The Rev. Frank H. Caldwell, D.D., president of the Presbyterian Theological seminary, Louisville, Ky., spoke at a chapel service last Tuesday. He spoke on "The Crises of Tottering Worlds," in which he referred to the periods of mental despondency that arise in a man's life following some grave disappointment or loss in his daily life. He pointed out the fact that there is only one means by which a man could successfully surmount such a crisis and that was through Christ to salvation.

Doctor Caldwell, besides being president of the seminary, also occupies the chair of homiletics.

I. R. C. Is Host To Newberry Group

Ludlow Amendment Discussed At Regular Meeting.

At a meeting of the International Relations club on last Wednesday evening, a group of Newberry college students were entertained by the members of the local chapter. The purpose of the meeting was to acquaint the Newbery group, who form a recently-organized club at Newberry, with the procedure and purposes of the I. R. C.

After a welcoming address by George Beatty, president, R. K. Timmons spoke on the proposed Ludlow amendment. Following this discussion, the Talbot brothers spoke on the situation in China. After each address a group discussion was held on the subject in question.

Before the meeting adjourned, Dean Marshall W. Brown read a message extending to the club members an invitation to attend the Southeastern meeting which will be held in Nashville, Tenn., on March 4th.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

The streamlined basketball question is in heated controversy from coast to coast. Basketball coaches representing various outstanding high school and college cage teams have expressed their opinions on the matter. The greater number of them are not in favor of the game being quite so fast, feeling that it has been fast enough in the preceding years. The chief objection is that the fast, streamlined system of the present day has a harmful effect on the players. The second objection is that the play is not as colorful as it was when the center-jump was in use. Although the present fast game is boosting box office receipts, national evidence is piling up against it.

Dr. Marcus Hobart, Northwestern university basketball team physician, has disclosed that experiments which he has completed prove that the new, fast game stimulates the heart action of players to a dangerous degree. He said that he had tested players after two Big Ten conference contests and "found their normal heart beat of 60 to 99 had increased alarmingly, in one case to 144."

The attitude of the players is undoubtedly against this fast game. A number of P. C. cage stars have been interviewed on the matter and their opinions are stated below. The question asked was:

"Are you in favor of the new, fast game or do you prefer it as it was last year?" Also: "How does the new game affect you physically, in comparison with last year's game?"

GILES BATCHELOR, team captain and fast-moving forward, stated his opinion as follows: "No, I do not like the game as much without the center jump. It makes the game too fast and the result is the players are on the run all the time, and this fact causes a considerable strain on the players. Most of the time you are running up and down the court instead of playing basketball. The center jump was the most colorful part of the game."

PETE HOLCOMBE, flashy and efficient guard, says: "I do not like the fast-moving game because it takes too much color from the sport. One hardly feels that he is playing real basketball now that these radical changes have been made. The center jump was the most colorful part of the game. A player becomes fatigued too quickly now and this means that there has to be plenty of good reserves. The effect this game may have on the heart is dangerous."

RALPH WALDREP, spirited and hard-fighting forward, states: "The game this year is a defensive one. Every man is trying to stop a fast-breaking offense and gets his mind off the offensive side of the game. Heretofore, the P. C. team scored 25 per cent of its points on plays from the center-jump. This year we find it impossible to use those plays, as the center jump has been ruled out. It's truly a fast and interesting game for the fans, but it is too hard on the players."

J. C. CAVIN, hang-up defensive and floor man, states his opinion as follows: "I like the game better as it was last year because it is too much strain on the players this year. The game is too fast for its own good. The prettiest plays were run from center jump, therefore the present game is faster but is not nearly as colorful."

LESTER HOLDEN, tricky, fast-moving center, says: "I do not like the present game nearly as well as that of last year. Being a center, I am, naturally, in favor of having the center jump. But it is really the most colorful part of the game and many good plays can be run from the tip-off. The strain on the players is too much. After playing 40 minutes of this fast game I am always completely fatigued. The present game is more of a defensive type. The fans may be in favor of the present game, but they should have some consideration for the players."

Best Drilled Cadet To Be Given Medal

Junior Military Men To Sponsor Competitive Drill Including Entire Corps.

The junior military class today unanimously voted to sponsor a contest to be held before government inspection in April to decide who is the best drilled soldier in the battalion and also to present the winner with a gold medal.

All cadets are eligible to participate in the contest.

It is expected that Major Harding and Major Cummings will do the preliminary judging. They will pick a certain number to participate in the finals which probably will be held at the spring inspection, with the inspecting officer as judge. If this is done, it would be an unprecedented feature of the annual inspection.

Cadet Master Sergeant Holcombe, who was chosen by the juniors to direct the contest, expressed the hope, in behalf of the class, that future junior military men would make this an annual occurrence.

Perpetuation Drive Goes Forward

$500,000 Being Sought for Library and Endowment. Effort Will Continue Several Months.

A perpetuation campaign to raise $500,000 for Presbyterian college was launched the past week, according to an announcement made by President W. P. Jacobs.

The purpose of the campaign is to raise $500,000 to assure the future of the college. Of the amount, $100,000 will be used for the erection of a fireproof library to house the college's present excellent and valuable collection of books. The proposed building also will contain two large reading rooms, fireproof stack rooms, two especially equipped seminar rooms, and the administrative offices of the school. The remaining $400,000 will be added to the endowment as an assurance of the future of the college, as the result of the recent using of endowment funds by the board of trustees for the removal of the pressing bonded indebtedness of the institution.

The college in waging the campaign is concentrating in particular communities in the synods of Georgia and South Carolina. The opening gun of the offensive move was made in Darlington last Sunday at which time President Jacobs spoke at the First Presbyterian church. The campaign was continued in Charleston yesterday when college representatives spoke at various churches and contacted individuals. The drive will cover a period of several months.

President Jacobs has announced that he will personally direct the campaign. The field crew is composed of H. M. Wilson, Jr., personnel director of the college; John Osman, field secretary; J. H. Hunter, business manager; Walter A. Johnson, athletic director, and A. O'Daniel, field repre-

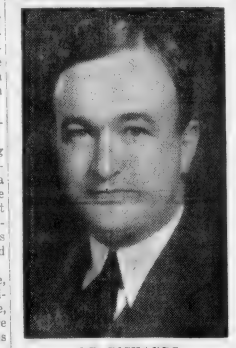
BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH REVEALS VARIED CAREER OF P. C. PROF

By ALVIN CHAPMAN

At least one faculty member is looking forward to the baseball season with more than casual interest. Perhaps on other afternoons, when there is no baseball game or nothing else to do, you will find him carving figures from wood. This gentleman is Dr. Clarence Rudolph Hamrick, professor of education at Presbyterian college. His favorite sport is baseball, and his hobby is woodcarving.

Staunton, Va., is the home town of Dr. Hamrick. There, he received his early education. Later he attended Augusta Military academy at Fort Defiance, Va., before entering Hampden-Sydney college. After receiving a B. S. degree he began teaching. Dr. Hamrick has worked as a chemist in an industrial laboratory, and once was an insurance salesman. He has taught nine years in public schools, three of these in Virginia and six in Charleston, West Virginia. Mathematics and the sciences were his subjects. During the summers he found time to take his M. S. degree at the University of Virginia, and completed work on his Ph. D. the past summer.

Dr. Hamrick is a member of Phi Delta Kappa, national scientific honorary fraternity, a member of the Masonic order, a member of the West Virginia Education association, and is an elder in the Presbyterian church.



In 1930 he was married to Miss Madelyn Morris of Charleston, West Virginia. They have one child, Jane Moffett.

In his capacity as professor of education, Dr. Hamrick does extensive parallel reading, yet he finds time for other reading, principally in the Harvard classics. His favorite prose writer is Herbert Spencer, while Tennyson and Longfellow rank first as poets in his opinion. Dr. Hamrick likes painting of all kinds, and, incidentally, he has done some painting himself.

Dr. Hamrick has made many friends since coming to P. C. He is known for his friendly smile and cheery greeting, and in the class for the novel way in which he puts his subject across.

REV. W. N. ELLIOTT TO CONDUCT SECOND IN SERIES OF SERVICES

To Speak Here

DR. RICHARDS

The Rev. J. McDowell Richards, D.D., president of Columbia Theological seminary, Decatur, Ga., who will address the student body at a special chapel program next Monday morning. Dr. Richards will preach at both services at the First Presbyterian church on Sunday.

Prominent Atlanta Minister To Deliver Series of Sermons At College Feb. 22, 23, 24.

PRAYER GROUPS TO PRECEDE SERVICES

The Rev. W. N. Elliott, D.D., pastor of Druid Hills Presbyterian church, Atlanta, Ga., will conduct a series of religious services here for three days, February 22, 23 and 24, the administration announced today.

Two services will be held each day, one a special chapel service at 11:15 a.m., and an evening service at 7:30. Both will be conducted in the college chapel.

Prayer meetings will be held in all the dormitories at 10 o'clock every night beginning Wednesday and continuing through Monday night, President Williams of the Y.M.C.A. announced today. There will be separate groups on each floor and the meetings will be held in a different room and directed by a different student each night. This has been the custom in past years during the annual series of religious services, although it was not done at the first series of services held last semester.

Dr. Elliott comes to P. C. recommended as one of the outstanding ministers of the Southern Presbyterian church and one of Atlanta's foremost preachers.

This series of services is the second to be sponsored by the college this year. The first was conducted by the Rev. Hewitt Fulton for a three-day period in December. In the past, only one series, lasting a week, was held.

Dr. Elliott is a young man and, according to reports, has a special appeal to young people. He has held several series of services for young people and has proved to be very popular with them. He is a graduate of Louisville (Ky.) Theological seminary, and has been in the ministry only six or seven years. He is a former Rhodes scholar, and attended Oxford university, England.

Advanced Students Form Biology Club

Group Organized Last Semester Becomes Official.

At a meeting of the recently formed Biology club, the group of advanced students in biology adopted a constitution making the club an official campus organization. The purpose of the organization is "to further interest in various branches of biological research among students in that field."

Frank Johnston, president of the society, in an interview with a reporter for The Blue Stocking, said that the small fees charged members would go toward a fund to purchase current scientific periodicals and books studied by the group. He added that papers would be submitted from time to time on various branches of research. In the spring the best of these papers will be chosen by the group to be read before an interested faculty-student audience. Plans are to have this paper published in a current biological magazine.

Faculty adviser for the newly formed scientific organization is Dr. Harold S. Fish, head of the college biology department and one of the several professors using the student forum method.

DR. JONES ATTENDS MEET

Dr. F. D. Jones, head of the department of philosophy, and professor of South Carolina history, returned to the college Saturday after attending a meeting in Columbia of the South Carloina Historical association, of which he is a charter member.

Y.M.C.A. Audience Views Pictures

Dr. Nabers, of Greenville, Shows Movies of European Tour.

At the Y. M. C. A. meeting last week, Dr. C. H. Nabers, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Greenville, conducted an interesting program before an unusually large audience composed of members of the student body.

Dr. Nabers showed pictures of a European tour, the highlights of which were scenes taken at the Rock of Gibraltar and at Athens, Greece. These pictures were from Dr. Nabers' collection of interesting motion camera scenes taken by him on his trips abroad. He plans to return to Europe in the near future and make more pictures which he will add to his large and interesting collection.

Dr. Nabers, author of several books and formerly a mission teacher, was brought to the campus through the efforts of the "Y" in a plan to bring to P. C. outstanding Presbyterian ministers to conduct the weekly programs of the organization.

Dr. Nabers plans to return to P. C. at an early date to show a 45-minute reel of scenes taken in Egypt.

CLASSES TO MAKE TRIPS

It was learned today that the classes in abnormal psychology and South Carolina history will make their annual observation trips to the State Training school, the State hospital, and to Charleston, respectively, sometime next month.

Handbook For New Students

Students who entered college this semester may now secure their copy of the Y.M.C.A. handbook by calling at the office of the officer of the day located in the administration building. The handbook is a guide to student activities and and contains the constitution of the college honor system with which all students should be familiar.

A College Laundry

In the past two years at P. C. we have witnessed many changes. Some of them we had foreseen and we accepted them as the natural march of progress. Some of the changes, however, were totally unexpected, but the results brought about by them were so far-reaching, and of such vast improvement that we have since wondered how we got along without them. We, of course, refer principally to the infirmary and the "Y" building-college canteen combination.

We know also who was responsible for these changes. President Jacobs talks of dreams, not the ethereal products of a fervid imagination but dreams possible of realization. We know, because we have seen them come true time after time, and with faithful expectancy we look for more.

What has all this got to do with a college laundry and who said there is a need for one, the skeptic hastens to ask.

Well, one thing at a time is best, so we will answer the second question first; namely, the need for a college laundry.

Briefly, here is the picture. The student rushes from drill or chapel on Monday or Tuesday morning and tries in vain to count out his wash in a systematic manner (so he can be sure of at least three out of five socks being returned) before he meets his first-period class. Then he hopes his regular wash-woman will call for it by Wednesday. When the wash is returned (with nearly always several pieces either mixed or missing), he wears clothes that have been laundered in houses where health has to be sacrificed in favor of economy. Then here are the facts: unreliability of present laundry arrangements, high cost considering losses and service, and the danger of laundry being done in unhealthful surroundings. Don't you agree that the need is evident enough?

Now to answer the first question, namely, What has past reforms and other administrative accomplishments go to do with the establishment of a college laundry?

The college canteen was taken out of private hands and since that time has been a source of much-needed profit to the administration, and a much-needed convenience to the student body. It has added to the conveninece, comfort, and even a source of scholarship to the student body.

This need not, therefore, be a dream impossible of realization. There is a need for such a "reform"; there is a precedent in the college canteen of a college-owned, student-operated business for the advantage of both; and, finally, there is student body desire for such a plant.

A drive could be launched within the student body to raise money required to build and equip the laundry, aided by part of the first returns from the recently-launched financial drive among the constituents of the college.

Then, by means of a slight increase of fees, which would not amount nearly to the figure now yearly expended by the student, the plant could be operated. It could be operated partly by students having scholarships.

In the operation of the laundry some female help would be needed. Most of the Negro washerwomen who would be deprived of weekly or monthly returns from college washes, could be employed in the laundry.

One of the dormitory heating plants could be combined within the laundry so that one steam plant could serve two purposes with a maximum saving.

What do you think of a college laundry? If constructive suggestions are offered in the form of letters to The Blue Stocking, much would be done toward the furthering of such a plan.

PARADE REST

— By —

CADET SERGEANT QUAITE JONES

From an authoritative source it is reported that the annual government inspection will be held on April 21. The freshman, of course, can't realize just what is expected of him between now and the inspection, but he will before the inspector gets here. This is also the time of year when the ambitious sophomores begin to get nervous.

No doubt most of you have noticed how securely the rifles are retained in their racks. This is not to keep the Japs from stealing them, as someone has said, but merely because it is a government requirement that the rifles are to be locked when not in use. This has caused quite an improvement in the appearance of the racks.

For the first time in the history of the school the junior class is going to present a medal to the best drilled soldier in the battalion. They are doing this mainly to create the interest of the individual. The man who receives this medal will indeed be honored. We would like to see this become an annual event sponsored by future classes, because it also emphasizes the importance of the individual in infantry drill.

A discussion of the following statements may be found in the last issue of "The Infantry Journal," under the section entitled "Celebrations." It takes a steel grip to keep some people straight, but we should never fail to give a man a pat on the back when he deserves it, and credit where credit is due. Both of these add to the appearance, spirit, and morale of a unit.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor of The Blue Stocking:

Some weeks ago an outstanding minister was brought to Clinton by the administration of the college to lead a series of religious services for the student body of P. C. The lack of members of the student body at the night services was amazing, and I am sure the minister, a graduate of P. C., could not but feel the absence of P. C. students in the small group of faithful church goers who attended the services.

Last year, when religious speakers came to P. C. to lead a series of meetings they were greeted at the night services by a large group of our student body. It is true, the morning services were compulsory and the entire student body attended, but the response at the night services showed that there was a very good reason for the interest shown in the night services.

It is my opinion that the response of the student body to the meetings last year was due to the campus prayer meetings held in the various dormitories the week before the services started. The prayer meetings, sponsored by the students' religious organization, seemed to prepare the campus for the week of services, and the minister delivered his messages to congregations composed largely of P. C. students. I, as a P. C. student, would like to see the prayer services held again this week so that the forthcoming services to be held for the P. C. student body will be for the P. C. student body.

"PETE" McCORMICK

The modern trend in song-writing has gone to the extreme. Nobody, not even the composers themselves, can figure out a song nowadays. And to a college boy these things are about as clear as Toscanini's presentation of the 22nd movement of "Abie's Wild Irish Potatoes."

Such songs bring to the mind of this jittery jargonist a little play which might take place in this mad machine age of screwy refrains and wooden nickels.—Read on, oh brain internal:

"Two Dreams Got Together,—Two Straws and a Strawberry Soda"

I lay on the seat the whole second half. I knew California was winning though, because every once in a while some guy jumped up and down on my face and yelled."

First Idiot: "Now that you have pulled your joke, won't you Buy Me a Beer, Mister Shane?"

1st Halfwit: "He can't, the Gold Diggers of 1938 got hold of him and they Rocked The Town on his money."

Dim-wit: "Pardon me, but did you ever see Twilight In Turkey."

Lunatic: "No, but I saw the Sunrise In Elam once."

2nd Moron: "So they finally stopped you from dreaming, eh!"

2nd Idiot: "Say, you guys talk like Dipsy Doodlers."

Lunatic: "We are not. My gal says I'm a Powerhouse."

2nd Halfwit: "Yeah? By the way, who is your Sweet Someone?"

Lunatic: "Josephine."

(Sound outside): Gurgle—gurgle—gurgle (perfect rhythm).

All: "Shep Fields."

Maestro: "That Little Ripple Had Rhythm."

Anybody: "How Many Rhymes Can You Get—For Fhythm?"

Madhouse Student Body: "Hypnotism, idiotism, moronism, fascism, socialism, radicalism, capitalism, ostracism, and mechanism."

(The whole crew begins to sing 'the grand phinoly, "Madhouse Number One" (the alma ma the curtain falls on them them all (I hope) and me hope, I guess).

"Athletics" On Diamond Card

SPORTS FOLIO

By JAMES HAFLEY

Seems like our basketball boys had a little unscheduled skirmish over Due West way last Thursday night. The final whistle found P. C. on the small end of a 36-35 score, and pandemonium broke loose, with both teams and several spectators furnishing the fisticuff entertainment. We wish to say here that, although the will to win and fighting spirit of the Blue Hose is highly commendable, there is nothing to gain over arguments with officials and nothing quite so distasteful as a bad loser. We might have had exceptionally bad breaks but there's always that stage in the game that has to come. Isn't there a proverb or sump'n about "it's not whether you win or lose but how you play the game"? And nothing can be found wanting with the way P. C.'s basketball team plays the game—we're expecting great things of them along the cage front this year and might even venture to say that they will end up in third place in state competition this year!

With the spirit, pep, and material on hand at the present spring football practice, our knights of the gridiron should roll up an impressive record for the 1938 season. We wouldn't even be surprised to see June Moore and Captain Cotton Boswell on several all-state mentions—this column might not be "in the groove" always but we do feel justified in some predictions. By the way, ye olde sportz edit at last found out the two people who read this column—the proof-reader and you! Much obliged. Lotta talk recently about reviving a golf team here at Presby college—it's really a good idea, take it from the pros: A glance at the final figures in the leading money winners for 1937 shows Harry Cooper of Chicopee, Mass., out in front with a total of $14,138.69; Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., in second place with a measley $10,866.58, closely followed by Sam Snead with $10,243.73, and National Open Golf Champion Ralph Guldahl with $8,671.23. And those guys do it for a hobby, too!!! Hear we're gonna have another freshman squiff-ball team—reckon there's anything to it?

Thursday, April 7, Cornelius McGillicuddy and his mighty men of baseball will journey here for a game with the South Carolina state champs. The occasion should prove to be an interesting one with a gala array of big-leaguers trotting around on our diamond and several thousand probably will be on hand for the spectacle. This page of The Blue Stocking is planning to carry a full account of an interview with the one and only Connie Mack, whose high ideals and fine sense of sportsmanship have done more to advance baseball in the sports field than anything else. He is indeed a true pioneer in baseball, having spent over forty years in the game—and he really knows how to put out world beatin' teams!

Spring Gridders Show Progress

Blocking and Tackling Keep Local Football Men Busy. Scrimmages Held Three Days.

Despite the warm spring weather, P. C. football players went through brisk drills all last week. Hard scrimmages were held Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday, as the boys rounded into good condition. Coach Johnson also continued the long drills in blocking and tackling.

The coaches have been mixing up the teams, and no definite first or second strings have been selected. June Moore, Deke Reynolds, and Red Lawrence are blocking well, while Trigger Ritch, Jimmy Dennard, and Shorty Horne, from last year's squad, and freshmen Meisky, Jerry Roberts, and Gene MacIntosh are showing some very nice running. Some potentially great passing combinations might well be formed with Horne, June Moore, Meisky, Ritch, and MacIntosh tossing, and J. C. Coleman, Be Moore, Bo-Gator Atkinson, and Lawrence on the receiving end.

The guard position, a weak spot last year, is showing great possibilities. In addition to Hood Strain and Walt Todd, last year's veterans, there are several up-and-coming freshman guards who are doing good work. "Sunset" Fleischman, Powell Fraser, and Red Flanders are all heavy, aggressive men, and are going to give Todd and Strain a hard battle for the starting post next fall.

There is good material at end, including Moore, Atkinson, Coleman, and "Tough" Embler. Pete Holcombe, at end, has been playing basketball, but he'll be on the gridiron next September, as will Giles Batchelor and Carlisle Griffin, backs, who are also hoop stars.

Spring practice will be concluded February 26 with a full-time game between two teams to be chosen by the coaches.

Erskine Yearlings Lose To P. C. Frosh

The little Hose won their fifth straight game Thursday night with the Erskine frosh as their victims in a 51 to 29 victory.

For the first few minutes and for the majority of the first half the Anklets were far off par and tallied only 14 points to lead 14 to 12 at the half. Matt Moore was influential in the scoring of these few points.

The second half showed the P. C. boys in a reversal of form as they tallied 37 points to 17 for the Erskine boys. Meisky and Moore dropped in field goals from all angles, and Meisky showed an uncanny ability at looping the loop with free tosses. Coleman and McMillan broke up numerous passing efforts on the part of the Fleet five and passed the sphere down the court fast to Meisky and Moore who converted them into points.

J. D. McKee, a Clinton boy, was the sparkplug of the Erskine frosh, using his six feet of height to advantage in getting the rebounds and guarding his man. King, lanky center played an outstanding game at the pivot position for the Fleet, and Burke played a fine offensive game.

Meisky, with 20 points, Moore with 10, and Coleman with 12, led the scoring for the Anklets, while McMillan and Fleischman rounded out a smooth working quintet that spelled defeat for the Erskine five.

P. C. Basketeers Lose To Furman

Furman's Purple Dervishes, with Hugh Wofford, forward, leading the way with 17 points, got sweet revenge for a former defeat at the hands of the Blue Hose in a hotly contested game in the Furman gym, 36 to 35, last Tuesday night.

It was a nip and tuck affair from beginning to end, with neither team more than two points in the lead until the Hose gained a four-point margin with only four minutes to go, only to see Nolan and Wofford shoot last-minute field goals to take the game which had a large bearing on the S. C. state race.

Furman took an early lead but it was soon overtaken by the Hose, and for the most part the first half was tied up. The score at the half-way mark was tied at 18 all.

Wofford and Spires led the Furman offensive, while Waldrep, with 10 points, Foley with 8, and Holcombe with 7, led the Blue Hose Batchelor performed well on the defensive for the Blue Stockings.

STATE CINDER CIRCUS TO BE STAGED ON LOCAL TRACK

TWO DAYS OF CONTESTS CLIMAX SEASON IN MAY

Six Dual Meets Arranged For Presbyterian Track Men, Four of Them In Clinton.

According to a tentative schedule recently drawn up, the Presbyterian college track team will meet six state teams and one out-of-state team in a colorful season that will be climaxed by the state track meet here on May 6 and 7. Coach Lonnie McMillian should have a versatile array of stars out when he sounds his first call to practice sometime within the near future.

Red Rawls in the 880-yard and mile run, Beeman in the pole vault, Dennard and Cole in the dashes, Reynolds in the hurdles, Hollis in the javelin and the broad jump, and Hipp in the weights, should be able to take care of many first places throughout the season. The freshman track team should prove to be one of no little ability, due mostly to the presence of J. C. Hanes who runs the mile as well as the half-mile. Hanes holds the North Carolina state high school record in the mile with a time of 4:40.6. Following is a tentative schedule for the 1938 track season:

March 26—University of South Carolina at Clinton—varsity and frosh.
April 2—University of Georgia at Clinton—varsity.
April 9—Clemson at Clemson—varsity and frosh.
April 14—Furman at Greenville—varsity and frosh.
April 23—Wofford at Clinton—varsity and frosh.
April 30—Florida at Clinton—varsity.
May 6-7—State track meet at Clinton—varsity and frosh.

Blue Hose Beat Hatter Quintet

In their third close, exciting game of the week the Blue Stocking quint defeated a scrappy Stetson university team here Saturday night by the score of 34 to 33.

It was another tie game most of the way, neither team gaining more than a 4-point advantage. The Hose forged ahead by 8 points with 5 five minutes to play, only to see the green-clad Hatters came within one point before the final whistle cut their rally short and spelled victory for the Hose.

Stetson was in the lead the majority of the first half and led 17 to 16 at intermission. Branham and Schaffer tallied field goals from a set block and screen system which the Hatters used to advantage until the P. C. quint started using an effective zone defense and forced the Florida boys to crack down at the basket from long range where they frequently missed their mark.

P. C. took the lead in the second half but were never more than four points ahead until the last few minutes of play. With the Hose in the lead by 34 to 26, Swanson entered the game for the Floridians and dropped in three field goals in rapid order to give the Hose something to worry about, but the final whistle sounded before more damage could be done.

Holden and Waldrep, with 8 points each, led the Hose, while Captain Batchelor played the most outstanding defensive game of his career. Kirkland, with 10 points, and Branham, with 8, led the Hatters.

Anklets Defeat Spartanburg Hi

The Baby Hose were out for revenge Saturday night and got it. The Spartanburg High quint was their victim by a 41 to 34 score in the preliminary game in the local gym.

Coleman dropped three snowbirds to put the Anklets ahead, but Seay sank several beauties to keep the high school boys in the running for the most part of the first half, which ended with the freshmen in the lead by 20 to 16.

Spartanburg presented one of the smoothest-working high school quints ever seen in action in Leroy Springs gym and two of the finest individual players in the state in Seay and Ballenger. They scored 14 and 8 points, respectively, to lead the Red Birds offensively.

Meisky and Coleman, with 12 points, led the Anklets' offensive tactics, while the whole team performed in fine fashion to win over the versatile high school quint that had defeated them in a previous game. Fleischman and Moore contributed 8 and 4 points, respectively, to the Blue Hose total.

Seceders Down Blue Hose Quint

In a rough and tumble game which ended in a free-for-all, the Hose lost their second straight game to the Erskine Fleet, 26 to 24. The game was played in the new Erskine gym Thursday evening.

The Fleet started strong and gained a seven-point lead before the Hose were able to tally. The Hose, however, gradually gained on their opponents.

The second half was very close, with neither team more than four points in the lead. Numerous fouls against the Blue Stockings in the last minutes proved their downfall as the Erskine lads took advantage of the charity tosses to come out on top by a narrow margin.

When the final whistle blew, fans and students flooded the floor and a near-riot resulted. Several of the P. C. boys were injured in the melee. The immediate cause of the fray has not been learned. President Greer, on behalf of his school, offered his deepest regrets for the fracas and Coach McMillian replied assuring him that the Erskine boys would always be treated with as much courtesy as they have in the past and that he would consider the matter forgotten.

Clemson Tankmen Swamp Calvinists

Presbyterian college lost its second swimming meet in as many starts to a crack Clemson team last Wednesday in the local pool. The score was 57 to 16.

Huiet Paul was the best performer for the Blue Hose, taking first place in diving and tying with Steele Caldwell for second in the 60-yard dash. Caldwell was also third in the diving. Paul won the only first place for P. C.

In the freshman events, Clemson took every first place. Martin, Clemson freshman, swam the 220 free style in 2:33, 15 seconds under the varsity time, and the 100-yard free style in 58.7, three seconds under the varsity mark.

It is now that time of the year when the birds choose their mates and the college boy's heart lightly turns to love. I would predict who will send who Valentines, but I will tell later who got them.

B. MOORE is still wondering if his date snaked on him at mid-winters. It is possible, 'cause someone was seen leaving Mrs. Little's quite late.

CARR, like Bob "Bazooka" Burns in a recent picture, helps around the stables. He says he can't ever sit down to rest without his work piling up around him.

BO-GATOR ATKINSON is really a Romeo. He goes to Winthrop every week-end now. You should see the picture he got his first trip. Not bad!

Our freshmen wonder why they don't put a door in the ring. It would come in right handy when you get ready to go.

There was a slight aftermath to the intramural fights held in the Erskine gym the other night. Our men were greatly outnumbered, but with enthusiasm inspired by M. W., they got the best end. I hear that CAVIN really has good footwork.

P. C. Plays Carolina Tonight On Court

The Blue Hose quint will play host to the flashy University of South Carolina Gamecocks tonight at 8 o'clock in Leroy Springs gymnasium. This will be the second meeting of the teams this season, the Hose having been victorious in the first game, played in Columbia, by the score of 32 to 28.

Tongiht's affair promises to be another of those thrilling games that the Hose have been playing all year and a large crowd is expected to be on hand to watch these classy outfits battle it out for the second time.

The Anklets will play a preliminary game beginning at 7 o'clock.

C. P. Culver Shows Pictures of Work In China. War Scenes Also Presented.

Charles P. Culver, superintendent of the Christian Herald Industrial Mission, Foochow, China, conducted the "Y" service before an audience of over one hundred members of the student body and faculty, in the college chapel last Thursday night.

Mr. Culver gave a condensed account of the work of his mission and showed both moving pictures and slides of the Christian Herald's orphan home and industrial mission. The pictures showed the life of those cared for in the mission and brought out the way in which the youth of China is being trained for future life by the Christians of other countries. Mr. Culver also showed pictures of the war-torn sections of China and the destruction being wrought by Japanese invasion. Those who remained after the program were shown pictures of Europe and the Holy Land taken with the new kodachrome film which brought out the natural color and beauty of the scenes.

Mr. Culver was accompanied by Dr. S. Haviland Martin, professor of medicine at the Severance Union Medical college, Seoul, Korea. Dr. Martin commented from time to time with interesting bits of information as the pictures were being shown.

SORORITY DANCE HELD

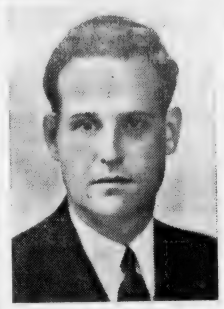
Seniors Announce Plans For Military Ball

Scholastic Press To Convene Here

The Blue Stocking and Clinton High School Sentinel To Be Hosts To 300 Boys and Girls.



On April 14 and 15 The Blue Stocking and The Sentinel, publications of the college and Clinton high school, respectively, will be hosts to the South Carolina Scholastic Press convention, at which about 300 boys and girls, representing most high school papers in the state, will be present. About 150 boys who are to be housed at the college, and about 135 girls, who will stay at private homes, will make up this number.

Grant Hyde, head of the department of journalism at the University of Wisconsin, and many other noted authorities on journalistic writing will speak during the two-day period.

W. R. Anderson, Jr., principal of the high school, stated that it is an honor to have the convention here and everything would be done to make the meeting a success. He expressed the hope that mothers of high school students would cooperate in placing the girls in their homes. The first 100 girls registered will stay in private homes and the balance will stop at the local hotel.

Dean Marshall W. Brown said that the college was looking forward to having the officials and members of the association on the campus and that the college would join with the staff of The Blue Stocking in entertaining them during their stay here.

Seniors Petition For Military Frat

Cadet Officers Seek To Establish Chapter of Scabbard and Blade On Local Campus.

Cadet Colonel Ashby Johnson announced today that the senior officers in the college R.O.T.C. battalion had sent a petition to national headquarters of Scabbard and Blade, military fraternity, asking for a chapter to be established here.

The proceeds from the annual military ball this year are to be given to establish a chapter of Scabbard and Blade, and although the senior class will do all it can in this way to see that the fraternity is installed on the campus, it will largely be up to the juniors to see that the chapter is continued next year.

The senior officers in the junior class today expressed appreciation for the work and effort the seniors are making in order to get the frat here and stated that all possible would be done to continue the chapter after it was installed and to hand it over to their successors, the present sophomore class, a well-established and influential fraternity on the campus.

For a number of years efforts have been made to establish a chapter of Scabbard and Blade, but this is the first time that any kind of success has been assured.

M. M. Hemphill, editor of the 1938 student annual publication, The PaC-SaC, announced today that the dummy of the 200-page edition is ready to be given to the printers and that for this reason no further changes can be made in the section devoted to the classes.

Editor Hemphill told a reporter for The Blue Stocking that during the coming week announcements concerning the places and dates of additional group pictures of the various campus organizations would be placed on the bulletin board in the rotunda of the administration building. He added that all individuals and organizations owing for space reserved in the publication for sponsors would confer a favor and insure an early publication of the book by paying promptly for these pictures.

Food Committee Submits Findings

Eight Food Investigators Report Complaints and Suggestions of Student Body.

Following complaints of the students to the president of the student body concerning recent menus in the college dining hall, a committee was appointed, consisting of eight men, who were to study student suggestions and present their conclusions to the proper administrative authority for action on the matter.

The committee met on Friday morning and discussed the suggestions they had received. The most consistent suggestions offered were, less starch, a better grade of beef, more vegetables, more milk, better coffee, food served, as well as prepared, hot, better Sunday night suppers, and more fruit. Besides improvement in the quality of food, the committee urged that more care be taken in preparing food, cleaning food utensils, and the general cleanliness of the kitchen.

A list of these suggestions have been presented to J. H. Hunter, business manager of the college, whose action in the past in regard to dining hall conditions has always added to their improvement.

The food committee will continue throughout this semester to receive helpful suggestions from the student body. It is composed of the following men: President Joe Commander, Frank Johnston, Ashby Johnson, Pete Holcombe, Morris Ritch, Hugh Rutledge, J. W. Barnhill, and Louis Heckle.

Two Men To Take Army Flyer's Test

The military department announced today that two P. C. men had indicated that they would make application for the physical examination required for admission to the United States army air corps school at Randolph field, near San Antonio, Texas. The two applicants are W. M. Clark, who will graduate in June, and C. P. Fuller, a junior and cadet sergeant in the R. O. T. C.

Major F. C. Harding, professor of military science and tactics, stated that others interested in standing the physical examination should apply at once, as a new class begins on March 1. Other classes begin on July 1 and October 15. Additional information and details concerning requirements for admission may be obtained by calling at the office of the professor of military science and tactics.

Vacancies in the air corps school have resulted from a special government provision which permits 30 men to be selected for entrance to the school from the Fourth Corps area, in which Presbyterian college is located.

ELLIOTT BEGINS 3-DAY SERVICES HERE TUESDAY

Dr. Richards Spoke Yesterday To Begin College "Week of Prayer." Atlanta Pastor To Deliver Sermons.

The Rev. J. McDowell Richards, D.D., president of Columbia Theological seminary, Decatur, Ga., speaking in chapel this morning, began the series of services which Dr. W. N. Elliott, pastor of Druid Hills Presbyterian church, Atlanta, will continue tomorrow morning and which will last through Thursday night. This week is annually designated by the college as "week of prayer," which this year will be in conjunction with other colleges and universities as "national religious emphasis week."

There will be two services held each day, one a special chapel service at 11:45 a. m., and an evening service at 7:30. Both will be conducted in the college chapel.

Prayer meetings have been held in all the dormitories since last Wednesday and will continue through Wednesday night. Much interest has been evinced in these nightly services at which scripture reading, and short prayers for the success of the coming services have been made.

Dr. Elliott is a young man and he comes to P. C. recommended as one of the outstanding ministers of the Southern Presbyterian church and one of Atlanta's foremost preachers. He is a graduate of Louisville (Ky.) Theological seminary, and has been in the ministry only six or seven years. He is a former Rhodes scholar, and attended Oxford university, England.

This series of services is the second to be sponsored by the college this year. The first was conducted by the Rev. S. Hewitt Fulton, of Laurinburg, N. C., in December. In the past only one series, lasting a week, was held.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

Following the current discussion of co-eds taking an active part in the morning chapel programs, and as a local sidelight on "religious emphasis" week, we have questioned several men students and co-eds themselves on the possibility of the idea and have found most of them favorable to it.

Said the president of the Y.M.C.A., WANDELL WILLIAMS: "I think it is a good idea and intend asking them, since they have said they were willing, to choose one of their number to conduct chapel at an early date."

This is the question we asked the men: "What do you think of the idea of having a co-ed conduct chapel?"

ALLEN McSWEEN, senior ministerial student: "I think it is a great idea. If the co-eds are going to take part in other activities on the campus they should take a part in leading chapel programs."

J. P. SNIPES:, also a senior and a transfer student from Presbyterian Junior college, said: "I think it is a good idea, too; and I think if the girls vote they should be allowed to take part in other activities such as chapel

The Priceless Ingredient

In the city of Gagdad livde Hakeem, the wise one. Many people went to him for counsel, which he freely gave, asking nothing in return.

One day there came to him a young man, who had spent much but had got little, and said, "Tell me, wise one, what shall I do to receive the most for that which I spend?"

Hakeem answered, "A thing that is bought or sold has no value unless it contains that which cannot be bought nor sold. Look for the Priceless Ingredient."

"But what is the Priceless Ingredient?" asked the young man.

The wise one then said, "My son, the priceless ingredient of every product in the market place is the honor and integrity of him who made it. Think of him before you buy."

Every day of our lives we are spending our money of faith to buy some kind of character-building product that we desire. Are we getting the most for our money? Are the products in which we are daily putting our trust really worth the price we have to pay for them? This depends, of course, on what it is that we most desire. We believe that the average man is basically good. "The soul is willing, but the flesh is weak" say the scriptures; therefore, since the soul is the more important of the two, this should be the part upon which we should spend our money of faith in purchasing character—good character.

The greatest thing that we can buy with our faith for the uplifting of the soul is salvation, and there is only one marketplace in which that is sold, and only one merchant from which to purchase it.

Salvation, then, is the priceless ingredient in the marketplace of religion and Jesus Christ is the only One who makes it possible for us to obtain it; and the honor and integrity of this quiet, forceful Man of Galilee is as unquestionable as time in its ceaseless round.

In the next few days we shall have the opportunity of having these character-building products in the marketplace of religion displayed before us by a worthy salesman of them, as we sit in chapel. Plan now "while the evil days come not" to store up treasures, not the transient and futile pleasures to be had on earth, but the everlasting "treasures to be enjoyed in heaven" of which the scriptures tell.

Beauty and the Beasts

Many hundreds of words have been written in these editorial columns from time to time about the morning chapel services. Some students think they should not be made to go, while others feel that much good would be accomplished by having the hour of meeting changed.

There is much to be said for both sides, but it is not our purpose at this time to advocate any definite change from the present system, although we feel that such a change is both needed and inevitable. A careful study of the college class schedule would, we believe, reveal a means of arranging a time later in the morning when the student body would be in a more receptive frame of mind in regard to things spiritual. It is our intention in the near future to attempt to bring about such a change, but at the present we have another improvement in mind which we believe would add interest and attention to the morning chapel services.

The co-eds are taking advantage of their privilege to vote in student body elections, and have thereby shown their desire to participate to a small degree at least in extra-curricular affairs. We think they should take an active part in the chapel programs.

Some of them, when approached by a reporter for The Blue Stocking, expressed a willingness to conduct a morning chapel service. As a matter of fact, they seemed glad that they had been asked to participate in such a student body activity.

There remains only one barrier: they have not been asked by a student body official who has the authority to carry out such a plan. The Blue Stocking feels that this has been the case only because that official has not known of their desire or willingness to lead a morning chapel devotional, and would like to see this done.

Spring is in the air and so is spring inspection. As far as the corps is concerned, however, spring fever will have to take a back seat until after inspection. And after that, the juniors, in all probability, will keep the companies so busy that they can't have it then. The main thing at present is to work together in order to have the corps in perfect shape for the inspection.

After spring inspection the juniors will begin their rigid preparation for camp. According to the "Old Gold and Black," weekly publication of Wofford college, Lieutenant Colonel M. J. Gunner, professor of military science and tactics at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, will be the camp commander at Fort McClellan next summer. He also will make the annual inspection of Wofford's R. O. T. C. unit.

This week marked the end of another grade period and, although we know the boys in "A" company enjoyed wearing the citation cords from what they told us, we soon will know just how much they enjoyed it. We are not making any predictions, but the race is going to be close.

Last week a few of the lowly frosh were given the opportunity of giving the manual of arms before the battalion. Although the commands were not spaced correctly, some of them proved that they had very strong voices. From now on the freshmen should be prepared to do this almost any morning.

This Collegiate World

The men at Brigham Young university are all a-flutter. Reason for their suspense is the poll being taken among women students to find the man they would "most prefer" having as an escort for the evening.

The queen situation became so complicated at Kent State college that the student council took matters in hand and abolished three queens. Henceforth the only legal titles are those of Homecoming Queen, Queen of the May, and Miss Kent State.

Just Jargon

"PETE" McCORMICK

Here is something that might happen in anybody's life during this modern age of taxpayers, empty pocketbooks and monetary miracles.

A young man off at college has written to his father, who is a real estate man, asking for $10.00 which he needs for cigraettes, fraternity dues, etc. Several days later he gets a letter from his father and it reads as follows:

Dear Son:

I got your charming letter today. You should tell me about all your woes. Bah! Son, you don't know what woes are.

Every day people come around to me trying to collect, recollect, inspect, dissect, bisect, aspect, expect, disconnect, suspect, disrespect, affect, erect, and defect. In every mail I get bills: doctor bills, grocer bills, cleaning bills, coal bills, water bills, light bills, gas bills, plumbing, drug store bills, and everything except dollar bills. I pay income tax, luxury tax, property tax, business tax, cigarette tax, sales tax, inheritance tax, auto tax, carpet tacks and thumb tacks. I have to pay all my insurance: life insurance, fire insurance, earthquake insurance, business insurance, accident insurance, assurance and reassurance. The government prohibits my making any money by introducing new laws: traffic laws, anti-lynching laws, cotton laws, state laws, county laws, city laws, brother-in-laws and mother-in-laws. What is done with all this money I pay out? It is used to support the WPA, AAA, FHA, NYA, CPA, AFLA, CWA, and USA.

Everywhere I go I owe a debt: foreign debt, national debt, in debt, state debt, city debt. Every way I turn I am approached by tax collectors, bill collectors, stamp collectors, coin collectors, and inspectors. My money is used to pay everything from cooks to crooks. In brief, my dough serves to supply and fulfill all the necessities, hopes, desires, prayers and promises of the general United States.

Enclosed find $10.00 bill borrowed from the cook.

Your financially unhappy son,
L. M. Boy

Jeff stood there, rooted to the spot, a look of doubt on his face. Then wild with excitement, his face lit up like the blooms of the first days of spring. He had waited for this moment for four years—four long years of hard work and worry. Those four years would mean a lot to him in later life, but he wasn't thinking of that now. His mind was on one particle in the hand of the solemn person in front of him who was unceasingly, and yet Jeff did not hear a word that was being said. He was a complete blank and there he stood, silently, solemnly and impatiently awaiting the moment when the small and seemingly insignificant particle would be placed in his hand for him to keep, because to him it was more than anything. Then suddenly he realized that the time of consultation was at hand, he raised his hand slowly, extended his hand and the two-bit piece fall into his palm. His room-mate said, "Now we're even."

Immaterial utterances prompted by an individual personality not deranged (extreme inadequacy of capacity) which, when accumulated, delineate a plenteousness of nothingness to the nth degree:

1. "It takes a wise man to make a fool!"
2. "Prosperity is just around the corner."
3. "Bie Mir Bist Du Schoen."
4. "The best things in life are free." (Nothing is free nowadays).

Notice: The above flow of pulchritudinous incoherencies may be understood as follows: "Unimportant words, issued by an idiot, pertaining to nothing and having no meaning whatsoever."

INDIANS FALL BEFORE BLUE STOCKING QUINTET

SPORTS FOLIO

By JAMES HAFLEY

With only a few more games on the 1938 schedule, the curtain is about to fall on the basketball stage. The Hosemen have performed remarkably well against serious odds, as injuries took a heavy toll throughout the season. Three games have been lost so far by one-point margins and a couple were decided by a single field goal. Competition in the state was exceedingly tough this year and the Boys in Blue are doing a great job. We see no reason, however, why they shouldn't end up in third place. A glance at the standings shows:

Clemson	3	0	147	77
Wofford	6	1	263	241
Citadel	5	1	210	144
Presbyterian	6	3	274	270
Erskine	3	3	171	175
Furman	3	7	259	336
Newberry	2	5	254	257
Carolina	1	3	121	121
College of Charleston	2	8	310	409

This tabulation is through games played last Monday night and is by no means final. We believe they'll finish something like this: Citadel, Clemson, Presbyterian, Wofford, Erskine, Furman, Carolina, Newberry, and College of Charleston.

It's kinda hard to name an all-state team at this stage of the game, but it would be impossible to overlook Kitchens of Clemson at guard, Freeman of Citadel at guard, McFadden of Clemson at center, Waldrep of Presbyterian at forward, and Wofford of Furman at forward. Honorable mention bonquets should certainly go to Hodges of Wofford at center, Holden of Presbyterian at center, Hutto of Carolina at guard, Holcombe of Presbyterian at guard, Hendrix of Wofford at forward, and Batchelor of Presbyterian at guard.

Contrary to popular belief, athletes do have some sound principles and good judgment: Paavo Nurmi refused $3,000 for a cigarette testimonial because he didn't smoke, $1,500 for a liquor ad because he didn't drink, and $2,500 for a series of ghost written stories because he didn't want any one else writing under his name. . . . Jim Braddock, having won the heavyweight crown on the 13th, is superstitious. He and Manager Joe Gould bank every penny and $2 bill that comes their way . . . Joe DiMaggio is rumored to be a silent partner in Jim Braddock's West 49th street restaurant venture.

By the way, don't be too surprised if Nat Mann takes Joe Louis over the bumps in their heavyweight title go Wednesday night. Mann's style bears a very close resemblance to Tommy Farr, and Louis found it pretty tough going against the Welshman. Louis, however, is the betting odds favorite at 4-1.

College men are a lazy lot,
They always take their ease,
Even when they graduate
They do it by degrees.

Spring football practice will come to a close Saturday. During this session of pre-season grinds (and it's the first one in the history of this institution), Walter Johnson has uncovered some powerful material for his extensive grid card next year. Fifty-one football aspirants have been put through their paces by Coach Johnson since the first of February and the boys really have the spirit. Workouts will continue for about a week more as Coaches Johnson and McMillian attempt to assemble a smooth-working varsity eleven for the early fall games.

Five Men To Go To Indoor Meet

Tin Can At Chapel Hill Will Be Scene of Track Carnival.

Track Coach L. S. McMillian announced today that he would enter five P. C. men in the ninth annual Southern conference indoor games to be held at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill on February 26. Presbyterian will have three entries in the non-conference varsity division, and will enter two men in the non-conference freshman events.

Jimmy Dennard, Blue Hose streak who placed third in the 100-yard dash in last year's state track meet, will enter the 60-yard dash. "Duke" Reynolds, who placed third at the state meet last year in the 120-yard high hurdles and who holds the freshman state record for the 220-yard low hurdles, will run the 70-yard high hurdles at the meet. "Red" Rawls, who last year won first place at the freshman state meet in both the 880-yard and the one-mile run and who holds the state record for the latter, will run the 880-yard race on the indoor track at Chapel Hill.

In the freshman events, P. C. will be represented in the 60-yard dash by J. C. Hays, and in the three-quarter mile run by J. C. Hanes.

Coach McMillian will accompany the team to Chapel Hill.

Bird Five Downs Blue Hose Quint

The Blue Hose lost their third very close game of the season to the Carolina Gamecocks Monday night, in the local gym, by the score of 31 to 30, in the last minute of the game.

Batchelor dropped a beautiful long shot to open the game and the Hose took a lead which they held for the most part of the thrilling contest. Carolina temporarily took a one-point led of 15 to 14 at the half.

The second period featured the brilliant defensive play of both teams with neither taking a safe lead. Waldrep dropped several field goals and Holden helped out with three tosses which netted two points each. Wolf, diminutive forward, kept the Gamecocks in the running by dropping field goals from all angles, while Hutto swished two beauties from mid-court to add to the total of the Carolina boys.

With less than a minute to play and P. C. leading by 30 to 29, Henson entered the game at center for the Gamecocks and dropped a pivot shot to win the game which ended with the Hose trying desperately to score once more in an effort to retrieve the game from the fire.

Waldrep led the Hose with 10 points, Holcombe tallied eight, and Holden six. Oliver Wolfe, with nine points, and Hutto and Alexander with seven points each, ruled the roost in the scoring department for Carolina. Batchelor, for P. C., and Hutto, for Carolina, turned in brilliant floor games for their respective quints.

Golf Enthusiasts Asked To Report

Although P. C. does not officially have a golf team to be represented on the links this year, there has been considerable talk lately of organizing one. The team probably will be composed of freshmen and upperclassmen in view of the fact that there are several talented golfers in the first-year class. John Woodward, Wendell Pope, Ralph Stowell, Louis Folley, and Matt Moore should be able to form a winning quartet.

All men interested in the revival of this sport are asked to see John Woodward, who was captain and number one stroker last year. Plans for matches with other schools are not definite as yet and will be completed as soon as more information is gathered about the material on hand.

PETE HOLCOMBE STARS IN HARD-FOUGHT WIN OVER NEWBERRY

Take Early Lead At Newberry To Win Game.

In a clean, hard-fought game, the Blue Hose of P. C. defeated the Newberry Indians in Newberry Friday night, 45 to 41, to maintain their excellent S. I. A. A. rating with four victories and two defeats.

Pete Holcombe played sensational ball the entire game and took high scoring honors with 16 points to lead his team to the hard-earned victory over the stubborn Indians.

"Dad" Cavin started the night's scoring with a nicely-executed snowbird, and Holcombe added two follow-up shots to put the Hose in the lead which they held throughout the game. Ralph Waldrep tossed in four field goals and Captain Batchelor added two more to give P. C. a lead of 21 to 14 as the whistle sounded the end of the first half. Cromer scored eight points for Newberry in the first half and led his team throughout the game. During intermission the "spare-hands" of the two teams thrilled the fans with their tricky shooting. The P. C. extras outscored the Indian leftovers by a fair margin during this part of the night's entertainment.

The second half was more thrilling than the first as Ellis and Schular dropped field goals to come within two points of the Hose. Holden came into his own at this point and pushed in a long arched shot and a nicely executed one-hand pivot shot to put the Hose in the lead again by 29 to 24. Johnston added the final field goal of the game and added the 45th point on a foul shot after the game was over.

Holcombe with 16, Waldrep with 12, and Holden with six points, led the Hose, and Cromer with 12, Ellis with 12, and Schuler with eight points, were outstanding for Newberry.

Wofford will be entertained Friday night in the local gym.

Anklets Defeat Price Hoop Men

The Blue clad freshmen of P. C. defeated the L. B. Price Blanketeers of Greenville Monday night, 60 to 47, in a fast hardwood encounter. The game was a preliminary to the varsity game with Carolina.

For the first few minutes the score was close. The freshmen gained a two-point lead after three minutes of play and had increased it to 38 to 27 by the half. Coleman led the Anklets during this period with four nicely executed pivot shots from his center position. The midget leader of the Blanketeers, Lolis, was the sparkplug of his team the first half.

The second half saw the Baby Sox run up their second largest score of the season as Meisky, Fleischman and Coleman dropped in field goals from all over the front court to stay far ahead of their opponents. The Blanketeers, with Lolis and Butler, Greenville high school flash, leading the day, scored 20 additional points to run their total to 47 points, but they were never able to keep up with the fast pace the frosh set.

Butler led the scoring for the night with 15 points, but was closely followed by Fleischman with 14, and Meisky with 12. Lolis played a nice floor game and led his team with his fiery encouragement.

The freshmen of P. C. will close a very successful season Friday night when they engage the Wofford first-year team in the preliminary to the varsity contest in the local gym.

Papooses Nose Out Baby Hose Crew

The Baby Hose lost their third game of the season Friday night to the Newberry Papooses by the score of 52 to 50 in their closest game of the season.

The Newberry boys started off strong and piled up a safe lead before the Anklets could get started. Coppola, who has an average of 25 points a game for the year, scored 19 points during the first half, and the Papooses led by 33 to 18 at the half.

Fleischman and Coleman turned in individual scoring sprees to open the second half and the Sox accounted for 30 points in less than 10 minutes to take the lead by 48 to 47, with only a few minutes remaining to be played. Meisky fouled out of the game at this point and his fiery presence was missed as the Papooses tallied five more points to two for the P. C. freshmen to win the game.

After the first half, which was Newberry's all the way, the game was nip and tuck, with neither team gaining a safe lead until Newberry won the game with their last-minute scoring spurt.

Coppola led the scoring for the night with 26 points, but was closely followed by Coleman of the Anklets, who played an outstanding game and tallied 25 points. Fleischman scored 10 points for third honors, and Meisky played an excellent floor game for the Anklets.

Clemson Boxing Bout Cancelled

Because of so many injuries in the Blue Hose ranks, the final boxing match of the season, scheduled with Clemson for last Saturday, was called off by Coach Johnson and representatives of the Tigers.

Capt. Ed Lambright could not fight because of a football knee which has been slowing him down all season. "Killer" Todd was over weight and couldn't step in to take Lambright's place in the 149-pound class. In the 119-pound class, little Ralph Buchan was out because of a shoulder injury he suffered in the Carolina meet. His left shoulder popped out in the second round and again in the third. Nevertheless, the scrappy little boy lasted to the finish. Curly Clements also hurt a shoulder in Columbia, and was unable to represent P. C. in the 139-pound class. All this left only Billy Kee, 159 pounds, to face the Tigers, and Coach Johnson thought he was a little too inexperienced to fight

P. C. Nine To Stage Flag Day In Spring

"Chick" Galloway, baseball coach, has announced that P. C. will be the scene of several interesting and unusual ceremonies in respect to baseball as the 1938 intercollegiate season opens.

The Blue Hose nine will open the schedule by traveling to Duke where they will take on the strong Blue Devil aggregation in an exhibition game on April 1.

Following this game the local diamond men will act as hosts to the University of South Carolina nine on April 4. The first spectacular ceremony will take place on April 7, on which time the P. C. nine will act as hosts to "Connie Mac's" Philadelphia Athletics, of the American league. There will be a special program preceding the game between these two teams.

Galloway wishes to announce that all former P. C. baseball players will be invited to attend the P. C.-U. S. C. game on April 4, and requests that the players get in touch with him as early as possible so that he can make the necessary arrangements.

Coach Galloway also states that the student body will see the best-dressed team in the state take to the field on April 4, when the P. C. men appear in their new uniforms.

Board Trustees Meet Tomorrow

Tomorrow morning the board of trustees of the college will hold its first meeting of the second semester in the library reading room in the Science hall, to discuss administrative problems, among which will be the $500,000 "perpetuation campaign" now in its third week.

The meeting of the board, which is composed of representatives of the synods of South Carolina and Georgia, will be presided over by President William P. Jacobs. The meeting is expected to last only until noon, after which the trustees will return to their respective churches and homes with plans for the half million dollar drive uppermost in their brief cases.

It is rumored that Jake Penland has an affair across the tracks. Now there could be something to it, 'cause he was seen escorting the said affair out toward Laurens (not Main street either). It's nice work.

A pun.—Reed Watson says he doesn't Nora much chemistry, but he really enjoys lab. Seems like Dave Buey is in the same fix.

Flash! Jimmy Freeman had five bids to the recent girl break. It really was a problem, 'cause Jimmy just couldn't stand to see all those hearts broken. Ain't it grand to be so popular? Jimmy wonders.

We are happy to announce a newcomer to this column and our campus. It's Miss Dorothy Scott, of Easley and Winthrop .She gets around, too. I've noticed that she has the attention of quite a few already. Me too.

Joe Commander is a man of determination and intelligence. He personally saw to it that Rena didn't late date on him. Not a bad idea at all. Great thing Dr. Shealy didn't get up five minutes earlier.

Eldred McLeod was slightly did at mid-winters. (This is a bit ancient but too good not to print.) It was like this. Margaret Shealy's mother had her come in as soon as the dance was over and so she did. She went on upstairs as if to bed, and in a few minutes she's on the porch with shoes in hand. And who do you think was there!—our hero, Bill Coleman. Nice work, Bill. Little more and we'll make you a member of "The Royal Snakes of P. C."

Hayne Taylor is between the devil and the deep blue sea. Not literally, but it's tough for him that Frances and Susie live in the same town.

We pause to congratulate those brave souls who so courageously faced the perils of a dance where the breaking is reversed. We kinder see what girls go through with all the time.

services, as you mentioned."

Freshman "BUDDY" LLOYD felt that "it would be a good idea and that it would break the monotony of the present system." He also believes that "the co-eds would make the programs more interesting than most boys."

We asked the co-eds, "Would you be willing to conduct a chapel service, and what do you think of the idea?"

BEBE DILLARD, able senior student and only co-ed scientist, says, "I think it is a very good idea. If we are to be present at chapel anyway we should have the privilege of taking a leading part in it occasionally. I am willing to do my part and take the lead now and then."

ADELAIDE ROBERTS, co-ed poet and stenographer, told a reporter: "I think it is a very good idea and I would be willing to do my part; only I would hesitate to be first."

RITA CHANDLER felt the same way about it as Adelaide. She said: "I should like to see this brought about, and if the others are willing to take part I am too."

Space does not permit quotations from other co-eds, but it is significant that Laura Fleming, the leading student in scholarship in college (see dean's list) thinks "the idea is an excellent one and I am in favor of it if the boys do not resent such action on the part of the co-eds."

CLEMSON BOXING BOUT CANCELLED

all of them in one night, so he crooned, "Let's call the whole thing off."

Prospects for a better season next winter are bright. The team will lose only one man, Coach Bill Burns, by graduation. F. C. Sutton is about the best looking freshman boxer to show himself at P. C. in a long time. He won two fights in less than two minutes of boxing this season, rocking Van Ripper of the University of Georgia to sleep early in the first round, and slapping his Gamecock opponent around so much that the referee stopped the fight in less than a minute. Suttons' record is something like 68 wins in 68 fights. He fights at 139. Davenport, another great freshman prospect, had to leave school because of illness, but he will be ba fall, fighting at 149.

If Coach Johnson can find 129-pounder and an unlimited the Blue Hose pugs will ran South Carolina boxing circ year.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

By MILTON NORTON

This week, with much talk of intramural basketball in the air, and with more interest shown than in former years due to the appearance of a faculty quint, we interviewed the various coaches of the teams which will compete. Your reporter asked:

"What is your probable starting line-up, and what are your prospects of winning?"

Here are the predictions as made by the coaches:

"TURK" OSMAN, coach of the faculty team, commented: "As forwards, we'll have Coach Johnson and "Chick" Galloway; as guards, President Jacobs and Mr. Hunter; at center, Coach McMillian. We have unusually good reserves in Professor Boyd, Hugh Holman, Dr. Whitelaw, and "Hank" Wilson. We are very sure that we can whip any team with which we compete, and although we realize that we're getting old, we can still take 'em as fast as they come."

B. C. JARRARD, coach of the Laurens-Smyth team which meets the faculty team tonight, said: "Our forwards probably will be Fleming and Power; guards, Hollis and Potter; center, Carr. We're really going through that facult yteam; in fact, we're going to 'murder' them. As for the other teams, we'll give any of them a real fight."

J. C. CAVIN, coach of the Spencer-Alumni team, told us: "In the forward positions, Cole and either Bill Talbot or Stubbs; as guards, Jacobsen and Henley; at center, "Footsie" Cooper. We have good reserves, and the best team that we have had in the four years that I have been coaching them, and I believe we'll take the cake this year. I also believe that this will be the best intramural tournament P. C. has ever had."

L. B. FOLLEY, coaching the Beta Kappa team, stated: "There'll be Ritch and Crawford as forwards, Bethea and Jacobs as guards, and McCutchen at the center position. If my boys will get in condition, we'll go to town. The only hitch is that they won't."

"COTTON" BOSWELL, coach of the Kappa Alpha team, said: "We'll have Todd and Caldwell at the forward positions, Jimmy Richardson and Thompson as guards, and I'll be at center. There is no doubt about it, we are going to win this tournament."

"PETE" HOLCOMBE, coach of the Pi Kappa Phi boys, told us: "As forwards, Hammel and McCormick; as center, Commander; as guards, Clements and Huggins. We play the K. A.'s the first game, so we can't lose it. I've got an ace in the hole, but I'm not telling you what it is."

J. B. HAFLEY, pinch-hitting for John Woodward, coach of the Pi Kappa Alpha team, reported: "The probable lineup will be Harper and I as forwards, Moore and Horne as guards, and Peeksen as center. We hope to win the tournament and, believe, me, we have a good chance of doing so. I, for one, hope that they'll play under the old rules which call for a center jump."

Drama Group Cast Selected For March Play

"The Late Christopher Bean" Is Club's Next Production.

At a recent meeting of Sock and Buskin, local dramatic club, the group selected the entire cast, and set the date for the middle of March for presentation of their next play, which is the Broadway favorite, "The Late Christopher Bean."

The tryouts were judged by the club's directors and advisers, Dr. Harold S. Fish and Professor Bernard H. Boyd. The cast selected includes Adelaide Roberts and Jane Sturgeon in the feminine leads, and Charlton McSwain, a newcomer to the organization, in the leading male role. Others in the cast include T. Q. Jones, Louis Porter, J. W. Barnhill, and Robert Wysor. Two other feminine parts will be played by outsiders, interested in a little theatre movement in Clinton.

The play is a comedy in three acts, involving an old man's valuable collection of paintings which are thought to be worthless. In the process of disproving this thought, modern wit and comedy vie with occasional seriousness and romance to make "The Late Christopher Bean" one of the most entertaining plays of this year's presentations.

Local Cage Team To Compete In Ky. Tournament

Nine Men Will Make Trip, Leaving Thursday. Meet Murray (Ky.) Teacher Friday P. M.

The Presbyterian college Blue Hose cage team will compete in the annual S. I. A. A. basketball tournament which is being held at Kentucky State Teachers college, at Bowling Green, Ky., this week.

Head Coach Johnson received a wire from Carl Anderson, tournament manager, late this afternoon, inviting the Blue Hose team to compete in the tourney.

Nine members of the squad will leave for Bowling Green Thursday morning, accompanied by Coach McMillian and Athletic Director Johnson.

The local team drew a bye in the first round of the tournament, but in the second round will play the strong Murray college quintet on Friday afternoon at 2:30.

This is the second straight year that the Blue Hose have participated in this tournament.

Nominees To Be Chosen Tuesday

Nominations for various student body offices will be made tomorrow morning at the regular chapel meeting.

Student nominees will be named for president of the student body, secretary and junior councilman, sophomore councilman, and president of the Y. M. C. A. The man defeated for president of the student body automatically becomes vice-president of the organization.

Council recommendations for officers of the student body are presented and the floor is then opened to other nominations. In addition to the president and vice-president of the student body, one senior councilman, three junior councilmen, one of whom will act as secretary, and two sophomore councilmen will be elected from the list of nominees.

Dr. Huntley To Return To Europe

Head of French Department To Make Third Trip Abroad.

Dr. S. M. Huntley, head of the French department and director of the college glee club, will leave about the first of June on his third trip to Europe. He has not yet decided whether he will sail from Norfolk, New York, or New Orleans.

Dr. Huntley's first trip abroad was made while he was wearing the uniform of a soldier in the American Expeditionary Forces during the World war when he sailed in 1918 from New York on the "Mauretania," a sister ship of the historic "Lusitania." His second trip was made in 1930 on the "Leviathan," a ship taken from Germany in the war, and the largest luxury liner of its day, and which was recently featured in the national press at the beginning of its final voyage to England to be junked.

During his second trip abroad, Dr. Huntley spent two years in France studying at the University of Toulouse where he received his doctor's degree in 1932. The purpose of the trip in June will be to renew old friendships made on former visits and especially to see the family with whom he lived while a student, and for whom he feels "an affection very close to that of my own immediate family," as he expressed it. He also plans to travel extensively while there, visiting the Scandinavian countries and coming back through Germany. He stated that he planned to do some special work in Spanish. He will return to the college next September in time to resume his work here.

ALBERT C. TODD, OF GREENWOOD, IS NEW CHAIRMAN OF BOARD

Prominent Attorney To Fill Vacancy As Presiding Officer of College Directors After Five Years As Trustee.

BOARD COMMENDS JACOBS AND BROWN FOR WORK

The election of Albert C. Todd, Greenwood attorney, as chairman, and the elevation of Bernard H. Boyd from associate professor of Bible to a full professorship, were among the major actions of the college board of trustees at its spring meeting here last Tuesday.

Todd, a member of the board for the past five years, succeeds Dr. Henry Wade DuBose, who recently left the First Presbyterian church of Spartanburg to accept a pastorate at Dallas, Texas ,and resigned at that time. Dr. DuBose had been chairman since 1930 except for one year.

The board approved a budget presented by President William P. Jacobs and also endorsed a forum foundation plan outlined by him calling for establishment of revocable trusts with the college as beneficiary.

The board voted commendation to President Jacobs and Dean Marshall W. Brown for their administration during the year.

I. R. C. To Review War Situation At Open Forum

European Situation and Business Conditions To Be Discussed.

The International Relations club will hold an open meeting in the Ferdinand Jacobs memorial forum room Thursday night at seven o'clock, during which recent and current European war "scares" as well as world business conditions will be discussed, George Beatty, president of the club, announced today.

Following talks on the European situation and American business by Beatty and Frank Johnston, visitors will be invited to join the general discussion in the socratic manner in which these meetings are held.

At a recent meeting of the organization it was decided that no delegate would be sent to the national convention which is held about this time each year.

Class Attends Hospital Clinic

Making a tour of the wards of the hospital and attending a demonstration clinic, the class in abnormal psychology paid its annual visit to the State hospital for the mentally deranged in Columbia last week. .

The class is conducted by Dr. F. D. Jones, head of the department of philosophy and psychology at Presbyterian college, but the demonstrations and lectures were conducted by Dr. Chapman J. Milling, of the hospital staff.

Dr. Milling, a graduate of P. C. in the class of 1923, has gained wide experience in the field of abnormal psychology during the twelve years that he has been a member of the staff. During the course of the lectures, Dr. Milling presented eight cases for demonstration and study by the class.

After the thirty members of the class left the hospital they returned immediately to the college. Those who were with this year's class and others who have made the trip before report that this is a most valuable method of studying the psychology of the abnormal.

Director Announces Varied Program For P. C. Summer Period

The faculty, in a special meeting last Monday afternoon, drew up plans for the 1938 summer session to open June 6 and last through July 15. Professor Bothwell Graham was elected director, with Hugh Holman, secretary in charge of advance work.

As usual, there will be three daily periods of one and a half hours for five days a week. Two classes may be taken, giving a possible total of six semester hours credit.

Tuition for the session will be fifteen dollars, with a one dollar library and matriculation fee, making a total expense of sixteen dollars.

The plan this year is to lay out a program which will be particularly beneficial to the students of this college, and suggestions as to courses to be offered will be gladly received by Mr. Holman, who has charge of arranging the curriculum.

An attempt is being made to offer courses which will be of greatest usefulness to the student, both in doing make-up work and in doing advanced work.

In the field of mathematics, freshman mathematics will be taught by Professor H. E. Sturgeon; the mathematics of finance and possibly astronomy by Professor H. E. Spencer.

In the field of English, Mr. Holman will offer a course in freshman English which may be credited to either the first or second semester. Dr. M. G. Woodworth will offer two advanced courses, "Shakespeare" and "Tennyson and Browning." Either of these courses may be counted as one semester of sophomore English, and will be particularly beneficial to students deficient in this department.

In the field of languages, beginners French, and Spanish or German will be offered.

In education, two courses will be taught, one dealing with elementary school work and one with high school work.

In the field of commerce, Professor Kenneth Baker will offer advanced transcription work, and a new course dealing with "business cycles."

Mr. Holman emphasized the fact that the summer school set-up now is very flexible, and that all steps possible to make it beneficial to individual applicants will be made. He asks that those who are interested in the school see him as soon as possible and let him know their needs.

Dr. W. N. Elliott Ends Service Series Here

RADIO DRAMA IS CAUSE OF APACHE SCREAM FROM DIRECTION OF SMYTH AT MIDNIGHT

By D. R. DINGEMAN

In the dark stretches of the night one lone soul sat stooped over a radio (not a Philco), listening intently in the night to the strange sounds emitting from the box. The lights were turned low and everywhere there was silence. Nothing dared stir during this darkest period of the night and this particular soul dared not even twitch.

"The small chicken heart that you saw only a few hours ago has grown into a mass about three hundred times its original size through the action of some spilled chemicals. Those women who knocked over the artificial heart apparatus have unknowingly started something that in the long run may destroy the entire world. For in knocking this table over they caused those chemicals to spill on this little heart. If we cannot stop the growth of this mass of protoplasm soon we may never be able to stop it at all."

"Look there, it is stretching out a tentacle to get that white rat. Oh, gosh! (not what I mean, but it'll do until the real thing comes along) it is devouring that poor animal and, look—it is growing larger every minute. In fact, it doubles in size every hour. Look out there, man, it'll get you."

A scream pierces the air. Two or three more screams pierce the same thing. Listener shudders and settles back to the three inches of chair on which he was originally sitting. His hair settles back down on his head and then goes back to listening to the original program.

"The thing is growing and we won't be able to stop it if we don't burn the entire building. There is no time to be wasted at all and there should be no expense to be avoided if this thing is to be wiped from the earth in time to save all the people on this terrestrial globe. Things are too black to be safely viewed in a laughing manner.

"Look out! The animal is growing ever larger and now fills the entire building. In a moment— Oh, there it goes—the entire building has burst open and for the first time it really has an opportunity to satiate its desire for flesh. Look over there—the poor people caught in its reaches. Oh, it's too ghastly to watch. Policemen tell the chief to remove all the people from this block or they will certainly be devoured."

Screams raise the hair on the head of the listener and the lights blink. "Oh my, oh my, oh my! There is no place for me to hide or I would certainly be hiding. Oh—phew!—for a minute I thought that thing had me.

"There it is down below us. Nothing has been effective and it now covers almost three city blocks and it's grown that big in just a few hours. Nothing can stop it now until it will devour every thing in its path. (Motor of airplane coughs, spits, and wipes its mouth. I mean it quits, and the wires of the wing struts begin to whistle in a high-pitched whine). Oh, Doctor, we're going to crash, and I can't get the ship out of this dive. We'll crash right into that mass of stuff. Well, Doc, it was nice knowing you. Bood-bye."

Crash heard. Sound effects sound like a loud splash. Suddenly bloodcurdling screams come from the direction of Smyth, sending the listener's hair ceilingward. Then a deathly silence reigns. Just audible is the thup-thup of the supposed monster and then the cheery voice of the announcer breaks in. "This is your favorite station, WTTO." The hair lowers back to its reclining position and the listener goes to bed .To sleep? No— to lie awake and think and be frightened.

I'll just be darned if I listen to "Lights Out" again. I need the sleep too bad.

Clinton, S. C., Monday, February 28, 1938

Congratulations!

We want to offer our sincere congratulations to the first coed to conduct a chapel service here at P. C. Your service was sincere and direct, and your words of spiritual inspiration were delivered with effective, eloquent simplicity. We admire your courage and want you to know that because of it other coeds will feel less hesitancy in following suit. We have heard nothing but words of approval from the student body and the faculty. Again we congratulate you.

* * * * * * *

Congratulations are also in order to those members of the faculty who have entered into the spirit of the thing and, at the invitation of the president of Blue Key fraternity, have decided to enter an all-faculty team in the intramural basketball tournament. Perhaps they are also to be congratulated for being courageous!

The Case For the Privately Owned College

The Chicago Tribune of February 23 carried the following editorial about the plan of Presbyterian College's president, William P. Jacobs, for the salvation of the privately owned institution:

The Association of American Colleges has appealed to congress for relief from existing tax laws. The association is composed of nearly 600 privately financed educational institutions. Universities and colleges of this character provide a large part of the higher education available in this country and are responsible for an even larger portion of the research into new fields of knowledge. All of this service is performed without a penny of direct subsidy from the taxpayers. What the students do not pay in tuition is met from endowments and other gifts.

Because of the low interest rates now prevailing, income from endowment funds, even those which came through the depression intact, is considerably less than it was a few years ago. The demands on the private institutions are expanding. But new gifts which must be obtained if the standards of the colleges are to be maintained are few and far between. President William P. Jacobs, of Presbyterian College, official spokesman for the association, has compiled figures to show that in a decade the new gifts to endowment have declined by no less than 52 per cent.

Existing tax laws go far to explain this situation. Of necessity, the donors of large sums are persons possessed of sizable incomes. These incomes are now taxed so heavily that relatively little is left for philanthropy. The government permits the donor to deduct from income no more than 15 per cent in the form of contributions to charity. At the same time, the taxes on estates have been pushed so high that wealthy men are under great pressure to keep very large sums on hand in cash or its equivalent in order to meet the death duties and thus protect their heirs and their businesses from the ruin of enforced liquidation. Funds which might have gone to the colleges are now taken by the tax collector or reserved for him.

In those circumstances it is remarkable that the decline in gifts has been no greater. Undoubtedly the habit of philanthropy accounts for the continuance of a certain amount of giving even in the face of existing obstacles, but that habit is rapidly dying. Unless the tax laws are modified in the interest of the colleges, the quality or quantity of education available at the endowed schools will be lowered. That will mean, in turn, heavier enrollments at state supported schools with a resultant increase in the tax bills of the ordinary citizen.

Education, research, and the taxpayer all will pay a heavy price for a federal tax system which discourages philanthropy. The association of which President Jacobs is spokesman has prepared an amendment to the federal tax laws which would greatly increase the income of the colleges, it is believed, but would not reduce federal revenues by more than a few million dollars. Th amendment deserves support.

PARADE REST

CADET SERGEANT QUAITE JONES

Last week marked the end of another grade period and also the end of "A" company's reign as the company with the fewest number of D's and E's. For the next month (this columnist hopes it will be longer) "B" company will be the proud wearer of the citation cords. The race was very close and there was a very noticeable decrease in the number of D's and E's for this grade period. We pause to wonder if the citation cords will increase the number of feminine glances cast in the direction of the boys of "B" company. (Again we hope).

Last Monday the freshmen, for the first time, had the opportunity of seeing a rifle squad in attack. A squad made up mostly of juniors and sophomores and commanded by Cadet Sergeant Sullivan, acting as corporal, demonstrated the action of a squad in actual combat. Every phase of the fire fight was shown, from the advance in column to the reorganization of the squad and pursuit of the enemy. The freshmen should have paid close attention to this as the main part of the inspection will be based on the action of a squad in the attack.

Up until now the race as to which company captain will win the sabre which will be given to the company commander having the best drilled unit at the end of the year is very close. "B" company won the first week, with "A" company second, and "A" company won the second week, which puts them one-third ahead of "B" company. The race is young yet, therefore we are not making any predictions as to the outcome.

One day last week when the battalion was assembled in one place a very high quivering voice rang out the word platoon. At first it was thought to be feminine, but it was finally decided that one of our lieutenants had strained his voice the night before singing lullabys to his date. Do tell!

This Collegiate World

Betty Coed has rhythm, but Joe College has almost twice as much. Tests given at Miami university showed that while the women's score was a bare 39—or eleven points below an average struck on the basis of 10,000 similar studies throughout the United States—men students achieved a rating of 67.

Because the president of Georgetown college, Kentucky, has been baptized only once, he is in danger of losing his job. A conservative element of the Baptist council which controls the college contends that one immersion may be sufficient for a layman, but that a minister should be baptized at least twice.

Women primp for the same reason that men drink—to bolster up morale, according to a psychology professor at Del'auw university. They dress chiefly to make an impression on their own sex, rather than to win the approval of men, he declared.

"PETE" McCORMICK

The two loving figures sat on the park bench, huddled, cheeck to cheek. The air was laden with soft, sweet scents of blooming flowers and sweet perfume. These two lovers formed the foreground of this view.

"Darling," whispered the guy, "do you love me?"

"Sure, honey," was her answer. "And do you love me?"

"With all my heart, precious. I love you more than words can possibly express. I am completely mad about you. I would go to any extreme to do anything you wanted me to. I'd give you anything within my power," he cooed. (Coo-coo!)

"Would you?" she asked, questioningly.

"Certainly."

He reached in his pocket, pulled out a pack of gaspers (cigarettes to you), placed one in his mouth, lit it and repocketed the pack.

They continued to sit, very quietly for a while. Occasionally the cigarette would glow as the boy dragged it. Soon it burned down close to his fingers. Still silence!

The girl broke the awful silence, saying in a somewhat uncertain tone, "I know you haven't got fire insurance, so I'd like to ask you for that duck."

"Duck!" he snorted. "I just lit it!"

And then there's the story of how the countryman made his first social blunder while eating a meal with his relatives in the city. During the course of the meal he hostess asked, "Won't you have some corn?" (The blunder). He passed his glass.

Yours truly has gone goofy on the "Bie Mir Bist Du Schoen" subject and I feel sure that its kinda wearing on the edges a little. However, as a farewell salute to the song, as far as this columnist is concerned, this little brain storm may bring forth

The situation: Take for that some poor radio fan "Bie Mir Bist Du Schoen until he has gone complete and every day he sings while gazing while gazing longingly through bughouse dressing his pitiful refrain to house keeper.

INTRAMURALS BEGIN TONIGHT

SPORTS FOLIO

By JAMES HAFLEY

Out of the eleven teams entered in the basketball tournament which gets under way tomorrow night, we find a possible dark stories each year in the early stages of the tournament, but this stories ach year in the early stages of the tournament, but this year it might be a different story in the mad scramble for final honors. Last week it was revealed that the faculty here is entering a cage team that will cause no little trouble to its opponents. And a very formidable looking group they are too—Osman, Wilson, Johnson, McMillian, Boyd, Fish, and probably others will see action. Something tells me that this tournament ought to be one of the best yet!

Broadway Bromides: Baby LeRoy is said to be staging a comeback at four years . . . Charley McCarthy will get the next presidential nomination, running on a fire-proof platform, or sump'n . . . "I've read Dale Carnegie twice and still I ain't got a single friend or an ounce of influence!"

FINIS

Tonight Coach Lonnie McMillian's 1938 edition of basketball talent will write finis on a slate that has seen seven victories and an equal number of set-backs in state competition. In a slow, uninteresting game Friday night the Terriers from Wofford overcame a terrific 9-6 half-time score to put the skids under our boys in the end, 24-19. The baskets just wouldn't keep still, and even crips were rare things. Tonight the varsity tangles The Citadel and it should really be an interesting game. The Calvinists will be out to wreak their vengeance on the jailbirds for a decisive defeat handed them on the occasion of their last meeting. Gressette's Bulldogs are the Number One Team in the state, however, and realize the difference between victory and defeat.

Spring football practice also came to an end this afternoon with a practice game between two teams selected by Mentor Johnson and assistants. This session has proved most successful and should prove of great value in helping select a dependable eleven for the early fall games. Long and hard drills in blocking, tackling, passing, and punting have featured the practices for the past month. . . . Down at Georgia Tech, Coach William Alexander has been putting his backfield candidates to a tricky test. Each man is required to jump over a regulation tackling dummy and immediately dive under a belt held about waist high by one of the coaches. It will either pull the kinks out of you or jerk your head off at the shoulders. In other words, it's a snap!

Hose Vanquished By Wofford Cagers

Fast-Stepping Spartanburg Outfit Returned Victor Here Friday Night.

Wofford's Terriers defeated the Blue Hose five Friday night, 24 to 19, in an exciting hardwood contest which saw the lead change several times and neither team gain a safe margin.

Trammell opened the night's scoring with a free toss, and Cavin repeated his last performance by again breaking the ice for the Hose with a long field goal. From here to the end of the first half the defensive work of both quints was excellent, with P. C. doing the most outstanding in holding the high ranking Terriers to a single field goal and four fouls during the first half which ended with the Hose out in front by 9 to 6 in the lowest scoring first half of the season.

The play in the second half was more thrilling as Wofford climbed to within one point of the Blue Hose and finally, in the last few minutes, passed them and won the game. This last few minutes scoring spurt featured the play of Clark and Ballenger, substitute forwards for the Terrier team. The two tied for high scoring honors with six points each.

Les Holden played an outstanding game for P. C., leading the scoring for the night with nine points and performing in brilliant fashion in handling the rebounds from the backboard. Holcombe added six points for second scoring honors. Batchelor held Hendricks, Wofford's high score man, to a single field goal and a pair of foul shots and directed his team's floor play in nice fashion.

The contest was an S. I. A. A. game and leaves the Hose with the record of six wins and three defeats for the season. The win furthered Wofford's chances of a state championship, for if they should beat Clemson Monday night and P. C. upsets Citadel, they will have undisputed claim to the championship. The Citadel is being entertained tonight in the local gym.

Do You Forget To Remember? Here's Remedy

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

If you go to Lewis Institute of Technology you can hire someone to think for you. .

One student there has started a card index of students who complain they forget such vital details as their sweethearts' birthdays or when they last had a haircut.

All that embarrassment is now eliminated. Instead of running around with their fingers tied up in strings they call their remembering service. The service thumbs a card and presto, up comes the dope!

Why Go To College?

Why did you come to college, my boy,
Why did you leave the farm,
And leave old Dad with the work to do?
I'm sure you meant no harm.

Now that you're here and settled down
In a college of liberal arts,
What is your motive in life, my boy,
To woo and break more hearts?

College is different from high school life,
In many, many ways you'll see;
The longer you stay, the more you'll agree
What fools we mortals be!

You may have been a ladies man
Back in the old home town,
But there's a lot to learn, a goal to earn,
Before you receive the crown.

Life is more than meat or raiment,
It is more than dollars and cents.
Then ask yourself this question, my boy,
Where shall I pitch my tent?

The friends you make and the company you keep
Are of infinite value to you.
Let your life so shine with the "Spirit of Light"
As sun rays sparkle the dew.

'Tis only a span from cradle to grave,
The race will soon be run.
CHARACTER is all that counts, my boy,
With Heaven to win, and Hell to shun.

ELEVEN TEAMS ENTER CAMPUS BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

Intramural Contests Begin Tonight With AKP Squad Playing Alumni-Spencer Crew.

FACULTY TEAM TO ADD NEW INTEREST IN TILTS

Intramural basketball, part of an extensive sports program conducted and sponsored each year by Blue Key, leadership fraternity, will start tonight, according to an announcement made today by Frank Johnston, president of the honorary organization. The tournament was originally scheduled for last week but was postponed because of the religious services held here at that time.

Pairings for the tournament were drawn up during the day and have been posted in the Administration building. Eleven teams have been entered, six social fraternities, four dormitories, and one faculty team. For the first time in many years students will welcome the spectacle of seeing their pet tutors struggling in a titantic effort to subdue opposition. There is always a spirited rivalry for the possession of the intramural cup each year and this year should be no exception in a tournament that should prove to be one of the most colorful held yet.

Several of the teams entered have been holding practice sessions in the gym in an effort to mould winning combinations and all will be ready to spring into action at the whistle tomorrow night. The present plan is to run off two games each night all through this week and the finals will be played Saturday night.

Turk Osman has been elected manager of the faculty five and has announced the following candidates for the team: Professors Boyd, left-hand wizard; Whitelaw, who, in spite of his lame leg, promises to give the other quints plenty of trouble with his uncanny shooting ability; Holman, former court flash for P. C., and Coaches Johnson, who was quite adept at the art of hooping the hoop, and McMillian, varsity coach and crack shot, and Galloway, frosh coach and fast as greased lightning. And last, but not least, Business Manager Hunter, who is reputed to be capable of playing with the Celtics or one of the other professional fives. Turk himself is a hardwood flash and promises that the faculty members will give the younger boys a night full of competition.

Tonight, preceding the varsity contest between The Citadel and P. C., the team representing Alumni-Spencer will play the Alpha Kappa Pi quint in the opening game of the tournament.

Interest already displayed by the participants indicates that this year's games will be the most thrilling set of its kind in many years.

Finis Written To Spring Practice

Football Men Conclude Month of Spring Training. Observers See Improved 1938 Team.

Four weeks of spring football practice was to have been climaxed this afternoon in a game between two teams chosen by Coach Johnson. The result of the game was unknown as this paper was being printed.

This year was the Blue Hose's first attempt at a spring practice, and Coaches Johnson and McMillian are well pleased with the results. Very much time was spent working on the fundamentals of the game with much emphasis laid on the art of blocking.

The rising sophomores, particularly, have benefited by having an opportunity to learn the system used here, and to work with last year's varsity men. Jerry Roberts and Gene MacIntosh showed fine possibilities of breaking into the first-string backfield next fall, while the freshman guard trio, Flanders, Fleischman, and Fraser, have proved their worth in no uncertain manner. At the ends, Red Lawrence, J. C. Coleman, and the veteran Be Boore did fine work the whole time. The backfield was bolstered by the return of June Moore and Charlie Thompson, the latter upholding his reputation as a mighty kicker.

The Hosemen, under the capable tutelage of Coach Johnson, have learned 15 plays, employing the new unbalanced line, and this will save much time next year as the first game comes with Clemson only three weeks after fall practice begins.

Anklets Down Wofford Rats

P. C. Yearlings Finish Season With 13 Wins In 16 Starts.

The Baby Blue Hose closed their very successful season Friday night by defeating the Terrier Pups, 41 to 29, in a fast game preceding the varsity contest.

Meisky dropped in two field goals and a pair of foul shots in rapid succession and Moore added two field goals to give the Anklets a lead which they held throughout the game. Maness, Pup forward, sank several field goals, and Speigner three, to lead the Wofford boys during the first half. The play during this period was extremely close and the half found P. C. ahead by 20 to 14 after 20 minutes of fast basketball.

Erratic playing on the part of both quints featured the second half, with numerous fumbles, and many passes were broken up in vain attempts to get the ball down the court before the other could set up a defense. The Anklets proved to be the most adept at retrieving the loose ball and frequently broke into the scoring column for this reason.

Meisky led the scoring with 12 points for P. C., but was closely followed by Maness, who scored 11 for Wofford, and Moor 10 for P. C. The win was the Anklets' 13th in 16 starts and ended their season. Their only losses were to the Clemson frosh, Newberry frosh, and Spartanburg high.

Pete McCormick and "Slappy" thought for a while that Hap Gray and his Collegians had been replaced by Shep Fields and his Rippling Rhythm after intermission at the recent girl-break. Can't give details here, but I can add that the armory is no place for intermissioning.

We wonder why thirty "students" left P. C. on a recent psychology trip to the state hospital and only twenty-seven came back. It was noticed that Sullivan, Donnan, and Huntley didn't answer the roll in class next day. We do hope their detainment was due to the inmates of Carolina or Columbia college.

Our G-Man Johnston really should go back to Flora Macdonald. I do not want to be quoted on this, but I'd venture to say "he's got something there." Me too, "Bud."

News Flash! It was just learned by your reporter that the wedding bells have rung for another of our last year's grads. Simon Legare was married recently. If at first you don't succeed . . .

It's great to see M. D. Schuler again on his way to Columbia college. I hear he went down to get an estimate of the whole works of which the bottom had dropped out. We do hope that everything comes out OK, because we really would miss Ann at the military ball.

I hate to say it, but our Miss Scott is proving to be a gold digger. Other night one of the boys carried her to the show, then to the cafe, and finally had to admit that he was down to his last nickel. She carelessly exclaimed, "Oh that's okey dokey. Just get me a box of matches and four sticks of gum." Please don't take offense, Mary, this is just stuff.

Congratulations, Bebe! I think it's a great idea for the coeds to conduct chapel, and you gave the idea a grand sendoff .We need more coeds like you. We have an idea Al was a big help.

Hipp, coach of the Alpha Lambda Tau team, who was out of town, remarked: "I suppose the starting line-up will probably be Turner and Pope at the forward positions, Penland and Hipp at guards, and Blackwell at center. With these boys in there, it's all in our favor; and if they do as well as I think they will, we'll win the tournament."

HOOD STRAIN, coach of the Alpha Kappa Pi team, stated: "We'll have Mac Reid and Cogburn as forwards, Bonner and Moore as guards, and Wannamaker at center. The boys looked good in practice, and I think we'll take any team with ease."

Further proof that the Chinese and Japanese are having a war affair. The League of Nations has sent its regrets.

Einstein Theory Found In Poetry

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Burlington, Vt. — Einstein's latest theory--that gravitation and electricity combine to form solid matter, a development of his theory of electrical bridges between shells of space—has been related to Edgar Allan Poe's prose poem, "Eureka," by Prof. Julian I. Lindsay of the University of Vermont.

Poe's work defined gravitation as attraction, which he calls the principle of the body, and electricity as repulsion of the principle of the soul. No other principles exist, says Poe. All are referable to one or the other of these two, which stand for the material and the spiritual principles of the universe.

"Discarding now the two equivocal terms,' 'to quote from 'Eureka,' "let us adopt the more definite expression, 'attraction' and 'repulsion.' The former is the body, the latter the soul; the one is the material, the other the spiritual principle of the universe. No other principles exist. All phenomena are referable to one, or to the other, or to both combined. MILITARY BALL DATES LIKELY TO BE CHANGED

Conflicting Activities May Cause Postponement of Annual Soldiers' Swing Sessions.

BLOCK TICKETS TO SELL FOR TWO DOLLARS

The dates for the Presbyterian college military ball dance series may be changed, due to the fact that there may be conflicting activities. The dates formerly set for the dances were April 8th and 9th.

The dances are to be held at the Clinton armory with "Hap" Gray and his "Collegians" furnishing the music. On Friday night preceding the military ball a moonlight parade and review will be staged on Johnson field.

The military ball will be a formal affair. The juniors and seniors will wear their white dress military uniforms and the freshmen and sophomores will wear their usual uniforms. The Saturday night affair will be informal.

Tickets for the two dances may be bought for two dollars. If not purchased before the series begins the script will be somewhat higher.

Alvin Chapman Talks To IRC On European Crisis

At the regular open meeting of the International Relations club on last Thursday night, Alvin Chapman talked on the present European crisis. At the conclusion of the talk there was an informal discussion on disarmament and its problems.

The general opinion of those present was that the United States, in order to stay at peace with the world, should refrain from saying that it will not fight a foreign war. It was also agreed that this nation should realize it cannot get along peacefully by remaining a nation neutral from all international activities, but must cooperate with other nations. By using reciprocity treaties, for example, the nation could avert war and probably be friendly to most major nations.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Wednesday, March 16.

Colored Choir At "Y" Meeting

A portion of the Bell Street (Negro) choir gave an interesting program in the college chapel last Friday evening at the weekly Y.M.C.A. meeting.

Some of the spirituals rendered were: "The Voice in the Old Village Choir," "Save Me," "Two Wings," and "Bunny Boy."

Another feature of the program was the dramatization of "Judgement."

The large attendance of students attests the interest they have in these unique programs.

Lions To Honor Walter A. Johnson

Annual Award of Local Club Goes To College Coach. "Honor Night" Meeting Soon.

Walter A. Johnson, director of athletics at Presbyterian college, was selected Friday evening at the meeting of the Clinton Lions club to receive the club's 1938 award as the city's outstanding citizen.

The award is made annually to a citizen of Clinton who, by his unselfish service to the community, merits the goodwill and admiration of the people of the city.

Johnson

The presentation will be made at an "honor night" ceremony of the club at an early date when Coach Johnson will be the guest of honor.

Johnson will be the third to receive the award. William P. Jacobs, president of Presbyterian college, was the first to receive it in 1936, and John H. Young was the recipient in 1937.

Johnson came to Clinton in 1915, as a young man just out of college, to assume the position as coach at the college. The college at that time had only a few students. Having only enough boys for one football team he had to scrimmage one end of the line against the other in practice. Athletic equipment was practically nonexistent. Today the college has teams in eight sports and an athletic plant second to no other college of its size. Johnson has labored day in and day out, through lean years and good, for the upbuilding of the athletic department at the college, consistently refusing to accept offers to go to larger schools. A few years ago Johnson field at the college was named in his honor. He will begin his twenty-third year at P. C. in September.

Last year the students of the University of South Carolina performed an unprecedented act when they presented a trophy to Johnson, a rival coach, in recognition of his contribution to clean athletics and sportsmanship in South Carolina.

In addition to his outstanding service at the college, Johnson has taken a leading part in civic affairs. Practically single-handed he succeeded in organizing the Clinton battery, coast artillery, South Carolina National Guard. He is the commanding officer. The company recently occupied its handsome new armory on South Broad street.

Johnson is a Rotarian, and a deacon in the First Presbyterian church. He married Miss Lilla Todd, of Laurens, and they have one daughter, Peggy, twelve years old.

CLASS OFFICERS AND STUDENT ORGANIZATION HEADS WILL BE CHOSEN IN ANNUAL ELECTIONS

Presidents for Student Body and "Y" To Be Elected.

Editors of The Collegian and The PaC-SaC To Be Chosen.

Class Officers Will Be Elected By Classmates.

By HUGH RUTLEDGE

Tomorrow the polls will remain open from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. in order that the students may vote for president of the student body and other officers and members of the student council. Also to be voted on will be officers of the Y.M.C.A., or the senior, junior, and sophomore classes. The editor, managing editor, and the business manager of the two publications, The Collegian and The PaC-SaC, will be selected in the elections.

In the election of the president of the student council, three men have been nominated. One will be eliminated and the two receiving the highest number of votes will run over in an election to be held at a later date. The one who places second in this election will automatically become vice-president of the student body.

Of four men nominated for junior councilman, three will be elected. The one receiving the highest number of votes will become secretary and treasurer of the student council. Two of the three nominees for sophomore councilman will be elected.

All students will vote in the elections for officers of the major organizations. However, the members of the various classes will vote for officers of their respective classes.

The Blue Hose dropped their game in the S. I. A. A. tournament to Murray, 37 to 24, in the second game of the tournament played in Bowling Green, Ky., Friday.

Murray got off to an early lead and increased it to 19 to 11 at the halfway mark. Burdette, McKeel and Magruder led off with successive field gials to give Murray at 6 to 0 lead, and McKeel made good a gratis shot after Cavin had been caught in the act of personal fouling. Pete Holcombe brought the large crowd to an uproar with a beautiful mid-court shot, and before they had stopped applauding he had found the range from the same spot again. Hurley and Bland

Executive Group Of AAC To Act On Jacobs Measure

W. P. Jacobs' Plan for Preservation of Private Colleges To Get Study At Washington Meet.

William P. Jacobs, president of Presbyterian college, will meet with the executive committee of the Association of American Colleges at a special meeting called in Washington by Dr. Guy E. Snavely, executive secretary of the association, to plan further work on the Jacobs plan for amendment of the revenue act for the salvation of the privately-owned institution.

Mr. Jacobs was official spokesman for the association in a hearing before the ways and means committee of the house of representatives on January 22, and since that time he has been working with the association in an effort to consolidate the entire field of private philanthropy on the amendment.

This plan calls for an amendment to the revenue act which will permit the formation of revocable trusts with the interest assigned to some philanthropic institution and exempt from income taxes.

It has been announced by Dr. Dudley Jones, head of the psychology department, that the morning chapel service at 11:00 a.m. 7:30, tomorrow night, Doctors Hugh H. Wyman and M. H. Wyman will address the male portion of the student body. The former is a graduate of P. C., and both doctors are widely known in the medical profession as urologists.

The co-eds will not be expected to attend these talks.

The Doctors Wyman will have private offices from two o'clock until six for the purpose of holding private conferences with the students. Several such conferences have been held

MAJOR CUMMINGS' SERVICE RECORD INCLUDES MANY STATIONS IN U. S. AND POSSESSIONS

By ALVIN CHAPMAN

Although Major A. H. Cummings was born just forty miles west of Reno, Nevada, in Truckee, California, he has never in all his travels had occasion to get any nearer. He is happily married to a charming wife and is the father of two boys and one girl.

Much of his boyhood was spent in the Sierras and near Lake Tahoe. Before reaching collegiate age, however, he moved to Oakland. He received his education in the public schools and then entered the University of California, but accepted a position as an accountant before graduating. He worked as an accountant until the World war came along. He entered the army as a lieutenant, fought in France, and remained with the army after the cessation of hostilities. We see, therefore, that he has served slightly over twenty years. His army career has sent him all over the United States and to Hawaii. He has served at Fort Niagara, N. Y., Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, Governor's Island, N. Y., Fort McPherson, Ga., Fort Benning, Ga., Fort Sam Houston, Texas, Fort Lewis, Wash., at Washington, D. C., and at The Presidio, San Francisco, Calif.

MAJOR CUMMINGS

While serving in Hawaii in 1924, Major Cummings succumbed to the tropics and the charm of Miss Celeste Lauve, a native of Beaumont, Texas. They were married in Honolulu.

The Major is quite fond of golf. One might find him polishing up his shots on one of these sunny afternoons. Golf is his principal means of recreation, and he says one might call it his hobby. He also likes gardening, but plans to wait until he is older before devoting all his talents to this. All sports interest him, but if he had to choose a favorite, swimming would get the call.

Reading takes up a good portion of his spare time, with history and current events being his favorites. He also likes music.

Although this is not Major Cummings' first residence in the South, we were delighted to find that he likes this section of the U. S., and praises it highly. His friendliness and genuine interest in the college and in civic affairs have won him many friends, who hope his residence in Clinton will be a long one.

The College Canteen—What Will Happen To It?

The members of the student body understand that the college canteen is a business organization with the purpose of serving the students fully, as any other similar organization. In order to satisfy its customers a business organization should have set hours for offering service and also should give prompt and efficient service.

The students who work in the canteen are very efficient and prompt. To date, there has been no criticism of the individual workers, but there have been numerous critical remarks against the irregular service rendered by the establishment as a whole. It is the wish of the students that they get satisfactory, full service for a reasonable period of time each day.

It was announced by the canteen officials early in the year that the establishment would remain open each day from nine o'clock until lunch; it would reopen after lunch and stay open the remainder of the afternoon until the evening meal; it would reopen immediately following supper and would not close until 10:30 P. M.

Several times this schedule was broken by the canteen officials and there was no complaint from the students. But as time went on it became increasingly obvious that these hours would not hold. Several time the canteen has been closed for a whole day, more often it has remained closed for the greater part of the day, usually in the morning when the students' demand for service is greater than at any other time.

A large number of students do not go to breakfast, but prefer to catch a few extra winks and depend on the canteen to serve them later in the morning. They go to the canteen only to find it closed, as on several occasions, and they immediately begin to criticize the officials severely. The student criticisms are unnecessary and can be prevented merely by observing the aim of every business organization, "We aim to please." If the canteen officials feel that the hours they have set are too long, they can cut them down and make an official announcement concerning the change before the student body.

The students do not criticize the hours, and would not object if they were shortened, but the principal reason for criticism is the fact that the hours are not regular, due to the fact that the canteen is closed so much of the time when it is supposed to the open. The students want to know what to expect.

It is deemed necessary that, no matter what schedule the canteen may adopt, it stay open during the scheduled hours, or else suffer severe criticism on the part of the students, which probably would result in the failure of the organization entirely.

How Harmless Are Pain Killers?

(Editor's Note: This editorial appeared in the Feb. 19 issue of The Colonnade, weekly student publication of the Georgia State College for Women in Milledgeville. We reprint it in view of the current legislative attempt to bring action against such commercial drug producers who consider the general public as "100,000,000 guinea pigs," as Paul De Kruif phrased it, in his book of the same name).

There can be no quarrel with the statement that our drug laws are criminally inadequate. We do not pretend to have hopes of having any effect on the passing of new drug legislation, but we would like to try to rouse from their apathy consumers who, by their apathy, are simply putting their own health in the hands of irresponsible manufacturers. Last year the Chemistry Club conducted a campaign against the use of drugs containing aminopyrine and a recent release from the Consumers Union confirms their statements concerning the danger of the use of these drugs. The situation becomes a matter of vital concern when we realize that every drugstore in the land now sells openly and without prescription so-called remedies which cause many deaths annually—and that our health depends upon our ability to discriminate against these harmful remedies.

In three years 1500 people have been killed by the use of so-called "remedies" containing aminopyrine, a drug which is a serious danger to the health and lives of those who are led to use it: Many remedies are sold, some of the best known and most prevalent on the campus being Amidol, Amytal Compound, Hexin, Lydia Pinkham's Tablets, Midol, and Neurodyne. It's a shock to read that, isn't it—that some of these "harmless" pain-killers are harmless to the extent that the drugs in them cause the disease of agranulocytosis which results in thousands of deaths annually.

The present laws of the Food and Drug Administration of the Federal Government do not have the necessary authority to stop the sale of these dangerous drugs, so naturally the responsibility devolves upon the individual, who surely should be interested enough in his own health not to want to lay himself wide open for a disease that more often than not ends in death.

And another thing—those nose drops that you use when you have a cold. Did you ever stop to consider just what you're buying when you get those nose-drops? Some of the most "harmless" remedies contain mineral oil which can cause deaths from pneumonia. Have you ever heard of Mistol Drops, Chloretone Inhalant, Rexall Nose Spray, Vicks Va-tro-nol, or Hill's Nose Drops? They're just a few of the offenders.

There's a chance, we hope, that if we introduce you to a few facts of life you may have something to do something about it—such as refraining from buying these so-called cures.

PARADE REST

CADET SERGEANT QUAITE JONES

Make-up drill was held for the first time this year last Wednesday afternoon with almost enough boys taking part to form a platoon. If this columnist remembers correctly, it was rather warm Wednesday and, therefore, the boys taking part couldn't very well have enjoyed themselves. Maybe they have learned their lesson. Anyway, why should life all labor be?

No doubt most of you have noticed the improvement being made in the armory. This is just another added attraction for the spring inspector, who always notices small things like that. From all reports the work has just begun and by the time the inspector arrives it will be almost as good as new. Sounds good—now for the proof.

Last week the freshmen for the first time had the opportunity of drilling a squad. Although there were a few shaky knees and changing voices, the first-year men proved themselves capable of handling a squad almost like veterans. Maybe they will be able to sympathize with their corporals in the future. The sophomores for the first time had the golden and long-awaited opportunity of drilling a platoon. One or two seemed to know what it was all about, but most of them seemed to be in a daze. Don't worry, boys, you will be given another chance, and maybe this time it will be easier.

It looks as if the day has come and gone when the "gold bricks," and those boys who happened to be slick enough to slip out of drill and go back to their rooms and catch an extra half hour of sleep while the rest of the army does the work. From now on all men failing out for sick call will be marched down to the infirmary by the officer of the day. All those marked "duty" will remain at the infirmary until all have been examined, when they will be escorted by the orderly to their respective companies and the officer of the day. Hard luck.

Yours truly has really coolly-solid gone in for writing poemtry (?). This type of poetry is inspired neither by Shapespeare nor Poe. But you may realize that people's brains usually become deranged after a certain length of time, especially college students' brain—and you will search, in vain, for a college newspaper columnist who is mentally up to par. If you don't believe it, just try writing one once a week. You can't imagine how often the weeks roll off unless you are writing a column for a paper.

Now for the poemtry:

Baseball Practice Well Under Way

SPORTS FOLIO

By JAMES HAFLEY

Coach Lonnie McMillian and his blue-clad cagers left Thursday morning for the blue grass country of "ole" Kentucky where the gallant Hose lads were to tackle Murray college in the S. I. A. A. invitation basketball tournament. At this writing we know not how the boys fared in the tournament—but we're wishing them luck just the same. Bowling Green, scene of the skirmishes, is really a basketball town and the tournament should be packed with thrills and excitement. Kentucky is the land of fast horses and beautiful women (or vice-versa).

It might be interesting to point out how our freshman basketball team stacked up in the state competition this year, as the boys did a fine piece of work and should furnish capable men to replace such varsity stalwarts as Ralph Waldrep, Frank Johnston, and Cavin, who will be lost through graduation. The Presbyterian Anklets boast a splendid record for the season just passed, having won 13 games out of 16. A total of 706 points were piled up by the P. C. frosh as against 485 for the opposition. Meisky, Fleischmann, and Coleman were shining lights in the scoring column, racking up 156, 135, and 107 points, respectively. Much credit is due Coach Chick Galloway, who took the reins of basketball coaching in his hands for the first time and moulded a winning combinaton that was beaten only by the Clemson and Furman rat teams.

Last Monday afternoon marked the end of spring football practice, and a game between the "whites" and the "reds" on Johnson field created much excitement and enthusiasm. The "whites" managed to duck the "reds," 33-0, in a game that featured long jaunts by Meisky, Red Lawrence, and June Moore, brilliant passcatching by J. C. Coleman and Be Moore, and powerful offensive play by Boswell, Todd, Flanders, and Fraser. All in all, we don't see any reason why next year's varsity shouldn't go undefeated, led by Captain Boswell, a true leader in the full sense of the word, with the "stuff" that it takes to make a football team (Just wait till Lillie sees that, "Cotton").

The intramural basketball tournament, which will be completed here tonight, has been one of the fastest and most interesting (to watch) that we have seen here in three years. The absence of Coaches Galloway and McMillian, President Jacobs, and Professor Boyd from the faculty lineup probably averted what might have been a faculty champ team. However, Laurens-Smyth found out that it was no pushover to down the combination that was used. An all-campus team, as selected by Sports Folio, should include the following:

Name	Team	Position
Blackwell	Alpha Lambda Tau	Forward
Hipp	Alpha Lambda Tau	Forward
Cooper	Alumni-Spencer	Center
Harper	Pi Kappa Alpha	Guard
Sutton	Pi Kappa Phi	Guard

Honorable mention: Centers, Broughton and Boswell; forwards, Osman, Coach Johnson and B. Talbot; guards, Richardson, P. M. Clement and Thomason.

"Chick's" Defending Champs Look Good

Candidates Rounding Into Shape Fast. Pitching and Hitting To Be Good, Galloway Says.

C. E. "Chick" Galloway, P. C. baseball coach, last week made the initial call to baseball candidates. They reported on Tuesday afternoon for the first outside practice of the spring. Many likely-looking candidates reported along with the group of experienced men.

After a week of outside practice, with batting and fielding being stressed, the candidates are rapidly rounding into shape and loosening up their arms and legs for intensive practice which will begin next week.

Galloway

Although it is a little early in the season, Galloway made several statements concerning the outlook for the coming season. He said, "Well, it is rather early to make predictions, but I feel sure that we are going to have a fine team. The boys have showed interest in the sport all through the winter and early spring and many of them have worked out two and three time a week for the whole winter in preparation for this season. They have plenty of spirit and pep and look as if they will ably defend the state crown, or give plenty of teams trouble in trying to retain it.

"The pitchers look very good. We have five men who are going to show plenty of stuff this spring. Most of them have been working out all winter and have developed rapidly. With the pitching burden on the shoulders of Christian, DuBose, McGregor, McCormick and Commander, I feel sure they will do their part to win games.

"The team will be a better hitting one. I have several sophomores and new men who can handle the old stick skillfully and can really sock that old apple. The fielding we had last year will be hard to beat, but I believe the team this year will field just as well as the '37 champs."

Footballers End Spring Practice

P. C.'s 1938 football squad climaxed a successful spring practice session last Monday with an exciting and well-played game on Johnson field. The "whites" took the "reds" through the mill by a 33-0 score, but as several men played for both teams, the score doesn't have any special significance.

Meisky opened the scoring early in the first quarter by slipping off tackle for three yards. J. C. Coleman had previously blocked Charlie Thompson's kick to place the ball deep in red territory. The elusive Meisky also threw three touchdown passes, two to Be Moore who made spectacular catches, and one to Red Lawrence, who handled it with the greatest ease. June Moore bucked over for the fifth white touchdown after a 60-yard sustained drive. Coleman placekicked two conversions and Lawrence booted one cleanly between the uprights.

Charlie Thompson's punts were good for 50 or 60 yards. Captain Boswell at tackle, Billy Kee at center, Hood Strain, Powell Fraser, and Walt Todd at guards, and Be Moore, Tough Embler, Coleman, and Lawrence at ends, all played hard, consistent football. The guards were especially consistent, being practically impregnable on defense.

The new backfield combination of Meisky and June Moore is likely to become sensational.

Baby Sox Cagemen Have High Average

The P. C. freshman basketball team recently completed a sensational season. Playing 16 games, the frosh won 13, losing two of the other three by only small margins. "Mike" Meisky led the Anklet scoring with a total of 156 points, Fleischmann was second with 136, and Coleman took third place with 107.

Scoring statistics have been compiled and the composite scoring follows:

	FG	FT	TP
Meisky	60	36	156
Fleischmann	61	13	135
Coleman	47	13	107

PHIS AND TAUS MEET IN FINALE

Winner of Tonight's Game Will Be Intramural Champs.

Spencer-Alumni Team Will Meet Smyth-Laurens Five for the Third Honors.

The intramural basketball teams of the campus closed a fast and furious week of play last Thursday night with the Pi Kappa Phi team winner over the Spencer-Alumni aggregation, and the Alpha Lambda Tau quint victorious over the Smyth-Laurens five in the semi-final round of the annual tournament.

Pi Kappa Phi and Alpha Lambda Tau will meet tonight for the intramural crown. Both teams click well and show plenty of ability and fight.

The week was full of good basketball and plenty of comedy as well. The real "comedy of errors," however, was the game between the faculty team and the Laurens-Smyth aggregation. This was the feature game of the week. The Laurens-Smyth team emerged victorious over the iron men of the faculty by the score of 25-7. The antics of Coach Johnson, John Holland Hunter nad Turk Osman, and the shooting of Woodward and Osman featured for the FFF (Faculty Floor Five). Fleming, with 10 points, and Power, with 8, featured for the Laurens-Smyth quint.

In the semi-finals on Thursday night the ALT quint downed the Laurens-Smyth five by the score of 19-10. Hipp and Turner led the ALT scorers with 6 points each, while Lawrence and Fleming led the Laurens-Smyth five with 3 points each.

The other semi-final game saw the Pi Kappa Phi quintet land on the long end of a 24-14 score, with the Spencer-Alumni five going down in defeat. Curly Clements led the Phi's with 11 points, followed by Broughton, who rolled up 7 points. Cooper and Cole led the scoring for Spencer-Alumni with 6 and 4 points, respectively.

On Wednesday night, in a preliminary game of the tournament, the Spencer-Alumni five was victorious over the Pi K. A. team by the score of 25-14. Cole and Stubbs scored 7 and 6 points, respectively, for the dormitory team, while Harper amassed a total of 10 points to lead the frat team.

The fast ALT cagers defeated the fighting Beta Kappa team, 20-6, in another tournament preliminary game. Penland, displaying skill and comedy, scored a total of 8 points for the ALT's, while Gibbes was responsible for 4 of the 6 points scored by the Beta Kappas.

In the prelims on Tuesday night the Pi Kappa Phi quint emerged victors over the scrappy five representing Kappa Alpha, by the score of 21 to 17. Johnny Hammel led the Phi's scoring with 10 points, while Richardson featured for the KA's, amassing a total of 8 points.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

By MILTON NORTON

We of The Blue Stocking staff have heard a great deal of talk among the students as to the possibility and outcome of the eventual addition of a girls' dormitory to the present campus set-up. Of course, we do not know that the administration has ever seriously considered the idea, the authorities having already announced that an additional building will contain administration offices and will house the present library collection. However, we do not believe our conceptions are entirely improbable when we state that the P. C. of the future might indeed have ample dormitories for co-eds.

This week, we asked the boys to consider such an addition to the campus, and in putting the question to them, asked:

"What do you think of P. C.'s building a girls' dormitory? Consider what restrictions might be placed on the boys as a result."

H. P. SKINNER laid aside his physics to comment: "Since it would certainly be an added attraction, I personally think that it would be a good idea and would raise the standard of the school. As to restrictions, such an addition probably would cause a few to be made, but I do not think they would take away any of the privileges which we now enjoy."

BOB BLACK continued puffing away at his pipe while he remarked: "I see no point in building a girls' dormitory at present because of our limited number of co-eds. I think, however, that within a few years it probably will be done. It would, of course, call for some restrictions, but such a step would certainly open up new fields for development."

"RICH" DuBOSE continued taking his shower and stated: "I think it would be a very good idea since it would make campus activities more interesting, and would give all the boys a place to put their dates for the dances. Naturally, it would call for some restrictions, but I do not think they would be very rigid."

HUGH RUTLEDGE sat up in bed to remark: "I would prefer to see another boys' dormitory built, and think this should be done first, but not with the view of disposing of the present co-eds. I think regulations would have to be more rigidly enforced than they are now."

here on the subject of sexual hygiene. The conferences will be advantageous and helpful to the students and they are advised by Dr. Jones to make arrangements to talk to these physicians.

Dr. Jones also announced that Miss Norma Hallett, psychologist at the State Training school, will address the class in abnormal psychology 108, on Wednesday, March 9, at the regular meeting of the class. She will be accompanied by a subject whom she will use for demonstration purposes to show the earlier and modern methods of testing. One of the purposes of this talk will be to prove that psychological tests by themselves will not show an adequate picture of the personality. Miss Hallett will appear at a later time to address the class on another subject, Dr. Jones stated.

Dr. Jones also said other psychologists will appear before the class during the next two weeks.

added a pair of free tosses and Holden and Waldrep found the range from no-man's land. The half ended shortly afterwards with the "Bruds" leading by 19-11.

Murray used a double pivot with Magruder and McKeel in the pivot positions. The former is 6:6 and the latter 6:4. Holden and Holcombe, along with Cavin, did a fine job in holding these two young giants to a total of 17 tallies, combined pointage. Waldrep, Holden and Holcombe were the big guns for the Blue Hose, tallying 7, 6, and 5 points, respectively, to lead the scoring for the Hosemen.

Professor Sturgeon, Coaches McMillian and Johnson accompanied the team and they, along with members of the team, expressed a desire to return again next year if possible, so hospitably were they treated by the people of the blue grass region.

This game ended the season for the Hose, with nine wins and as many defeats.

The presence of Captain Giles Batchelor was missed considerably. The star forward went home on account of an illness.

C., will deliver the baccalaureate sermon at the college's commencement exercises at the morning service in the First Presbyterian church, on May 29, and Samuel S. Howie, director of public relations at Southwestern Presbyterian university, Memphis, Tenn., will deliver the Y. M. C. A. address at the night service on the same day.

Mr. Marshall, two years ago, conducted a series of religious services at the college and was enthusiastically received by the students. At that time he was pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church, Atlanta, Ga. He is one of the leading young ministers of the South.

Mr. Howie, who has served as director of public relations at Southwestern for a number of years, has been directly connected with religious work among students in connection with the Y.M.C.A.

Dr. M. H. Wyman Talks On Health

Dr. M. H. Wyman and R. G. Bell of Columbia, delivering addresses on personal hygiene to the male members of the student body last Tuesday, stressed the importance of personal cleanliness as protection against the dread venereal diseases that are so prevalent today.

Dr. Wyman, prominent Columbia physician, was brought to the campus at the request of Dr. Dudley Jones, head of the college psychology department, and personal adviser to students. Dr. Wyman talked in a frank and informal manner from the physician's point of view of the cause, effect, cure and especially the prevention of venereal diseases.

Mr. Bell, who holds the position as personal adviser at the state university, has interviewed hundreds of students. He cited some interesting cases from his conferences with students.

In addition to their discussion of the problems of personal hygience, Dr. Wyman and Mr. Bell spent the afternoon in conferences.

Dr. Wyman will return at an early date for an evening address during which he will illustrate his address by means of motion pictures.

Johnston Accepted At Duke Medical

The administration received news last Friday that Frank R. Johnston, F. C. senior, of Greer, and an outstanding student in the pre-medical department, had been one of the 70 applicants accepted out of the 700 applying for admission to the Duke University school of medicine.

Johnston has made an excellent record here, being president of Blue Key, student leadership fraternity, vice-president of the student body and the Y.M.C.A., a member of Chi Beta Phi, national scientific fraternity, and an assistant in the chemistry department.

When he enters the Duke school of medicine next fall, Johnston will be one of the 7,000 outstanding pre-medical students lucky enough to be accepted from the 15,00 who annually apply for admission to the nation's medical schools.

SIGMA KAPPA ALPHA ELECTS PRESIDENT; MEMBERS ADDED

Dr. Jamison To Make Founder's Day Address

Baptist Orphanage Head Was Friend of Dr. Jacobs.

SERVICE AT 11:45 TUESDAY

Dr. A. T. Jamison, superintendent of Connie Maxwell, Baptist orphanage, Greenwood, will deliver the principal address at a special chapel program tomorrow morning honoring the anniversary of the birth of Rev. William Plumer Jacobs, D.D., LL.D., founder of the college.

Dr. Jamison was a very close friend of Dr. Jacobs. Upon entering the work as head of the Greenwood institution he sought the advice and assistance of Dr. Jacobs, who 25 years earlier had founded Thornwell orphanage in Clinton.

A few years ago Dr. Jamison delivered an address on this same occasion in which he revealed an intimate knowledge of the inspired Christian gentleman who devoted 42 years of his life to Thornwell orphanage and founded Presbyterian college of which his grandson is president.

Many out-of-town visitors and other friends who knew Dr. Jacobs will be present at the annual service in his honor.

Converse Paper Seeks Information

The Blue Stocking today received several hundred mimeographed ballot sheets sent by The Parley Voo, Converse college weekly paper, Spartanburg, in which the fair ladies wish to determine what it is about them that the college man likes and dislikes. The student body will be asked to vote on this Wednesday along with the peace poll to be held at the same time. The results will be published in The Blue Stocking and a copy sent the Converse paper.

C. H. McLeod Heads Scholastic Frat. Conrad Is Vice-President, Johnson, Sec.-Treas

DEAN BROWN ANNOUNCES FOUR NEW MEMBERS

At a recent meeting of Sigma Kappa Alpha, honorary scholastic fraternity, the organization elected Cliff H. McLeod, of Ocala, Fla., president; Clyde Conrad, Clinton, vice-president, and E. A. Johnson, Columbus, Ga., secretary-treasurer. Two seniors and two juniors were added to the membership, at the suggestion of the faculty.

The seniors chosen were R. F. Hutchinson, Griffin, Ga., and N. O. Creech, Moultrie, Ga. As published in a recent announcement of the dean's list, Hutchinson's average was 3.45. He will graduate in June after three year's work, having attended summer school both here and at the University of North Carolina. Creech has an average of 2.70, and is an outstanding member of the senior class.

The juniors chosen were Laura Fleming, Laurens, who average of 3.80 led the dean's list, and C. W. McCully, Sharon, whose average was 2.53. Miss Fleming received the Pi Kappa Phi scholarship cup given to the student in the freshman class having the highest average. She also led the sophomore class in scholarship last year. McCully, besides being an outstanding student, is a letter man in track and an advanced corps man in the R.O.T.C.

All elections to the fraternity are made by the faculty and only those students whose ratio of quality points to semester hours is 2.5, and who have been in college at least one and one-half years are eligible. This last rule prevented J. C. Jarrard, a transfer from Presbyterian Junior college, from being eligible for membership. He will be voted on next year.

The scholastic fraternity will hold its annual banquet about the middle of April, Dean Marshall W. Brown announced today. The faculty, students on the dean's list, and students whose record for the first semester was 2.5 will receive invitations to the banquet.

Editor Urges All Students To Vote Views On National Peace Policy

Too often have college seniors been told, "You are the leaders of tomorrow." Yet despite its triteness, the phrase expresses a reality. College graduates are the leaders of their generations, and fifteen years out of college they are playing a major part in determining the policies of the nation.

As students, these prospective future leaders must begin the process of training their minds on questions of vital national importance, of moulding the opinions which will guide them in formulating policies as citizens.

The Brown Daily Herald, newspaper of Brown university, Providence, R. I., in a survey of student opinion, offers an opportunity for the students of Presbyterian college and the entire nation to declare their beliefs on five questions of foremost importance of international relations today. All of them bring clearly to the fore the necessity for sound, well-seasoned undergraduate opinion which will provide a background for development of a constructive American program for peace.

The Far East threatens to become the storm center of a second world war, Europe is again in turmoil, Russia, the United States, Great Britain and France are faced with the necessity of deciding once and for all their policy in China, Europe and the Pacific. Shall they join to suppress aggression, by force if necessary? Shall the United States withdraw from China? Shall France and Great Britain intercede for Czechoslovakia? What shall our policy be?

Do the students themselves desire maintenance or enlargement of the R. O. T. C., or do they wish it to be curtailed? What do we think of our naval and military program? What action shall we take in Europe in an attempt to maintain peace? Will isolation prevent us from being involved in war, or will we inevitably be drawn in?

And, another vital issue: In what sort of war will students be willing to fight? Again a well-worn expression, "It is the youth of a country that fights its wars." Under what conditions will we be willing to fight —or shall we refuse our support in any war?

Statistics are valuable information. The expressed beiefs of over a million college students are a tremendous force in support of those policies favored by youth. The effectiveness of the survey depends entirely upon its magnitude.

The Blue Stocking offers you this opportunity to think — and having thought, let the world know your answers. Vote Wednesday when you are handed the mimeographed sheet

The American College Yearbook, featuring "who's who among college students," which would have carried the names of several P. C. men, will not be published this year, according to an announcement received by Dean Marshall W. Brown from the editor of the publication, "due to insufficient support on the part of colleges and universities," said Editor Fry.

NEW COUNCIL TO TAKE OFFICE IN THE MORNING

POPE TO EDIT PAC-SAC, CHAPMAN, COLLEGIAN

BLACK NAMED "Y" HEAD IN ELECTION TUESDAY

Cornelius B. Holcombe, of Charleston, was elected president of the Presbyterian college student body last Tuesday, defeating Morris R. Ritch, of Charlotte, N. C., in a series of elections which were reported to be extremely close. In addition to the president and vice-president, fourteen other students offices were filled by these general elections.

Holcombe is a member of the junior class and served as one of the class council representatives for the last year. He is an outstanding athlete, being a member of the varsity football team and alternate captain for 1938, and a member of the basketball team. He is the highest ranking non-commissioned officer in the R.O.T.C. and socially is a member of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity. He will take office tomorrow following the administration of the oath of office by retiring president Joe Commander, of Florence.

Vice-President Ritch has served on the council since his freshman year. He was president of the freshman class and is retiring president of the junior class. He is a two-letter man in football and a member of the track team, and is a first sergeant in the R.O.T.C. unit.

Huiet Paul, rising junior, of Charleston, was elected secretary-treasurer of the council. He has served on the student council since his freshman year.

Other councilmen elected were as follows: Senior, Virgil St. John; junior, M. R. Griffin, H. M. Rutledge; sophomore, H. Y. McSween, Brooks Sheldon.

Wendell E. Pope, junior, from Attapulgus, Ga., will edit the 1939 edition of the Pat Sac, while Alton Chapman, junior from Anderson, will edit The Collegian next year. Both men have gained experience in their fields while at the college that fits them well for their respective offices.

Robert Black, a junior from York, was chosen president of the Young Men's Christian association, and will take office in April, succeeding Wandell Williams, of Chattanooga, Tenn. Experience as president of the First Presbyterian Church Christian Endeavor and vice-president of the South Carolina Presbytery Young People's league make him well-fitted to head this organization. Black told a reporter for The Blue Stocking that he would announce his cabinet next week.

Special Schedule

Dean Marshall W. Brown announced today that a special schedule would be arranged for Tuesday.

The schedule will allow a full hour at the daily chapel service in observance of Founder's day, during which the principal address will be made by Dr. A. T. Jamison, superintendent of Connie Maxwell orphanage, Greenwood.

Conditions of Honor

A very successful man in a responsible professional position once gave us some good advice about the honor which is supposed to be attached to various positions of trust our fellow men see fit to bestow upon us. This is what he said: "The honor which comes to a man in a responsible position of trust among his fellows comes not with the bestowal of that trust, but with the successful fulfillment of it."

You men who have just been placed in responsible positions in the religious, administrative and literary branches of our student government have been entrusted with these places by a student body that believes in your ability to hold these offices, or else you would not have been chosen. That is the beauty of democratic government.

Despite the howl from all sides in this transitory political world of today, that democracy is a thing of the past, or is fast becoming that way, we prefer its slow rate of legislative accomplishment to the perilous jui jitsui of the fast-moving dictatorships. Their leaders are easily and quickly enough gotten into office, but getting them out when they prove unpopular (and that is putting it mildly) is quite another thing.

To the new president of the student body and his seven fellow councilmen, we offer a factual reminder (which they fully realize now, but will become a dim reality as time goes by). That fact is this, they hold a position in college student government that is in many ways comparable to the United States Supreme Court with its chief justice and his eight associates. This is what we mean. Although an accused student has a final appeal to the student body, it was shown very forcibly in an important case in 1936 that the student body will in most cases uphold the decision of the men in whose hands their government is entrusted. So we say to you again, if you would acquire the honor and respect that follows success in your position, you must remember the words of Pope, who said:

"Honor and shame from no condition rise.
"Act well your part; there the honor lies."

Therefore, if you fearlessly and conscientiously do your duty, this publication will be behind you to commend and applaud. We wish you success and the eventual acquirement of the great honor which will be your rightful due.

To the president of the Y. M. C. A., we suggest first of all that he heed the few words of the two authorities we quoted on the acquiring of honor. You have a difficult road to follow, and at every turn there will be a Scylla of sharp criticism on one side of the way and a Chrybdus of doubt on the other. Remember this when faced with this double dilemma. We again offer the advice of an authority. The Y. M .C. A. is primarily a Christian organization with all that that stands for. You are a gentleman with all that that stands for. Therefore, remember at all times that "a Christian is God Almighty's gentleman." Select your cabinet with this in mind and direct the activities of your organization, never forgetting it; then success and honor will be yours for a job well done.

Now to the editors of The PaC-SaC and The Collegian, we offer the support of this publication in two ways. First in an editorial backing, and second, in any service that the editor and the staff can render in a cooperative manner. We have a direct kinship, therefore why not share the benefits and privileges of such kinship to the betterment of each.

We all have our jobs to do in the year to come, and there is one last fact that applies to every new student officer, from the president to the cub reporter.

We should remember that a record of what we are doing and will accomplish will be kept for future P. C. men to read and judge us by, in our publications. This record will influence to a far greater extent than we now realize the future of our alma mater. P. C. is moving forward all the time, but we must necessarily set the pace. We must continue to look forward. We must continue to predict the future greatness of this college, for somewhere it is also written, "That which one most foretells soonest comes to pass."

PARADE REST

— By —
CADET SERGEANT QUAITE JONES

The rays of the early morning sun descend upon the companies as they drill, casting the shadow of a sabre upon each one of company captains. An old proverb says, "Ambition is the soldier's virtue," and the captains are excellently proving this statement. As the end of the year for the seniors approaches interest becomes greater, and it is only a short time before we will know the outcome.

For the past two or three weeks the juniors have been studying the theoretical side of practical warfare; but last Friday morning they came face to face with the real enemy. You will have to ask them how they came out, for only they can tell you. Instead of saying, "to those who are about to die, we salute you," may we say, "to those who have been shot, we salute you."

As the date of the military ball draws near, the staff is considering plans for a field day which will be an unprecedented feature of that week-end. Present plans include an award to be given to the captain and his company having the highest score at the end of the day's competition. Such a plan would not only stimulate interest in the corps but also be added color to an event which is enjoyed annually by many out-of-town visitors.

While hitch-hiking the past week-end, we heard the following story. An old army captain was given as his assistant a young lieutenant just out of West Point. The captain explained to him that they would do their work on a fifty-fifty basis. "I have done it for the past fifteen years," he said, "and you can do it for the next fifteen."

From all reports, we have a bunch of sharp-shooters in the freshman class. They have been studying rifle marksmanship and have shown up exceptionally well in the work. There may be something in the remarks of a very successful ex-army corps cadet who said that, as a freshman one the rifle range, he always improved his score by mentally framing the bull's-eye between the angles of two corporal's stripes, which represented the first goal of his military ambition.

The Absent-Minded Prof

The prof walked slowly and thoughtlessly (notice that word) down the street. One by one he picked up his feet and laid them down (also one by one). A car approached, pulling up to the curb near the prof. A bald head was thrust from the window, landing on the sidewalk—pardon me, that's the wrong story. As I was saying—a bald head was thrust from the window and a pair of eyes looked at the prof inquiringly. The prof returned the look in ditto style and walked on.

"Hey, you!" the bald head thruster-outer called.

"Yes?" said the prof.

"C'mere."

"Yes?"

"Can you tell me where Professor Loghead lives?"

"Yes."

"Well . . . where?"

"Yes—I mean — uh — well, do you see the third house on the right over there?"

"Sure."

"Well, that's not it. Wait a minute—whose house are you looking for?"

"Professor Loghead's."

"Oh, yes! Well, you go down two blocks and turn to the left and you won't get there, but if you go down one block and turn to the right, go down two blocks and turn to the left you'll find the house on the—Whoa—whose house now?"

"Professor Loghead's," the B. H. T. O. shouted.

"Yes—I remember. But he isn't at home now."

"How do you know?" asked the disgusted bald head thruster-outer.

"Because I'm Professor Loghead."

The man fainted. The prof walked thoughtlessly on.

Well, I was on the sixth string—playing fullback. We were playing Pittsburgh. We held them to 86 points the first half—pretty good for us. By the middle of the third quarter they had knocked out about half our men and the coach was having to use his third stringers. Our third string fullback looked pretty good the first three plays but Pitt evidently thought the same thing, 'cause you should have seen him on that fourth play. We had to get his parents to identify him. The fourth string fullback ran into the waterboy on the way out to report to the referee and was fatally injured. I was getting nervous. INTRAMURALS

In one of the classiest, flashiest, smoothest intramural basketball tournaments ever conducted here under the capable auspices of the Blue Key organization, a fraternity five once more emerged victor. The tournament attracted much attention from all fronts and was declared ultra-successful by all. The basketball champs have been crowned, but the intramural program is just getting under way; for there is still swimming, baseball, and last, but by no means least, TENNIS (goody!) The coveted intramural trophy will be presented at the end of the year to the fraternity or organization amassing the most points in all four of the sports and all indications point to a tight race to the finish!

BASEBALL TALK

The proficiency and effectiveness with which Coach Chick Galloway can develop a capable crew of moundmen out of the comparatively inexperienced material with which he has at his disposal this year will probably determine the fate of the Calvinist baseball club which last year annexed top state laurels to its achievements. The ex-Philadelphia Athletics star has done that before and the problem should not produce unsolvable complexities now. You will remember the inimitable Lefty Suggs who last year, pitched a no-hitter against Furman, and Coon Weldon, who whiffed 19 batters of the same team. Weldon, by the way, now holds the state strike-out record formerly held by Flint Rhem, ex-Clemson twirler. These marks are something for this year's pitching staff to shoot at, and we believe they can come through in great fashion. Watch the 1938 Hosemen go!

In RETROSPECT

Tennis practice will begin here soon, with Coach Bill Lufler of Atlanta and Miami at the helm . . . Probabilities are that P. C., Erskine, and Clemson will tie up in a three-way pennant chase for the state baseball crown this year . . . Coach Jakie Todd really seems to have something over Due West way . . . The noble art of wrestling is fast becoming a major sport up at Wake Forest . . . Had the pleasure and satisfaction of seeing Mickey Cochran, Eldon Auker, Hank Greenberg, and others down at the Detroit Tigers' spring training camp in Lakeland, Fla., last week-end; Mickey says nothing can stop them this season, with Rudy York's power at the plate and Auker's invincible right arm . . . Watch out for those Yankees, though, Mickey, they love to repeat . . . State records should fall right and left this year with such powerful stars as will appear on South Carolina cinders during what promises to be a whiz-bang 1938 season.

HARDWOOD ROUND-UP

— By —
BILL McLAURIN

With the playing of the game in the S.I.A.A. tournament with Murray, the Blue Hose closed their basketball season with eight wins and nine defeats. This also marked the close of the careers of Ralph Waldrep, J. C. Cavin and Frank Johnston, who will graduate this spring. All three have enjoyed consistent ball for four years. Waldrep being captain of the 1937 edition and the leading scorer of this year's quint. Cavin and Johnston played steady alert games the time they were in the lineup. Their presence will be missed when "Lonnie Mac" starts to mold a hardwood outfit next fall.

Opening with a tough foe in the form of the Bengal Tiger who roars up Clemson way, the Hose came through a tough schedule in a very creditable manner. Every school in the state turned out their best teams in a number of years, and the race was hotly contested with P. C.'s boys always looming as a threat.

The highest single score registered by the McMillanmen was 37 points against the College of Charleston Maroons as Batchelor, Holden and Waldrep tore the nets in Leroy Springs gym to shreds. The Citadel's Bulldogs tallied 44 points in the Hose's final state game to run up the highest one-game score against the P. C. boys.

Two games were lost by the slim margin of one point and still another by two points. One game was won by one point and the remainder were hotly contested—the boys in blue being nosed out in the last few minutes of play in five different encounters.

Not including the two mid games at the first of the year, the Blue Stockings scored 513 points against 553 for their opponents. Waldrep, with 122 points, was the team's leading scorer. Holden, with 1.50, was the second in the scoring column, and Pete Holcombe took third honors with a total of 105 points. Holcombe was mentioned for all-state by several writers and was selected by John Rowland, veteran referee and player from Columbia and a member of the famous Athens, Texas, high school team

TRACKMEN ARE HARD AT WORK FOR OPENER WITH GAMECOCKS

PROSPECTS LOOK GOOD AFTER PRELIMINARIES.

The track squad enters its fifth week of practice this week with the afternoon drills consisting mainly of calisthenics, wind-sprints, and laps. The sprinters and middle-distance runners, however, will begin time trials this week and the weight men are beginning to get considerable distance in their heaves.

Cole and Dennard are expecting a big year in the 100- and 220-yard dashes, aided by Joe Hollis and Charlie Thompson, who are liable to prove their worth as speed merchants. The veteran Deke Reynolds is the only hurdler who has shown any real ability at timber-topping thus far, but several other jump artists are expected to put in an early appearance. Reynolds is still bothered by a bad ankle from football, but it's getting stronger every day and he expects to start time trials this week.

The best prospect in the middle distances is "Red" Rawls, a sophomore, who performed so well last year on the frosh team. Buchan, Terrel, and Huntley will form a trio in the two-mile which will be hard to beat. Coach Lonnie McMillian is hoping for a good 440-man, and at present Dean Power is the best-looking candidate in that field.

The weights will be ably taken care of by Captain Macon Hipp, Al McSween, Joe Hollis, Mac Wicker, and Bonnell Jarrard. Yank Beeman, Malcolm Hemphill, Bill McSween, and Billy Kee have been pushing up into the stratosphere in the pole vault division.

In all probability, Presbyterian college will have one of its best track seasons in recent years. J. B. Jacobs and Walt Williams are the only men not returning from last year's squad which lost only dual meet in the state. The 1938 curtain-raiser will be a meet with Carolina March 24 here on Johnson field.

Pi Kappa Phi Wins Title From ALT

Pi Kappa Phi won the intramural basketball tournament from the Alpha Lambda Tau boys, defending champions, Thursday afternoon, 28 to 14, in a hard-fought game.

Getting off to a fast start the Phis rolled up a comfortable lead before the Taus could get started, but the latter put on a rally and came within two points of the Phi boys, and a few minutes before the half ended the Phis were leading by 12 to 10. Blackwell shot a long one to tie the score as the half ended. Broughton, elongated center of the Phis, scored eight of his teams points. Penland and Hipp scored eight of the Taus' points.

The Phis set up a stone wall defense the second half and the defending champions were held to a single field goal. Hammel started firing away at the basket during this period and rang up a total of nine points for second scoring honors. Top honors were carried off by Broughton, who tallied 12 points, although he was held to four points during the second half by Hipp. Penland and Hipp led the A. L. T. boys with four points each.

The tournament was one of the most successful ever staged and much credit is due the Blue Key boys under the direction of Frank Johnston for making it a success.

Competition Keen For "Chick's" Team

Competition for positions on P. C.'s 1938 baseball team appears to be stiff. For the past week Coach Chick Galloway has been putting his hustling candidates through intensive practice grinds in preparation for a hard schedule which has been arranged for last year's state champs.

Workouts thus far have not been of a strenuous nature, but have included drills in such fundamentals as base running, bunting, infield practice, and fly-snagging by the outfielders. Several men are working hard to secure places on the regular pitching staff which at present is in a rather weak condition, due to the graduation last year of Lefty Suggs and Coon Weldon. However, if Joe Commander, Julius McGregor, Dubose, McCormick, Christian, and several other moundmen come through with the ability to deliver the goods as is expected, the Hosemen should develop into a diamond crew of state championship proportions. The infield will be intact with the exception of shortstop where a newcomer, Mac Reid, will perform. In the outfield, Clements, Erwin ,and Folley will see much service. The latter will also play much at the initial sack.

The regular season will get under way April 4 with Carolina, but it is probable that several games with mill teams will be played sometime within the next two weeks.

Ministerial Club Selects Dr. Elliott

Names Atlanta Minister As Honory Member From Georgia Synod for 1938.

The Ministerial club announced today that the Rev. W. N. Elliott, D.D., pastor of Druid Hills Presbyterian church, Atlanta, Ga., has been elected to honorary lifetime membership in the club.

Dr. Elliott was selected by the club as its honorary member to be elected in 1938 from the Presbyterian Synod of Georgia after discussion and consideration of prominent ministers of the state.

Dr. Elliott will speak at the annual banquet of the club, sometime in the near future, at which time he will be presented his certificate of membership.

He was selected in accordance with the constitution of the club which provides that one honorary member shall be elected each year from the ministry of the state of Georgia. The selection is based on the outstanding work he has accomplished. Dr. Elliott was selected on the basis of the rapid progress he has made in the ministry and his ability as a preacher. He recently conducted a successful series of services here.

Dr. Elliott is a graduate of Louisville (Ky.) Presbyterian Theological seminary, is a former Rhodes scholar and attended Oxford university, England.

which came to Carolina after their graduation, as his all-state first-string forward. Captain Giles Batchelor was handicapped most of the season by injuries and illness, but directed the team in a creditable way and took fourth scoring honors with 68 points. He was unable to make the Kentucky trip because of an illness which necessitated his going to his home in Eatonton, Ga.

The fact that the Hose averaged 30 points a game against 32 for their opponents, shows the closely contested manner in which most of the games were played. This also shows that the quint was a close-guarding one. An average of 32 points is very low for the hard schedule played.

Coach McMillian is already looking forward to next year's quint, which, he states, will start work around the first of October in order to be in top form by the time the regular schedule begins in January .His hopes were brightened by the brilliant playing of the freshman team, with the outstanding individual performances of Meisky, Coleman, and Fleischmann.

Following is averages in box score:

	FG	FT	Total
Waldrop, f	52	28	132
Holden, c	54	22	130
Holcombe, g	50	25	125
Batchelor, f	31	6	28
Johnston, g	17	6	40
Folley, f	13	5	31
Jarrard, c	10	5	25
Cavin, g	7	4	18
R. Griffin, f	4	1	9
C. Griffin, f	3	1	7
McLaurin, f	0	0	0

Note: This includes all games except the Murray tilt.

Wednesday night Coach McMillian gave the Blue Hose basketeers a real treat when he had them as his guests at the Laurens County Game and Fish association lodge a few miles from Clinton for one of his specialties—a steak supper. Coach Johnson assisted him in the chef department, and they really turned out 15 nice steak jobs. As "Lonnie Mac" would say, it was a "good grade," and was thoroughly enjoyed by the boys.

It seems to be the latest rage among the sports writers for the different college papers to pick an all-state team, so here is another selection for you. The forwards should be Jake Burrows, sensational sophomore from The Citadel; Ralph Waldrep, high scorer of the Hose quint and one of the hardest players in the state; Banks McFadden, Clemson's all-Southern sophomore, for the center spot because of his brilliant play all season; Ed Kitchens, also selected on the all-Southern team at the recent tournament in Raleigh, a truly fine guard for four years of college competition; and as the other guard we pick Frank McNeill, the fiery floor general of The Citadel five, probably the most polished player in the state. There you have it, so let the criticism fly. I can take it. We should also mention a few others, mainly our own Holcombe and Holden, Wofford's Hendricks and Hodges, Carolina's Hutto, Clemson's Cheves and Magee, and Newberry's Schuler. Ossie Ostendorff was a brilliant performer with the hapless College of Charleston Maroons, and McDonald finished a brilliant career at Erskine with flying colors. Furman produced a truly fine forward in Hugh Wofford and a hard-working center in Wilmot Spires. Basketball is over, but the memory lingers on, and until we take the court again next fall with—mark my words—the finest team in the history of the school. Adios.

Exercises Recall College Founder

Dr. Jacobs' Memory Honored On Birthday With Address By Dr. Jamison of Greenwood.

Dr. A. T. Jamison, president of Connie Maxwell orphanage and for many years a warm personal friend of Dr. William Plumer Jacobs, made

REV. W. P. JACOBS, D.D., LL.D.
1842-1917
Founder of Presbyterian College

the principal address at Presbyterian college's founder's day exercises on Tuesday at noon.

Dr. Jamison spoke feelingly of the high qualities of Dr. Jacobs, the man who founded Thornwell orphanage, Presbyterian college, and did much to build the First Presbyterian church of Clinton to its present excellence.

"Dr. Jacobs was first of all a hero," Dr. Jamison said, "for he had the courage to stand for what he believed."

The orphanage system in his day looked upon the fatherless and motherless child as a social outcast and saw no good possibilities in him. Dr. Jacobs had the courage to see in every person the fine qualities of mankind and to demand for each the privilege of a good life. When he founded Thornwell orphanage on these principles he was revising the entire orphanage system. He faced the united opposition of the world, and yet he had the courage to go on in the way which he knew to be right.

And, secondly, he was a pioneer, Dr. Jamison said. He broke the trail into new possibilities and new fields of work and greatness in South Carolina. He, almost single handed, led the Presbyterian church of the state into a new field. Other churches followed his footsteps, but he was the pathfinder. He was not called by the Presbyterian church to do his work. He rather was called by his conscience and he went ahead to lead the church into it. The orphanage and the college, founded without money and on faith, are testimonies of his pioneering spirit.

"To few men is it given to break new paths and to build upon them

Greenwood Group Gives Interesting Y.M.C.A. Program

Dr. R. C. Long and Lander Delegation Appear At Y. M. C. A. Service Thursday.

A. C. Todd, New Chairman of Board of Trustees Also Presented To Students.

Dr. R. C. Long, pastor of the Greenwood Presbyterian church, spoke before more than one hundred students at the Y.M.C.A. meeting in the college chapel last Thursday evening. Accompanying Dr. Long at the meeting was Albert C. Todd, of Greenwood, the new chairman of the board of trustee of Presbyterian college, who was introduced to the students by Dr. Long.

Dr. Long spoke to the "Y" members about their place in the future. He said that in every era of discovery or great expansion the people expanded outward and not upward. Dr. Long said that the world today is going through great outward expansion and that it is the place and duty of the youth to see that an upward expansion keeps in step with the outward expansion, for when worldly interest exceeds spiritual interest the people fail and are defeated by their own works.

Dr. Long was also accompanied by a group of musicians from Lander college, Greenwood. The delegation rendered selections in voice and a violin ensemble.

A deputation from Lander will present a program on Tuesday evening, it was announced by Wandell Williams, president of the Y.M.C.A. The group will be composed of girls from the Lander student body and they plan to present an interesting program.

STUDENT VIEWS ON NATIONAL PEACE POLICY TABULATED

While only a little more than one-third of the student body voted in the balloting held last week to determine student views on peace and national policy, conducted by The Blue Stocking for Brown university, and in the poll conducted for Converse college's "The Parley Voo," nevertheless some very interesting conclusions were reached.

In the Brown university peace poll, it was found that Presbyterian college students have the following attitude toward national policy with respect to the situation in China, listed in the order of their importance: Withdrawal of all forces in China; application of a consumers' boycott against Japan, and application of the neutrality act. Only 15 wanted concerted action with England and Russia against Japan.

In regard to making enrollment in R. O. T. C. units optional, the voters were in favor of this plan by a 10 vote majority over making it compulsory in non-military schools.

As a policy for keeping the United States at peace, over half the voters favored "unqualified neutrality in all foreign wars," with economic sanctions in second place.

"We will fight if continental United States is invaded," said 80 of the 100 voters. On this question many of the voters cast ballots for several conditions under which they would fight. Thirty would fight in any war the government might declare, and 20 in defense of American rights abroad, while there were only four "conscientious objectors."

A huge majority favored passage of the present billion-dollar naval appropriations bill, and an increase in the nation's armed force.

In the Converse poll to determine the type of personality and appearance the P. C. man desires in the "girl of his dreams," this composite word picture of her was revealed, and startling were some of the necessary qualifications required of this unusual female:

The average P. C. man wants a girl who is small, a brunette, with blue eyes who does not smoke, but who is independent and does not wear red finger nail polish, nor head ornaments, nor require boxes of candy and flowers.

He admires the following qualities in this girl: sincerity, engaging personality, attractiveness, unobtrusively economical, self-respect, purity, ability to dance well, and one who knows how to dress well with the money allowed her to do it.

He dislikes these qualities: gold digger, talking about another date, fickleness, and applying make-up in public.

The results of the peace poll will be sent to Brown university and the results of the Converse poll, along with the ballots, will be mailed to "The Parley Voo."

Price To Speak To I. R. C. Group

P. C. Freshman To Tell of Revolution In Cuba In 1932. Was Living There At the Time.

Ernest Price, a freshman from Charlotte, N. C., will speak from first-hand knowledge of the Cuban revolution of 1932, at the weekly meeting of the International Relations club on Wednesday night at seven o'clock in the Jacobs memorial forum room.

Price was living in Cuba in 1932 when the revolution started. His father was a naval intelligence officer stationed in Cuba at the time. Knowledge gained of Cuba and its inhabitants during his stay there, and the ability to speak Spanish, made Price a more observant witness of the struggle that took place.

Other related timely topics of current events will be discussed by qualified speakers during the course of the meeting.

Library Receives Valuable Collection

The Late Mrs. W. E. McIlwain, of Pensacola, Fla., Leaves 800 Volumes To College.

The late Mrs. Harriett S. McIlwain, of Pensacola, Fla., made a provision in her will leaving her entire library of more than 800 volumes and a file of National Geographic magazines from the first of the century to date, and a number of bound pamphlets to Presbyterian college, it was announced today by W. L. Jones, college librarian, who now has the books in the library.

Mrs. McIlwain was the wife of Dr. William E. McIlwain, of Pensacola, who gave Presbyterian college the funds for the McIlwain Memorial library, which is shelved separately in the first stack on the left entering the stack room. Mrs. McIlwain was active in religious and philanthropic work in the Presbyterian church.

The collection left by Mrs. McIlwain is being rapidly catalogued and shelved in their correct places in the library. These new books will be recognized by a special memorial bookplate on the inside cover bearing the name of the donor. The collection contains books on general topics, with special emphasis on American and English literature.

Hitch Hike Hope!

Toward the end of this week dozens of P. C.'s student body will be standing on the outskirts of towns and cities all over South Carolina and Georgia with arm upraised and thumb expertly waving in the direction of home as the spring holidays begin.

At this time of so much international tension over the prospect of war the average hitch hiker is likely to be thinking too much of a danger that is imminent but not yet present, forgetting that more people have been killed on our highways in the past fifteen years than in all of our wars! Truly this traffic slaughter is worse than war! In war our soldiers fought and died for a purpose. But what purpose can there be in the killing of these hundreds of thousands on the highways?

Here in the South where the traffic problem is not quite as congested as in other sections of the country, we nevertheless have another danger equally as bad. Of all drivers involved in fatal accidents last year, 7.3 per cent had been drinking. If you are offered a ride and discover that the driver is intoxicated, either insist upon driving or get out as quickly as possible.

So we wish you the best of luck and a safe and sound return to the family fireside if you plan to travel by the hitch hike hope route. Then when you get behind the wheel of your own car at home don't be a speed cowboy.

The speed cowboy is an unwanted relic of a bygone era. He whizzes blithely on, oblivious to the fact that he is as out of place as a Keystone Comedy in Radio City Music Hall—just a Model T intellect in a streamlined roadster . . . So we say to you, "Happy motoring."

Indifference or Spring Fever?

Last week The Blue Stocking carried a conspicuous headline above the title line urging you to vote your convictions on issues involving national policy. In two six-inch columns at the bottom of the front page we explained that this poll would be conducted by The Blue Stocking for Brown University of Providence, Rhode Island, in an effort to help them determine national student opinion on peace and war. Brown University asked Presbyterian College to join with other colleges and universities all over the United States in stating how her students felt about these matters of national policy. We think the university hoped that at least two-thirds of the student body would express their views. At least this number would have indicated how the majority felt, and from which a reasonable conclusion could have been drawn, but such was not the case.

Was it indifference, which in this case amounts to the same thing as impoliteness, or was it "spring fever" that kept two hundred or more boys taking the trouble simply to check answers to only about twenty five questions? What was the reason that kept you from cooperating in a student body function of which you could not possibly have been unaware? The response to the poll sponsored by the "Parley Voo," weekly newspaper of Converse College, was hardly more successful. Although it was of less importance, certainly the gesture of friendship between two colleges in the state should have been more evident than such a weak response would tend to indicate.

The Blue Stocking doesn't print anything just to "fill up space." As a matter of fact, we are lucky each week if we can find room to print what we have within the four pages alloted to us. Besides this, feature news copy like the two polls we conducted last week require extra time and expense, which, however, we are more than glad to do, provided we get the cooperation such plans deserve.

To you who conscientiously filled out the 100 ballots, The Blue Stocking sincerely appreciates your thoughtfulness, and at the same time heartily congratulates you on your fine spirit of cooperation. On second thought, perhaps it is better that your votes will represent the concensus of opinion of the students of Presbyterian College, since they so well represent the true spirit of it!

To you who feel that we have over-emphasized the importance of this matter, we earnestly hope that you have the energy and the courage to write and tell us why you think as you do. To those of you who feel that we have been right to "speak" as we have, we would also ask you to write and say as much.

Spring fever, fortunately, has its limits; but indifference, unfortunately, often leads to permanent mental atrophy. Let's snap out of it. What do you say?

CADET SGT. T. Q. JONES, JR.

Last Wednesday morning at eight o'clock as rain-laden clouds hung low over Clinton, twenty-eight dauntless and courageous juniors marched on the college infirmary to repel that arch enemy, the typhoid shot. For thirty long minutes the fierce battle raged and the outcome could not be determined immediately; but in the end, the typhoid shot once again emerged victorious. Later it was discovered that the juniors had suffered two casualties, while several were seriously wounded. Beats us how such a small weapon can do so much damage.

(P. C.)

T. Q. Jones, Jr.

The time is fast approaching when the preliminaries for the contest that the juniors are sponsoring to decide the best-drilled cadet in school will be held. All who expect to enter the contest should be practicing up on the manual of arms and also the close order drill. As the Chinese proverb says, suppose you wish to excell before an expert, practice well.

(P. C.)

It has been announced that the annual government inspection will be held on April 19 instead of April 21 as was previously stated. This change, it is believed, was made due to a conflict with an important athletic schedule of the college.

(P. C.)

As far as the battalion is concerned, spring indicators are coming at exactly the wrong time, as they threaten to break up a well-planned schedule of final examinations and make hard to cover the same ground dulled efficiency of the corps. Nevertheless, these indicators look inspiring good to see and, after all, "all work and no play . . . "

(P. C.)

With the coming of warm weather it is expected that in the near future old Fort Wesor will resound with the steady staccato of rifle fire as those aspiring individuals who consider themselves dead shots try to make the rifle team. Although a team cannot be moulded into shape for a meet before the end of the year, it is hoped that some good material will be found for a team next year, when plans for an indoor range will be completed.

"PETE" McCORMICK

Notice (Which may cheer ye much): This is no poem!

Well, it's happened at last. Hitler has taken his first big step in climbing the ladder of Napoleon, Alexander the Great, and several others. The ladder is steep and the steps are worn and weak and very far between; but if other great men did it, why can't Hitler?

It becomes increasingly obvious that Hitler wants to follow in the footsteps of Napoleon, and eventually have all Europe within his power. His first step, the taking of Austria, rang out a warning to all the European countries and the other nations of the globe.

Maybe old Adolf is the "anti-Christ"! Could it be possible? Maybe one of these days he'll step up and say he was sent with divine power to take the world in his hands and care for it. Yeah—care for it. That's a lotta hooey, but you know—idiots are made, not born.

One must admit he is smart and he has plenty of intestinal fortitude. But maybe he has too much of the latter and maybe he's too smart (my guess is that he isn't smart enough). But there's a Waterloo for everybody and Herr Hitler is no exception. We hope, though, that he'll meet his Waterloo before this thing goes too far—before too many nations are involved and another world-wide conflict breaks out. It has been clearly shown that wars are inevitable, but much can be done to make them small wars and to put them off as long as possible.

What about Mussolini? Well, he's kinda playing along with Mr. Hitler. He tells Adolf that he wishes him much success and congratulates him on his recent move (the uniting of Austria and Germany). A child can understand that situation. If Mussolini wouldn't be so public with his sentiments he might live a little longer, but he isn't sitting on a bed of roses himself, and that Waterloo business goes for him as well as Hitler. Wouldn't it be funny if Mussolini found his Waterloo in Hitler. Yeah! It would be just too funny for words. Sixteen phooeys.

It has been rumored that Mussolini's pet ambition is to grab himself a hunk of Europe too, and he's playing up to Hitler to fool him. They both want to expand ,and that won't do. Europe's cards are being played from the middle towards both ends. When they reach the ends they're gonna try to play back to the middle, but they'll find that the cards have run out; so Mussolini and [illegible] nations will try to stack against Hitler and all his b[illegible] when the cards are dealt—a[illegible] Somebody is going to have [illegible] —and it ain't gonna be [illegible] Dr. Just Jargon is going to [illegible] da swamps where he will [illegible] a nice hole, crawl in it and [illegible] whole state of Florida in [illegible] (just a small measure of [illegible] tion).

Flag Day At P. C. April 4th

SPORTS FOLIO

By JAMES HAFLEY

With the return of Coach Lufler to the Presbyterian college campus, this year's crop of racket-wielders takes a prominent position in the sportlight. Practice has been rather slow getting under way due to the rough condition of the tennis courts at the present, but valuable work-out sessions have been held throughout the past week and the P. C. racketeers should be ready to fire upon Davidson Thursday. The Tarheel college boasts a strong crew and should furnish real competition for our noble lads. But we're sure they will not be able to stand up under the sizzling drives, scorching services, and accurate placements of Boykin, Beatty, Harper, Woodward & Co.

Plans are being made for an extensive trip into Florida at which time Coach Lufler will pit his iron men against the Florida Davis cup team, the St. Petersburg Driving club team, and two or three other tennis clubs. Kerdasha, Boykin, Beatty, Harper, and Stowell will probably make the trip.

Time trials were held Saturday afternoon, and from the results it looks like we're in for another big track season that will get off with a bang Thursday afternoon. The Carolina Gamecocks will be slight favorites. The field events are pretty well settled and are causing Coach McMillian no worry, and with Reynolds in the hurdles, Dennard, Cole, and Hollis in the dashes, Rawls, Huntley, Terrell, and Buchan in the distances, P. C. will open the season by presenting a well-rounded group of tracksters.

The Frosh come in for their share of the limelight also. It's good to see such hefty lads as Lawrence, Groom, Huck, and Pursley handling the weights. J. C. Hanes has the stuff to go undefeated this year in the mile and half-mile, and McLaughlin, Wienges, Brooks, and J. C. Coleman will show their heels to most competition in the dashes.

Most encouraging of all is the progress made in the past week by Chick's potential 1938 state championship baseball team. The services of Giles Batchelor have been sorely missed because of his illness, but with his return to the lineup championship hopes will assume greater proportions. The Blue Hose have been showing rare form in practice games with the freshmen and Coach Gallo-way smiles triumphantly. Erwin can belt the ball to all corners of the park, and Mac Reid is a plenty good shortstop with lots of speed and an arm of steel. Reid and Horne will form a combination that should chalk up many double plays in the various state contests.

P. C. Cinder Team To Meet Gamecocks

First Meet of Season To Take Place On Johnson Field At 3:30 Thursday.

Track is in the air!

Presbyterian college will play host to the Carolina Gamecocks Thursday, March 24, at 3:30 o'clock in the first dual meet of the season. Both colleges will be represented by their frosh squads, in addition to the varsity, and it will be the initial test for both teams.

P. C. defeated Carolina varsity squad, 65 to 64, last year in Columbia, but the Biddies downed the Blue Anklets by a large score. Both of the losing teams will be out for revenge and an interesting meet is in the offing.

The Gamecocks have been handicapped by the loss of Dick Little, who took high scoring honors at the state meet last year with firsts in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and the broad jump, because of an eligibility ruling.

P. C. will be represented in the 100 and 220-yard dashes by Dennard and Cole, the 440 by Burns and Power, the 880 and mile runs by Rawls, frosh champion in both events, and Gibbes, winner of the mile several years ago, the two-mile by Buchan, frosh champ, and Terrell. In the broad jump will be Hollis, Dennard and Thompson, the pole vault Hemphill, Beeman, McSween and Kee, the high jump Hemphill and Thompson, and in the weights the Hose will enter Hipp, McSween, Hollis and Jarrard.

This team is reported to be one of the strongest the school has ever had and "Lonnie Mac" is very satisfied with the work of the whole squad. He was especially pleased with the work of Burns, who ran a fast 440 in a trial last week, and the pole vaulters, who are having a little individual meet of their own to determine who is the best among them.

Carolina has practically the same team which was so successful last year, with the exception of Little. Knight in the dashes, and Lipscomb in the high jump are reported to be making rapid progress, as are their prize weight men, the Speigner brothers. Coach Bristow is well pleased with his team ,it was learned, but little could be learned as to the strength of the freshman team. The Anklets will have a well-rounded squad and should give the Biddie all the competition they need.

Tennis Season Now Underway

The 1938 varsity and freshman tennis season opened officially Saturday afternoon when the first-year men tackled an aggregation of racket men from Spartanburg high school. The varsity will have its chance Thursday when Davidson journeys here for a meet that will raise the curtain on this year's season. Coach Bill Lufler has been working faithfully with his varsity squad which gives promise of developing into a real threat. Many valuable pointers and tips have been given the team and a more efficient and consistent game.

The freshman team has great prospects also. Outstanding in the rat ranks are Bob Kerdasha, Fayette White, Hugh Flanders, Powell Frazier, Tench Owens, Hamp Ferguson, and Louis Porter.

In addition to the match with Spartanburg high school which was played Saturday, several other interesting engagements have been arranged for the first-year men. Some time within the next week a trip to Florida is planned, where Coach Lufler will mix varsity and frosh against various tennis ends teams. A strong quintet consisting of Kerdasha, Boykin, Beatty, Harper, and Stowell, is expected to make the trip into the sunny state if tentative arrangements go through.

Immediately after spring holidays practice will be held regularly on the eight college courts which are being made ready for activities.

On April 2 Furman college comes here for varsity and freshman matches. The Flying Flock will bring a powerful group of netmen, having lost only Joe Garrys from last year's team.

Matthews Mill Nine Victor Over Hose

Practice Game At Greenwood Saturday Tests Mettle of P. C. Outfit. Mabry Stars At Bat.

The Presbyterian college baseball aggregation opened the season Saturday at Greenwood, losing to the strong Matthews mill nine by the score of 5-3 in a hard-fought contest.

George Mabry, P. C. outfielder, proved his ability at slugging the old apple by getting three slashing hits, one of them going for two bases. The entire Blue Hose team fielded well, the infield doing exceptionally good work. The pitching was good, with Christian, DuBose and McGregor shownig plenty of stuff for the Hose. Lyle, Matthews shortstop, led the hitting for the opponents with two hits in two trips to the plate.

P. C. will play two exhibition games this week, traveling to Ninety-Six on Thursday, and playing host to Matthews mill on Saturday.

Frosh Team Wins Tennis Duel, 6-1

Spartanbug High Defeated By Local Boys Saturday.

P. C.'s highly touted freshman tennis team defeated the team from Spartanburg high school Saturday afternoon in their first match of the season. The score was 6-1. They lost only one singles match and won the doubles and 4 singles matches.

Bob Kerdasha played sensational tennis to down Howard Ezell, the number one high school man, in straight sets and allowed him only one game in the two-set contest. White, Flanders and Frazier were the other singles winners. Kerdasha teamed with White to down the Spartanburg team of Ezell and Dupre. Flanders and Frazier, Georgia prep school doubles champions, were victors over the partner combination of Ballenger and Wrighton.

The freshmen displayed excellent form in winning their first match and all indications point to a successful season.

The scores:

Bob Kerdasha (P. C.) defeated Howard Ezell, 6-0, 6-1.

Fayette White (P. C.) defeated Henry Dupre, 6-1, 6-0.

Hugh Flanders (P. C.) defeated Gene Wrighton, 6-3, 6-0.

Gus Chrvizberg (Spartanburg), defeated Louis Porter, 6-4, 6-4.

Kerdash and White defeated Ezell and Dupre, 6-1.

Flanders and Frazier defeated Ballenger and Wrighton, 6-3, 6-0.

Look at some of the athletes here at P. C. go. Pete Holcombe was recently elected president of the student body, Trigger Ritch vice-president, Lukie Culp president of the senior class, Reynolds Griffin to the student council, and the retiring vice-president of the student body, Frank Johnston, are all swell performers in their respective sports. These are only a few of the cases that show athletics can be mixed with studies and association if so desired . . . Go down and notice the improvements Coach Johnson has made in the supply room and his upstairs office. It is rumored they are the most modern and complete in the state. P. C. stays one jump ahead.

"Chick" says he can hardly wait to get several freshman "chunkers" under his wing. Castleberry, Butler and Rogers are the boys he has his eye on, and they really burn the old sphere over the platter. Just ask some of the varsity boys . . . Unlike basketball games and boxing matches, the student body is requested to remain as noisy as possible at the diamond affairs in the very near future.

"Pitt" Bird, now coaching and teaching at Lexington, was here recently and said he has good prospects for his nine this spring. We hope he has as much luck as he did with his football team which lost only three games and those to far superior schools . . . "Mac" Reid, new shortstop from Presbyterian Junior college, is showing up well in practice and may prove to be an able successor to "Hick" Harvin, who held down the position so well last year.

"Bing" Jarrard walked out on the track the other day and calmly picked up the 16-pound shot and tossed it 38 feet. (He was immediately put into track warm-ups and told to practice his technique to the avail of the track team) . . . Dick Little, last year's high scorer in the state track meet, has been ruled ineligible, it was learned recently. Tough luck, Dick; but we know of several men who are not crying!

"The frosh nine will be invincible," states Coach Cavin. "I am rounding them into shape and really have got a 'good grade' team." His mound staff will consist of Castleberry, Butler and McCutchen, with Rogers, converted pitcher, behind the plate. The infield features Eaton on first, Bird and Willis at the keystone corner, Tannery at shortstop, and McSween and Sutton on the hot corner. In the outfield he has Embler, Cooper, Ratcree, Gauldin, Rose and McLaughlin.

"Chick's" article in The Greenville News last spring concerning high school baseball brought results; several towns in this district are putting out baseball teams for the first time in many years, looks like he started something . . . Besides having the best-dressed nine in the state, P. C. will have one of the prettiest diamonds. The addition of grass to the Corsages Outlawed At Washington U.

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Fraternity men at Washington university have at last done a thing for which their less courageous brothers all over the nation will bless them. They have outlawed corsages for their dates at school dances.

They think, moreover, that flowers should be limited to sorority formal dances, possibly large fraternity formals and the junior prom.

As far as can be gathered, women on the campus are accepting the situation with good grace. In the words of one co-ed, "Well if he pays for the dance and feeds me afterwards why should I kick about flowers?"

And his influence is felt today to the ends of the world as the men who came under his influence have carried a portion of the greatness of his spirit over the face of the earth, the speaker asserted.

And furthermore, Dr. Jacobs was a poet, Dr. Jamison stated, for he saw beauty in the world about him and he believed in young people. He delighted in each new orphanage, he revelled in the immense possibilities of the poorest youth.

And lastly, Dr. Jacobs was a saint in the finest sense of the word, Dr. Jamison said. "He regarded himself as a man especially called for his work, and he gave himself to that calling. Prayer was a reality to him. All his great works stand as answered prayers."

Dr. Jamison was introduced by Dr. M. W. Brown, dean of the college, at the special chapel service in the college auditorium. Many kinspeople of Dr. Jacobs and citizens of Clinton were present to hear the address.

Clinton Lions Honor Johnson

Presbyterian College Coach Voted Outstanding Citizen By Local Club.

Genial Walter Johnson, generalissimo of athletics at Presbyterian college, was honored by the Clinton Lions club as the outstanding citizen of Clinton on Friday, March 25. The Lions make this award annually to the man who has served most unselfishly as a true citizen of the community.

Coach Johnson came to Clinton in 1915 and for the past twenty-three years has been directing athletics at the Calvinistic institution. He has during this time coached every sport on the calendar at some time or other and has seen the finest athletic equipment for a school its size in the South grow under his direction on the college campus. His spirit of clean play and hard fighting has been communicated year after year to the boys who have played for him and has earned the college an enviable reputation.

In addition to his coaching duties the "Swede" finds time to serve as Captain of the Clinton unit of the National Guard, and this past fall he dedicated the new armory. He is a member of the Rotary club, of the Chamber of Commerce, and a deacon in the First Presbyterian church.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

By M. M. NORTON

This week, with Young field in the spotlight due to the appearance here Thursday of Connie Mack and his Philadelphia Athletics, and with the entire college looking forward to their exhibition game with Coach Chick Galloway's boys on the Blue Hose diamond, we naturally asked a question relative to baseball. Interviewing only faculty members and coaches, who have followed the game in America for many years and who would be able to give opinions resulting from their own observations, we asked:

"Who, in your opinion, has done most to promote baseball in the United States?"

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR WALTER A. JOHNSON stated: "I think that Connie Mack has done more than any other man in America to promote baseball. He has been in the game for

Dedication

This issue of The Blue Stocking is dedicated to Cornelius McGillicuddy (Connie Mack), the Grand Old Man of Baseball, who has worked so faithfully, for the past 55 years, in the advancement of this great national sport, baseball.

The Blue Stocking pays tribute to a man who, despite great odds, many disappointments, discouraging seasons and a doctor's orders to give up the game, insists on sticking with the Athletics in order to put them on the come-back road.

Military Ball Comes This Week-End

Plans Are Complete for Fourth Annual Army Social Affair. "Collegians" To Play.

The Presbyterian college annual military ball dance series will begin Friday night with a formal dance in the Clinton armory, followed by a Saturday afternoon tea dance and the informal hop Saturday night, with music furnished by "Hap" Gray and his Collegians, announced E. A. Johnson, cadet colonel of the battalion, today. There also will be a night parade and review as an added feature to the dances.

At the formal opening dance Friday night the grand march, in which all junior and senior military men will take part, will be led by Cadet Colonel E. A. Johnson and Miss Anne Martin of Columbus, Ga. Miss Martin also will act as honorary colonel of the battalion and will be in the reviewing stand at the parade early in the evening as the official sponsor.

One of the highlights of the colorful military affair will be the announcement of the men in the junior military class who have been selected to membership in The Musketeers, local military fraternity, composed of outstanding officers of the battalion, Johnson told a reporter for The Blue Stocking today. He also added that if a chapter of Scabbard and Blade, national military fraternity were established here next year, that the members of The Musketeers would become charter members.

"Y" TO PRESENT SPECIAL SPEAKER TOMORROW

William Andrus, representative of the American Youth Hostel association, will make an address at a special meeting of the Y.M.C.A. in the college chapel at 7:30 tomorrow evening, it was announced by L. G. Heckle, chairman of the program committee.

In his address, Mr. Andrus will tell his Y.M.C.A. audience about plans now being made to build a chain of youth hostels through the Great Smoky Mountain National park. The hostels are small hotels or houses in which the traveler can find suitable lodging and a place to prepare his meals while on a trip through the park.

Beta Kappa Holds Election

During the past week the local chapter of Beta Kappa fraternity elected the following men to head the group this year:

James Booth, president; Louis Folley, vice-president; Morris Ritch, treasurer; Hammond Adams, secretary.

The elections of other fraternities will be held in the near future.

New Forum Room To Be Constructed

Mrs. C. M. Bailey, of Clinton, Gives Fund For Memorial To Her Late Husband.

Mrs. C. M. Bailey, of Clinton, has contributed money for the equipping of a specially prepared seminar room in psychology and philosophy at Presbyterian college as a memorial to her husband, the late Cassius M. Bailey, according to an announcement recently made by President William P. Jacobs.

Mr. Bailey, to whom the room is to be a memorial, was a staunch friend of the college. He was a prominent manufacturer of this section and for many years was a member of the board of trustees of the college.

The room which Mrs. Bailey is equipping will be finished in walnut panelling with a 16-foot walnut table, and specially constructed walnut chairs with green leather upholstery. In addition to the chairs and the table, several specially designed chairs with a new type writing arm will be used for general discussion groups and larger classes. A wool carpet will cover the floor and a walnut cabinet for the psychology specimens and charts will be constructed.

The room will be used for forums, general discussion groups, and seminar work, in addition to its regular use as a class room for psychology and philosophy courses.

Last year the first of these especially constructed rooms was constructed by President Jacobs as a memorial to his father, the late James Ferdinand Jacobs.

Work on the Bailey memorial room will begin soon, President Jacobs announced.

MACKMEN TO BATTLE HOSE

Game To Begin At 3:30. Large Crowd Expected. Connie Mack To Be Honored At Banquet By Chamber of Commerce.

On next Thursday afternoon, April 7, at 3:30 P. M., baseball fans of this section will have the unusual opportunity of watching a Big League baseball team in action, for on that day Chick Galloway's Presbyterian college state championship nine meets the Philadelphia Athletics in an exhibition game to be played on Young baseball field at Presbyterian college.

This event marks one of the highlights of the sporting season at P. C. It has been widely publicized and looked forward to. Many pepole who have never seen the Athletics in action will feel the thrill of a lifetime when the young baseballers take to the field. The biggest thrill, however, will be Connie Mack, the famous leader in the great national sport, who has been in baseball for 55 years.

The "A" team itself presents a well-rounded group of young men, many of them college graduates, who are real ball players. Several members of the team are graduates of Duke university. Two of the Duke boys who perform well for the team are Chubby Dean, formerly a first-baseman but recently converted to a pitcher; and Billy Werber, hard-hitting, base-stealing third baseman. Other stars who will accompany the team include: Paul Easterling, rookie star; Skeeter Newsome, speedy shortstop; Earl Brucker, heavy-hitting catcher, and a great crop of rookie pitchers.

"Chick" Galloway, who is coaching the Blue Stocking team, twelve years ago was Connie Mack's best short stop and was voted the finest short stop in the American League. A deep personal tie exists between the "old man" and his protege, and it was the

S. C. History Class To Make Trip

On Thursday, April 11, the South Carolina history class, under Dr. F. D. Jones, will leave for a tour of the historic spots of the state and the end of the trip will be "America's Most Historic City," Charleston.

The trip is an annual event and the spots to be visited have all contributed in the making of South Carolina history.

The group will first visit Columbia and will spend most of the morning visiting the historic spots there. At the noon hour the group will turn toward the coast, visiting historic places en route.

In Charleston the group will visit the Charleston museum, the first in the country, and the slave market. Other places of interest will be visited during the two days' stay there.

America's Most Modern Baseball "Slanguage"

About the first cry that goes up from the spectators on one of the sunny baseball afternoons is "play ball!" That isn't exactly a freak phrase, but nobody has as yet cooked up a good substitute for that yell. Anyway, the fans are contented with that because they usually convince the umpire it's time to start something.

Well, the pitcher winds up and cuts the ball loose. It speeds in and over the corner of the plate. The umpire calls it a ball. Well, that's a cue for the crowd to start "slanging." They begin to yell, "that clipped the corner, fathead!" (referring to the umpire, of course). After so long a time they find there's no use kidding the "robber" who calls the balls and strikes.

The fans finally turn their attentions to the game, out of pure curiosity, of course. They begin yelling at the batter, "Sling that pill, babe," "Give us a base knock, kid," "Get that club off your shoulder." All these sweet encouragements usually bring about a strikeout. Then the fiends yell, "Couldn't hit a barn door," "swings like a rusty barn door," "Couldnt hit Mae West with a handful of rice," and so on. The batter is always a hero if he "raps out a safety," "drives out a twin-baser," "slugs up a tripler," or "clouts a four-bagger."

The fielders get their share of cheers and criticisms. The most common raspberry phrase they hear when one of them makes an error is "butterfingers." Some rat in the stands always makes the fielders feel old when he yells, "Bend your back, chesty." Sometimes they are even called "ornaments," "decorations," and "monuments," referring, of course, to those players who loaf on the field or get slow start after a hit ball and miss it.

The pitcher, being the main figure most of the time, is subject to much ridicule by the "discouragers" and "hooters" in the stands. They are called "chunkers," "slingers," "tossers" and "moundsmen." The fans boo 'em, cheer 'em, cuss 'em and hunt their autographs. They encourage them with, "C'mon, aw, chunk that pill," "You got the heat, kid," "Throw that pebble by the swinger." They boo them with "Couldn't break a window pane," "glass arms," "salary wing is ponfed out."

The baserunner is "smart," "good

Clinton, S. C., Monday, April 4, 1938

A hearty and sincere welcome to the grand old leader of the Philadelphia Athletics and his boys. Congratulations for the swell come-back you are making against odds. We are looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to your visit here and we hope it will be a pleasant one for you.

A hearty welcome is also in order for Miss Anne Martin of Columbus, Ga., who will be in the reviewing stand Friday night as honorary colonel of the battalion and, later in the evening, will be at the side of Cadet Colonel E. A. Johnson as the grand march of the military ball gets under way.

Notice in an educational journal: "A four-year college course would do much toward directing the average prisoner in our penal institutions to a more wholesome attitude toward society and life in general." We quite agree with the professor, and no doubt much good might be accomplished by subjecting some college students to four years of quiet meditation in one of our best penal institutions.

Providing the above idea is carried out, we suggest that our first exchange be the "sword swallower" around here who lately has taken a liking to Chinese blankets.

Cornelius McGillicuddy

Everyone is more or less attached to something or someone. Every person has a hobby or has grown to something which may not be of great significance to other people, but the person would be at a great loss without it.

So it is with Cornelius McGillicuddy (Connie Mack to you). When one hears the name "Connie Mack" he immediately thinks of the Philadelphia Athletics; and the Philadelphia Athletics are thought of only in the sense of a good, clean, hard-fighting, sportsmanlike baseball club.

Connie is attached to baseball. It is obvious that he could never be satisfied with anything other than the position of "boss" of the "A's." Without Connie, baseball might not have been the national sport it is today. He has played a great part in the advancement of baseball. As he has aged, so has baseball. Throughout the long years he has served so faithfully and earnestly as the "A" leader, and as one of the greatest workers in this great game that he might well be called "the grandest old man of baseball."

Through many years he has worked, producing great ball clubs and great players, suffering disastrous seasons and feeling disappointment in many rookies, developing promising young hopefuls, always smiling, never frowning, working wholeheartedly to advance baseball and instill sportsmanship into the heart of every star, rookie and bat-boy that enters the Athletics' camp. Few men would have the patience of this man. For the past several years, especially, he has spent his time developing young players for his team, knowing full well that his young team would be several years developing into a championship club. The other major league teams never bother with a large group of young players. Instead they take all the older, wiser heads, always looking for the present championship.

But watch Connie! In two or three years you'll see a team composed almost entirely of former college ball players. They will have been with the "A's" for several years, playing together. They will be up there in the first division, fighting like the dickens for that pennant. They'll give the Yanks, Tigers, Senators and other teams in the American league plenty of trouble. Connie will be there inspiring them, encouraging them, leading them to victory after victory.

Thursday you will see Connie Mack and his boys out on Young field, playing the Blue Hose. No matter how this game may turn out, we want to show that scrappy "A's" we are back of them all the way. We want to show them every courtesy possible and treat them as real honor guests—for they are just that. We want to show Connie that we think he is the "grandest old man of baseball."

"All for P. C. — P. C. for All." So let's give the "A's" a great big hand, the heartiest of welcomes—and show them the most memorable day of their lives.

— P. Mc. '40.

Words and Music

Perhaps it is that spring is in the air, perhaps some other similar reason accounts for the apparent revival of spirits during the daily chapel programs recently. At any rate, the fact remains that quite a few more voices have been added to the usual chorus during the singing of hymns. All of us may not be able to sing, but we can "make a joyful noise unto the Lord." We can thereby add to the interest of the chapel services fifty per cent.

There are hymns, however, that despite the beautiful significance of the words, fail to convey that meaning, due to the music for which they have been written. Some of these hymns have tunes written for trained choral groups and not for the varied voices of a college chapel ensemble. Almost anyone with any kind of an ear for music can easily tell these hymns at a glance, and they should be careful to pick only those hymns with simple melodies for the chapel services. Most college men who attend chapel enjoy singing, and are not, as some think, unconscious of the religious significance of the words behind the music of the hymns.

We all love to sing, and hymns sung at the daily chapel services are the most wholesome expression of this desire.

PARADE REST

CADET SGT. T. Q. JONES, JR.

Flash!—There are only ten more drilling days before spring inspection. This leaves plenty of time to clear up the minute details and to avoid the last minute rush characteristic of this time of year. Full co-operation from every man in the corps is necessary from now until the inspection in order to attain the peak for which we are aiming.

T. Q. Jones, Jr.

According to an announcement made by Cadet Colonel E. Ashby Johnson last week, the men who are elected into The Musketeers this year will be the ones to start the Scabbard and Blade fraternity here next year. The new members of The Musketeers will be announced at the military ball which is to be held Friday night. This feature will be an added attraction to the ball which, in previous years, has been a colorful event.

Some Daffynitions For War-Time Use

Bomb—What college boys do on week-ends.
Rifle—What a burglar does to a cash register.
Corp—The middle or center of an apple.
Guard—A fruit or vegetable similar to a squash.
Shell—She'll do what?
Battle—Container for alcoholic spirits and other beverages.

How would you like to fight for a piece of land and then have to pay rent for the trench you were occupying? That is just what the United States did during the World war. These were not the front line trenches where the fighting took place, but were the trenches that the soldiers used for training purposes. Just the same, it hardly seems fair to make a man fight for something and then pay for it, too.

"H" company again breaks through to win the citation cords for another grade period. The race was very close and "C" company was almost a dark horse, as they came up to take second. These cords will look mighty good for inspection and also for the military ball. The real test will come when they try to hold them for the rest of the year.

The following joke is one that was told during the World war.

Captain, to Negro who is examining his undershirt—"What are you doing Rastus?"

Rastus: "I'se looking for them arithmetic bugs."

Captain: "Arithmetic bugs—what do you mean?"

Rastus: They add to my misery, subtract from my comfort, divide my attention, and multiply like h——."

SPORTS FOLIO

By JAMES HAFLEY

With the close of an extended spring holiday season, P. C. finds itself in the middle of an interesting sports program that will continue through the merry month of May. Baseball, track, and tennis will command the spotlight on both varsity and freshman fronts, while swimming, tennis, and baseball will fill out the intramural menu.

In baseball, the Galloway men will play host to Carolina, Philadelphia, Newberry, Erskine, Wofford, Clemson, Citadel, and Furman here in Clinton. Coach Lonnie McMillian's trackstars will meet Wofford and Florida, and will provide entertainment for the S. C. intercollegiate track meet here on Johnson field. Bill Lufler's racketeers will play Auburn, Clemson, Furman, Citadel, Wofford, Carolina, and then will hold the S. C. intercollegiate tennis tournament here on May 11-14.

All this will be seen in Presbyterian's own back yard, and if that isn't enough to satisfy you sports lovers you can go to Clemson—they have a horseshoe pitching team that can't be beat!

From The Citadel Bulldog: "Perhaps the Bulldogs' strongest opponent will be last year's state champions, P. C., which, incidentally, is very nearly an all-veteran combination. This Presbyterian group will reap experience from Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics on April 7. Reports would indicate that Chick Galloway enjoys thumbing his nose at even such dignitaries as Mr. Mack. Well—luck to him. I will admit, it's a mighty good chance.

There isn't any getting around it—our prestige is far-reaching, and we have the power to knock off the big boys! Here's something else from down Charleston way that might be of interest to some of you tennis enthusiasts: "Probably the greatest opposition will be met on the Presbyterian courts on April 27. Preseason gossip has it that P. C. expects very little competition for team victories and only Furman's Jim Aiken to stand in the way of Lykes Boykin and the South Carolina intercollegiate tennis singles championship . . . but how about Williams of U. S. C. . . . and Kilgore of The Citadel? — Well, time will tell."

BASEBALL SLANTS — Jack Doyle, New York betting commissioner, along with Sportsfolio, picks the Yanks to repeat this year. Baseball followers of the past two years will probably concur in this opinion, due to the fact that Joe DiMaggio hasn't signed as yet. Without the Wallopin' Wop in there taking his cut and patrolling one of the outer gardens the Yankees' chances will be greatly reduced . . . Rogers Hornsby—remember him? Well, the Rajah is taking up baseball again after all these years. Claims he lost $45,000 on the ponies down in Miami. . . . Luke Appling, pride of the Chisox, came down with a broken ankle the other day. Unless the shortstop recuperates within the next three months, Chicago will be out of the race. . . . Special Flash — Squint Ervin, P. C.'s crack outfielder, steals second with the bases loaded.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

Coach Johnson: "But I've never seen a P. C. team that didn't fight!"
Coach Galloway: "Just a bunch of ——!"
Coach Lufler: "Fellows, it takes guts to win!"

Bird Track Men Win From Hose

P. C. Smothered By Smooth Carolina Team.

As a curtain raiser for the 1938 track season, a powerful crew from the University of South Carolina downed a fighting Blue Hose squad with a comparative ease. The final score of the dual meet on March 24 found the game, but inferior Presbyterians on the short end of an 82 to 43 count. The Calvinists, led by the colorful sophomore runner, John Rawls, took four first places, six seconds, and seven thirds.

Guy Lipscomb, rangy Carolina trackster, contributed a great deal toward the Hosemen's downfall, annexing first places in the shot, the discus, and the high jump. Gilland also showed up well for the Gamecocks, winning first honors in the two-mile and second only to Rawls in the mile. Other individual stars from the Birds were: Carmac, Speigner, Carrol, and Knight.

Although no records were threatened throughout the meet, Coach Lonnie McMillian was well pleased with the early season form shown by his charges. "Red" Rawls ran a 2.02 half-mile and a 4.39 mile to serve notice on all state competition that he means business this year. "Deke" Reynolds looked good in winning the 220 low hurdles and taking second in the 120 high hurdles. Captain Macon Hipp gave a creditable account of himself in winning second and third in the javelin and discus, respectively. Hemphill won the pole vault with a clear jump of 11 feet, 3 inches, and placed second in the high jump.

A tabulation of the meet is as follows:

Mile run: Rawls (P), Gilland (C), Carmac (C). Time, 4:39.8.

440-yard run: Crews (C), Carrol (C), Walker (C). Time, 54.8 seconds.

100-yard dash: Knight (C), Dennard (P), Lyon (C). Time, 10.1 secs.

120-yard high hurdles: Wilson (C), Reynolds (P), McConnel (C). Time, 15.9 seconds.

880-yard run: Rawls (P), Carmac (C), Wilson (C). Time, 2:02.4.

220-yard dash: Knight (C), Cole (P), Carrol (C). Time, 22.9 seconds.

Two-mile run: Gilland (C), Davis (C), Buchan (P). Time, 11.24 seconds.

200-yard low hurdles: Reynolds (P), Wilson (C), McConnell (C). Time, 26 seconds.

Pole vault: Hemphill (P), Beeman and McSween (P). tie for second, Herbert (C). Height, 11 ft. 3 in.

High jump: Herbert and Lipscomb (C) tie for first, Thompson and Hemphill (P), tie for second. Height, 5 ft. 7 in.

Javelin: Speigner (C), Hipp (P), Hollis (P). Distance, 170 ft., 9 in.

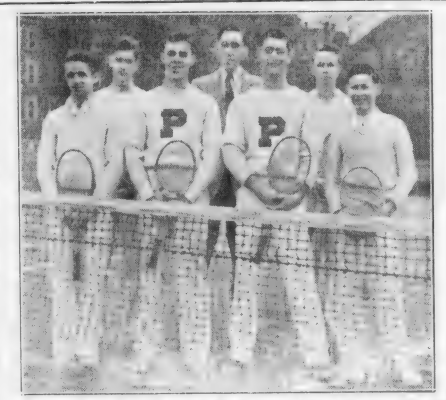
Shot put: Lipscomb (C), Thompson (P), Jarrard (P). Distance, 41 ft. 5 in.

Broad jump: Armstrong (C), Knight (C), Hollis (P). Distance, 21 ft., 8 inches.

Discus: Lipscomb (C), Craig (C), Hipp (P). Distance, 137 ft.

Athletics Down Crackers Saturday

Previous to their contest with the Blue Stockings on Thursday, the Philadelphia Athletics won an interesting game from the Atlanta Crackers of the Southern association Saturday, 2 to 0.



Atlanta is one of the prize farms of the A's, having sent them such stars as Harry Kelly, Bud Thomas and Al Williams, mainstays of the hurling staff.

Williams started for the A's and got credit for the win. Thomas relieved him in the 6th and finished the game.

With two out in the second inning, rookie Paul Easterling drew a base on balls and scored on Ledgiana's, rookie second baseman's triple. Ledgiana scored on the next pitch which got away from the Atlanta catcher for a passed ball. The A's outhit the Crackers, slamming out 10 hits to 5 for the Atlanta boys.

Chick Galloway, P. C.'s coach, was in the stands at the game and made final plans for the game here Thursday with the Athletics.

To Play Frosh Team Tomorrow

Highstown, N. J.—The Peddie school tennis team will take its second annual Southern tour this week. The schedule includes a match with the Presbyterian college freshmen on Tuesday, April 5. The squad who will make the trip are as follows: Reading from left to right:

Front row: Leonard R. Campbell of Ware, Mass; Clinton R. G. Smith (Capt.) of Allerton, Ill.; Robert F. Forshay of Hempstead, N. Y.,; and Stewart McCracken of Shanghai, China.

Back row: William H. Coombs of Youngstown, Ohio; John E. Burris (Mgr.) of Milford, Del.; and Jeremiah Paine of Portland, Maine.

Tennis Team Has Successful Trip

Make Clean-sweep of Florida Opponents During Holidays.

The Presbyterian college tennis team, composed of both varsity and freshman players, had a very successful road trip during the spring holidays. In the three matches played with Florida teams they were victorious in every match by overwhelming scores.

Jr. Davis Cup Squad Downed

Starting off with the Florida junior Davis cup team, P. C. won the three engagements in easy fashion. The Florida boys were able to annex only one match in a six-match affair.

Beatty (P.C.) defeated Pou, 7-5, 6-3.

Boykin (P.C.) defeated Farmer, 6-2, 7-5.

result of this close friendship that the Athletics will stop over in Clinton on their way back to Philadelphia from their spring training.

Chick's team is in tip-top shape, after a month of intensive practice and a half dozen practice games against the best textile teams of the section. Galloway boasts that he has the finest infield in the college game this year and all the teams against whom their practice games have been played testify that they are as hard-hitting a team as you will find in a month of searching.

And baseball fans have still another treat in store for them as that evening at 7:00 the Clinton Chamber of Commerce honors Connie Mack and his team at a banquet to which the general public is invited. Plates will be sold to this banquet for $1.00, and general admission to the game is only fifty cents, which gives baseball fans of this section a chance to watch a great major league ball club in action and to see and eat with the Grand Old Man of baseball for the total sum of $1.50.

The evening's program will be broadcast over station WFBC, Greenville, from 8 to 8:30.

I often heard my father speak of Connie Mack years ago when Connie was catching for Milwaukee, and he always remarked that he was a wonderful fellow and a real gentleman."

DR. A. E. SPENCER, a great baseball fan, and who, incidentally, has seen every league team play with the exception of the Yanks and Cincinnati, remarked: "I suppose you could argue forever as to which one man has done the most to promote baseball in the United States. However, I think that credit should be given to the men who have financed and organized teams as well as to those who have played the game. Comiskey park in Chicago is named after a man who did much to help organize baseball in this country, as is Shibe park in Philadelphia. Most people are familiar with the work of Wrigley and Col. Ruppert who, along with others, have financed and organized clubs in America. Without the support and backing of these men, baseball could have never reached its present height in this country."

DR. J. B. KENNEDY, a real baseball enthusiast and one of the greatest supporters of Blue Hose clubs, who is a regular follower of league baseball, said: "I think that Connie Mack, as the greatest manager for many years, has done most to promote the game in this country. Of course, John McGraw and Miller Huggins also were great managers, and I personally believe that Ty Cobb is the greatest player ever produced. But in using ethical methods, treating his players with consideration, and always standing for true sportsmanship, Connie Mack is loved by all his boys, and is, I believe, the greatest promoter of American baseball."

BUSINESS MANAGER JOHN H. HUNTER, after thinking the question over, replied: "I would say Babe Ruth because, as the idol of baseball fans for many years, he did more than any other player to popularize the game. Because of his great showmanship, and reputation as a great drawing card, Ruth's name will always be associated with the growth in popularity of the baseball game."

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

This week, in view of the fact that the South Carolina Scholastic Press association is meeting at P. C., we interviewed members of the various classes with a question which we hoped would be of interest to both the student body and our visitors. Since outsiders have shown a great deal of interest in our Socratic system, and with the administration planning the construction of another forum room in the very near future, we asked this question:

"What has the forum system at Presbyterian college meant to you?"

W. H. WILKERSON, chaplain of the Ministerial club for the coming year, stated: "I have greatly enjoyed the forums which I have attended and hope that the administration will continue to promote them among the various campus groups. The forums are of particular interest to ministerial students because they give us an opportunity to get the other fellow's viewpoint about various matters. I find that through attendance at the forum meetings, students come to know and understand their professors better than before."

HAMPTON TALBOT, freshman from Tsing Kiang Pu, Ku, China, remarked: "Since I came to the United States directly from the Orient, I was greatly interested in what Americans, particularly young people, were thinking. I was very glad indeed to have the opportunity to attend the forum meetings, for I have found that people express themselves much more freely in the forums than in the classrooms. My own problems have been more clearly solved as a result of my attending the group meetings."

After a brief message on the subject, "The Book of Books," Williams introduced Black to the student body as the new president of the "Y."

Black thanked the student body for the opportunity that has been given him. He said that he had no plans to announce at present, but that he hoped the students would get some benefit from the organization during the year. He added that since each student is a member of the "Y," he would appreciate any suggestions from them.

The chairmen and members of the various committees are as follows:

Religious activities committee: Hubert Wilkerson, chairman, McNab Morrison, W. D. Hart, Sam Lipsey.

Program committee: L. G. Heckle, chairman, Jane Sturgeon, Harry McInvail, Hugh Rutledge.

Hi-Y committee: W. C. McSween, chairman, W. P. Jacobs, J. H. Wallace.

Social committee: T. Q. Jones, Jr., chairman, F. G. Allen, Laetitia Jones.

Publicity committee: D. M. McCormick, chairman, Tench Owens.

Student guide: Adelaide Roberts.

President Back stated that the committee for student guidance would be announced at a later date.

Tench Owens, of Clinton, was named editor of the 1938 edition of the "Y" handbook.

After presenting a program before the Woman's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church in Union this afternoon, which emphasized the title of the main address, "The Christian College," a delegation of several college students, including the quartet, returned to the campus tonight.

Harris Gray, student musical director of the college quartette, presided over the program, which included an address on the Christian college by retiring Y. M. C. A. president, Wandell Williams; prayer by Hubert Wardlaw, ministerial student leader; and appropriate selections by the quartet. The quartet includes the following men: Harris Gray, second tenor and director; Roy Spratt, first tenor; Malcolm Hemphill, baritone; and Hubert Wardlaw, bass.

The men who composed this delegation attended the meeting of the Auxiliary at the invitation of the president of this church group who, at the close of the meeting this afternoon, expressed the hope that a similar delegation would return annually.

Battalion Preps For Annual Inspection

With but ten more full days separating them from spring inspection, Presbyterian college's military unit this week began a series of intensive drills and classroom periods in preparation for the big army review.

For the past eight years this Presbyterian unit has received a grade of "excellent" in this important review and wears the blue star of superior ability as a regular part of the insignia. Major Floyd C. Harding, professor of military science and tactics at the college, is working hard in order to retain this coveted honor.

Wonder if you have heard Kay Kyser's College on Wednesday night. This is Lucky Strike's lates program and is becoming very popular with the younger portion of the radio public.

Speaking of Lucky Strike, we are looking forward to the time when they will run out of programs to sponsor. We'd just as soon they run the tobacco auctioneer out now.

What has happened to Tommy Dorsey? His band has broken up so much recently that only memories remain. Even his once-marvelous trombone technique is gone.

All who saw "Hollywood Hotel" will remember the drum antics of one Gene Krupa of Benny Goodman's ork. Interesting to note that Krupa is forming a band of his own. This seems to be the favorite pastime of all musicians who become famous in someone else's orch. Berigan for instance.

We predict a time in the near future when the swing kings will be at a loss for old favorites and classics to swing and will start on the hymns. Can't imagine Krupa on a drum-break between the verse and the chorus of "Abide With Me."

Drama Council To Offer Prize

A first prize of $200 is being offered by the Religious Drama council for the best one-act play on the subject of peace. There are causes of peace, just as there are causes of war; there is a cost of peace, just as there is a cost of war. It is to stimulate thought and action on this timely subject that this contest is being sponsored. Drama is a means not only of reaching many people, but also of stirring them to action. It is hoped through this contest to take a step forward in the cause for peace. The other awards will be: second prize, $100, donated by Samuel French; third prize, $50, offered by the Religious Drama council; and fourth prize, a bronze medal, donated by Mr. French.

The contest is to open March 1, and closes on July 1. The plays must be suitable for production in churches by children, young people, or adults. The playing time must not exceed one hour. The judges will be chosen from leaders in the professional theatre, educational drama and peace organizations. The prize winning play will be submitted to Mr. French for an offer of publication. For further information and a copy of the rules, address: Religious Drama Council, 71 West 23rd St., New York.

Harvard's Degree Caused Big Dispute

Andrew Jackson, who had almost no formal education, nevertheless received a degree from the oldest college in the land. History has it that this caused a severe dispute among the more conservative officials, but Harvard did grant him an honorary degree.

Students at smaller colleges can take heart from the fact that some of the less widely known institutions gave the country a number of presidents. Dickinson college, for example, produced President Buchanan, Hampden-Sydney, William Henry Harrison; Union, Chester A. Arthur, and Alleghaney, William McKinley. Rutherford B. Hayes attended Kenyon before going to Harvard for his law course.

To get down to the record, however, here is a list of the presidents of the United States and their respective colleges, if any:

George Washington, none; John Adams, Harvard; Jefferson, William and Mary; Madison, Princeton; Monroe, William and Mary; John Quincy Adams, Harvard; Jackson, none; Van Buren, none; William Henry Harrison, Hampden-Sydney; John Tyler, William and Mary; James K. Polk, University of North Carolina; Zachary Taylor, none; Millard Fillmore, none; Franklin Pierce, Bowdoin; James Buchanan, Dickinson; Lincoln, none; Johnson, none; Grant, West Point; Hayes, Kenyon college and Harvard; James A. Garfield, Williams; Chester A. Arthur, Union; Grover Cleveland, none; Benjamin Harrison, Miami university; William McKinley; Theodore Roosevelt, Harvard; William H. Taft, Yale and Cincinnati law school; Wilson, Princeton, Virginia and Johns Hopkins; Harding, Ohio Central college; Coolidge, Amherst; Hoover, Stanford; Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harvard and Columbia law school.

BOOK REVIEW

By Alvin Chapman

"THE PRODIGAL PARENTS"
By Sinclair Lewis

Sinclair Lewis takes, generally, a character for his hero who typifies some class in the American social scheme. In "The Prodigal Parents" he does that again, having Fred Cornplow, a member of the upper middle class, as his hero. At present this novel is number one on the best-selling fiction list; nevertheless, it does not come up to standards set by other works of the author, such as "Main Street," "Arrowsmith," and "Babbitt." The author's reputation, no doubt, has aided the sales. In some spots it provides interesting entertainment, but the reader must not begin it expecting too much.

The story: Fred Cornplow, an automobile dealer in Sachem Falls, N. Y., is under the domination of his daughter and his son. Their antics and constant demand for money nearly drives him mad. First, they turn Communist, expecting him to finance a newspaper to support their cause. Then, Fred, Jr., wants his father to give him an easy job, after he has married and left college, much against the wishes of Fred, Sr. Sarah, the daughter, then demands to be set up in the interior decorating business. To top it all, an obscure cousin comes to stay with Fred, bringing his wife and six children with him. Tired of it all, he practically kidnaps his wife and sneaks off to New England for a vacation. Fred, Jr., and Sarah promptly find him and bring him back. But having had one taste of freedom, he wants more. This time he and his wife go to Europe. Upon returning to America, he finds Sarah married and Fred, Jr., recovering from a three-months drunk. He decides then and there that they can't get along without him; so he will stay home from now on.

"Miss Clinton" To Be Selected

College Dramatic Club to Present Pageant April 12th In Which Young Lady Will Be Selected For State-Wide Contest.

The P. C. Dramatic club is sponsoring a program consisting of three contests to be held in the Florida Street school auditorium on Tuesday evening, April 12th, at eight o'clock.

There will be a beauty pageant and a young lady will be selected to go as "Miss Clinton" to the state beauty pageant which will be held in the township auditorium in Columbia in June. "Miss Clinton" will have all expenses paid while competing for the title, "Miss South Carolina." Miss South Carolina will then be outfitted with a complete wardrobe and have all expenses paid while she is entertained for a week at Atlantic City's annual beauty pageant competing for the title "Miss America." "Miss Americe" will be given an opportunity to go on the stage, radio, and will be given a trip to Hollywood and screen tests by all of the major studios. Each contestant must be sponsored by some local individual, organization or firm, and the contest is open to all young ladies under twenty-eight years of age. No married women or divorcees are eligible, and no contestant will be allowed to appear in a bathing suit in the contest.

Of interest to all talented local people should be the talent contest which is also being held in connection with the beauty pageant. Any talented person or group of persons who have possibilities for stage or radio is eligible. The winner will receive all expenses while competing at the state contest, and the state winner will be given an opportunity for a stage and radio career.

The third feature of Tuesday's program will be a "Kiddie Parade," which is open to all children from two to twelve years of age. The winning child will receive a beautiful engraved loving cup.

These contests are being staged by the National Talent and Beauty Scouting Corporation under the personal supervision of Miss Grace Brown, and under the auspices of the P. C. Dramatic club.

Movies For the Week

At The Casino

Monday and Tuesday: A sophisticated comedy, "The Awful Truth," starring Irene Dunne, Cary Grant and Ralph Bellamy. On the same program appears "News of the Day."

Wednesday and Thursday: Another cop thriller. "Sergeant Murphy," with Ronald Reagon, Mary Maguire and Donald Crisp. On the same bill is "Sh! The Octopus" with Hugh Herbert, Allen Jenkins, and Marcia Ralston. Herbert should provide some laughs, and Jenkins will not be tragically dramatic.

The featured short is a "Walt Disney Review," which is a composite of the best Disney productions which won him the academy award.

At The Broadway

Monday and Tuesday: "The Baroness and the Butler," with inimitable William Powell, Annabella, and Helen Westley. A perfect team of mad moderns in one of the best comedy situations of the year. Also on the same program will be "The Candid Kid" and Porky at Crockadero," two entertaining shorts.

Wednesday and Thursday: "Bulldog Drummond's Revenge" brings back fiction's detective in a thrill packed saga with John Barrymore, John Howard, and Louise Campbell. Completing this double-feature bill is a boxing enigma with Alan Lane, Heather Angel, and Genevieve Tobin. The title is "The Duke Comes Back."

Friday and Saturday: A super-dynamic, corral opera entitled "Lightning Crandell," with Bob Steele as principal and Lois January supporting him.

Welcome to P. C., Press Conventionites!

To all editors, officials and invited guests of the South Carolina Scholastic Press Association, we extend to you a sincere and hearty welcome to our campus.

You have chosen the season of the year during which the campus is most beautiful. Standing at the entrance to the Plaza you can look down an avenue of verdant loveliness to where the dome of the Administration building rears its silver peak into the azure setting beyond.

We suggest that you make a point of obtaining this view during the morning of your first day here, for a very special reason. Here at P. C. that vista has come to represent, as near as anything can, the spirit of P. C.: looking ever forward and upward toward the dome that is the goal of our ambitions; the peak of our cherished attainments that pierces the boundless blue sky of our hopes, where lie the ideals toward which we have set our steps. All great accomplishments have been achieved by men who had first a dream or a vision of their goal which inspired them to dare to attain it.

We appeal to you, then, at the beginning of your convention, to share this inspiration with us. Let it represent the high ideals in journalistic achievement whcih you have set your steps, and it will become a dream possible of realization.

We hope that your stay here at the college and in Clinton will be most pleasant. The staff of The Blue Stocking will be at your command during your visit here, but also is the entire student body. Do not feel reluctant at any time to ask a favor, however small, of any of us. None of us have the pedantic sophistication of "Joseph P. College," nor the scatterbrained eagerness of a "Joe College."

This is a friendly school. We want you to remember this while you are here, and we believe your visit here will be a memory that will linger continually in your mind until it again becomes a reality when you register at the college of your choice next year.

The Melody Lingers On

To the members of the South Carolina Scholastic Press Association and to our own student body we offer this thought: The greatest thing, the most heart-warming experience that a man or a woman can get out of college is the respect and admiration which, translated into the language of love and affection, means the friendship of those with whom he is associated. It is this experience that goes on long after many academic phases of college life are forgotten, and longer after "rah-rah" episodes have ceased to exist in our minds. This is the thing that a college should instire its students of attaining by creating an atmosphere that tends to inspire such friendly association. Perhaps an illustration will more clearly explain what we mean.

The musician Hoffman said, "It is melody that is first in music, and affects human feelings with marvelous magic power. It can not be repeated too often. Dull, without expressive melody, every organ, aided by instrumentation is nothing but a noisy confusion. The best definition of true friendship, in a higher sense, is something that must be expressed and shared. Friendship should be love in itself, and as such should flow freely and spontaneously from the human heart. Melody which cannot be sung in that way is nothing more than a succession of individual sounds which strive in vain to become music."

Friendship, then, is first in college experiences. It affects human feelings with marvelous and magic power. It cannot be repeated too often, that, without expressive friendship, every new contact added by daily association is nothing but sham and pretense. The best definition of true friendship, in a higher sense, is something that must be expressed and shared. Friendship should be love in itself, and as such should flow freely and spontaneously from the human heart. Friendship which cannot be expressed in that way is nothing more than a succession of individual experiences which strive in vain to become friendship.

It is not to be thought for a moment that such experience can be had in every college or university, nor can the full benefit of it be found in any one institution; but it is to be seen more in one type of college than in another.

The college where there is a full program of extra-curricular activity, and an interesting intramural program, in which everyone can, and does, feel free to participate, is the college where the most lasting friendships are formed.

In the small college this is entirely possible. The student soon finds that instead of being able to engage in only one activity that, due to the small number of students, he can now take part in a varied program which adds various contacts and results in interesting, sincere friendships.

Then, it is this kind of relationship that also makes it easier for the student to form a lasting friendship with his professors as well. Not having such a large number of students with which to attempt to make personal contacts, the professor finds time to know those he teaches, He can offer the kind of advice that means everything because it comes from a friend.

You of the press convention keep this in mind while you are here. Talk to the students and the professors themselves and ask them what this kind of personal contact, this kind of interesting friendship means while one is trying to prepare oneself for a world in which a friend may mean all the difference between success and failure.

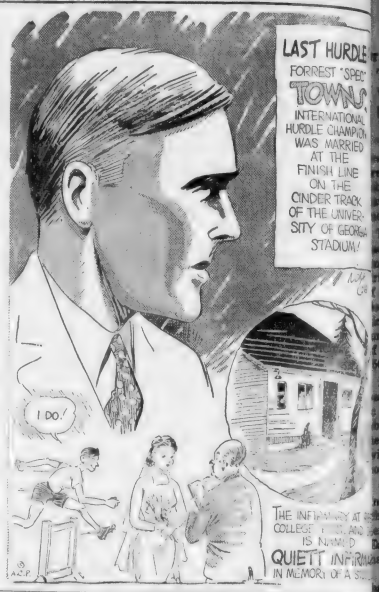
CADET SGT. T. Q. JONES, JR.

Cadet Master Sergeant C. B. Holcombe announced last week that the contest which the juniors are sponsoring to decide the best-drilled cadet will begin on the Tuesday following inspection. Due to the fact that there is only a short time left before inspection and so many final details to clear up the contest can not be held before inspection, as was previously planned. With the present arrangement it will be easy for anyone to take advantage of the opportunity to study for inspection and the contest at the same time.

T. Q. Jones, Jr.

Last week it was learned that Sergeant Comstock, who recently came to P. C. from Fort Benning, Ga., is an authority on the machine gun. For the past five years has been an instructor to the officers' classes at Fort Benning. He is very friendly and is always willing to help cadets with any problem that he can. His ready spirit of cooperation makes him a valuable asset to the military department personnel.

The war department recently announced that all officers stationed at army posts will be required to have a blue uniform for dress by October of this year. However, officers that are stationed at colleges and other schools will not be required to have the blue uniform. The present uniforms will not be changed, as they will be worn, as they have been in the past, for every-day use, one might say.



Of all the military organizations on the campus the band is probably the most unappreciated of them all. So we can readily see why Cadet First Sergeant Heckle would make the following statement to the members of the band: "Fellows, don't let the remarks of people about how you play bother you. Just tell them that you are a band that dares to be different." They no doubt believe in following the policy that the school has adopted. At this time let us say that the band deserves a lot of credit and also a vote of thanks from the student body for playing at the flag day celebration and other athletic events. (Editor's note. Unanimous!)

A course for parents of University of Washington students, believed the only one of its kind in the United States, has become a success in its second year, but it is limited to fathers of freshmen only. Fourteen years ago, students at Oxford University had their parents attend lectures on government.

A "date" agency is in force at the University of Wyoming where students may obtain names of girls who have registered at the agency. Students may request a blind date with a girl who has registered at the agency. The agency keeps a file of girls' names and addresses and the type of boy they want to meet. Each girl is given a number and when a boy requests a date with a girl he is given the number of the girl he is to call. The agency does not guarantee dates.

THE RIOT
or
Who Got It?

The sun shone on the snow, giving it a glittering effect. The little Scotch town lay in tranquil peace. Here and there the daily shoppers hurried, but there was not the hustle and bustle of the usual Saturday in Ishkan.

Mike walked along the street in the snow, shivering, pausing to blow his hands or pass out an occasional greeting to one of the town folk. He stopped for a moment in front of the cigar store to look at a display of new pipes. As he turned to walk away there was a sudden loud noise behind him and the sound of rushing feet deafened him. Out of nowhere a huge mob had gathered, and there in that peaceful little town was a mad scramble. Mike hurried back to the growing crowd, but no matter how he struggled to get through the crowd his efforts were in vain. Fists began to fly, everywhere could be seen these usually peaceful Scotsmen beating each other with sticks, bricks, and what-not.

Then suddenly, as it had begun, the thing ended. The mob began to thin out, everyone going his way. But there were signs to show there had been a riot. Blood stained the once-white snow, broken sticks and bruised bricks were scattered hither and yon. Here and there could be seen stray teeth, ears, and the snow was trampled as if by an army.

Suddenly Mike reached his hand in his pocket, found a bob. "Begorra," he thought, "me last nickel, too!"

To a Roommate

Curses! Golly! What a guy
'Tis room with. Say, why even I
Don't smare that loud. He really sounds
Like Nippons bombing Chinese towns
And all my clothes, the dirty rat,
He wears them, all except my hat.
He tells me it's a major crime
For me to wear it all the time.
Such nerve! But wait, I've more regrets.
He's mooched a million cigarettes
From me. He's just a parasite.
He lives off me both day and night.
And when I begin to study
He comes in, sees me, say "goody."
And starts to play the radio.
Aw, geez, aw hertz! I hate him so.
I would that he was killed to death.
To breathe no more a living breath!
But I guess it was my fate
To have to live with my roommate.

PHILADELPHIA DOWNS HOSE

Connie Mack's Athletics Victorious In Exhibition Game Here Thursday, 17 to 4. Local Nine No Match for Big Leaguers.

With Wally Moses and Paul Easterling pacing the way, the Philadelphia Athletics of the American League defeated the Presbyterian nine by the score of 17 to 4 Thursday in a game witnessed by several thousand baseball enthusiasts of the Piedmont section and the surrounding communities.

Ben Christian started on the mound for the Hose and Bill Kalfass for the Athletics. The Mackmen got to Christian for three runs in the first on two bases on balls, Moses' first hit, a single by Werber, and some fancy base running. McGregor relieved Christian in the second after he had issued a pass to Kalfass and Moses cracked out the first of two doubles. Hits by Werber and Parker sent four runs across the plate in this canto. Wally Moses swung into one of McGregor's fast balls and sent it riding high and far over the distant right-field barrier for the only home run the A's were able to bat out. Doubles by Moses, Easterling and Hayes, and a base on balls, gave the Athletics three more runs in the fourth. McGregor and Reid slipped up on Moses in this inning and caught him napping at second. Singles by Parker and Easterling, and Ambler's two-base hit gave the Philly team two runs in the fifth frame.

Hayes hit a long double in the sixth and scored the only run in that inning when Moses got his fifth straight hit, a single to centerfield. Parker and Easterling hit doubles to produce another tally in the seventh, and Moses gained life on an error in the eighth and scored the 17th and final run on Ambler's double.

P. C. was held to one hit until the eighth by the left-hand slants of Kalfass, but Shorty Horne opened the inning with a mighty wallop to centerfield which enabled him to complete the circuit for the second home run of the game. Folley and Reid drew "Annie Oakleys" and Batchelor sent Folley home with a single to centerfield. In the ninth Horne got his third hit of the game on a well-placed bunt, went to second on Hasson's error, stole third, and scored on Werber's error of the throw to catch him. Mabry walked, stole second, went to third on Ambler's error and scored the final run of the game on a passed ball.

Moses, with a home run, two doubles and two singles; Easterling, with two doubles and two singles; Parker, with two singles and a double, and hitting stars for the A's. Kalfass hitting stars for the As. Kalfass struck out 13, gave up five hits, and 10 bases on balls in a nice exhibition on the mound.

Shorty Horne, with a home run and two singles; Batchelor and Blackwell, with a single each, did the hitting for the Hose. Trigger Ritch did some fancy fielding in center, and Reid and Horne pulled two double plays around the second sack. Christian, McGregor and Commander worked on the mound for the Blue Hose and did some very creditable work. Commander shut the A's out in the ninth.

The game was more interesting than the score might indicate, as the major leaguers put on a fancy show and gave the fans and players a lesson in how the national game should be played.

Newberry Nine Swamps Hosemen

Hitting three P. C. pitchers hard, the Newberry Indians defeated the Blue Hose Saturday, 9 to 3, in a game played in football weather.

Newberry scored in the third inning when Fasold singled and scored on a long fly ball by Ringer which Ritch let fall through his hands in the fourth, Batchelor's error, Debruhl's single, Fasold's double and Gilbreath's single produced three more runs. McIntosh singled in the seventh, stole second, and scored on a single by Thurman. In the sixth, Gilbreath doubled and scored on a long fly by Ringer. Newberry scored three in the ninth on McIntosh's single, theft of second, a double by Burnett, Dubruhl's double and Gilbreath's single.

P. C. waited until the eighth to do any scoring but in this inning Atkinson hit a long double near the right field fence and scored on Thurman's error. Batchelor sent out another two-base hit after Reid had gained life on Thurman's error and both scored on Mabry's single.

Gilbreath with four hits, Debruhl with two doubles, and the 7-hit pitching of Simpson led the Indians to their victory. For P. C., the hitting of Mabry with three hits, Batchelor with two, and a double by Atkinson was outstanding.

The Presbyterians will play Erskine on the local diamond Friday at 4 o'clock.

PRESBYTERIANS TAKE OPENER

First Collegiate Baseball Tilt of Season With Carolina Results In 5-4 Victory for Hose.

By BROOKS SHELDON

Presbyterian college successfully opened its defense of the Palmetto league championship last Monday by defeating the Gamecocks from South Carolina in an exciting eighth-inning rally. The final score found the Calvinists on the long end of a 5-4 count.

Prior to the game an impressive flag-raising ceremony was held in which Major Trammel Scott, of Atlanta, president of the Southern association, and other notables took part.

The Blue Hose got off to a bad start, making two errors in the first inning and one in the second. DuBose, however, pulled out with some fine pitching, allowing but one run. Carolina got two in the sixth on two hits and two errors. Erwin made a beautiful catch to stop the rally in the sixth inning. The Gamecocks took advantage of an error and a clean hit to push over another tally in the eighth frame.

Tabor held the Calvinists to two scratch hits until the eighth inning. Then P. C. caught on to him and tied the score with four runs. Blackwell walked ,and was forced by Folley, pinch hitting for DuBose. Horne walked, and Ritch forced him, advancing Folley to third. Bo-Gator Atkinson drove a safety to right, scoring Folley and sending Ritch to third. Then Mac Reid laid one over the left-fielder's head for a double, scoring Ritch and Atkinson. This was too much for Tabor, and McCrary came to his relief. Batchelor scored Reid with a single to center, his second hit of the game. The rally ended when Erwin struck out, but the score was tied at 4 all.

In the last of the ninth, Moore walked to start the fireworks. Blackwell hit to short, but both runners were safe on a miscue by the Carolina shortstop. Then McGregor, who was subbing for DuBose on the mound, beat out an infield hit to fill the bases. Horne flew out to short center, but Ritch drew a base on balls to push Moore across with the winning run.

Frosh Win First Game Of Season

The P. C. freshman baseball team won their first game of the season Tuesday from the fast Joanna team of the Mid-State league, 4 to 3.

The features of the game were the pitching of three frosh hurlers, and the stickwork of McLaughlin, flashy little centerfielder. Castleberry started off for the frosh and struck out the first three men to face him. He added two more to his credit in the next two innings, and did not allow a hit or a run. Butler took the hill in the fourth, and gave up one hit and two bases on balls, which netted two tallies for Joanna. McCutcheon relieved him in the sixth, and gave up one hit and another run. Joanna secured a total of two hits off of their combined mound tenures.

The frosh scored twice in the second on two errors and McLaughlin's straight single. In the fourth McLaughlin hit a long home run to centerfield and crossed the plate behind Pitcher Butler for the fourth and final run. The frosh secured five hits from Hair, with McLaughlin leading the attack with two singles and a home run. Butler and McSween secured the other hits for the yearlings.

R. Abrams and Hair smashed out Joanna's two hits, Hair's going for two bases.

DISPLAY CASE SHOWS WRITE-UP OF PROGRAM HELD HERE LAST YEAR

There has been placed in the display case in the library a double-page layout of a write-up put out by radio station WBT, Charlotte, N. C., concerning the conferring of honorary degrees on the former ambassador to Russia, Joseph E. Davies, Dwight Austin, and Senator James F. Byrnes. This has been placed in the case along with the copy of the invitation sent out for the conferring of the degrees which contains the autographs of the three men as well as others.

The write-up emphasized the uniqueness of conferring degrees by radio as only one of the three recipients was able to be present here, as the other two men were prevented by injuries.

Much criticism has been cast in the direction of our pitching staff this year. This column wishes to remind these critics that for a group of young sophomore hurlers, facing their first collegiate duties, they have done remarkably well. DuBose let the hard-hitting Carolina team down with nine scattered hits and four runs in eight innings, and McGregor allowed only one batter to reach first, that being the result of a base on balls. They are coming around, so let's make our critics constructive instead of destructive. It will aid the morale of the entire team.

Connie Mack's A's were the only team to beat the Yankees six straight games, or one whole series, last summer. Pitcher Ross shut them out with two hits in one of the games in that series.

Tennis Is Popular Sport In Clinton

Number of Excellent Courts Available for Numerous Followers of Game.

By Tench Owens in "The Sports Chatterbox," in The Clinton Chronicle.

Came the spring—and tennis. The beauty of our fair town is enhanced by a number of tennis courts dotted here, there and about. And we notice that these courts are usually occupied by young people enjoying a game of tennis, getting a lot of sunshine, and having a good time in general. All of which we insist is a very good thing.

Clinton is noted throughout the Piedmont section for its tennis courts and for the wide interest in tennis. Our courts are kept up by the town and electricity for the splendid lighting systems installed on several courts is supplied free by the town. We are fortunate that this is so and should do all that we can in the upbuilding of this sport in Clinton.

Soon, competition on the tennis ladder will begin. The annual city tournament will be held this summer with championship cups to enliven interest. South Carolina's best in intercollegiate circles will converge on Clinton for the state tournament at P. C. in May. Next fall, the annual clinic will draw still more tennis players of the better brand to Clinton. High school and college matches will be held here every few days until the end of school. Another city team probably will be organized and hold matches during the summer. No other town that we know of will have so much tennis as Clinton.

GEORGIA DOWNS P. C. TRACK MEN

Local Outfit Bows To Superior Aggregation Here Monday. Score Was 86 to 37.

In a track meet that had been postponed for two days due to inclement weather conditions, Coach Lonnie McMillians varsity fell victims to a powerful University of Georgia aggregation here Monday on Johnson field. P. C. showed up well despite the 86-37 score and was able to take three firsts and four seconds from the strongest track team in the South.

Fredericksen, Gillespie, and Lumpkin bettered the South Carolina state records in the mile, 880, and the shot put, respectively. Georgia's ace miler handed Rawls his first defeat, covering the distance in 4:28.3. Gillespie won the 880 in the fast time of 1:58.5, and Quinton Lumpkin, Georgia's weight man, tried to push the 16-pound shot off the field, getting a distance of 45 feet, 3 inches.

Duke Reynolds and Macon Hipp were Presbyterian's star performers, the former taking frist in the high hurdles and second in the low hurdles, and the latter winning first in the javelin and second in the discus. Rawls deserves much credit for taking second place in the 880 and the mile. Bill McSween and Yank Beeman shared first honors in the pole vault event, both soaring to a height of 11 feet, 6 inches. Fredericksen, Gillespie, Lumpkin, Hunnicutt, and Arnold, were standouts for the Georgians.

Summary of the meet:

Mile run: Fredericksen (Ga.), Rawls (PC). Time, 4:28.3.

440-yard run: Gillespie (Ga.), Matthews (Ga.), Gibbs (PC). Time, 52.4.

100-yard dash: Hunnicutt (Ga.), Stephens (Ga.), Cole (PC). Time, 9.9.

MARTHA DENDY HAS SERVED COLLEGE BOYS FOR FIFTY YEARS

the college has ever had. And Martha should know. She has seen all of them come and go. "He's just like his grandpappy," she exclaimed, "always doing something for other people and his boys at the college."

When questioned about the students of today as compared to students of other days, she found it necessary to base her decision upon the actions of the present "dorm" students and said, "Younger generation goin' to the dogs. I've had 'em go down fire escapes and hide in closets to get out of paying for their washing." (She confessed she had the most trouble in Spencer dormitory where, as she would come in one door of a suite, she would hear the other door close softly as some bankrupt young gentleman crept silently into the darkened corridors). But in spite of everything, we could see in her eyes a devotion for "the young college men" which death alone will cut short.

Because of her belief in higher education, Martha has given seven of her children full college educations.

When money was being raised to build Presbyterian college, Mr. M. S. Bailey asked Young Dendy, Martha's husband, how much he would give toward the establishment of a permanent institution. He promised five dollars and paid his pledge when called upon.

Martha, herself, has contributed several times to the PaC-SaC. She is what might be called a silent advertiser. In connection with her financial relations with the school and its students, she informed us that at one time a young gentleman owed her for forty washes when he graduated. Her trust in him was realized when he later paid her the entire debt. Many times she has loaned as much as five dollars to students who have become over-ambitious with their weekly allowances and have suddenly been faced with a disastrous situation such as a prom or the arrival of a week-end date on the campus.

Martha is indeed a tradition at Presbyterian college. We asked her what help she had in taking care of her numerous washings. "Only two," she said as she held up her hands. No wash-tub hands for Martha, even thought she has seen the dawn of a half century of P college washdays.

"I'll die working for our college," she said as she opened the door to leave. In one hand she held a laundry bag full of clothes. In the other she held a second bag. She nodded her head in a friendly "au revoir" and closed the door. Her feet could be heard shuffling down the corridor as she started back to her home and washboard.

"Wash day and pay day": Martha Dendy's slogan for the rest of her century as official washerwoman at Presbyterian college.

ing year. "We want the students to have more say-so in matters which come before the council. It is their student body and should be run as they see fit. We will try to adhere to the constitution as strictly as possible. We hope our administration will be as successful as the ones in the past, but if at any time any student thinks we aren't doing our duty we shall be glad for him to come to us about it. We hope, however, that our actions will satisfy the student body at all times."

In regard to the subject of dishonesty in college work which caused comment in January, Holcombe said:

Holcombe finished by saying: "I am especially satisfied with the boys serving with me on the council and I think they are all fine fellows."

Thus ended an interesting and friendly interview with Presbyterian's first citizen, Holcombe of Charleston, a great athlete and greater student leader.

Tennis Coach

WILLIAM C. LUFLER

Lufler To Spend Very Busy Week

Junior Davis Cup Squads Promotion Will Occuply Time of Local Instructor.

Pictured above is William C. Lufler, instructor in tennis at Presbyterian college, instructor for the Carolinas junior Davis cup teams, and one of the leading young professionals of the South.

Mr. Lufler this week is sending five of his Presbyterian college players to the North-South tournament at Pinehurst, N. C., and is utilizing the rest period which this tournament gives him to begin training work for the junior Davis cup squads of the two Carolinas. During the coming week he will organize and coach a city team in various North Carolina cities. On Tuesday he will be in Charlotte, where he will work with Clayton Burwell, chairman of the junior Davis cup committee in that city. On Wednesday he will be in Winston-Salem to organize a team. On Thursday he will be in Asheville, working with that city's junior Davis cup chairman, Richard Covington.

The purpose of the junior Davis cup committee is to give training in fundamentals of the game and in tournament play to capable and interested young tennis players all over the nation in order to supply material for the Davis cup teams.

President William P. Jacobs of Presbyterian college is chairman of the junior Davis cup committee for the two Carolinas and a member of the junior Davis cup committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association.

Dr. H. S. Fish To Teach In the East During Summer

Head of Biology Department Will Leave For New England Soon After School Closes.

Dr. Harold S. Fish, at the close of the school year, will leave for North Woodstock, New Hampshire, where he will teach zoology at the New Hampshire Nature camp duuring the first two sessions.

The school has its objective the teaching and training of teachers, scout leaders, camp councillors and club organizers in the field of nature study and the imparting of knowledge to others.

Most of the work is actual observing as it is carried on in the field with occasional trips to the surrounding country.

Dr. Fish has completed the course he expects to give this summer and if successful he will continue the use of it in the classroom when he returns this fall. The course is made up of mimeographed compendiums of which each member of the class has a copy.

The school is located at the Lost River reservation in New Hampshire and is an ideal location for nature study.

Work Progresses On Hunter Home

Work is progressing rapidly on the one-story brick veneer home of John H. Hunter, college business manager, which will face Calhoun street, directly back of Spencer dormitory.

The seven-room bungalow will be completed around June 1, according to plans of the architect, Mr. Hunter told a Blue Stocking reporter today.

Mr. Hunter couldn't resist making the following remark when asked by the reporter whether he planned a housewarming upon completion of the house: "I am rushing construction in order to have the house-warming before school closes in order to invite all the college boys — each one to bring a piece of furniture."

a great deal to me because I found that one can get something from them which he does not get from mere attendance at regular classes. You have an opportunity to get other people's views as well as those of the professors', and to express your own ideas and convictions."

HUBERT PAUL, recently elected junior member of the student council, said: "The group discussions which I have attended were quite interesting, and I believe they bring about closer relations between the faculty members and students. I hope that the administration will be able to develop the system even more thoroughly within the next few years, for it is a system which can be of great benefit to every man on the campus who takes part in it."

"PETE" HOLCOMBE, president of the student body and alternate captain of next year's football squad, stated: "I recently attended several of Doctor Jones' psychology forums and thoroughly enjoyed them. Particularly in a subject such as psychology, you can learn a great deal from group discussions which cannot be learned from a book."

BECKMAN MAKES GIFT TO LIBRARY

Rev. L. A. Beckman, graduate of P. C. in the class of '15, now a resident of Ellisville, Miss., today sent a scrapbook of Carolinana and also 12 issues of South Carolina historical and genealogical magazines to the college library. Willard L. Jones, librarian, announced this morning.

Delta Chi Alpha Adds Four Men

Four students were initiated into Gamma chapter of the Delta Chi Alpha fraternity Thursday night. They were: J. S. Waikup, Aiken Taylor, E. H. Overcash, W. G. Summerville. There are twelve members in the local chapter.

Delta Chi Alpha is a national Christian leadership fraternity, organized at the University of South Carolina in 1928 by a group of sincere, earnest Christian young men, then members of the Thornwell Service club at that institution. The fraternity originated from a suggestion made by John White, a member of the club, that "Ministerial students needed a fraternity or brotherhood through which they could serve Christ on the college campus." At the meeting of the Thornwell Service club, February 8, 1928, the interest and efforts of these young men resulted in the organization of the Delta Chi Alpha. Then the effort was made to place the fraternity before the ministerial students of other college campuses in South Carolina. Other chapters were organized and Delta Chi Alpha has proven a valuable stimulus to ministerial students.

Cliff McLeod is national president of the organization, and Virgil St. John is president of Gamma Chapter.

Library Service Shows Increase

That the library is probably the fastest growing and most widely used department of Presbyterian college under its personalized system of education is the obvious conclusion to be drawn from a set of circulation statistics recently released by Librarian Willard L. Jones.

The library now has over one-eighth again as many catalogued volumes as it had six months ago, or its number of actual catalogued volumes has increased by 13 per cent in six months. Under the new program the library is increasing more than four times as fast as it previously was, for the average increase for full twelve-month periods for the preceding three years has been only six per cent.

Over this six months period the total circulation of the library has been 22.1 books for each of Presbyterian college's students, or an average of one out of every five students reading a book a day. The highest single daily circulation during the period was one book for each 2.8 students.

The literature section, which includes essays, belle-lettres, and classical works, constituted almost 20 per cent of the books checked out of the library. Modern fiction was next with 15 per cent, a drop of almost five per cent over literature.

Pushing closely on the heels of fiction came philosophy and religion with a circulation percentage of 14.5 per cent. The section on history, biography, and travel constituted 13.7 per cent of the circulation, with sociology by .4 of one per cent behind it.

These five divisions represent three-fourths of the reading done from the college library.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

By FRED ALLEN

During the past several years the local R.O.T.C. unit has done exceptionally well in all its inspections and has won many medals and ribbons in the annual camp activities held at Anniston, Alabama. For that reason, and because this is the "military" issue of The Blue Stocking, we thought it would be in keeping to ask some of the "soldier boys" for their views on R.O.T.C. training. We put this question to them:

"What has the R.O.T.C. training you have received here at Presbyterian college meant to you?"

Cadet Colonel Ashby Johnson was the first man we engaged in conversation and here is what he said: "I consider the time taken by drills and military classes has been very well spent. I have enjoyed it all, because I have felt that I was learning so many things that will be of value to me in the future, and the R.O.T.C. has given me greater pride in my school and government."

Next, we saw Cadet Lieutenant Colonel C. L. Anderson. It was evident from his remarks that he likes the army. He said, "It has given me a keener insight into the real army life and has made me respect the army more. I have learned that to be able to give orders, I must first learn to take them. R.O.T.C. training has also given me a fuller realization of my duties as a citizen. I'm not in favor of progressive warfare, but I support this training as a defense

P. C. Debaters Defeat Hampden-Sydney College

E. A. Johnson and C. H. McLeod Win Decision In Home Tilt.

VIRGINIA MEN ON SOUTHERN TOUR

Upholding the negative side of the question, "Resolved, that the national labor relations board should be empowered to enforce arbitration in all labor disputes," E. A. Johnson and C. H. McLeod defeated debaters from Hampden-Sydney college here Saturday night after spirited argument by both teams.

Malcolm Campbell and Bert Gartrell, who composed the Hampden-Sydney forensic team, stopped by P. C. on their return to Virginia after an extensive Southern tour of leading colleges. The poise and technique, characteristic of experienced debaters, was evident throughout their speeches.

Chairman of the date was R. F. Hutchinson, manager of the P. C. forensic group, and judges for the debate were Dr. Marshall W. Brown, dean of the college; W. E. Monts, superintendent of the Clinton city schools, and Dr. D. J. Woods, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Clinton.

P. C. Delegation Gives Program

Y. M. C. A. Deputation Leads Service At Converse.

The Y. M. C. A. deputation team presented a program before a large group of students at Converse college, Spartanburg, Wednesday evening.

Wandell Williams, M. C. Patterson and Hubert Wardlaw spoke on the theme, "The Three Ways That We May Find God." The quartet, consisting of Roy McSpratt, Malcolm Hemphill, Harris Gray and Hubert Wardlaw, rendered several selections.

The members of the team reported that the program was well received by the Converse girls.

Johnson Comments On Corps Inspection

Student Commander Says "Esprit de Corps" Will Be Deciding Factor In Outcome.

"Company drill and ceremony are the best since I've been at P. C.,, Cadet Colonel E. A. Johnson told a reporter for The Blue Stocking when questioned concerning the present condition and appearance of the R. O. T. C. battalion.

Johnson, who has always stood "head and shoulders" above his military classmates during the four years that he has been a cadet here, due to his excellent military record, is the most qualified of all cadets to judge the condition of the battalion this year as compared with other years.

"The practical nature of the inspection tomorrow puts a premium on the type of training the men have received," said Colonel Johnson, "and I believe that Tuesday evening will come with the corps having retained the honor rating it has always held."

As a parting remark of the interview, Johnson, with his characteristic frankness and sincerity, stressed the importance of "esprit de corps" as a deciding factor in the results of the annual inspection by these words, "After all, the battalion will accomplish what the men themselves want to accomplish tomorrow."

PI KAPPA ALPHA HAS UNUSUAL SOCIAL

Varying from the usual type of social, the local chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha, national fraternity, journeyed with their dates to Lone Beach springs, near Clinton, for a weiner roast before a dance social later in the evening in their rooms on the campus, to which members of other campus fraternities were invited last Friday night.

ANNUAL GOVERNMENT TESTS BEGIN TUESDAY MORNING

Will Be Concluded In Afternoon With Sham Battle As Feature of Day's Work.

MAJOR C. C. LOUGHLIN OFFICER IN CHARGE

Beginning with a formal inspection following a parade and review at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning, Major Charles C. Loughlin, commandant at Wofford college, Spartanburg, will conduct the annual government inspection of the R. O. T. C. battalion, which will be continued through the afternoon when a sham battle will conclude the day's activities.

In cooperation with the program of the military department, the administration announced suspension of all classes on Tuesday, Dean Marshall W. Brown informed The Blue Stocking today.

Major F. C. Harding, commandant of the battalion here, recently announced plans for the annual inspection which call for a full day's program following the early morning parade, review and formal inspection, which will include demonstrations of infantry drill, calisthenics, first aid, map reading, aerial photography reading, and the principles of the automatic rifle.

All this week combat units of the battalion have been inspecting the wooded area beyond Smyth dormitory in preparation for a practical problem illustrating the principles and weapons involved in actual combat of infantry units. The exact details of the combat or sham battle, in all prabability, will not be known until the problem begins tomorrow afternoon.

On several occasions Major Harding has emphasized in talks to the battalion the importance of every man correctly doing his part. He has further indicated that if this fact is remembered there is very reason to believe that the battalion will retain the rank of "excellent" which will entitle it to wear the blue star indicative of the honor military units of the nation.

MRS. BROWN RETURNS

Mrs. Lillian Gross Brown, college registrar, returned to her office this morning after an illness of several weeks.

Mrs. Brown, who is the wife of Dean Marshall W. Brown, has held the position as college registrar for several years.

REPORTER SEPARATES FACT FROM RUMOR IN INTERVIEW WITH MILITARY HEADS

In an attempt to separate rumor from fact, and to learn a few things of great importance to the battalion concerning spring and summer plans of the military department, your reporter invaded the sacred precincts of the military office, and dared the wrath of the "powers that be" in order to bring you in your military issue of The Blue Stocking some information about which you have probably wondered for quite a while.

As luck would have it, we found both majors in the office at the same time, so we began to put our questions to both, thereby doubling our chances of getting an answer.

"When did you first enter the army?" we asked Major Harding, and he replied, "I first entered the service in 1916 during the war and served for a while on the Mexican border." Following the war he attended the infantry school in 1922 and 1923. As for his later service record, we learned that he has been beneath Uncle Sam's olive drab and flag in the the infantry school in 1922 and 1923. Philippines, Porto Rico, and China, on foreign duty, and in the States at Forts Snelling, Minn.; Cook, Neb.; Leavenworth, Kan.; Lewis, Wash., and Mead, Maryland. Before coming here he saw four years' duty at the University of Nebraska.

Now as to news in which the junior military class will be most interested: They will be able to compete for the general proficiency cup this summer at camp despite the fact that men on a non-pay basis will not go to Anniston with the other 2s. As to whether he would go to camp with the juniors this summer, the Major answered in the negative. As for the junior over-night hike, the commandant said that it would be made to the same place as in former years before May 14.

Major Harding will not return to P. C. next year, but will be transferred to Fort Hays, Columbus, Ohio, where he will see duty with the quartermaster's corps.

As for his successor, Major Harding stated that, in all probability, Major Cummings would be professor of military science and tactics here next year, although this has not been

Duty

Robert E. Lee declared "duty" to be the sublimest word in any language. A high sense of duty has always been one of the noblest as well as the most exacting ideal of man. Whether that duty be to God, country, family, or self, its courageous fulfillment is the mark of character and good citizenship.

We are constantly faced with the problem of deciding wherein our primary duty lies. Present civilization has envolved us in many social contacts, each of which has its claim upon energies and interests. It is not unusual to find conflicts in the requirements and calls upon us for service from these varied responsibilities.

The obligation of citizenship is a duty which has been brought to the forefront repeatedly in our country's history. Each of us is called upon to recognize this duty to country. The exact nature of this duty is determined largely by the nation's needs and the personal qualifications and capabilities of the individual involved.

In the extremest states of Europe great emphasis has been placed upon regimented subserviance to the will of the state. Blind conformity to strict regulations is the criterion of citizenship. Over every training camp in Germany is placed the slogan, "We were born to die for the Fatherland."

In this nation we regard the citizen's duty in a different light. We believe that the state requires, not our blind obedience, but an intellectual appreciation of the nation's problems and a devotion to its interests.

This is our ideal of the highest type of patriotism. We should devote our interests primarily to keeping the policies of our government in accordance with the ideal of fair dealing with other nations and peaceful settlement of our problems.

However, the citizen's duty does not end here. We must be ready, not only to work for high principles of government, but to defend those principles as well. It is for this reason that our policy of national defense has been adopted. It does not keep our citizens constantly under arms nor does it burden them with the cost of great standing armies and huge armaments. Instead, it attempts to supply our country with the trained leadership it would need in war.

We cannot shirk our responsibility by simply declaring ourselves in favor of peace and international friendliness. Every true patriot clings to this ideal and this should be our first aim. Beyond this, we should equip ourselves to meet every call of our nation and honestly to face its problems.

What, then, is the citizen's duty? It is to devote our every energy towards keeping the nation's policy one of reason and friendliness, to employ our intellect in determining our individual field of service, to fit ourselves to meet any call for cooperation and active service, and courageously to stand by the ideals and principles for which we have worked. —E. A. J.

Letters To the Editor

In our first editorial after assuming our position, we defined our policy in regard to letters to the editor as follows: "Although letters to the editor will be encouraged . . . they will not be printed anonymously. They must be signed with the complete initials and class date of the author."

Since writing that statement of policy it has come to our knowledge that, according to the best journalistic ethics, it was not exactly fair.

It is not a comfortable feeling for anybody to have to admit that he has been wrong, but it is stupidity to refrain from such an admission when the best interest of the paper demands it.

Therefore, from now on, letters to the editor must bear the name of the author when given to the editor but will not be published without the author's permission.

It is to the best interest of the school that letters to the editor be encouraged. If the letter is unfairly denunciative it will be the policy of the editor to point this out to the author in the manner of an arbitrator, in an endeavor to have him "settle out of court," as it were.

The class date, however, will be published along with the fictitious name of the author. —L.G.H.

PARADE REST

— By —
LT. COLONEL C. L. ANDERSON

The rain last Friday night put an end to the parade the senior officers had looked forward to, but it had become a settled fact that if the people around Clinton want rain, all they have to do is ask the military department of Presbyterian college to plan a military ball. For the past four years it hasn't failed.

Some of the highlights of the ball were: The grand march in which juniors and seniors participated, the announcement of the cadets chosen for membership in the "Musketeers" for next year, the seniors in their white uniforms, sophomores forming the sabre arch, Meisky doing the "little apple," and "Hap" Gray with his Collegians (Snake Charmers) really swinging it.

There were quite a few long faces among the "Musketeers' at the Friday night dance. After the dances were over, things turned out very well. All bills were paid, with a little left over. Just a teaser, you know.

This is the last week before the one thing we all hate to see come around, and that it government inspection. At present "A" company, with Captain McSween (Mr. Clinton) their commanding officer, is leading with the best-drilled company. The race has taken a back seat until the inspection is over. However, as the commanding officers of the battalion are worrying about that eventful day, we have other faces that show signs of worry. They are those of Penland, Turner, MacLeod, and Walkup, as the time draws near for the end of school with big dry cleaning bills on their books. Here's luck to you, boys.

It seems that Major "Tubber" Hipp sure did hate to see intermission come the other night. He very sorrowfully led his army of tracksters back to school so they could get plenty of sleep for the meet with Clemson Saturday. H-a-r-d l-u-c-k.

The time draws near for the seniors to turn over the battalion to the juniors. Woe to the men in ranks. If you don't believe this, just ask some of the sophomores how things were when the juniors took charge last year. I would like to express to you on behalf of the commanding officers of the battalion, that we appreciate the fine spirit of cooperation shown by the under-classmen in the battalion during the year. We hope it will remain to be so. As the seniors take a back seat as they finish school, we sincerely hope that the juniors will come through in fine style at camp this year. It's a tough break that the non-pay juniors will not be allowed to attend camp with the rest; but think of the beach and that moon. Oh, boy!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor of The Blue Stocking:

Recently at the colorful and impressive flag-raising ceremonies held prior to the Carolina baseball game a song was played after the national anthem which I feel ninety per cent of the crowd thought to be Carolina's alma mater. But to this writer's, and numerous others, surprise, the song was Presbyterian College's alma mater.

Is it imperative that our student body be kept in sheer ignorance of their own school song? Personally, this scribe considered " 'Mid Piedmont Hills of Old S. C." a beautiful and effective melody, but I shall not take issue on that point. Rather, I suggest that a copy of the words be placed at the disposal of each student and faculty member so that they can familiarize themselves with the song.

Let's raise our alma mater from the ranks of the "unmentionables" and put it in its proper place in the sun! I don't think we can "dare to be different' on this issue!

—Cross Country

Cross Country:

I quite agree with you that our alma mater should be more popular or at least be known by the student body.

I have printed the words of the song below and if students would like a copy of them I shall do so. I plan to have the tune played at a future student body meeting in order that students might become more familiar with both the words and the tune.

Being as how this is the annual military issue of The Blue Stocking it mght be well to pause here and write an editorial or a treatise on the horrors of war, Hitler and his stooges, Mussolini and his big lower lip, or sumpn' of that sort, but it is hardly necessary. Uncle Sam is better off than most of us think. It is true that just about everybody except us is at war—in fact, the 1940 Olympic committee is in a quandry trying to decide a place to have the next international athletic contests; it seems that everybody is busy fighting. P. C. Sergeants Valuable Men

With Sergeant Sterlin Young serving his seventh year as the army's non-commissioned officer attached to the P. C. battalion, and Sergeant Comstock beginning his first year here, the corps has two valuable assistant instructors in military science and tactics.

"Sarge" Young entered the army in January, 1921, at Knoxville, Tenn. After serving with the army in Hawaii and becoming in time a corporal, he was elevated to the rank of sergeant in the twenty-second infantry in 1927. In 1931 he was placed on the detached enlisted men's list and was sent to Clinton as an assistant instructor in the R.O.T.C. here. He is popular and if it is left up to him he "would like to stay here quite a while longer."

Sergeant Comstock, who was recently assigned to the P. C. battalion as his frist work after being placed on the detched enlisted men's list, came here after serving for several years with the twenty-ninth infantry at Fort Benning, Ga. While at Fort Benning the sergeant acted for five years as machine gun instructor to the officer's class there. He is an expert on the machine gun. His work with the junior class in machine gunnery has been of an exceptional nature and indicative of unusual ability in this field.

Hose Nine Loses Two Last Week

Drops Contests To Erskine and Clemson By Scores 8-2 and 4-2, Respectively.

Erskine 8; P. C. 2

Unable to bunch their hits, the Blue Hose dropped an 8 to 2 decision to the Erskine Seceder nine in Due West Tuesday.

Christian started for the Hose, but was relieved by Commander in the second. DuBose took the mound in the seventh and finished the game. Erskine secured 11 hits off of their combined mound duties, with Phillips leading the way with three singles in as many trips to the plate. Schuler had a triple and McGarity secured two hits to contribute to the victory.

The Calvinists secured nine hits off Timmerman, Erskine righthander, but they were well scattered to hold the score down to two runs. He caused eight of the Hosemen to miss the third strike and had the situation well in hand for the most part of the fray, although the Hose threatened on several occasions.

Ritch hit two singles and a double, and Horne and Batchelor had two hits each to lead the Galloway men.

Clemson 4; P. C. 2

Coker fanned 10 men to lead his Tiger mates to a hard-earned 4 to 2 victory over the Hosemen Wednesday on the Clemson diamond.

McGregor, tinv sophomore right-hander, pitched superb ball as he let the hard-hitting Tiger team down with six hits and struck out six to pitch on even terms with Coker. Clemson's hit were all secured by three men and they bunched them to tally their four runs.

Heyward led the attack with a single and a double and drove in half of the Tiger runs. Horne cracked out two singles to lead the Hose attack which was never quite able to get started. Fancy fielding on the part of both teams was a feature of the game as well as the beautiful mound duel staged by McGregor and Coker, both righthanders.

The two teams will meet again Friday on Young field at 4 o'clock.

DUBOSE PITCHES AND BATS TEAM TO WIN FRIDAY

Whiffs 12 and Scatters Seven Hits. Team Hits Well To Earn Return Game.

Presbyterian defeated the Erskine Seceders Friday, 5 to 2, in the second meeting of the two teams. Erskine was victorious in the first game.

"Rich" DuBose, sophomore hurler, pitched superb ball as he held the hard-hitting Due West boys to seven scattered hits, three of which they bunched in the fourth to score their only runs. DuBose caused 12 Erskine men to miss the third strike and issued only one base on balls.

In the fourth, Batchelor led off with a line drive to the center field fence for a triple, Folley hit the first pitch for a beautiful single to right field to score Batchelor. Erwin grounded out, advancing Folley to second, June Moore slapped one up against the left field barrier for the second triple in the inning, scoring Folley. Blackwell forced Moore at the plate and then scored on a double by DuBose. Mabry sent a double to right to drive in DuBose for the fourth run of the inning. Also in this inning, Edwards' single, McDonald's double and Schuler's two-base knock gave Erskine two runs.

Mabry singled in the seventh, Ritch sacrificed him to second, Horne grounded out, advancing Mabry to third. Batchelor lined out his third straight hit, a single to left, to score Mabry.

Batchelor led the hitting for the day with three solid base hits in as many trips to the plate, one of them being a terrific drive for three bases. Mabry had a double and a single, Moore a triple and a single, and DuBose hit a double and a single.

Schuler smashed out a double and a single, and McDonald and Edwards had doubles to lead the Erskine attack.

Duty

Robert E. Lee declared "duty" to be the sublimest word in any language. A high sense of duty has always been one of the noblest as well as the most exacting ideal of man. Whether that duty be to God, country, family, or self, its courageous fulfillment is the mark of character and good citizenship.

We are constantly faced with the problem of deciding wherein our primary duty lies. Present civilization has envolved us in many social contacts, each of which has its claim upon energies and interests. It is not unusual to find conflicts in the requirements and calls upon us for service from these varied responsibilities.

The obligation of citizenship is a duty which has been brought to the forefront repeatedly in our country's history. Each of us is called upon to recognize this duty to country. The exact nature of this duty is determined largely by the nation's needs and the personal qualifications and capabilities of the individual involved.

In the extremest states of Europe great emphasis has been placed upon regimented subserviance to the will of the state. Blind conformity to strict regulations is the criterion of citizenship. Over every training camp in Germany is placed the slogan, "We were born to die for the Fatherland."

In this nation we regard the citizen's duty in a different light. We believe that the state requires, not our blind obedience, but an intellectual appreciation of the nation's problems and a devotion to its interests.

This is our ideal of the highest type of patriotism. We should devote our interests primarily to keeping the policies of our government in accordance with the ideal of fair dealing with other nations and peaceful settlement of our problems.

However, the citizen's duty does not end here. We must be ready, not only to work for high principles of government, but to defend those principles as well. It is for this reason that our policy of national defense has been adopted. It does not keep our citizens constantly under arms nor does it burden them with the cost of great standing armies and huge armaments. Instead, it attempts to supply our country with the trained leadership it would need in war.

We cannot shirk our responsibility by simply declaring ourselves in favor of peace and international friendliness. Every true patriot clings to this ideal and this should be our first aim. Beyond this, we should equip ourselves to meet every call of our nation and honestly to face its problems.

What, then, is the citizen's duty? It is to devote our every energy towards keeping the nation's policy one of reason and friendliness, to employ our intellect in determining our individual field of service, to fit ourselves to meet any call for cooperation and active service, and courageously to stand by the ideals and principles for which we have worked. —E. A. J.

Letters To the Editor

In our first editorial after assuming our position, we defined our policy in regard to letters to the editor as follows: "Although letters to the editor will be encouraged . . . they will not be printed anonymously. They must be signed with the complete initials and class date of the author."

Since writing that statement of policy it has come to our knowledge that, according to the best journalistic ethics, it was not exactly fair.

It is not a comfortable feeling for anybody to have to admit that he has been wrong, but it is stupidity to refrain from such an admission when the best interest of the paper demands it.

Therefore, from now on, letters to the editor must bear the name of the author when given to the editor but will not be published without the author's permission.

It is to the best interest of the school that letters to the editor be encouraged. If the letter is unfairly denunciative it will be the policy of the editor to point this out to the author in the manner of an arbitrator, in an endeavor to have him "settle out of court," as it were.

The class date, however, will be published along with the fictitious name of the author. —L.G.H.

PARADE REST

— By —
LT. COLONEL C. L. ANDERSON

The rain last Friday night put an end to the parade the senior officers had looked forward to, but it had become a settled fact that if the people around Clinton want rain, all they have to do is ask the military department of Presbyterian college to plan a military ball. For the past four years it hasn't failed.

Some of the highlights of the ball were: The grand march in which juniors and seniors participated, the announcement of the cadets chosen for membership in the "Musketeers" for next year, the seniors in their white uniforms, sophomores forming the sabre arch, Meisky doing the "little apple," and "Hap" Gray with his Collegians (Snake Charmers) really swinging it.

There were quite a few long faces among the "Musketeers' at the Friday night dance. After the dances were over, things turned out very well. All bills were paid, with a little left over. Just a teaser, you know.

This is the last week before the one thing we all hate to see come around, and that it government inspection. At present "X" company, with Captain McSween (Mr. Clinton) their commanding officer, is leading with the best-drilled company. The race has taken a back seat until the inspection is over. However, as the commanding officers of the battalion are worrying about that eventful day, we have other faces that show signs of worry. They are those of Penland, Turner, MacLeod, and Walkup, as the time draws near for the end of school with big dry cleaning bills on their books. Here's luck to you, boys.

P. C. Sergeants Valuable Men

With Sergeant Sterlin Young serving his seventh year as the army's non-commissioned officer attached to the P. C. battalion, and Sergeant Comstock beginning his first year here, the corps has two valuable assistant instructors in military science and tactics.

"Sarge" Young entered the army in January, 1921, at Knoxville, Tenn. After serving with the army in Hawaii and becoming in time a corporal, he was elevated to the rank of sergeant in the twenty-second infantry in 1927. In 1931 he was placed on the detached enlisted men's list and was sent to Clinton as an assistant instructor in the R.O.T.C. here. He is popular and if it is left up to him he "would like to stay here quite a while longer."

Sergeant Comstock, who was recently assigned to the P. C. battalion as his frist work after being placed on the detched enlisted men's list, came here after serving for several years with the twenty-ninth infantry at Fort Benning, Ga. While at Fort Benning the sergeant acted for five years as machine gun instructor to the officer's class there. He is an expert on the machine gun. His work with the Junior class in machine gunnery has been of an exceptional nature and indicative of unusual ability in this field.

Hose Nine Loses Two Last Week

Drops Contests To Erskine and Clemson By Scores 8-2 and 4-2, Respectively.

Erskine 8; P. C. 2

Unable to bunch their hits, the Blue Hose dropped an 8 to 2 decision to the Erskine Seceder nine in Due West Tuesday.

Christian started for the Hose, but was relieved by Commander in the second. DuBose took the mound in the seventh and finished the game. Erskine secured 11 hits off of their combined mound duties, with Phillips leading the way with three singles in as many trips to the plate. Schuler had a triple and McGarity secured two hits to contribute to the victory.

The Calvinists secured nine hits off Timmerman, Erskine righthander, but they were well scattered to hold the score down to two runs. He caused eight of the Hosemen to miss the third strike and had the situation well in hand for the most part of the fray, although the Hose threatened on several occasions.

Ritch hit two singles and a double, and Horne and Batchelor had two hits each to lead the Galloway men.

Clemson 4; P. C. 2

Coker fanned 10 men to lead his Tiger mates to a hard-earned 4 to 2 victory over the Hosemen Wednesday on the Clemson diamond.

McGregor, unv sophomore righthander, pitched superb ball as he let the hard-hitting Tiger team down with six hits and struck out six to pitch on even terms with Coker. Clemson's hit were all secured by three men and they bunched them to tally their four runs.

Heyward led the attack with a single and a double and drove in half of the Tiger runs. Horne cracked out two singles to lead the Hose attack which was never quite able to get started. Fancy fielding on the part of both teams was a feature of the game as well as the beautiful mound duel staged by McGregor and Coker, both righthanders.

The two teams will meet again Friday on Young field at 4 o'clock.

DUBOSE PITCHES AND BATS TEAM TO WIN FRIDAY

Whiffs 12 and Scatters Seven Hits. Team Hits Well To Earn Return Game.

Presbyterian defeated the Erskine Seceders Friday, 5 to 2, in the second meeting of the two teams. Erskine was victorious in the first game.

"Rich" DuBose, sophomore hurler, pitched superb ball as he held the hard-hitting Due West boys to seven scattered hits, three of which they bunched in the fourth to score their only runs. DuBose caused 12 Erskine men to miss the third strike and issued only one base on balls.

In the fourth, Batchelor led off with a line drive to the center field fence for a triple, Folley hit the first pitch for a beautiful single to right field to score Batchelor. Erwin grounded out, advancing Folley to second, June Moore slapped one up against the left field barrier for the second triple in the inning, scoring Folley. Blackwell forced Moore at the plate and then scored on a double by DuBose. Mabry sent a double to right to drive in DuBose for the fourth run of the inning. Also in this inning, Edwards' single, McDonald's double and Schuler's two-base knock gave Erskine two runs.

Mabry singled in the seventh, Ritch sacrificed him to second, Horne grounded out, advancing Mabry to third. Batchelor lined out his third straight hit, a single to left, to score Mabry.

Batchelor led the hitting for the day with three solid base hits in as many trips to the plate, one of them being a terrific drive for three bases. Mabry had a double and a single, Moore a triple and a single, and DuBose hit a double and a single.

Schuler smashed out a double and a single, and McDonald and Edwards had doubles to lead the Erskine attack.

Livingston To Play For Finals

The Pan-Hellenic council, governing body of the six Greek letter fraternities on the campus, has chosen Jimmy Livingston and his popular CBS orchestra to play for the final dance series of the year to be held in the Clinton armory on May 13 and 14, William P. Jacobs, Jr., president of the organization, announced today.

Livingston and his boys have earned a great reputation for the better type of swing band music over the Columbia network every Tuesday and Thursday evenings around 7:30.

Jacobs also announced that there will be five no-breaks for the Friday evening dance, three during the tea dance on Saturday and four at the final Saturday night hop.

The Pan-Hellenic council, composed of one representative from each of the six fraternities, serves as an arbitrary board in all fraternity social activities.

REPORTER SEPARATES FACT FROM RUMOR

confirmed by the war department.

The Blue Stocking believes that a request from the administration to corps headquarters would accomplish much toward insuring Major Cummings' being retained as the successor to Major Harding.

As for the question of blue uniforms, both majors are opposed to the idea. Major Cummings said, "The unit has functioned for twenty years in the olive drab, upholding an excellent record over all other schools in the fourth corps area." He continued, "A change in uniforms, besides incurring additional expense, might not be acceptable to next year's class." This question was asked following a meeting of the freshman class concerning blue uniforms for next year.

Other last minute facts gathered from the rather extensive interview were these: There will be no drill for the remainder of the week following the inspection tomorrow; new ratings will be announced on Wednesday as to officer personnel when the seniors retire; Spratt will be the musical director of the band next year as far as military department sanction is concerned. Major Harding feels that the P. C. battalion is far above the average military school in the fourth corps area based on his two years' experience in it.

Both majors, upon being asked the practical benefits of military training other than learning to fight, stated that "it demands qualities of leadership necessary for earning a living after graduation and instills a sense of civic duty, inspiring a man to be a leader in his chosen community."

Both majors feel that there is every reason to believe a successful inspection will be held tomorrow if every man does his part as they have urged in the class room and on the drill field.

Last preparation for tomorrow be unduly delayed, we brought the interview to a close and retreated from Mars' sanctuary according to Hoyle.

measure."

Said Cadet Sergeant Jimmy Dennard, "I like military training and if I should get the chance, I think I'd go into the regular army. I like the exercise the drill periods give, for it helps me to get started thinking clearly early in the morning."

Cadet Corporal George Mabry, rising junior, said that one of the best things R.O.T.C. training has done for him, is that it has given him confidence in himself. He also said, "It has made me much more interested in current events and foreign affairs. I have also learned the importance of courtesy towards, and respect for, our fellow man as well as for our superior officers."

Although Cadet William "Tough" Embler is only a freshman and has not yet had a full year of military, he is very nethusiastic about it. He said that he considers it one of the most interesting and most important phases of college life. He said that it has given him more confidence in himself, and added, "I like all the officers."

Next year the fourth convention will convene in Columbia as guests of the Columbia high school. Dr. J. Rion McKissick of the University of South Carolina will act as one of the official hosts.

Three hundred and forty-nine official delegates were registered during the first day of the convention. Twenty-three of these were out-of-town speakers. Five heads of departments of journalism were present and two deans of colleges spoke. Thirty-five school from all over South Carolina spent delegates to the meeting. There were speakers from seven different states.

GIRLS RIFLE TEAM TO BE ORGANIZED

A girls rifle team will be organized Wednesday afternoon at the college gymnasium, Sergeant Sterlin Young announced today.

There have been several attempts in the past to start such an organization for co-eds, but due to the lack of an indoor range these efforts have failed.

Co-eds have expressed unusual interest and have announced intention of reporting Wednesday.

In spite of adverse conditions, Col. Jacobs feels that the home guard will finish their nap with flying colors in the annual inspection.

By Cadet Sgt. T. Q. Jones, Jr.

Orchids to the R.O.T.C. seniors who et their last drill today as cadet offers. They have done a good job year and deserve the holiday. At mniston, Ala., they once again ought the cup home and proceeded continue their proficiency here at hool. The rising seniors could do better than to use their record as goal as they take command of the attalion.

Once again the annual inspection is ver and we are all very glad, but e words of Major C. C. Loughlin, e inspector, make us even more ad. During the talk to the corps following the sham battle he clearly indicated that the corps had retained rating as an "excellent" R.O.T.C. nit. His description of the infantry ose order drill as "snappy" brought iles over the faces of cadets that believe meant more than just satfaction. He was also very high in praise of our uniforms, especially e white gloves and belts.

Last Wednesday afternoon a meetg of all those who expect to try t for the rifle team was held, inluding the co-eds, of whom about ght reported. They began firing, as as decided by the group, last Thursay and will continue to fire for about month. At the end of this time they an to have a match between the coeds and the cadets. Don't laugh, boys, because the last time such a match as held the co-eds won, and if they in again that will be bad.

From the way in which they handled their squads during inspection,

Ministerial Club To Hold Banquet

Dr. W. N. Elliott To Address Religious Group at Annual Affair Thursday Night.

The Rev. W. N. Elliott, D.D., pastor of Druid Hills Presbyterian church, Atlanta, Ga., will speak at the annual banquet of the Ministerial club on Thursday night at 8:30 in the Masonic building, at which time Dr. Elliott, an honorary life member of the club, will be presented his certificate of membership by the retiring president, M. C. Patterson.

During the banquet the following recently-elected officers of the organization will be formally installed: D. M. Morrison, president; Virgil St. John, vice-president; Jack Walkup, recording secretary; W. S. Hart, financial secretary, and W. H. Wilkerson, chaplain.

The Ministerial club, organized in 1936 by men who are still on the campus, has grown in that short time to become an important influence on the life of the ministerial student here at P. C. Members of the student body are invited to attend its weekly meetings on Sunday afternoon immediately after dinner.

Band Plays In Lake City Friday

Leaving last Thursday afternoon, the college R.O.T.C. band of twenty-two members went to Lake City where, after spending the night, it played in the county schools field day parade despite frequent drenchings along the route of the parade by particularly insistent spring showers. The band returned to the college Friday evening.

"We were particularly impressed by the friendliness and warm hospitality of the people of Lake City in whose homes we stayed, and by all the city school officials and citizens with whom it was our pleasure to come in contact," Captain M. C. Patterson told a reporter for The Blue Stocking. Even the local cinema held "open house" for the bandmen.

On Friday morning several bandmen had the opportunity of seeing Vice-President Garner and Postmaster General Farley as the special train carrying them to the Charleston Azalea festival passed through Lake City.

Due to the persistent afternoon showers the field and track events had to be postponed, therefore the band left immediately after dinner for Clinton.

INSPECTOR INDICATES CORPS UPHOLDS EXCELLENT RATING

Major Charles C. Loughlin Is "Greatly Impressed" With Efficiency of Corps.

P. C. COMMANDANT IS WELL PLEASED

Following completion of the day's activities last Tuesday afternoon, members of the Presbyterian college R.O.T.C. battalion heard Major C. C. Loughlin, inspecting officer for the government from Wofford college, Spartanburg, clearly indicate that the corps had retained its rank of "excellent" among the nation's military nits, in colleges and universities.

After the formal parade, review and inspection at the usual drill hour on Tuesday morning various tests of related subjects in military science and tactics were held before the inspectors representing both theoretical and practical phases of military instruction. In the afternoon a sham battle was held illustrating the principles and weapons involved in actual combat of infantry units. The inspector was especially impressed with this part of the inspection.

Major Loughlin, who is commandant at Wofford college, made a short address to the cadets who took part in the sham battle, during which he spoke of the drill as having been unusually "snappy" and the spirit of the corps as excellent. He was impressed with the appearance of the corps in white belts and gloves, and at the conclusion clearly indicated that the battalion had retained its previous rating as an excellent military unit.

Early morning drill was suspended for the remainder of the week following the annual inspection.

Sigma Kappa Alpha Holds Banquet

Dr. L. T. Baker, Dean of University, Addresses Gathering of Scholastic Leaders, Faculty.

In an address commending the work of the small liberal arts college in the field of education, Dr. Leonard T. Baker, dean of the faculty of the university of South Carolina, spoke at the annual banquet of Sigma Kappa Alpha, local scholastic fraternity, in the college dining hall last Tuesday evening after being introduced by Dean Marshall W. Brown.

Attending the banquet, besides the faculty, were past members of Sigma Kappa Alpha and members of the student body who have achieved unusual academic success by earning a position on the dean's academic honor list.

Dr. Baker, who has been associated with the state university for more than thirty years and who was at one time president, is an outstandnig figure in the field of higher education in South Carolina.

New York Group To Make Pictures

The third week in May several representatives of Sport Pictures, Inc., of New York, will come to P. C., to take some action shots of the tennis team, according to a statement by Coach Bill Lufler.

This company is widely known and has a reputation of making excellent sports pictures of all kinds. They will remain on the campus for several days in order to obtain pictures of all the fundamentals and plays of the game.

This is another step that Presbyterian college is taking in promoting a better game of tennis in the schools of America. It is not known what the general purpose of the pictures is, but details of this event will be announced at a later date.

P. C. President Is Moderator

Elected At Meeting of S. C. Presbytery Here.

With a good attendance of ministers and laymen, the meeting of the Presbytery of South Carolina held in the Thornwell Memorial church at Clinton Tuesday was featured by the election of President William P. Jacobs of Presbyterian college as moderator and the licensing of three former Thornwell orphanage and Presbyterian college graduates to the Gospel ministry.

The election of President Jacobs was a signal recognition of his grandfather, William Plumer Jacobs, founder of Thornwell, founder of the college, and for forty-seven years pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Clinton. In the recent publication of his diary by his son, Thornwell Jacobs, and the recent unveiling of a portrait of the founder in the chapel of the college, attention has been focused on the life and work of this great pioneer in religion and education.

The three young men who were examined for licensure and found adequately prepared are Furman Ezekiel

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT FOR THE BLUE STOCKING TELLS OF HISTORICAL TOUR

(The following account of the annual tour of Dr. Dudley Jones' class in South Carolina history to Charleston and other historic points in the state was written by Hugh Jacobs, acting as special correspondent for The Blue Stocking.—The Editor).

On Thursday morning, April 14, Dr. Jones' South Carolina history class began its annual trip to the historic spots of South Carolina. The first point of interest and the place we were to assemble was the churchyard in Stateburg, where Joel Poinsett is buried. Poinsett, incidentally, is the man for whom the Christmas flower, the poinsettia, is named.

While in the church-yard, we received word that Dr. Jones had suddenly become ill in Columbia and that he would not be able to continue. We decided, therefore, that the best thing to do would be to go to Charleston and have Hugh Rutledge show us the historic points there the next day.

The first thing we saw in Charleston on Friday morning was the city hall and the first fire-proof building in America. These two buildings are connected by Washington square, in which was a statue of William Pitt. The statue was given to Charleston before the Revolution and during the war one of the arms was broken off by a British shell. The statue stands today with only one arm.

Across the street and facing the city hall was St. Michael's church. In this church there is a set of chimes which has crossed the ocean seven times. The tone of these chimes is said to be as beautiful as that of any chimes in the world and they are played by an old family of Negroes whose fathers and grandfathers played them from the time of their installation down to the present day.

From here we drove down one of the old cobble stone streets and saw what is correctly called the old slave market. The slaves were actually sold on board ship before they were brought ashore, so therefore there was no real slave market.

In our ride to the Battery we saw the place where the first rice was planted, John C. Calhoun's grave, guns which were used both in the Revolutionary and Civil wars, and many old buildings. When we reached the battery we looked out across the harbor and saw James Island, Sullivans, and Fort Sumter. Sullivan's island is the point on which Fort Moultrie is located. It was in this harbor that the South Carolinians successfully drove off the first British attack and it was here also that the first shots of the Civil war were fired and the first submarine was used successfully.

The last and most interesting point in our short tour was the museum. Here we found deplicas of the old rice threshing machines and cotton gins. The entire gallery was used for South Carolina history and was filled with everything from farm and war implements to the costumes worn in those days. We noted, by the stuffed dummies on which were the actual garments of that time, that either the men in that day were very small or that their clothes were not preshrunk. The dummies were only about five feet two inches tall and the clothes seemed to fit rather tightly at that.

Our trip ended with a thorough inspection of the museum. We actually spent only half a day seeing the historic spots but we learned much more than we could have learned in several weeks of study about the same things. Every native of South Carolina should take this course. It not only teaches him the history of his state and people but it also teaches him a great deal about library work and writing.

In closing let me repeat a poem I found on a grave stone in Stateburg:

"Remember man as you pass by,
As you are now so once was I,
As I am now so shall you be,
Prepare for death and follow me."

Commendation

As we go to press, Major F. C. Harding, commandant of the college R.O.T.C. unit here, asks that we express for him special commendation to the corps of cadets for excellent cooperation and knowledge exhibited during the annual government inspection.

Major Harding, who at the time of the interview this afternoon, was leaving for Athens, Ga., to inspect the R.O.T.C. infantry regiment at the state university, said, "The showing made by the men during the inspection was excellent . . . It is doubtful whether a single phase of the entire inspection could have been improved upon."

The Star Is With Us Still

The last sound of firing died away beyond Smyth Hall. The bright spring sun ploughed its rays through the puffs of powder smoke, which made their way to be lost in infinity over the green tops of the Carolina pines and oaks as they swayed majestically in the gentle breeze. Government inspection was over for another year.

Tired, begrimed cadets made their way slowly over to the spot beneath a large shade tree under which three majors stood, and as they sat listening they heard another inspecting officer intimate in a manner that left no doubt that their day's work had won for them another "excellent" rating as a military unit. So, for another year the corps of cadets at Presbyterian College will have the right to wear the coveted blue star on their right uniform sleeve that will indicate unusual ability in military science and tactics.

First of all, Major Harding and Major Cummings are to be highly congratulated, as are Sergeants Young and Comstock, for their part as instructors. We know that their satisfaction is complete because of a job well done.

To the individual cadet we offer especial congratulations for the fine spirit exhibited throughout the inspection. As all instructors emphasized before the inspection, success in any human venture rests in the final analysis upon the attitude of the individual—and yours was excellent.

Now, instead of suspending drill after the annual inspection, as some schools do, we shall begin to concentrate on the next job. The juniors have camp ahead of them, and sophomores the advanced corps, while the freshmen dream of corporal stripes.

We have won another battle, we have kept our blue star — but we have only begun to fight!

Our curiosity has hit a new high in wondering how the Clemson senior came out who advertised in The Greenville News last week seeking a date for the Taps Ball. He even went so far as to specify that the girl have experience and good references. How about it, "Oscar"? Let us know in an early issue of The Tiger.

We noticed the following comment in the Daily Tar Heel: "The welfare of Oklahoma students is certainly well looked after. In an attempt to reduce the number of 'F's," a 'flunk' fee was introduced. Next there was an attempt to put through a 'no-week-night-date' rule. Now it's a tutorial system.

"That smacks of Oxford. Perhaps the authorities have been to the movies recently. Anyway, the idea is that personal attention of the faculty will be given students in elementary courses there. The professors will list students who need tutoring on cards, and the tutors will then phone to see if they want help—no expense incurred, so it would seem."

It looks as if somebody else has caught on to the Socratic system idea with its personalized educational opportunities. It's all a very fine thing, but the catch is that one still has to do one's own studying and one's own learning, jolly well by one's own self.

Most frequent and urgent comment that has come to our ears since guiding the destiny of this sheet are the following: "Let's find out which alma mater we are supposed to sing, and sing it" . . . "What the heck is wrong with The Collegian that everybody should be so up in the air about it?" . . . Why can't Sunday newspapers be put in the reading room on Sunday?" . . . Why doesn't The Blue Stocking print six pages every week?" . . . "Who is Scotty?"

If you would like to see any any of these questions answered in The Blue Stocking, why not write in and say as much? There is an answer to every one of them, and a letter addressed to the head of any campus organization with which your question is concerned will be printed on this page. And we trust the receiver will have courage enough to defend his cause.

From the Associated Collegiate Press comes this startling bit of news. Students struggling through four years of college, working toward the coveted degree, probably, little realize that there are institutions in the country which will gladly confer on them almost any degree upon receipt of a stipulated price plus a little home work.

"Counterfeit degrees" is the term by which they are designated in educational circles, and Walton C. John, of the U. S. Department of Education, discusses them at some length in the March issue of "School Life," the publication of that federal agency. Mr. John lists the prices of some of the degrees, and they are ridiculously small. One institution in South Dakota, for example, grants by correspondence a bachelor's degree for $45, master's degrees for $55, and doctorates at the rate of $80 each.

The majority of "customers" come from foreign countries where degrees are highly respected, and where also, governments are beginning to raise angry protests to the federal government. The supervision and control of school, however, rests entirely with the states and some of them are quite lax.

Perhaps some of our freshmen (upper classmen, too, for that matter) mathematicians could find an answer to their problem here.

An Orchid To Beauty

To the triumvirate that judged and selected a queen to represent the local bus-stop in nation-wide beauty competition—our congratulations. In naming Bebe Dillard for the honor, the boys done their duty—capably and impartially.

Although her mammy and pappy are more responsible for her good looks than she is, it's little Bebe who added the requisite aids—charm, personality and dignity. We hope to see her among those present at Atlantic City—a little bit later on.

An Attack On Unthoughtfulness

John Doe keeps about five lights burning in his room night and day, breaks windows for a pastime, occasionally flings a chair through the transom glass, and otherwise skyrockets the school repair bills. And let me tell you a few things about playful John. In the first place, his parents were too poor to send him to college. So they put their case in the hands of the administration, which responded by giving John a scholarship sufficient to send him through. He was thankful—momentarily. And then he got among the boys, and forgot. And his parents back home are slaving away—trying to supplement the school aid—with their own.

Destruction and abuse of property is one of the most unattractive and most frequent practices of P. C. students. A small group is responsible for it — and these few are actually the ones being offered most by Presbyterian college. Next time you feel inclined to destroy, count to ten, and at about the sixth count hesitate long enough to determine just how much P. C. has given you.

An Expose On Immaturity

The recent state high school press convention offered an excellent opportunity for the observation of immaturity in all its glory. Three hundred delegates who attended the adolescent get-together really cut-up. Among the incidents which made me appreciate beards, baldness and the other cousins of age, were these:

(1) A cute blonde took off for the Friday night dance unescorted—ended up with four late dates.

(2) Another c. b., dating one of the college boys, told him to leave when ten o'clock rolled around. Said she had another date scheduled to appear about ten-fifteen. "And when you get to school, tell him I'm ready,' she added.

(3) One of the "sophisticated at sixteen" male delegates strolled into Spencer at 3:30 a. m. and reprimanded his collegiate room-mate for being in bed "in the shank of the evening."

(4) A young brunette arrived at the dance with a college boy, left five minutes later alone, went home and took a nap—got up in time to fill a date 'bout 2 a. m.

"Wattaman"
or
(The Devil and the Deep Blue Sea)

The devil and Beelzebub had built a Kingdom small.
Then started business—putting guys
behind the old eight ball.
For quite a while they had no luck,
their business was dull,
But soon as things got started good
the place was really full.
It grew and grew and grew and grew and soon was overrun.
And then old Satan said, "By cricket, something must be done."

Now Hell, as Satan named the place, was built upon an isle,
And all the sea was filled with monsters strong and green and wild.
The devil knew if things kept up his domain soon would sink,
And so he hired an able group to help him try to think.
They thought and thought and thought and thought—it wasn't any use.
"Nothing can be done," they said,
"Hell surely will break loose."

They closed the gates, but applicants came climbing o'er in herds.
Satan saw them, shook his head, said,
"We can't keep these birds."
But they would not be chased therefrom; they said, "We've come to stay.'
The devil said, "You stubborn mugs, go on and have your way."
Soon the place began to sink, the sea began to rise.
In four more days Hell will be wet," poor Satan did surmise.

Now Samson came down to the place to pay the boys a visit.
He pounded loudly on the gate; a meek voice asked, "Who is it?"
But Sammy, an important man, preferred to waste no time,
And so pushed down the wall because he did not like to climb.
The devil saw the incident, knew
Samson was the man—
The only human being who could really save the land.

Satan called him to one side and said,
"Say, listen, pal,
Save the joint—I'll pay you well and give you my best gal."
Sam quickly stepped into the sea. The others stood in fright
To watch the doings of this very handsome man of might.
He pulled the island to his back, was doing very well,
Until Beelzebub said, "Look, he's really raising Hell!'

The words so startled Samson, he let the island drop.
It hit the water with a splash. The effort was a flop.
Sam left the island upside down in the middle of the sea;
He'd done his best, twas not his fault,
so he'd just let it be.
"Anyway," he told himself, "I've found what they all should be."
So went his way and smiled
he'd seen Hell soaking

Right now, with our diamond crew playing less than .500 ball, some of our dubious followers are inclined to lose faith and say "the pitching is weak" or "where is all the batting power?" Three out of seven wins, although not an ideal start, is not a sign of doom for any ball club. Why, just last week Philadelphia's A's dropped their first three starts to the Washington Senators, but Connie Mack shows no signs of discouragement. The Blue Hose pitchers have been receiving most of the criticism, but statistics show that to be a gross misrepresentation. Of course, batting averages are not expected to be high this early in the season and it is not an alarming fact, but nevertheless, hitting stock must rise if Presbyterian stays in the baseball market. Through last Friday's game the state intercollegiate baseball race looked like this:

Carolina	5	1
Clemson	5	2
Furman	3	1
Wofford	3	3
Presbyterian	3	4
Davidson	3	4
Newberry	3	4
The Citadel	1	4

The state baseball title is by no means conceded yet, the season being only half over. If the Gallowaymen can get goin' and win the remainder of their games P. C. might yet get another pennant!

Intramural sports have been delayed for several unavoidable reasons but are sure to get under way sometime within the next week. An extensive sports program here featuring baseball, tennis and track has commanded the attention of most students, but as soon as arrangements can be completed for the use of the swimming pool, the aquatic events will be run off, followed closely by tennis and swimming. Interest always runs high in intramural competition here and next year's program probably will see such sports as track, ping-pong, and golf added to the menu.

Just cant wait to see next year's football team in action — an experienced group of upper-classmen plus the addition of this year's colorful freshman squad plus brand-new blue uniforms plus a new assistant coach should all go together to provide a real show for P. C. gridiron supporters! Jack Nixon, all-Southern guard at Georgia Tech last year, is the man who has been chosen to take over the duties of assistant mentor here and he really knows his stuff. P. C. varsity men who have played against him for the last three years will remember him for his clean sportsmanship, sheer ability, and craftiness. Nixon's selection came as a distinct surprise to all of us, but we feel confident that he will make a hit here and will aid Coach Walter Johnson in turning out a winning crew!

DuBose and Bessinger Hurl Superb Ball.

By FRED ALLEN

Held to one scratch hit until the seventh inning, Chick Galloway's Blue Hose came from behind in that frame to tie the score, and scored again in the next inning to defeat The Citadel Bulldogs, 4 to 3, in Charleston, on Wednesday.

Rich DuBose, up-and-coming sidearmer, hooked up in a pitcher's duel with Leroy Bessinger, and both pitched superb ball all the way. DuBose gave up only five hits and struck out eight, while Bessinger gave up six hits and fanned six.

In the seventh, Ritch reached first on an error, Horne singled to right, Hughes errored and Horne went to third and scored when the ball was overthrown at third. Batchelor lined a hard single to right field, stole second, advanced on Folley's grounder and scored when all hands were safe on Erwin's grounder.

In the next inning, Blackwell led off with a triple and scored the fourth run when the Bulldog catcher dropped the throw-in of Ritch's grounder.

For the Hosemen, Mabry and Batchelor, with two singles each, and Blackwell with a triple, did the hitting. Wilson was the only Cadet to secure an extra base blow off DuBose, hitting a double in the first inning.

Diamond Outfit Bows To Wofford

The Wofford Terriers won an impressive victory over the P. C. Hosemen in Spartanburg Saturday, 4 to 1. Wofford tallied in the first, second, fifth and eighth frames to win the game.

P. C. scored their lone tally in the sixth on Horne's single and Batchelor's single.

Dick Bell, big right-hander, pitched a beautiful game for the boys from Spartanburg and allowed the Gallowaymen only five scattered hits. DuBose pitched an excellent game but was given poor support and P. C.'s hitting was weak.

Sam Turner, Terrier first sacker, led the hitting for the day with three safeties, while Batchelor had two hits to lead the Blue Hosemen. He also pilfered three bases to lead in that department.

Auburn Tennis Men Lose To Hose Team

Freshmen Swamp First Year Men of Georgia Tech.

By JAMES HAFLEY

In seven exciting matches, Coach Bill Lufler's varsity men eked out a victory over a strong group of netmen from the Alabama Polytechnic institute. The P. C. netters took three singles and a doubles match in the play Saturday to win by a 4-3 count. Robert Harper was extended three sets in downing his opponent, Higgins, but managed to pull himself together in winning the final set, 6-0. In the doubles matches Boykin and Harper combined forces to dispose of the Auburn team, 6-2, 6-3. Beatty and Power played brilliantly but were defeated by Auburn's doubles team of McClure and Gay.

While the varsity team was conquering Auburn Saturday afternoon, the P. C. freshmen were downing the Georgia Tech freshmen in Atlanta. Kerdasha upset the dope by defeating Tech's number one man, 6-2, 6-0, while White, Frazier and Flanders were beating their respective opponents. Kerdasha and White took one of the doubles matches to put the meet on ice.

A summary of the varsity's meet with Auburn follows:

Boykin (PC) defeated Lide, 6-2, 6-1.

Beatty (PC) defeated McClure, 6-1, 6-1.

McKee (A) defeated Woodward, 6-3, 6-4.

Harper (P) defeated Higgins, 9-7, 2-6, 6-0.

Gay (A) defeated Stowell, 6-1, 6-2.

Boykin and Harper (PC) defeated Lide and Higgins, 6-2, 6-3.

McClure and Gay (A) defeated Beatty and Power, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3.

FRESHMAN HURLER BREAKS OLD RECORD; ENTERS HALL OF FAME

BILLBOARD OF SPORTS

— By —
BILL McLAURIN

We want first to commend Richard DuBose, sophomore hurling ace, for two fine pitching performances in the games against Erskine and The Citadel. He fanned 12, allowed seven hits and issued only one base on balls in winning from Erskine 5-2. Against The Citadel he allowed only five hits, struck out six and was flawless in his control as he let no man walk to first unmolested. He also did his share of the hitting and fielded his mound position like a veteran. It was McGregor's time to pitch but he was saved until the Clemson game because of his six-hit performance in the first game.

Slick Hanes, Rabbit McLaughlin and Lloyd are the most outstanding in the ranks of the frosh trackmen, Hanes takes first in the mile and 880 and usually places in the javelin. McLaughlin has not lost a race in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, and Lloyd is a broad-jumper of no mean ability. They are good for about 30 points in any track meet and we look for them to take away honors in their respective events in the state meet which is not far away.

Johnny Suggs is considered one of the most outstanding players in the Central Carolina league because of his pitching and hitting ability. "Big Shorty" Horne is a classy fielder and consistent hitter for the Ware Shoals nine. "Coon" Weldon has been sent to the Spartanburg team of the Sally league by New Orleans for a little more seasoning. We look for "Coon" to be back with them before the season gets very far underway.

"Gullie" Batchelor is hitting that old pill at a .540 clip as he makes a strong bid for top honors in the state batting race.

The happiest man on the campus last week was Billy Kee, sophomore pole vaulter, as he soared to the heights of a brand new, great big red "P" when he tied with the other three P. C. vaulters against Furman week before last.

Only 21 more school days until exams. Better do your studying early and avoid the "cram."

Freshman Castleberry was really hat against Newberry Thursday as he let the Papooses down without a hit and fanned 23 batters to break Flint Rhem's old record of 22. He issued five passes but didn't allow a single batter to reach third.

NEWBERRY AND CLINTON MILLS DEFEATED BY FRESHMEN.

Coach Cavin's frosh baseball nine won two impressive victories the past week by downing the Newberry freshmen and Clinton Mills.

Lamar Castleberry established a new state record when he caused 23 of the Papooses to miss the third strike in the 11-0 victory over Newberry Thursday. Flint Rhem held the old record of 22, made while he was a freshman at Clemson. Catleberry also entered baseball's renowned hall of fame for no-hit pitching. Not a single Newberry man hit safely and only 7 reached first, two on errors and five on walks. The frosh also hit the ball hard as they slammed 14 hits over the lot and tallied 11 times.

Saturday afternoon Clinton Mills was defeated on Young field by the score of 9 to 6 in a game which featured the heavy hitting of both nines. The freshmen batted around in the first to tally five times. McCutcheon allowed only three hits and two runs during his six innings on the mound, and Butler pitched good ball the last three innings, although he was poorly supported by his mates and had several streaks of wildness. McSween, Embler, Willis and Eaton led the frosh at the plate, while Trammel secured two safeties to lead the Clinton attack.

Dr. W. H. Hudson Speaks Here

Appearing at a special chapel service last Wednesday morning, Dr. W. H. Hudson, Southern Presbyterian missionary to China, spoke to the student body on the Far Eastern situation.

After being introduced by Dean Marshall W. Brown, Dr. Hudson in graphic language depicted the suffering and misfortune of the Chinese nation under Japanese aggression. During the course of the address Dr. Hudson expressed the belief that in the event of complete domination of China that in time the Japanese would be absorbed by the Chinese through inter marriage, a thing which has a precedent in Chinese history.

Dr. Hudson, who has been stationed at Kashing, has been an evangelistic missionary for 44 years, and he has, consequently, become an authority on affairs in the far East.

we know of at least three corporals who are trying to make advanced. They handled their men like veterans, but if they will take the advice of those in the advanced corps they will know that to handle them like veterans is not good enough. The race is just beginning, so we wish them luck as it is nip and tuck from start to finish.

The juniors have about a month ahead of them in which to prepare themselves for camp, and they had their first real workout last Tuesday when they had to carry the machine gun up a ditch half full of water during the combat problem held for the inspector. Dave "Kit" Carson and Ed "Piggy" Lambright seemed to enjoy the idea from the way they wallered in the water and the looks of their clothes after the battle. Maybe they were really trying hard.

Although no definite date has been set, the juniors will make their annual overnight hike sometime before the fifteenth of May. With the hike comes the trouble of learning how to roll a blanket and pitch a tent, two things that they should know before going to camp. They will also be allowed the privilege (if it can be called that) of shooting the service rifle within the very near future. They are all eager to have that experience now but they may change their tune, 'cause the old timers tell us that both ends of that little toy mean business.

Block "P" Club To Give Dance

The Block "P" club, association of outstanding college athletes, will sponsor a dance on Saturday night, May 7, as a climax to the state track meet, it was announced today by Ralph Waldrep, retiring captain of this year's basketball team. "Details of the affair will be announced later," said Waldrep.

SERGEANT KNOX AT GAINESVILLE SCHOOL

Several P. C. men, visiting in Gainesville, Ga., the past week-end report that Sergeant R. A. Knox, who formerly was attached to the R.O.T.C. battalion here during the fall and who is now connected with Riverside Military academy, has been very successful as instructor for the rifle team there. The Riverside team, under his direction, won third place in the national rifle marksmanship matches for junior military schools during the annual meet this year.

After a careful examination in regard to their experience and knowledge and theological beliefs they each preached a satisfactory sermon to the presbytery and were accordingly set apart to the ministry.

Washington, D. C. — Whether we ree with the president's proposal revive heavy federal spending to ge with the current depression, ere is one small item in the recom- endations he made to congress that of vital significance to thousands f college students.

If congress approves the presi- nt's program many thousands of dents will be able to continue their ucation next fall. This is made pos- ble by the increase in funds for the ational Youth administration which esident Roosevelt asked congress.

Of the $1,250,000,000 requested for e Works Progress administration, 5,000,000 is to be allocated to the YA. This will insure the education literally thousands of young peo- e. NYA funds for the current year ere reduced, in keeping with the ogram of general reduction of fed- al expenditures. If business had aintained its uptrend during the st six months as it had during the evious year, further reductions in YA and other expenditures would ubtless have been made.

When the recession grew into a al-blown depression, however, the esident had to get out the old pump dmen and, as a result, NYA funds ill be increased for the fiscal year eginning July 1.

Of course, if the commercial life f the country had continued to im- ove, more parents would have been nancially able to send their children college without outside aid. So, is increase in federal funds for col- ge students probably won't result in y increased enrollments. Without

"Y" Cabinet Men Go To Columbia

T. Q. Jones, chairman of the Y. M. C. A. social committee, and Harry McInvail, vice-chairman of the program committee, returned last night from the annual cabinet training conference of the Intercollegiate Young Men's Christian Association of South Carolina, which was held in Columbia from Friday through Sunday.

Jones and McInvail represented P. C. in the annual convention which was attended this year by representatives of eight colleges of the state, including, besides, P. C., Clemson, The Citadel, Converse, Winthrop, Columbia Bible college, University of South Carolina and Columbia college.

Jones, speaking of the convention, said, "I feel that much good was accomplished at the convention by the mutual exchange of ideas, and I think the chairmen of all committees of the 'Y' should plan to attend next year. P. C. had next to the smallest number of delegates represented."

N. S. Heeth To Get Two Degrees Here

Dean Marshall W. Brown recently announced that N. S. Heeth, who will graduate this year, will be the first senior in the history of Presbyterian college to receive two degrees at the completion of four years work. Having fulfilled all requirements in both courses, Heeth will receive both a bachelor of arts and a bachelor of science in commerce degree.

While 130 semester hours and the same number of quality points are regularly required for graduation, Heeth has a total of 154 of each. He has a major in both French and economics, and has minored in Bible and history.

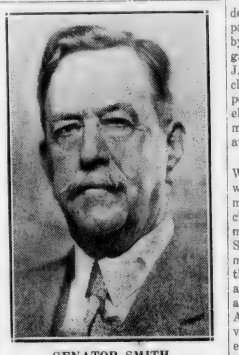
Besides doing his regular college work, Heeth has been active in the Y.M.C.A. and is a member of the glee club. He also has been a member of the college orchestra for the past several years.

C. P. Fuller Drowns In Saluda River Late Saturday

Prominent Junior Loses Life When Storm Capsizes Boat.

Many friends from the student body and the faculty attended the funeral services in Mountville yesterday afternoon for Calvin P. Fuller, a member of the junior class, who was drowned late Saturday afternoon in the Saluda river near Black's bridge below Prosperity, when he attempted to swim to shore after a violent rainstorm had capsized the boat from which he and several companions had been fishing at the time of the accident. The other men in the boat reached the shore after the storm had abated.

One of the companions with Fuller at the time the boat was capsized said that soon after the accident he heard Fuller shout to them that he was going to swim to shore and that he started out as they clung to the overturned boat. A short distance from the boat Fuller's companion saw him go down and he failed to come up. His body was found early Sunday morning and brought to a Clinton mortuary.



Fuller, who was twenty-two, received his elementary education in Spartanburg, graduating from high school there. Before coming to P. C. this year he attended The Citadel, in Charleston. Here at P. C. he was an outstanding member of the junior class, and a sergeant in the R.O.T.C., which will formally close the 1938 term at Presbyterian college. Immediately following this address, degrees will be conferred upon the graduates by Albert C. Todd, of Greenwood, chairman of the board of trustees.

The commencement exercises will begin Saturday afternoon, May 28, with the awarding of Officers' Reserve corps commissions in the special military ceremonies held annually for that purpose. At that time 25 men will receive this formal military recognition.

ANNUAL ATHLETIC EVENT TO BE HELD FRIDAY, SATURDAY

Eight Colleges In State To Be Represented In Events.

FINALS SATURDAY NIGHT END "LITTLE OLYMPICS"

South Carolina's 1938 track season will reach its climax Friday as the state intercollegiate track and field meet is run off beneath the floodlights of Presbyterian college's Johnson field in Clinton.

The varsity preliminaries and the freshman meet will be held on Friday afternoon.

Clemson, Carolina, Furman, Erskine, Wofford, Newberry, The Citadel, and Presbyterian college will enter teams in the meet, with the Clemson Tigers defending the title which they are holding for the third consecutive year.

While the individual performances in track and field events this year have not been particularly outstanding, the state meet gives indication of being one of the most interesting in years, as Carolina, Clemson, The Citadel, and Presbyterian college are all presenting teams of comparatively equal strength, and Furman has a team which will be seriously reckoned with.

Walter Johnson, athletic director at Presbyterian college, who has had charge of every state track meet ever run by South Carolina colleges, has been working for over a month and a half in preparation for this big occasion, and the schedule, divided into split minutes, indicates that the rapidity and skill with which the meet has been run yearly will be continued next week.

Pre-Law Students Form New Group Here This Week

Constitution To Be Adopted and Officers Elected Soon.

Tuesday night at a meeting of students who have chosen law as their profession, the first law club of Presbyterian college was formed, the organization having been suggested by J. H. Wallace and M. M. Norton. The club elected George Beatty as temporary head of the organization until elections may be held, and unanimously selected R. S. Owens, Clinton attorney, as their advisor.

A constitution, drawn up by J. H. Wallace, was read to the club, and was referred to a constitutional committee composed of E. A. Johnson, chairman; George Beatty, ex-officio member; J. H. Wallace, C. C. McSwain, and M. M. Norton. The committee was directed to formally draft the constitution organizing the club, and will present it to the members at the next meeting Tuesday night. At this time, elections for president, vice-president, and secretary-treasurer also will be held, and a name for the new organization selected.

Students present at the first meeting were George Beatty, E. A. Johnson, J. H. Wasson, J. H. Wallace, Vernon Atkinson, R. K. Timmons, D. W. Hudson, C. C. McSwain, Cecil Buffkin, M. M. Norton, Harry McInvail, Tench Owens, J. W. Weldon, and E. Price.

Prof. Sturgeon At Spartanburg Meet

Prof. H. E. Sturgeon, of the chemistry department, attended the annual meeting of the South Carolina section of the American Chemical society, which met today in Spartanburg.

Prof. Sturgeon is secretary of the South Carolina section of the society.

BETA KAPPA PICNIC

Beta Kappa fraternity enjoyed its first spring picnic last Thursday night, in the form of a weiner roast.

Blue Key Frat To Sponsor Meet

Intramural swimming will be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the college pool in the gymnasium, it was announced today by Frank Johnston, president of Blue Key, honorary leadership fraternity on the campus which sponsors the college intramural program each year.

Teams will be entered by all six chapters of the national social fraternities located on the campus, as well as separate dormitory teams composed of non-fraternity men, Johnston told a reporter.

To be eligible to swim for any of the teams entering the meet, a man must not have been on either the varsity or freshman swimming teams this year.

"All teams should report promptly," Johnston said, "in order that the meet can begin on the hour scheduled."

ALPHA KAPPA PI SOCIAL

Alpha Kappa Pi fraternity entertained at a social Thursday night. Refreshments were served and all guests had an enjoyable evening.

D. W. HUDSON TELLS OF 2100-MILE TRIP TO KANSAS FORENSIC MEET

Dugald Hudson, member of the Presbyterian college debating team, returned last week from the twelfth biennial convention of Pi Kappa Delta, honorary national forensic fraternity, to which more than one hundred colleges and universities were represented, in Topeka, Kansas. Hudson represented Presbyterian in the extempore speaking, participating in three rounds and finishing in the upper half of the 88 colleges taking part in that branch of forensics.

In addition to the speech contests, there was a national student congress, consisting of 125 representatives and 40 senators, which had the use of the state capitol at Topeka. Hudson was on the house military and naval affairs committee. He wrote the minority report against the war referendum bill (Ludlow referendum) which the house approved, killing the bill, 68 to 42.

Telling of his trip which lasted two weeks and which carried him more than 2,000 miles through 13 states, Hudson said, "I went by Asheville, Knoxville, Nashville, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Kansas City, and returned through St. Louis, Memphis, Birmingham, Atlanta and Augusta, traveling a total of 2,100 miles by buses, which made as much as 70 miles an hour at times. The trip took two and one-half days each way and carried me through 13 states, in which I collected quite a few interesting sales tax tokens."

When questioned about his experiences at the convention, Hudson said, "The colleges in the mid-west seem to take more interest in forensics than we do in this section of the country. From talking to students, I found that in schools with a total of enrollment of 600 there would be 50 to 100 out for debating."

"Politically speaking," said Hudson, "most of the students tended to be rather liberal, idealistic, and pacifistic. However, all of them were intensely interested in politics and were well acquainted with history and economics."

"I was a little disappointed," he continued, "to find that the great majority were opposed to the R.O.T.C. In congress a bill was introduced to extend military training on a voluntary basis in the high schools and colleges and it was defeated by a 3 to 1 vote."

"I believe," Hudson concluded, "that the most important and useful legislation favored was contained in bills to stop false advertising, to establish uniform marriage laws, and to curb the social diseases. I feel that the convention was a great success."

Hudson, who is a rising junior, is from Greenville, and has been active in forensics since coming to P. C.

Music Depreciation

Why does the administration direct so much time, effort and money to other forms of publicity and then allow the band, a recognized valuable means of publicity, a scholarship allowance next to nothing?

It is true, the band is an organization of the military department, which furnishes almost everything needed to run it except the men themselves, but it is also (or could be), just as much a college organization as the Y. M. C. A., and capable, with the proper financial support, of accomplishing just as much good for the college and the students.

"Words may lie — music cannot," said Walter Demrosch, and it was this thought that was uppermost in our mind the other week while with the band representing the college in Lake City. According to a Florence newspaper, the Presbyterian College band provided the major consolation for a rain-spoiled county field day, refusing to be stopped by the rain, but went on to finish its part of the program. That was the most valuable type of publicity because "it was the goods" . . . "music cannot lie." Incidentally, the registrar has recently received a letter from Lake City from a prospective student asking for information about the college. This was only the second trip of its kind made by the band during the entire school year.

The military department will furnish instruments for a 50-piece band if necessary, but it is up to the administration and the student body to bring men who can play those instruments, to P. C.

We are going to have a successful football season next fall, and we are going to need a band to keep school spirit right behind that football team as nothing else can. If you know of a student planning to go to college next fall who can play a musical instrument just drop the director of the band a post card and he will be glad to write to him. The school is progressing, why not the band?

Surely it couldn't be that music (never mind the cracks) is not appreciated here, because "there is but one class of men who condemn music," says Mower, "and those are fanatics: and there is only one order of beings, according to Luther, who hate it, and those are devils."

Again we emphasize the fact that it is the willingness of the field representatives sent out by the college, and the student body, to find men who play musical instruments who plan to go to college next fall, to persuade them to come to P. C.

From the Editor's Desk

We notice among military copy this week the fact that the seniors, recently retired from active army duty, just can't believe the juniors can run the corps without them. But they continue to come down to the drill field to see for themselves, chewing anxiously upon the last bit of breakfast toast.

From some of the shots being taken by campus candid-camera enthusiasts, we are rather dubious about some of them being exhibited in "Wee Willie's" domain. But with all joking aside, we think the idea of a photo contest deserves rare commendation, and we hope that one of the winners printed in The Blue Stocking will be yours, Mr. P. C. Campus Cameraman.

And since it ain't benzine.

A Lake City patriarch told one of the band men during his visit there that if he drank from the artesian well fountain on Main Street he would return to Lake City. The bandman quaffed of the fountain and vowed to return . . . to town, but not to the fountain . . . it was "egg water."

LT. COLONEL C. L. ANDERSON

After a brief interview with Sergeant Comstock last week, this columnist found that the star which Sergeant wears on his left arm is not for being an expert with the machine gun, as some thought, but for his athletic achievements. He is a good swimmer and won the star while on the team at Fort Benning. He has other medals, but his modesty forbids such decoration.

According to a vote of the freshmen last week, they are unanimously in favor of having pink pants for their uniform next year. This means that they will have to buy the pants themselves at the beginning of next year, and this will also increase the cost of the basic uniform for freshmen who enter in the fall. At this writing it has not been definitely decided whether this change will be made or not, but it will improve the looks of the corps one hundred per cent.

It seems that "B" company, with "Umping" Joe Hollis as captain, has at last proved that they are the smartest company by winning the citation cords three times in a row (pronounced roe) and four times out of a possible fives times that the grades have gone in. The grades of all the companies have shown a decided improvement since the contest was started and much credit is due the military department for instituting the contest. We hope the grades will continue to improve and that the plan will be carried on next year.

Hayne Taylor will journey alone to distant Edgewood arsenal in Maryland for special training in chemical warfare this summer. Lucky guy. For him there's no drill and no shooting. However, Hayne will have his hands full of little things in test tubes which will probably kill more men in the next war than all the bullets fired.

We would like to try to express for the junior class the great loss we feel in the death of a true friend and brother cadet, Calvin Phillips Fuller. The memory of his characteristic neatness, military bearing and love for the service will ever serve as inspiration to greater endeavor on our part. Taps blown for him yesterday were but the earthly echo of a greater reveille beyond.

A NOSE IN THE NEWS
or
The Last Word In Publicity
(You figure it out)

Sometimes, just on the rare occasions of idea incubation, your truly loving correspondent often wonders about news. Yes, I said "news." Now there are a lot of things one can wonder about news. For instance, "what is news?" "who done it?" "where is the funny paper?" "who's got the sports spake?" Of course you understand what I mean.

But I wonder other things. (I guess you sometimes wonder if I really can wonder. I wonder if many people wonder that. No wise cracks). What I mean is I pause to contemplate (fooled you, eh?) how in the world news is cooked up when there isn't quite enough to fill the paper.

Go ahead, wise guy, go ahead and say "They go out and bite a dog." I know it would have to come sooner or later, and the sooner the later—er—the better, the later (cripes!), the later the sooner. Gnash, gnerts, gephooey, etc. You know what I mean.

How would a headline like this look and sound:

"ELMORE DRIZZLEPUS MUNCHES HIND LEG OFF FRENCH POODLE,' 'or maybe one like this: "EX-PRESIDENT MAKES MEAL OF MYTERIOUS MUTT."

The common run of pooches don't appear delightfully edible to this guy. Now, it's okay to go out and bite a nice respectable mutt that is deserving of publicity, but how do you know it's a nice respectable dog? Thats a question that needs careful consideration and deep, dogged (get it?) thought. The papers can't afford to give seven inches space for an article relating how Mike Reilly, the village street-sweeper, bit Bill Lewis' foxhound. Why, that is just one of the common run of mutts. But on the other hand, if Madamozell (pardon the spelling) Lelerniert snatched up her Spanish Mouse-Hound and nibbled off a hind quarter, that would get nearly a half-column, with possibly a cut of the old busybody smacking her lips in ignorant ecstasy or perhaps gnawing the bone of the left-rear drumstick.

Now, several days ago the editor calmly asked me to run out on the campus and bite a dog (it?), and he meant it. (P. S. tor always means says). Well, I said to cool, kid, keep cool." Well even cold—as a matter of to death—but I had walked down the steps thawing out, that lead dormitory exit (the front sentence certainly sounds thoughts were dampened gallon bucket of water head from the third floor do that in Spencer). Blue Hose Annex Second Place In Baseball Race

SPORTS FOLIO

— By —

James Hafley

We're forced to take back what we said last week regarding batting averages! This time last week there were only two men on the P. C. baseball roster hitting above .300. Now there are five or six, and every man on the team has managed to raise his batting mark at least 20 points. Four batteries in one week, and decisive ones, too, are not to be sneezed at. It just goes to prove that the noble Galloway-men can dish it out. Right now the Blue Hose baseball team is in a tie for third place in the state standings and it is not altogether impossible for them to cop another state flag! We admit the chances are rather remote, but if Carolina and Furman hit a stump this week and our boys come through with victories over Newberry and Clemson—well, anything can happen!

Hafley

There are all-star baseball teams, All-American baseball teams, all-national baseball teams, all-girl baseball teams, and all-round baseball teams, but has anybody got a pet nationality to beat these Sons of Caesar now playing in the big show: Rossetti, ss; Marty, rf; Bonura, 1b; Maggio, cf; Lavagetto, 3b; Lidi-ana, 2b; Vince DiMaggio, lf; Lom-di, c; Cascarella, p. Reserves: Cal-lii, Bottarini, Mancuso, Almada, Mazeri, Garribaldi, and Rizzo. Viva Duce!

With the tennis team running through Southern competition as it has been for the past month, the North Carolina intercollegiate tennis tournament, May 11-14, ought to be an interesting affair from our point of view. It has been many a year since a Presbyterian court team has met with so much success, but this year's edition is really making up for lost time. Boykin, Beatty, Harper, Woodward, Power, Stowell and Johnson are the racket men who, along with the best tennis coach in the south, have formed an almost impervious net combination.

From the Erskine Mirror comes the following tribute: "Last week in Clinton, Harold Burris came to bat with Erskine three runs behind in the ninth inning and with a runner on first. Having struck at two balls, Burris hoped what would have been the third strike. The umpire did not hear the call and ruled the batter out. Burris protested, but the umpire remained firm. At the request of Coach Todd, however, he asked the catcher whether or not the ball had been tipped, to which he replied that it had. So here this autumn pays tribute to June Moore who, having suffered the unfortunate breaks of the game, was square enough to tell the truth when he didn't have to and no one would have ever known the difference. Burris, incidentally, singled to place the bases in scoring position."

This article appeared in Sports Editor John Leith's column, "Flying With the Fleet."

TENNIS TEAM HAS BUSY WEEK, WINNING THREE, LOSING TWO

Presbyterian's racquet-wielders enjoyed only fair success last week in winning three and dropping two. All five matches were with state competitors. P. C. now holds second place in state standings, the two losses suffered this week placing them behind the undefeated Gamecocks from Carolina.

Monday, the Blue Hose dropped a close match to Carolina in Columbia, 4-3. Furman downed the Blue Hose in Clinton the next day by the same score. Jim Aiken, Furman ace, evened his score with Lykes Boykin by winning in three hard sets, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4. The Citadel was downed Wednesday, 5-2, and Erskine was beaten, 7-0, Thursday. On Friday Clemson's racqueteers were turned back, 4-3. It was in this match that Bob Harper, Blue Hose No. 3 man, suffered his first loss in state competition. A bright note was struck by the apparant return to form of Capt. George Beatty, after a slow start. He is the one P. C. racqueteer who stands undefeated in the state.

Presbyterian's tennis team lost their second straight match of the season Tuesday to the Furman racqueteers, 4 to 3.

Jim Aiken, Furman number one man, played beautiful tennis to hand Lykes Boykin, ace P. C. tenniser, his first defeat of the season after a stirring battle which saw the lead change innumerable times. Aiken took the first set, 6-4, but Boykin came back to take the second contest by a 9-7 count. In the final set Aiken proved the aggressor and won out by a 6-3 score. Boykin and Harper teamed to beat the Paladin twin team of Aiken and Bagby in another hard-fought match that went three sets.

Aiken (F), defeater Boykin, 6-4, 7-9, 6-3.

Beatty (PC), defeated Anders, 6-0, 4-6, 6-1.

Smith (F), defeated Power, 6-3, 6-0.

Harper (PC), defeated Bagby, 6-0 6-2.

Clinkscales (F), defeated Stowell, 6-2, 6-4.

Boykin and Harper (PC), defeated Bagby and Aiken, 1-6, 6-1, 6-3.

Anders and Smith (F), defeated Beatty and Johnston, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Galloway's Nine Downs Wofford

The Wofford Terriers felt the newly gained power of the revamped Blue Hose here Thursday afternoon and fell victims of a 15-hit attack to lose, 12 to 6.

McGregor pitched superb ball until he ran into a streak of wildness in the last inning and had to call on "Thin Man" DuBose to retire the last two batters, one on a fly to Horne and the other by the strikeout route. He gave up 10 well-scattered hits and was especially effective with "ducks on the pond," leaving 12 men stranded on the base paths. He fanned six and issued seven bases on balls.

Bell was hit hard, with Captain Blackwell, who had a triple and two singles, Batchelor, a triple and two singles, and Reid with a double and two singles leading the 15-hit onslaught. Horne added a triple and a single for runner-up honors. Clark, with a double and two singles, and Trammell with two singles, led the Terriers at the plate, while Folk did some nice cavorting around the short position.

Wofford scored twice in the third on a walk, two hits and an error, but the lead was short lived as the Hose scored in that inning on Batchelor's triple and theft of home while Bell was winding up, and added four more in the fifth on Blackwell's triple, Horne's single, Ritch's walk, Reid's single and an error. Wofford got a run in the fourth on Trammell's infield hit, Trammell being caught attempting a steal, Clark's double, and Folk's single. In the sixth Folley singled to center, Moore forced him but went to second on a wild throw, McGregor singled to score Moore, Horne tripled, scoring McGregor for two more tallies. Ritch singled to open the seventh, stole second, Batchelor walked, and Reids double scored Ritch. Mabry grounded out, Batchelor scoring on the play, Reid scored on a wild throw to the plate in an effort to catch Batchelor. The final two tallies crossed the plate in the eighth on Batchelor's single, Reid's single, and Mabry's single.

Florida Smothers Hose Track Stars

The University of Florida track team took 11 first places to win over Presbyterian college Saturday by 95 5-6 to 31 1-6.

Rawls of Presbyterian, and Newell of Florida, tied for first in the mile run with a time of 4:33.7, three full seconds below the state record.

The summary:

Mile run: Rawls (P) and Newell (F), tied for first; Watson (F), third. Time, 4 minutes, 33.7 seconds.

440-yard dash: Fay (F), Burns (P), Arnold (P). Time, 53.1 seconds.

100-yard dash: Kearney (F), McGahey (F), Cole (P). Time, 9.8 secs.

Hose Sluggers Beat Furman

The Blue Hose took possession of second place in the state race by trouncing Furman here Friday, 9 to 5, for their third straight victory in successive days, and their fourth straight win.

Furman scored two in the first, one in the second and seventh, and two in the ninth. P. C. sent five runs across in the second inning and two in each of the third and eighth innings.

DuBose, sophomore who has been pitching good ball all season, was on the mound for the Hose and did a good job although he was hit hard. The Greenville boys secured 13 hits off his right-hand slants but they were well scattered. Twelve men were left stranded on the base paths. His curve ball was working and he caused 14 Furmanites to miss the third strike.

Again it was "money player" Folley who led the Gallowaymen at bat as he smashed out three singles in four efforts and scored two runs. June Moore cracked out two singles and Shorty Horne hit a two-run double and a single. Buck Wages, Furman right-fielder, had three hits, and Wofford, Spires, Shelley and Gwinn all secured two hits. Wofford starred afield with a nice running catch of Horne's long smash. Mac Reid furnished the fielding gem of the day with a spectacular diving stop of Moore's hot grounder and tossing him out at first. June Moore did a nice job behind the plate as he caught several long foul flies.

The victory, P. C.'s fifth in six starts, raised them from sixth to second in the state standing and gave them a good chance to win the state title again. Newberry and Furman remain to be played before the season ends.

DuBose Wins Long Duel With McCravy

Starting off on a successful baseball week, the P. C. Blue Hose nine downed the top-notch Carolina Gamecocks in Columbia Monday in 11 innings of hard-fought baseball, 3 to 2.

Richard DuBose and Capers McCravy, ace hurlers of the two clubs, hooked up in a beautiful pitching duel. Both were hit hard and often but managed to keep the hits well scattered as the score would indicate. DuBose gave up 11 hits, all singles with the exception of Burns' triple, Robinson's double and Zuckerman's two-base knock. P. C. garnered 12 singles off McCravy. DuBose fanned seven, and McCrary nine.

With the score deadlocked at 2-2, Erwin singled to open the 11th inning, was sacrificed to second and scored when Moore hit a long fly to left. The ball was thrown into second in an attempt to catch Moore and Williams stepped on Moore and fell with the ball, Erwin crossing the plate with the deciding run in the thrilling contest.

P. C. pulled the first triple play of the season in the sixth when, with Lowry on third and Robinson on second, Williams flew to Folley. Lowry tried to score after the catch and was caught between third and home and retired. The ball was then thrown to second and Robnison was caught for the third out, completing the three in one play. Horne snared a line drive and doubled the runner off first for the only double killing of the game. Both teams played errorless ball over the long route.

Folley secured four singles in five attempts to lead the Hose at the plate and Robinson led the Carolina attack with four hits. Folley pulled another fielding gem when he made a backhand running catch of Wolfe's long drive to left. This was P. C.'s second victory over the Gamecocks and the only two losses sustained by the Carolina team thus far this season.

Hosemen Trounce Citadel Bulldogs

Ben Christian pitched superb ball Wednesday and he and his Blue Hose mates defeated The Citadel, 9 to 1, on Young field for their second straight victory over the boys from Charleston.

With two out in the first, Owen doubled to left and Edwards followed with a long triple to score Citadel's only run. After that splurge Ben was master of the situation, getting into serious trouble on only one other occasion.

In the fourth the P. C. seige guns fired away and four runs were trotted across the plate before Bessinger, who relieved Kendricks after the former had given up four hits and three runs, was able to retire the side. Ritch led off with a line drive to deep center for a home run. Reid singled and Mabry hit a triple by third, scoring Reid. Folley grounded out on a beautiful play by Gilbert, Mabry scoring. Moore tripled to deep center and scored on a passed ball.

Horne singled in the fifth, stole second, advanced to third on Ritch's infield out, and scored on Batchelor's single. Batchelor stole second and scored on Reid's single. Mabry smashed a double to left and Reid scored the seventh run for the Hosemen. Citadel got two men on in the sixth, but Christian fanned Freeman to end the rally. In the seventh, Batchelor scratched a single, stole second and scored on Reid's dingle to left. Bessinger was hit in the mouth when the throw in from left bounded from his glove. Saleeby replaced him and Mabry greeted him with a double to left, scoring Reid.

Christian allowed only four hits, two by Edwards, fanned eight and issued only one base on balls. Reid with three singles, Mabry with two doubles and a triple, Batchelor with two hits, and Moore with two hits, led the 13-hit attack on the three Citadel hurlers. Bessinger pitched good ball uuntil he was hurt, and Edwards sparkled both in fielding and hitting.

STATE MEET ON THE MENU FOR S. C. TRACKMEN

Annual Carnival To Claim Attention of Sports Fans Friday and Saturday.

TO BE HELD HERE ON JOHNSON FIELD

Assault On Existing Records Likely To See Several Fall As Ace Performers Gather.

The South Carolina intercollegiate track and field meet will get underway on the P. C. track Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock with every school in the state represented and with a record-breaking crowd expected.

Dick Little, last year's high scorer, has been ruled ineligible and will not compete. Larry Craig of Carolina, recently inserted in the Gamecock lineup tossed the shot for a new state record the other day against The Citadel and will be a leading contender in this event and the discus. McFadden of Clemson, is expected to take several events, and Rawls of P. C., is expected to win his hobbies, the 880 and mile runs. Cole of P. C. ran a 9.9 hundred against Florida, and he and Dennard both ran under 23 seconds in the 220. They loom as threats in these events. Kitchens of Clemson, is the outstanding contender for the 440, and McSween of P. C., has been leading the state in the pole vault. Babb of Furman, and Sabados of The Citadel, should furnish competition in the weight events. Hipp of P. C., is the leading javelin chunker.

Trials and the frosh meet will be held Friday, and the finals in the varsity will be held under the lights of Johnson field on Saturday night.

Resolution

Whereas, it has pleased the Supreme Archon of the Universe in His all-wise providence to call Calvin P. Fuller from this world unto Himself above; and,

Whereas, at Presbyterian college he was a devoted pledge of Eta chapter of Alpha Kappa Pi fraternity;

Be it resolved: That we, his brothers, deeply mourn his departure from among us;

That we acknowledge the debt we owe Calvin for the privilege we had in knowing and loving him; for the inspiration he gave and will always give us in straight thinking and correct living; and for the indelible impression he has left on our chapter as a whole and on ourselves individually;

That a copy of these resolutions be sent his sorrowing parents, and to the campus publication at Presbyterian college.

PaC-SaC Changes Photographers

The photography contract for the 1939 PaC-SaC, annual student publication, has been let to Dunbar and Daniel studio, Raleigh, N. C., it was announced today by W. E. Pope, recently elected editor.

This is the first time in several years that the contract has been given to an out-of-town photographer. When asked the reason for the change Pope said, "I was able to get a very favorable contract from a reputable firm at a considerable lower price. Four poses of each student will be made, and individual athletic pictures will be taken in action. The low price is a result of the anticipation of a high sale of pictures.

to which he was to have been admitted in the advanced corps on a pay basis today. He has been serving voluntarily on a non-pay status. He was a pledge of Alpha Kappa Pi, national social fraternity on the campus.

At the funeral yesterday afternoon several close friends among his fraternity brothers acted as pallbearers. The college quartet sang during the church services, and at the grave, and Dr. F. D. Jones, a close friend of Fuller and a member of the college faculty, assisted in the services. At the close of the services at the grave, N. S. Heeth, wearing the uniform of a P. C. advanced corps cadet, blew taps just before the final benediction was pronounced. Fuller was buried in the white summer uniform of a senior cadet in the Reserve Officers Training corps, from which he was to have graduated as a lieutenant next year. His neatness and military bearing as an officer and a gentleman were especially characteristic of him.

Besides his mother, Mrs. Effie Fuller, he is survived by a twin sister, Caroline, and two brothers, Captain Harold Fuller, and Morton Fuller, both of Atlanta.

His untimely death came as a shock to his many friends among the student body and the faculty here. Military drill was suspended this morning out of respect to Fuller, who was acting lieutenant in "B" company.

SENATOR SMITH TO SPEAK COMMENCEMENT

ister. The Y.M.C.A. service is an annual event held in connection with the graduation exercises.

Senator Smith, popularly known as "Cotton Ed" to many of his friends and associates over the United States, has served as senator for thirty years, longer than any other Democrat now in office, and being exceeded in length of service by Senator Borah, of Idaho, who has served two years longer than Smith. In September, 1908, he was nominated in the Democratic primary and received at that time the largest vote ever given an aspirant for this office in South Carolina. He was elected the following November and has served continuously since that time. During his five terms he has served on numerous senate committees, including interstate commerce, agriculture and forestry of which he is chairman, manufacturing, patents, naval affairs, elections, etc. He is the ranking Democrat in senate committees. Smith's term expires this summer, at which time he will again enter the race with the hope of adding six more years of service to his state and the nation.

SENIOR NOTES NUMEROUS IMPROVEMENTS IN ADMINISTRATION AND CAMPUS IN FOUR YEARS

One can hardly realize that in the short space of four years so many major improvements have been made at Presbyterian college. I shall attempt to list some of these improvements.

When the present senior class were "rats," if they had the misfortune to become ill, they were cared for in their dormitory rooms by room-mates and friends who, despite their good intentions, proved to be very poor nurses. Now, we have a modernly-equipped infirmary, operated by "Mother Mac," who, incidentally, is loved by all the boys.

Our students now have excellent recreation facilities in the fine Y. M. C. A. building. Games, reading material, and radio provide amusement and direct energy into channels of usefulness which otherwise might be misused. Located in the same building is the college canteen which, although not a new thing, is more centrally located and thus serves the student body in a more efficient manner.

In the field of athletics, probably the most important advances have been made in tennis and baseball. Many tennis courts have been added and one of the South's finest tennis instructors has been secured as coach, Bill Lufler. Tennis at Presbyterian is definitely on the upgrade and within a few years P. C. should be one of the top flight tennis schools of the country. Baseball has made rapid strides under the direction of Coach Chick Galloway. A fence has been put around Young field and an excellent grass infield provided. Baseball is out of the athletic doldrums at P. C., Chick's charges having captured the 1937 pennant and placed high in the 1938 race. Prospects are brightest in the history of the school for the 1939 season.

While still discussing athletics, it is well to remark on the fine 72,000-watt lighting system which has been installed on Johnson field. Also commendable is the purchase of the new bus. Gone are the days of windowless buses, hunting up and down the highway for missing parts and spending nights out on the road. Several notable improvements have been made in the gymnasium under the direction of that prince among men, Coach Walter "Woof-Woof" Johnson. The former hazard of the indoor rifle range has been removed by the erection of Fort Wysor, an N. Y. A. project. Dressing room facilities have been bettered so as to increase the comfort of the athletes. The supply room, always an efficient organization, has been made even more so in recent years. To meet the demands of a growing institution, more offices for the coaching staff have been constructed. While still in the gymnasium, it is well to take cognizance of the new armory. New rifle racks with locks have been provided, walls and floor have been reconditioned, which, by the way, drew praise from the recent inspecting officer of the military unit.

Enrollment has increased by leaps and bounds—by leaps, anyhow. There were approximately 275 students four years ago, whereas the enrollment today is on the sunny side of 350. Some idea of the comparison between the enrollment four years ago and today may be gained by recalling that the third floor of the middle section of Smyth was not being used at all and that today applications for admission exceed the supply of rooms and many students are forced to find rooms out in town. Judd Hall, the scene of many a terrific battle of biscuits (eating, of course) is now filled to capacity, whereas formerly not over two-thirds of the tables were utilized.

Bouquets should be tossed at Dr. Jackson and his able staff of campus custodians. They have wrought many changes for the better in the beautification of the campus, especially in the planting of shrubbery. A new heating system has been installed for Alumni hall, the science hall, and the administration building.

In "Wee Willie's" domain many improvements have been made, the collection of books having been augmented by additions from the Sinnott and McIlwaine libraries.

We now have a functioning publicity department headed by Hugh Little John Hammell, the Magnificent. Makes up for his smallness of stature by his bow-legs, on account of which the girls say in that sweet, affectionate way we kr— so well, "Ain't he cute?" Says Cupid has been kind and the bells are likely to ring any day after May 30th. (We hope there'll be a dinner bell also).

If any of you fellows happen to see the campus' patient of Johns Hopkins hospital, ask him about a certain experience he had with a thermometer there. My, these modern ways! We refer to none other than N. O. Creech.

Bird (oh, excuse me!), I mean Macon Hipp, but we know he doesn't mind. He's done a great job as an athlete at our school. I refer you to the account of the state track meet for further information about this one. Successful? Well, how can he fail. We must take into consideration that it'll cost lots to fill him with bread'n' butter, though.

Any of you seniors want a nice house built? I can refer you to a Carpenter. He spells his first name B-a-x-t-e-r. (The middle initial is B. Can it be for Bright? The reader can draw his own conclusions). Anyway, Baxter can run pretty well for his school. Ask him how fast he was going through a certain briar patch at Anniston, Ala. Well, the race was successful anyway. If you don't believe it, in the Ad. building stands two loving cups for its proof. Baxter and a comrade ran hard for them. Just yesterday the hero in question was seen picking briars out of his feet. Bravo!

"Skeeter" Lyle, the most successful" of P. C. lovers. Says it's real this time. Christmas he was a true Robin Hood, for Hollis sneaked up on him while he was buying a new bow and arrow for Cupid. It seems that Cupid was out of his famed golden arrows at the time. Nothing like cooperation with Cupid. Especially if you have seen Mary Ann's picture with that irresistable smile, on "Skeet's" desk. "Skeet" says it's insurance for him. Luck to you, and our advice is to continue skeetin' stuff.

"Stroker," "Angel" Waldrep — ah, the very words cause us to sink down with horror. They say they use his name at Lanford Station to scare naughty children with. He's been a flash in basketball and football and P. C. is very proud of him. (Incidentally, we're proud of all our seniors). Seems to really have something over Laurens way. More power to you, and We hope to see "Stroker" and Katharine at homecoming next year. Anniston's a hot place, "Angel."

Miss Max Jones is ending a successful carrer at P. College. We don't know where she'll be next time the sap rises and romance permeates the air. With Max, romance is never dormant though. Somehow romance with her is never out of season. We don't wonder, because she's cute, ain't she boys?

A roman nose (shiny, too) protruded through the dining hall door. Then two eager, youthful, yet guilty, sparkling eyes traversed the vicinity of the gym. Then like a flash, a blurred object is seen going in the general direction of Smyth. It's a good thing a tree didn't get in the way, for science tells us that two objects can't occupy the same space at the same time. It would have been too bad for Said tree. That was a close one, J. M. Commander, but never worry, Major wasn't looking anyway. To any rising juniors, here is an announcement of interest: Joe has a new uniform to sell. It's been worn once, but a discount might be arranged. Our erstwhile student body president also helped win the proficiency cup at Anniston last summer. He's a good old boy, though, and works for Royal Cleaners. Is he a lover? You should see "Rene." Better watch your corners, Joe.

Two years ago, a barefooted boy in tattered overalls walked up to President Jacobs and asked for admission to the well of knowledge which springs up into a well-rounded student "who dares to be different." Well, Norwood Cole did. Maybe this explains his fleetness of foot. Anyway, better watch him Saturday night on that cinder. The boy can sling a good grade of hash, too. Says he's used to feeling mud and rocks and such with the bottom of his feet. Doesn't like girls or shoes. Poor boy! He must lead a lonely life. Oh, yeah! He's from N. C.

"Snap," "Chilly," "Cold," "Monster" Hemphill, hails from Griffin, Ga., where pretty girls and peaches grow. Well, we know about the peaches, anyway. Can be seen with a cigarette lighter (coffin tack) in one hand and a camera in the other. His favorite pastime is sleep. Skeets a dry line, but the women say with one accord, "But it sounds good to me." "Hemp" also is a professional mourner. Ask him how he likes New Orleans?

Ever heard of Woodstock, Ga.? Well, if you haven't, it's just too bad, for W. D. "Dizz" Power hails from no other place. A good old boy, with success written in that face. Likes tennis, and has this slogan which he can quote like a veteran:

"Young man, I've traveled far and wide,
And many maids I've met.
Two kinds you should avoid—
The blond, and the brunette."

He lives up to it, too. Better take notice here and get his autograph for it'll be of immense value some day.

"Greek" Johnson—or should I say Col. E. A. Johnson—(notice absence of "t" in name). Well, he only replied to your snooper in a rather dry, unconventional manner, "I have one hobby, namely, chewing tobacco." We know he's good at other things, for we've seen him rise and shine in debating and know that he has a formula all his own for success. Girls to him are like Judd Hall grits. Not that he eats them, but that they're an every-day occurrence. Boys in "A" company at camp were very desirous to know where he was from. We wonder why.

Swi — — — ish! Crash * ! * !? * ! The only senior in school who doesn't know what doorknobs are for. Just walks through doors as if they were not there. Believes the reality of objects is, after all, only in the mind. Throws his Laurens Dorm stove out in the hall in December. Likes fresh air and to live close to nature. Runs seven laps on the track while yours truly snoozes. Is always in a hurry. Wants to get out in the world and make wonders. Hates girls with a passion. We see him little because he goes so fast. Anyway, he's a good old boy. A. M. Pelensky, good luck to you.

The scene is laid in a cozy little nook on second floor of the "Y" building. (When you enter don't slam the door, for the paint has curled up in the room). Also in said room little "shocking" devices are seen everywhere. This one leads the Parson's club like Moses led the children of Israel. Is inseparable from his pipe. He likes it so much that he's planning to have two front teeth knocked out so he won't have to put it down when he eats. Skeets a line, which would put an infant suffering with indigestion to sleep (insomnia victims, here's relief). Buck Patterson, the "Ripper"—ever heard of him? Is bad about getting words mixed up in his sermons, and my! my! how surprising is the result! This one casts longing eyes over Converse way.

Fifty cents to anyone who can spell the place G. F. Landen hails from—C-h-i-n-q-u-a-p-i-n, North Carolina. Another hill-billy. Also loves his pipe and home-made cigars. When he arrived he was clad in moccasins and had a mountain lion's skin wrapped around his body and used his tail for a string to tie it. His first impression of P. C. was that it looked like heaven to him. We wonder if he's related to the Governor Landen who ran for president. He gets awful lonesome because his sweetheart doesn't know how to write, and anyway, they only send out mail from Chinquapin once a year. Our Turk was a bravo to get him, eh? It's all in fun, and you're a good boy, George. Luck to you.

Jacobsen—the waiter—has the honor of being the originator of the word "waiter." Lives in "Frog Hollow," "where the frogs and crickets do play." A place awaits him in the world (he hopes).

This one started a year behind us, but now he's right in there with the best. His parents agreed to call him Roy F. Hutchinson. In passing through, some sweet pictures have been noticed on his dresser. Now don't get me wrong. He's not two-timing. He's true to at least a dozen females, he says. A great guy and "packs a hefty" debate. Also enjoys the great, grand and glorious privilege of being on Dean's list and will graduate with honors. Although he skeets a line, it's so intellectual average minds fog up if they try to follow. Here's to you, Roy.

There are many things we could say about E. F. "Single-tingle" McLeod, but his face is an open book, revealing more than we can attempt to write. His loves have been so numerous that we refuse to list any of them. Just one word, though, to whom it may concern. Lander seems to have his heart-strings. We hope there'll be a bell for him to ring everywhere he goes. It'll make him feel at home. Maybe he'll get a job as engineer on a freight train.

When your eyes are tired, and you are weary from the ugliness and sordidness of the world, if a certain little blond ceo-ed comes along, immediately faces brighten and smile. This beautiful "ray of sunshine" is none other than "Bebe" Dillard. She has something besides looks, too, for she'll be the first co-ed to get her "sheep hide" with a B. S. degree carved through the wool. We're glad to have had you in our class, "Bebe," and say to a certain senior that he's mighty, mighty, in fact, terribly lucky. And also he'd better watch, for they still make straight razors and "niggers" ain't all that totes them, either. What I mean, razors what am hungry for throat, too. We know you'll be successful, "Bebe"—and we heartily agree with the judges in the recent beauty contest.

"Arthur McElroy is a good ole boy,
And wanted Santa Claus to bring him a toy.
Old Santa said, "Do you want a flute?"
Arthur said, "No, a parachute."

Anyway, "Mac" knows his history, and has been 'most around the world. Although he sees apparitions every now and then, we don't think it's serious. Union is his hat-hanging place, only we think he pawned his hat. Wonder what he'll do?

Any day, you can see Ralph Stowell and Martha together. Well, we just ain't saying nuthin'. "Yank" is from 'way up Nawth where those "wops" stay (but he ain't one). He's a reg'lar guy. Several Smyth boys like to ride in his new Ford with shiny lights, etc. It's a hun. We hope to see you again, "Yank," and remember, we done forgot all about that Bull Run stuff—except the way the "bull" runs over in Smyth. Roll your pants legs, boys. Wish you a lot of luck, Ralph.

"Bean Pole" Peeksen ("Geeche") had better watch the way he plays his cards. A certain '37 Buick sport roadster might spell his doom down Newberry way. Then, too, you know "Papooses" go for such things. Maybe that has something on why I saw him reading Carnegie's book, "How To Win Friends and Influence People."

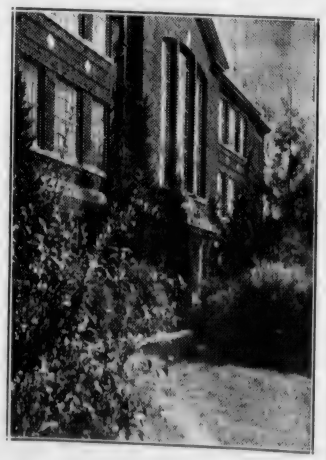
Sarah Salters is so cute. A certain crimson blond student who wishes he were only he wants the sun to shine every day. It won't be so with Sarah, for Sam can buy a present, and I'll bet it'll be a swell one. We do wish he'd come home earlier, don't we? We know you'll keep in touch with P. C. Perhaps we'll see you when the tennis team plays here.

"Royal Dry Cleaners and Laundry!" My, we're getting sleep now. Jake Penland, better known as "Benland") is a case in point. He's made enough money from dry cleaning to support a wife (provided he bought a pair of porters). Capital City is here to stay or in every-day slang, "We're sure he can call him." We're glad you got your name in print again. Did I say again? the talent.

"Bib" Gaither Shaw—a character. Should have been born in Anniston. Likes girls in a big way. When one held his hand and tested, saying that he was a boy. We take his statement at value. Says he'll be on the lookout of a north bound mule next fall.

John Woodward, a Georgian. "Grube" is what he calls a "good ole boy." Seems to have a affection for Henderson. Well, that country's "tops" anywhere. Tain't none of yer business, shouldn't she be? At least we think so.

Our crimson blond, better known as Nathaniel Sheffield Heeth, has married and honored. Getting two degrees hope he'll do everything in his power. He takes his smooch in a big way, so we've been told by those attending for the crown, and from a true confession—"I'm in love with cute date, especially in Geometry. I like Griffin, oh, so much." The suspected romeo, but P. C. is full of such snakes. Some of them are "Beau-a-constrictors."



"Look at me, now ain't I looking? That girl at Queens Mary at Erskine, Frances McDonald, Martha at Converse all the others say I'm so sweet, all swore I'd be true to them. I'm a great guy." Yes, I'm a great guy." Yes, I'm from bragging any more.

We wonder where he goes on week-ends. Someone find some dirt on him. When your reporter opened the door, he saw dark, wierd, fantastic, spirit-like faces and glittering eyes, and could hear the whirring of phantom wings. We take it that the place is ha'nted. They told me it was Clyde Conrad's abode. Anybody know any dirt on him?

Boys, one sure formula to be a social lion is to ride in a limousine and wear nice duds. At least that's what Wandell Williams 'lows. His loves are numerous, and furthermore, there are lots of them. Seems to like to dilly around and not settle down just yet awhile. Is a subscriber to the party telephone in the "Y." Some girl gets a ring each day, 'tis said. 'Tis rumored that he throws dice to see who he'll call. Well, we ain't young but onct, eh, Wandell? Eat, drink and have dates, for tomorrow we're married, or are broke.

Last year we said Col. Allen McSween, but he changed his (sawdust) mind, and says it's "Chicken-eating" for him now. You should see the cats that follow him into the picture show after a Judd Hall fish supper. One of the biggest eaters yet. Says he has the sweetest lil' girl in the world. It seems that designated sweet girl says "ditto" to all he says too, or "back at you." She can use them interchangeably. The "Parson" in question allways is careful about mad dogs when coming home late each night (emphasis on "each). Can't say we blame you, "Al," for "Bebe' is tops. Our advice is to not select any rollin' pins for graduation presents, "Al." Your reporter has seen some mighty nice knots (and black eyes) raised from such weapons ,and in the hands of comparatively weak females, too. Remember about the razors. So long.

Joel McCord Hollis, one who is broadminded and also a broad-jumper. He likes to be broad, it seems. They call him "handsome, free and happy" in Atlanta. By the way, he hails from Atlanta, "the Gate City of the South." Says it's a great place. Pretty girls and everything. Gets letters from Lukie's girl at our sister institution, Winthrop. You should read some of them. Incidentally, Lukie's girl knows "Scoop" Latimer, and has none other than his photo in her room. It seems Joe has cut Lukie's throat unintentionally, but Lukie smiles and says it didn't matter no how. It was all in fun, and so is this column.

"Can any good thing come out of Dalton, Ga.?" This is a common question, considering the fact that W. A. Moore calls that his sleeping place. Well, Moore says he "wants to see some more of Samon," as far as Clinton is concerend. It looked like romance about a year hence, but there must have been a jolt, or was it another man? Anyhow, he says it ain't no mo'—we 'low he's the best all-round athletic manager—at least he has athlete's foot.

C. L. Anderson, Lake City "Napoleon," says certain growling noises must cease or he'll bust ancient history wide open. "Pecky," (or Satchel) is a 20th century Shelley when it comes to the gals. He was seen by one of our snoopers holding a girl's hand in daylight. What's this younger generation coming to, anyway? 'Tis rumored his date for the dances is a swell dame. Just putting you guys wise, but "Pecky" says he'll bring her to breakfast hisself. Hard luck!

Skill in the operation of a lawn mower is a rare gift," says Mac Wicker. He intends to go professional when he gets his "dip" the 30th. Says Squire Mendonemy has already engaged his services for mowing the wild onions outen his yard. Mac loves the "cave-man" life. Says whiskers hide his skin and you can't tell if its dirty or not. When asked about girls or love, he disdainfully replied, "Ah, these painted dolls around here don't know anything about cave-keeping." We believe he was foolin' though, for he has a beaten path leading to Mary Lou's house. It's unmistakable.

Belonging to our mysterious number is also W. M. Clark, from over Laurens way. He's a darkhorse. However, we see in him many potential powers, so don't underrate his amiable qualities. He has a heart, at least, maybe, unless some sweetness has it. A halo of graveyard hoot-owls and black cats hide from us his true nature. 'Tis even said when he want to college the first thing he did was to matriculate. My, how these young folks lack modesty! Grandpa didn't.

We love to see a sunny smile and a cheery disposition, and if some good looks and amiable qualities are added, we don't get mad a bit. Well, Miss Rita Chandler, is another ray of sunshine to brighten a dull-looking crowd. That smile will get you places, Rita. Maybe that explains why Dr. Lynn is troubled with college boys over at Faith cottage. Anyway, Rita's got sense, and has kept her heart, and not allowed it to be broken in little pieces. Good judgment.

One guy has expressed his desire to soar the heavens. E. U. McRae desires to fly like a bird. That fact alone should raise his stock with Mary Howze. What we can't understand is why Beverly caught the air, or has she caught it? E. U. was heard quoting the words of last year's stuff skeeter:

"My love is went,
She did me dirt.
I had not knew
She were a flirt.
To all my friends
My love forbid
That they be done
As I've been did."

We don't think there's anything to all this, but it makes a fine story. After all, that's what we want. Ministerial Student ("Parson," "Preacher," "Rev.") Cliff McLeod is sighing and pining as commencement comes on. " 'Twont be any fun at Columbia Seminary with Shirley in Clinton." Says he doesn't think P. C. can get along without him. For the satisfaction of curiosity of my redaers, we wonder what happened to that harem of pictures on "Rev's" desk. It couldn't have been that the wind blew them out the door or the janitor wanted a scarecrow. Well, there's no scarecrow on it now. Believe me, he really has something, and I think he realizes it, too. If the Baptists continue their water-pouring in Laurens hall, he'll probably make headlines. They're off to a good start. Why do they call him "Duck"? Ask Freshman "Lum" Edwards. "Mac" says he has his own chosen times for a bath and hates to get irregular. May Cupid be kind. There's lots more about "Mac" that would put your eyes out should it get in print—far be it from us to gossip.

Hubert Golden Wardlaw likes to emphasize the "Golden" part of his name, for that's all about him that glitters. He came to us four years ago pure and serene from the backwoods of Georgia. At first he called the gym "Mr. James" for fear of being disrespectful, and had the best intentions of entering the ministry. Now we fear he won't fulfill his ambition, since the women just won't let him alone. On glee club trips the weaker sex fall for his big bass voice, tho' some say it's his "baby face" they like. Here he acquired the descriptive name of "smooch hound" and "sinning parson." If you don't think he's a power with the women, just ask me. Now he's all settled down on a Clinton product, and seems to be going strong.

There's only one Burns. That is W. P. Burns. Well, he's a chicken-eater, too. I mean, a parson. He says he'll flip the dice to see which girl will be the unlucky one to go to the seminary with him. (No doubt, he can flip the dice). But Burns explains his success in rolling bones. He says you have to talk to them like this, "Come seven, come eleven, need flour in the barrel; come seven, come eleven, little boy needs breeches," etc. You might be able to get some pointers on poker too. He has a divine way of winning. We don't know whether it's because of his ministerial affiliations or not, but his bones have a college education. They know to obey his voice. The guy who steps confidently up to the canteen and says, "Hello, Parson, match you for a dope," had better have twelve cents. The reporter heard that's the sole reason the canteen's not in bankruptcy now.

One platinum blond awoke one bright Monday morning for class and asked, "Is this Sunday morning?" We admit, H. P. Brown, that it's mighty good to sleep on Sunday, especitily after Saturday night. Brown is another of our famed low-country boys. Says he feels natural when he smells the tang of salt air on the beach. No high country for him. Romance? Well, not yet. There are good times to be had still.

Ever see fifteen Frog Hollow-ites pushing a 1919 Essex coupe? Baron Von Cavin owns the controlling stock in this precious property. Shares are sold for 25c each. Dividends are paid to Cavin daily. Super has the world's record for flat tires, five in one hour. We wonder if someone has politely swiped the motor, for every time we see it, it seems that man-power is preferred to "horsepower." Cavin takes a ride each day, to the bottom of the hill. Menlo, Ga., claims him. 'Tis said Baron woke up one morning after playing basketball at Citadel and said, "Oh, it looks like our jail in Menlo." The Baron is a character, who also dares to be different. Frog Hollow says he's oh, so fond of playing soldier boy, and is planning to buy a great, long, shiny sabre, just for the fun of it. He likes to imitate Peter the Great and slice off a few Menlo-ite heads each morning, all because he gets amusement from such.

John "Snag" Caldwell, a whiz demon on the gridiron, is also a pretty fast worker along other lines. His own testimony, "Boys, I'm a modern, streamlined worker. Forget all this hooey about taking yer time." Then he cut down on that tobacco, turned it over in his mouth with a pitchfork, and just wouldn't say no more. We have our own ideas about the rest, though. Chester, S. C., is proud of our John Steele, and so are we.

A. H. Cartledge claims there are more pretty girls in Laurens than in Clinton, and on the whole Laurens is much better than Clinton. In that wistful squint of the corner of his eye went forth a profound expression of sympathy for Clinton and Clintonians, as if they were serving out a sentence or something. They tell me his power lies in that golden hair and those sea-blue eyes. Evidently, it has its effects. This statement is based on an observation of many moons, so we believe it's true.

"Yank" Beeman hails from Clinton, and is our own pole vaulter. A great guy this. When questioned about romance, he just drew up in a knot, blushed and smiled sheepishly, and wouldn't say nothin'. The shock was so great he didn't speak for a week. 'Tis said he even made signs for grits and rice in Judd Hall until the doctor thought it safe to let him utter a few gutterals from 'way down low. We couldn't fathom it. Anyway, draw your own conclusions. We did.

I'll bet John Wells Todd wouldn't like it a little bit if his name didn't appear in this column. He's one of our greatest, if not the greatest home-guard. When asked his favorite pastime, he just closed a questionable magazine and said, "A freshman giving me a bath is about the best thing I can think of." Anyway, that was the best of all his likes that we could print. Evidently the magazine story was interesting, for he went on reading and we had to leave without further information.

Hervey F. Blalock descends from a distinguished Laurens county family. He puts on a big front, but by a little probing we find the boy seems to like the shrubbery around a certain Rock Hill institution. She hangs her bonnet at "Clumbia" too. Hervey Francis slings a low grade with a Laurens country twist on it. Says things aren't as bad as they could be, but they ain't perfect yet.

Casanova Abe Briggs, Landrum wonder boy. Incidentally, some Landrum-ettes claim he's a "dream boy," Well, we do admit he has his credentials. Some say he has ancesters too. Casanova, by close association with Patterson, has acquired some of his habits. We all have our habits, don't we Casanova?

Last, but by no means least, comes the bosom friend of "Dull" Patterson. He likes to call himself "Hap," but is also fond of the title, Harris Gray, Jr. (no middle name a-tall). He is the uncrowned king of smooch, and is a fast worker, but he loves his work, oh, so much. This reporter did not get a definite statement from "Chauntie" Gray, but when he learned his "true-love" (we wonder if such things exist) had said, "Hap, it's all over," and that Hap was mourning so much, we just didn't question him about this sad case. 'Tis said our chief of casanovas seals his letters with truly great drops of tears. Hard luck, Hap. Six years is a pretty long bit to string one along, eh? But don't grieve, for we've seen that flashy smile and wavy hair do great wonders. We still believe it can do more yet. At least he deserves the sympathy of the entire student body. He's been the room-mate of Patterson for two or three years. What we wonder is, if he's internally injured from such an atmosphere. Hap likes to boast of a previous acquaintance with all-American Riley Smith.

Some of you smart guys got ahead (or behind), and graduated the first semester. We don't want to slight none of ye seniors, so we mention now: T. B. Allen Jones, Mary Motes, Jack Witherspoon and Neille Wilson. Dear reader, please don't think we don't know dirt on them, 'cause there's where you're wrong. We know plenty, but as this paper has such a wide circulation the stuff we know might hurt their positions, and consequently cut off their bread 'n' butter. Kind-hearted, eh?

Now Where?

Within three more weeks the present seniors bid their final farewell to undergraduate days at college. Somehow the average senior faces this fact with a sensation entirely new in his life, because for the average senior it means really facing life for the first time.

The majority of the lives of the present seniors have been spent in school with little or no responsibility for their living. But now the situation which lies before them is diffierent in that they must face what the every-day common man on the street faces—life without the cloistered protection of the halls of learning nine months out of the twelve.

For some the future holds forth graduate work, interesting propositions; but to others the spectre of failure looms up before them inevitably. Others will seek to find what was the meaning of four years of college that does not fit one to more easily secure the things of life which he wants. But the failure to find lies within the individual and not with the work through which he has gone.

Some of the present senior class must fail in order to meet the law of averages, but most, no doubt, will move into the higher realms of attainment. Unfortunately for a few, it simply means the asking of the question, Now Where, or Now What?

Is It Worth It?

The average well-educated man nowadays spends from 16 to 20 years of his life in school. Let us say that he starts when he is five years old; that makes him twenty-five years old when he leaves school. The modern system of apprenticeship demands years of working up to the top even for college graduates; therefore, one must spend from two to five years in really getting established in any work even after leaving school, which makes him from twenty-seven to thirty years old before he can really get going in life.

While figures try to show that the span of life is growing longer; yet, in contradiction, figures show that the number of deaths among men in the forties and early fifties is increasing tremendously. Let us allow a man 50 years in which to live.

Subtracting thirty from fifty, we find that the average successful man actually has twenty years in which to live. And not only that—educational requirements are going up each year, so that men in the future will have to spend a greater number of years in school.

Obviously the number of years in which a person must spend in study is increasing, while the number of years which he lives, rather than increasing, is decreasing.

Perhaps the patriarchs of Biblical days would have a choice bit of laughter at our expense. We spend most of our time learning how to live, while they lived; though perhaps ignorant of the algebraic expressions and such like. Obviously, to them it was not a matter of life and death to know whether we were two miles from the sun or two million; they just went ahead and lived. And as far as records go, it seems that they enjoyed life just as much as we do, and perhaps a little more. And in the last days, when the reckonings are added up, they'll be holding just as many aces as we, so some would say. Perhaps Solomon was thinking of us moderns when he said: "For in much wisdom is grief; and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow." Maybe a little more ignorance would be more blissful.

But how great is the contrast of the Man of Galilee, who proved that the above reasoning is wrong. For He spent thirty years in preparation and only three years in living. And if, in our twenty years of living, we could accomplish one-tenth what He did, no doubt it would be the greatest life seen here since He came on the earth. So, after all, while the years of preparation are long, yet it is worthwhile—provided we are doing something that is worthwhile and does not pass away with the dew and the dawn of tomorrow.

PARADE REST

— By —
LT. COLONEL C. L. ANDERSON

As the time draws near for the senior class to take their final leave of this school of ours, it brings a note of sadness to the hearts of many. With others it means just another step in their educational progress. Then there are some of us who are glad that the time is near. All in all, it has been a happy four years for us, and the time for graduation is not such a happy time after all. The years spent here have gained us many friends who will remain so for life.

Finishing school is causing a great deal of thought among the seniors. What are we going to do, is staring us in the face. Some are trying to get in the army. Major Hipp is one of our contestants for this. Hipp, since he has been in school, has made quite a success for himself in the R.O.T.C. Wandell Williams is trying for this too. The way Wandell handled his platoon this year will help him a lot if he gets it. Some have thought of the air corps. Congenial Major McRae hopes that he will pass the physical exam for this. We don't know what Colonel Johnson (The Koinel) is going to do, but he could make a good lawyer if he tried. Captain Beatty is seriously contemplating going to Harvard to study law. We hope you will succeed, George. Others will go into business of some kind or teach in various schools over the surrounding states.

This thing of sleeping every morning is something new to the senior military geniuses, and is quite a sudden letdown after four years of meeting drill every morning. However, none of us have expressed dissatisfaction with it. We have noted that several wander down every morning to watch and see that the juniors do the job well.

Congratulations to the three juniors who made the R.O.T.C. last week. The road to Fort McClellan is long and hot, while the forty days and nights there are worse. Blistered noses are quite the fad after a few days are spent trudging over those mountains trying to discover an imaginary enemy. Yes, you willl miss Moultrie and the beach this summer.

The juniors seem to have taken drill rather seriously for the past two weeks. Yes, promotions are not far off. It's a pity that some of them didn't wake up before now. Some of them are going to wake up next September to find out how easy it is for the high ranks to slip away. This is not a prophecy, but there most probably will be some surprises in next year's ratings.

We will miss our money-making friends, Jake Penland and Josephus Commander, chasing us down after the military checks come in. Yep, the old kail can really get away in a hurry.

The medical officers will be here on the 12th of May to examine those seniors who are trying to get into the army through the Thompson act. If our men can pass those physical examinations, they should be able to get in. Better watch the beverages, boys, and drink a lot of water the day before they get here.

In closing this column, I should like to express my thanks for the privilege of being able to write it; also to make this statement: The way has been hard for many of us during the past four years, but it has most likely done us good. It has made the man who looks on life from the practical side, realize that it isn't just a bowl of cherries, and as you go out into the world to make your own way, we wish you all the success possible. Don't forget one thing, though: The little school where you have spent four years of your life, preparing yourself for your future work. With this, we bid you farewell.

JANE

I took my gal to the track meet,
It cost a dollar ten
To sit in rain beside my Jane
And watch the cindermen.

The milers stepped out on the track,
The starter raised his gun—
She screamed and yelled, "Don't shoot those boys,
You lousy little bum!"

Three times around the track they went,
They had a lap to go;
She asked, "Jake, what's a lap for?"
I said "Dear, don't you know?"

The relay was a thrilling race,
With Clemson in the lead.
Said Jane, "The guy that's running third
Has sure got pretty knees."

Next time I go to a track meet
I'll take it in alone—
Next time I get with Jane again,
We'll spend the evening home.

CHICK AND FAMILY

P. C. closed her baseball season with a 10 to 9 loss to Furman Greenville Saturday. "Scoop" Latimer, commenting on the fi... pointed out that DuBose weakened, not from strain of his ... duties, but from running bases so often. Anyhow, the ... removed possibilities of a tie with Carolina for the pennant.

Chick's children weren't slated to retain their championship. The club boasted a smart infiled and fair hitting, but lacked uniform strength. A pair of slabmen of the Lefty Suggs variety, and a hitting and fielding star like Hawk Evans in the outer garden, would have meant retention of the title.

With the material at hand, Chick did a swell job of coaching all the players responded. DuBose and his mound mates improved gradually, as did Ritch and Moore. And Cab Blackwell, wire-haired first sacker and captain, proved his leadership ability capably and creditably. (Am I right, Cab?)

Ritch Bats Hard and Club Collects Four Homers In 11 to 3 Victory Over Tribe.

Chick Galloway's nine hit hard all the way to register an 11 to 3 victory over Newberry and their fifth successive conquest of state collegiate opposition. The battle took place at Newberry Monday.

DuBose gave a steady mound performance, allowing eight hits and fanning seven. He was aided by the big bats of Horne, Folley, Blackwell and Ritch. The first three named banged out home runs and Ritch gave a surprise exhibition with a triple and three singles in four journeys to the plate.

Chick's children went hog-wild with a five-run spree in the third. The fifth and sixth netted twins and the last two appearances one each.

Gibreth and Simpson collected three and two hits, respectively, off the DuBose delivery, but Newberry's pitching triumvirate was no match for the Hose willow artists.

Lufler's Club Keeps Winning

Wofford Downed Twice, and Cadets Once In Week's Play.

Bill Lufler's racquet stars took three matches to successfully continue their conquest of state competition.

Wofford's wizards of the cat-gut were taken at home and abroad, and The Citadel felt defeat in her own backyard. All matches were won by the same count, 5 to 2.

The Hose outfit opened against Wofford Monday at Spartanburg. Captain Beatty, Boykin and Harper won their singles engagements and the Harper-Boykin and Beatty-Stowell teams annexed doubles.

Returning to Hoseville, the group again put the skids under Wofford. Beatty, Boykin, Harper and Power won their singles matches and Boykin and Harper added a doubles match to the P. C. side.

On Saturday, the Lufler troupe caught a ride down Charleston way to play with brass buttons. Beatty, Boykin, Harper and Stowell were in the groove and turned in winning performances. Harper and Boykin teamed to chalk up their third successive triumph of the week.

Pi Kappa Alpha presented a well-balanced tank team to win first laurels in the annual intramural swim meet Thursday night. Pi Kappa Phi came second and Alpha Lambda Tau third in the competition.

Ed Lambright was outstanding in the diving and dash events and gave his team an edge over other entrants. Supplementing him was Dave Carson, runner-up in diving. George Paul, K. A., did well, as did Dick Meisky,

BIRDS ROOST TOP OF LADDER

Furman Has Fair Chance To Win. P. C. Third.

Carolina's Gamecock nine continues to rule the roost of state competition as the current compaign nears its fadeout. With Chick Galloway's Hosemen out of the running, only Furman has a chance to upset the fast-stepping Bird outfit.

Dizz McLeod's club takes on Newberry, Clemson and Carolina in a trio of assignments which will either make or break the Hurricane. Three wins would give the Baptists top-ranking. The Gamecocks lost their opportunity of clinching the title last week by splitting a pair of games.

P. C. also split a pair to end in third place and The Citadel is in fourth with a .500 percentage.

The standings:

Furman Rally Brings Defeat

Spree Overcomes P. C. Lead. Baptist Win, 10 to 9.

DuBose weakened in the last three stanzas to allow eight runs as Furman overcame a big lead to win, 10 to 9, in Presbyterian's final performance of the season. The battle, waged on Manly field, Greenville, was bitterly fought and lasted 2 hours and 34 minutes.

The Hosemen tallied five runs in the second, one in the third and three in the sixth to accumulate a commanding lead. DuBose tired and Furman's big bats got busy. A mighty rally came to its climax with a nineth inning assault that netted four runs and victory.

June Moore, Hose backstop, slammed out a home run to drive in two men in the second frame. "Beetle" Horne had a big day at the plate and afield with a double, three singles and four stolen bases among his achievements. The loss gave P. C. a record of eight wins and six losses and eliminated their mathematical chance of tying Carolina for first place.

CRAIG, HUPPEL TIE FOR INDIVIDUAL HONORS

Carolina's trackmen rolled up a 45-point scoring total to end Clemson's four-year domination and take top honors in the daddy of cinder shows, the state track and field meet, which was held under Johnson field's floodlights at Clinton Saturday evening.

Under a steady downpour of rain, the Gamecock group fought off threats of Clemson and Presbyterian to take possession of the title. The Tigers, lacking in field strength, ran a fast relay to step ahead of the Blue Hose and place second. Surprising performance by Hemphill, Hipp and Reynolds in the pole vault, javelin and low hurdles featured and gave McMillian's Hose a strong third.

Team totals: Carolina 45, Clemson 37, Presbyterian 32, The Citadel 18, Furman 15, Newberry 11, Wofford 7.

Carolina's Craig, and Huppel of Furman, shared individual honors with 13 points apiece. Knight, much-improved Gamecock dash star, took the 100 and 220 and placed fourth in the broad jump for third place. A trio of new records were put on the books as Craig of Carolina, Calhoun of Clemson, and Morton of The Citadel, bettered existing performances in the shot put, mile and two-mile events, respectively.

For Morton, it was the fulfillment of an athletic dream of long duration. The big cadet took a successful shot at a record he has spent three years attempting to better. Another colorful event was the pole vault in which "Speedy" Hemphill vaulted three inches higher than at any time previously to take first.

Carolina's aggregation gave indications of their title- winning probabilities in the preliminaries Friday afternoon by qualifying 17 men. Clemson placed 10 men, and P. C. six in Saturday's nocturnal session.

The colorful spectacle was concluded with a presentation of team and individual trophies by William P. Jacobs, Presbyterian college president.

By M. C. PATTERSON

he Ministerial club is winding up most successful year, and in comg statistics on the active work he club a great many interesting ures have come to light. The memship of 23 shows a fifty per cent rease over any previous year. Five es and two countries are repre- ted.

ne of the main objectives of the b is to provide opportunities for members to participate in religi- work throughout the year. This proved to be most valuable to the n because it gives them practice paring talks and delivering n before different types of audi- es. It is interesting to note that opinion of most of them is that hardest audience to speak before he student body here.

During this year the members have vered 78 sermons, given 42 chapel s, taught 138 Sunday school classand made 50 talks before young ple's organizations. This amounts 308 services altogether.

While it is fairly easy to quote ures, it is impossible to estimate e value of these services both to the diences and the speakers.

This has been a very successful r all around. The club has been rileged to have two outstanding sters of the Southern Presbyte- church accept honorary lifetime mbership in the club, Dr. Henry le DuBose, former chairman of college board of trustees now in las, Texas, and Dr. W. N. Elliott Druid Hills Presbyterian church, nta.

Since the club has been organized r prominent ministers have reved this membership, other two ng Dr. John McSween, pastor of ity Presbyterian church, Chester, d Dr. S. M. Glasgow of Independent sbyterian church, Savannah.

Petition Refused By Administration

Freshmen Denied Permission To Change R.O.T.C. Uniform.

Announcement came today from the office of the dean stating that a change would not be made in the basic R.O.T.C. unifrom for next year, following action by the administration and the military department upon a petition submitted by the freshman class upon which the expense of the change would fall.

In making the announcement, Dean Marshall W. Brwon said, "Due to the fact that the college catalogue governing freshman fees and other expenses has already been printed, and due to unwillingness on the part of many upperclassmen and the military department, as well as the administration, the petition of the freshman class for a change in the basic military uniform for next fall will not be made."

The change, petitioned for by the freshman R.O.T.C. men, was in favor of "pink" pants similar to those worn by the juniors, instead of the olive drab now worn by the freshmen and sophomores.

Editor To Award Two Gold Keys

McInvail and Morrison Get Recognition For Work On Staff of Paper.

On Wednesday night at 7 o'clock in the college chapel, L. G. Heckle, editor of The Blue Stocking, will award gold keys to two staff members for outstanding work and general dependability during the four months since inauguration of the new staff, it was announced today. The men receiving the awards are Harry McInvail and D. M. Morrison.

McInvail, a freshman from Conway, was editor of the Conway high school paper last year before coming to P. C. He has done excellent work as a cub reporter on The Blue Stocking staff, having never failed on an assignment. Noteworthy was his story-feature on Martha Dendy, local washerwoman at the college for fifty years, which appeared in the recent eight-page issue.

Morrison, who is religious editor for the paper, also has never missed an assignment, and his work has never required rewriting. All stories, with few exceptions, on the Ministerial club, have been written by him.

"Selection of one cub reporter and one veteran writer was made upon a basis of not only general ability, dependability, and interest in the paper, but also upon the scholastic standing of the several reporters eligible," said Editor Heckle.

A short program is being planned for the presentation of the awards Monday night, at which time special commendation will be made of outstanding reporters and writers on the staff.

Top Coach

W. C. Lufler, head Presbyterian college tennis coach, who during his first year at P. C., guided the college netmen to win the state tennis tournament, as the college team having the greatest number of separate points at the close of the intercollegiate tournament held here during the past week.

Summer School Opens On June 6

Secretary Holman Gives Plans and Courses For Term.

The summer session of Presbyterian clolege will open on Monday, June 6, according to an announcement by Hugh Holman, secretary. He stated that wide interest had been shown in the session, both by the student body and by outsiders, and that there is every indication that enrollment will reach a new high.

The session is inexpensive, casting but $15.00 for tuition fee, and one dollar for library fee. This fifteen dollars entitles the student to take the maximum six hours work.

Three classes of one and a half hours each will be held each day from Monday through Friday. Each class gives three hours credit.

Three English courses will be taught. Mr. Holman will teach a three-hour course in freshman composition, which may be credited to either first or second semester work in freshman English. Dr. M. G. Woodworth will teach two advanced English courses, Tennyson and Browning, and Shakespeare. Either or both of these courses may be counted as credit on sophomore English or advanced English.

In the mathematics department, Professor H. E. Sturgeon will teach algebra and trigonometry, and Dr. H. E. Spencer will teach the mathematics of finance, and possibly astronomy.

In the language department, Prof. Bothwell Graham will teach advanced Spanish, and Dr. A. E. Spencer will teach second-year French, French 51-52. If there is sufficient demand a course in beginner's French will be taught.

Prof. Kenneth Baker will offer advanced Gregg shorthand, and a new course, business cycles, which deals with the nature of business cycles and an application of the methods used to forecast business trends. Upon sufficient demand, a course in beginner's typing will be offered.

Dr. C. E. Hamrick will offer two education courses, neither of which were taught in the regular session this year. One will be in the field of elementary education and one will deal with high school work.

The session will last until July 15, running full six weeks.

The college does not operate boarding facilities during the summer session, but board and room may be secured at Mrs. Henry Young's, Mrs. D. J. Brimm's, or Mrs. M. M. Freeman's at very reasonable rates.

Alpha Psi Delta Holds Picnic

Local Sorority Has "Chicken Supper" At Riverside.

By RETA CHANDLER

As their last major social event of the year, Alpha Psi Delta sorority had a supper of fried chicken and all the trimmings. Sorority members and their guests spent Tuesday afternoon, May 3, at "Riverside," on Enoree river.

The evening was climaxed with the fried-chicken supper, cooked and served in the summer cottage owned by Thornwell orphanage. While rumor has it that Prof. Sturgeon was out of luck because he dislikes fried chicken, it seems that Hugh Holman's plate could not be distinguished from the chicken platter.

Alpha Psi Delta has had a very successful year under the leadership of the president, Verna McLeod. New officers will be elected at the next meeting, Tuesday night.

Members of the sorority in this year's graduating class are: Reta Chandler, Bebe Dillard, Evalyn McCrary, Mary Motes, Sarah Salters, and Nancy Young.

Air Mail Week Observed Here

Speaking to the student body in chapel last Thursday morning, Postmaster B. R. Fuller urged extended use of the airmail service during airmail week, May 15-21. This week has been declared airmail week in celebration of twenty years of continuous airmail service in the United States.

Twenty years ago the service began with 218 miles of airmail route which has spread since then to 63,666 miles of regularly scheduled route. Schedules have been developed that were undreamed of at the beginning of the service.

Today the lines are flying on schedule at the rate of forty million miles a year, carrying twenty million pounds of mail and several million pounds of express annually.

TO PRESENT NEW ALMA MATER AT CHAPEL SERVICE TUESDAY

School Song Composed By Harris Gray, Jr., Will Be Played By Band In the Morning.

WORDS OF PIECE TO BE DISTRIBUTED

The new Alma Mater of Presbyterian college, recently composed by Harris Gray, Greenwood, Miss., will be formally presentel to the student body at its regular chapel meeting tomorrow morning when the band will play the new piece and the words will be sung by Conductor Gray.

Copies of the words of the new song have been printed and will be distributed at the beginning of the chapel service.

For the benefit of alumni who read this and who will not have the opportunity of obtaining copies, the words are as follows:

We salute thee, Presbyterian,
Noble college of our faith.
With our hearts and with our souls
We love thee, sing thy praise.
To thee we pledge our honor,
And raise our theme, fidelity.
All supreme, our Alma Mater,
Long live our loyalty.

"Lawyers" Elect Officers Of New Campus Group

J. H. Wallace To Head Organization First Year.

At a meeting of the pre-law students club held Tuesday night, J. H. Wallace, rising senior, was elected to serve as the first president of the organization. C. C. McSwain, as vice-president, and M. M. Norton, as secretary-treasurer, were also elected.

The club approved and adopted a constitution presented by E. A. Johnson, chairman of the constitutional committee, and directed the executive council to proceed with the formation of by-laws for the organization. R. S. Owens, Clinton attorney, who is advisor to the club, was present at the meeting and assured the club of his interest and offered suggestions and comments.

The club expressed its appreciation to Geroge Beatty, who had acted as temporary head of the group, and to Johnson, and Joe Hollis for their interest and help in organizing the pre-law students.

A motion was made and carried that the executive council select and present for adoption a name for the new organization. The name will be announced at an early date.

As set forth in the preamble to the constitution, the new club was formed to meet the need of "an organization through which the pre-law students may express their desires nad aspirations, create a closer bond of unity, and better fit themselves for their chosen profession."

Students present at the meeting and constituting the charter members of the organization were George Beatty, E. A. Johnson, Joe Hollis, J. H. Wasson, J. H. Wallace, C. C. McSwain, Vernon Atkinson, R. K. Timmons, M. M. Norton, Tench Owens, John Weldon, Harry MacInvail, and Ernest Price.

Ritch Elected President Of Blue Key Frat

Holcombe, Is Vice-President; Heckle, Secretary, and Black, Treasurer.

At a recent meeting of the Blue Key honor fraternity, the leadership group was set in order for another year of work by the election of new officers. "Trigger" Ritch was selected to be the leader for the coming year. Trigger is one of the outstanding men of the campus, having proved his worth on more than one occasion in various fields. He has served on the student council for three years, last year being secretary of the organization and at present being the vice-president. He is an athlete of ability, being a member of the football and baseball teams. Socially he is a Beta Kappa and is president of that organization. He is from Charlotte, N. C.

C. B. Holcombe was chosen vice-president. Holcombe, likewise, leads a versatile life, being alternate captain of the football team for the coming year as well as an all-state guard on the basketball team. Recently he received the highest honor any P. C. man can achieve by being elected as president of the student body. He is a member of Pi Kappa Phi social fraternity, and is an advanced corps cadet in the military unit.

Louis G. Heckle, of Fort Valley, Ga., was elected secretary of the organization. Besides being editor of The Blue Stocking, he was editor of the Y.M.C.A. handbook last year, and is a student assistant in the French department and in the library. He is a member of many clubs and organizations, as well as the advanced corps of the military unit.

Robert Black, of York, was chosen as treasurer. He is president of the Y.M.C.A., for the coming year and also president of the dramatic club. He is vice-president of the Pan-Hellenic council, associate editor of The Blue Stocking, a member of the PaCaC staff, and goes off the college campus to cop the honor of being vice-president of the Presbyterian Student Association of South Carolina. He, also, is a member of the military unit.

Pan-Hellenic Finals Held On Week-End

The final hop Friday night in the Clinton armory, played by Jimmy Livingston, brought to a close a successful series of dances sponsored by the Pan-Hellenic council of the six Presbyterian college Greek letter fraternities.

William P. Jacobs, president of the council, considered the final series as "one of the best dances held at P. C. since I have been here."

Maestro Livingston and his popular CBS orchestra from Charlotte, N. C., drew one of the largest crowds ever to attend a P. C. dance in the new armory.

Spencer "Hall"

Being a fellow-sufferer ourselves, we were quite impressed the other day as we stumbled up the "dark unfathomed halls of Spencer bare," by the earnest plea of another Spencerite, a freshman. He urged us in no uncertain tones to use these columns as a means of bringing to the attention of the administration THE DEPLORABLE CONDITION OF SPENCER DORMITORY. There is no need to paint a graphic picture of this condition because we know that those who are in a position to improve them know very well that they exist; but as they do not have to live there, they are rather inclined to be forgetful. We who live here are in constant fear that some friend or relative will insist upon going inside the "nice red brick building" that is our dormitory, as we rather anxiously suggest that he inspect the new forum room, instead.

We realize that water-throwing on our part and removing hall lights (that are too easily removable) does not help our case any; but with a few needed improvements, we believe all this would be reduced to a minimum. Put our dormitory in a liveable condition for next year and we will keep it that way.

Alumni and Laurens dormitories could stand a bit of rehabilitation. The rest of the college property is being improved, why not the dormitories?

Reformation and House Cleaning

Now that another school year is drawing to a close, the time has come to talk of many things, among which is the all-important subject of much-needed reform and change in both the student body and college administrative branches. Let's act now before plans and appropriations for next year have been made and we are forced to be content with wishing and thinking of what might have been.

Here is what we suggest. First, in regard to student government changes and suggested reforms.

The constitution of the student government of Presbyterian College needs badly to be brought up to date before being republished in the annual handbook of the Y. M. C. A. A committee from the student council meeting with the editor of the handbook could easily remedy this. This should be done during this week. The president of the student body is responsible for this.

Next, in regard to needed changes in campus affairs and administrative functions affecting students which the latter feel could be brought about to the mutual benefit of each. This committee could be composed of heads of all campus organizations with designated representatives from Spencer, Alumni and Laurens dormitories and one from each section of Smyth. The chairman of the committee chosen by it could arrange with the dean to meet with a faculty committee for a discussion of existing problems.

The administration prides itself on its willingness to discuss the individual student's problems with him; and the student, realizing this, has taken advantage of it. Why not, then, have group discussions of mutual problems?

The editors of The Blue Stocking will bring this before the student body at the daily chapel meeting tomorrow morning, and we urge the president of the student body to cooperate with The Blue Stocking Committee on Constitutional and Administrative Reform of Campus Activities.

CADET SERGEANT QUAITE JONES

Last Thursday the army medical officer from the station hospital at Fort McPherson, Georgia, was on the campus for the purpose of examining those seniors who are trying to get into the regular army. This is a good job, and in the past P. C. graduates have made a fine record which proved they did learn some military science and tactics while here. Those who were examined and have applied are: Anderson, Hipp, Hollis, McRae, Williams, and Woodward. Luck to you

It seems that "B" company has determined to prove itself the best company in the battalion. Not only did it win the citation cords three times in a row, but five out of the eleven men that went to the semi-finals in the recent contest which the juniors sponsored were "B" company men, and the two that went to the finals were also from "B" company. It just goes to show that you can't keep a good company down.

According to an announcement made by the military department last week a sabre is going to be given to the best company captain, but the winner will not be announced until the day the seniors receive their commissions. The race is very close and, since no information has been given out, we will not make any predictions. The work of Hollis, McSween, and Woodward has been highly commendable, and, therefore, to each of them we say, "We hope YOU get it."

Much credit is due Charlie Thompson for winning the medal given to the best-drilled cadet. With so many men competing for the medal, he had to be very careful as well as have quite a bit of military knowledge. Therefore, we now offer him our congratulations and hope that he will continue to be successful.

Friday ended the last day of drill for the battalion for this year, but the poor juniors—they will have to meet drill and classes until Wednesday. It seems like it takes an awful lot of preparation before one can go to camp, but we doubt very seriously if we will regret it when we get there. They will begin firing the service rifle and the automatic pistol this week, and no doubt there will be some sore arms and shoulders around for the next few days. After living through all this, camp should be a cinch. (Maybe!)

Since the juniors have moved into the positions which the seniors held many nervous sophomores have worked, prayed, and sweated for "the advanced." Today is the day that the list is announced and also the day that many ambitious ones are disappointed. To those who make it we say, "The best of luck—but you have just hit the hard road." And to those who did not make it, "Come on in, anyhow; the water's fine!"

A TREATISE ON SNAKES

I asked her up to the dances—
This lovely little miss,
And spent a lot of troubled time
To make her visit bliss.

I had to rent a V-8 Coupe
To ride her to and fro,
And missed my classes—lots of sleep—
And used up all my dough.

I got her no-breaks with the cream
Of P. C.'s romeos,
And introduced the little lamb
To all the Johnny Doe's.

She got a rush unparalleled
By other dancing dames,
The dance broke up and she broke out
With a snaking Jesse James.

I asked her up to the dances,
Spent lots of time and dough,
To see her have a late date with
A snakin' gigolo.

DE TODO SUGGESTS

Almost three hundred students comprise the dormitory-dwelling element on the P. C. campus. And we find only one telephone on the premises; one of those pay jobs—in Spencer. It's convenient and civilized to call up The One Rose and tell her you'll be around, about a quarter to nine. Of more importance is the frequent necessity for parents to contact their sons quickly by phone in reference to serious family matters. The college should, but probably won't, install free phones in each of the four dorms. Which prompts me to offer a suggestion:

Service charges for a year on four private phones would approximate a total of $90, making each student responsible for thirty cents. Our mutual chum, Mr. Hunter, could take this amount from our September breakage fee deposits. The only way to make this plan a reality is through student body action before school closes. The phone set-up, "po-grade" at present, would be materially improved by adoption of this plan. If you feel that free use of a phone, in your dormitory for a year, is worth thirty cents, ask for a student body vote. De Todo has spoken.

Knees to the right of them, knees to left of them,
Knees all around them, stockinged and bared.
Fat knees and slender ones, dimpled and pimpled ones,
Fathers and fathers' sons sat by and stared.

Looking to right of them, looking to left of them,
Looking all round at the knees that were there.
Smooth knees and rough ones, soft knees and tough ones,
But most at those that were sleek, smooth and bare.

Tanned knees—oh! what a sight!
Knees that were snowy white,
Knocked knees, some bowed outright
—that's what they saw.
Knees of perfection and knees of defection,
Oh, what a collection of knees in the raw.

Knees to the right of them, knees to the left o fthem,
Knees all around them—oh, golly, aw, hector!

But hate to select them!" said the movie director.

BLUE STOCKING NETTERS ANNEX STATE TITLES

SPORTS FOLIO

By JAMES HAFLEY

Final examinations start Friday and this occasion marks finis a colorful sports program here at Presbyterian College. Most ratifying is the news that Tennis Tech now holds the state net ampionship by virtue of the brilliant play in singles and doules. This is indeed a remarkable accomplishment because comtition in the state this year has been unusually keen. Bill Luf- came through his first year with a bang, nevertheless, and s men nosed out racqueteers from Clemson, Carolina, Furman, fford, and everywhere to annex top laurels in the Palmetto ate. We predict the Calvinists will repeat next year with the raduation of Kerdasha, White, Frazier, and Flanders to varsity nks.

The last dish on the intramural sports menu in scheduled to be erved next week—tennis. Winners have been crowned in basketall, swimming and baseball, and from all indications it looks like a going to be a fast race for possession of the intramural cup. Kappa Phi fraternity is in the lead; but not far behind we find e Alpha Lambda Taus, the Kappa Alphas, and the Pi Kappa lphas. A first place in tennis could give any of the above four rganizations the trophy. According to an announcement by rank Johnston, Blue Key president, the tennis tournament will run off in a way different from the years previous. Each oranization will be allowed to enter only two men who will compete both singles and doubles. This arrangement should add to the eed and interest in the tournament.

Interest in intramural sports at P. C. is higher than we have er seen before and the Blue Key honorary fraternity deserves uch praise and credit for supplying the various tournaments. is an amazing fact that such a large number of the student ody participated in the athletic contests, and we hope that the tramural tournament will meet with the same degree of succss in the years to come that it has in the past.

Lykes Boykin and Bob Harper led the P. C. tennis team to a state championship by winning the doubles title after Boykin had defeated Jim Aiken for the singles championship. P. C. scored a total of 40 points to finish 23 points ahead of Furman, their nearest rival. The play during the entire tournament held on the P. Intramurals In Final Stages

Finals in the intramural baseball tournament sponsored by the Blue Key honorary organization were to have been played off here this afternoon. BILLBOARD OF SPORTS

BILL McLAURIN

The state meet has come and gone, but its memory will dong live in the minds of 1000 track-loving fans and judges who braved the steady downpour of rain for several hours in order to witness one of the finest meets in the 14-year history of the event.

The first state meet was held in 1925 and rain had never fallen before. Nature has made an enviable record. Look at the number of Kentucky derbies which have been run in the rain. Naturally, the track was slow, but this did not hinder four boys from breaking state records—we say four because Rawls of P. C. was only a foot behind Calhoun of Clemson when he broke the mile record by eight seconds. This race turned out to be an individual run between Calhoun and Rawls, with the former taking an early lead which Rawls barely missed overtaking with a beautiful sprint finish . . . Calhoun ran the last 220 yards with only one shoe! . . . Larry Craig eclipsed the state record in the shot put with a mighty heave of over 47 feet to better Bob King's old record by almost a foot. Morton of The Citadel clipped nine seconds off the old mark of 10 minutes, 13 seconds in the two-mile run to fulfill a life-long ambition . . . Craig and Huppel, the latter from Furman, tied for high scoring honors with 13 points each. Knight, of Carolina, had 11 points . . . P. C. and Carolina tied for most firsts with four each . . . Guy Lipscomb, versatile Gamecock star, placed in four events . . . Hemphill, of P. C., cleared 11 feet, 9 inches in his last attempt in the pole vault. A brilliant career closed with this vault, his finale and the highest in his career . . . Why not give six medals for first in the 100-yard dash? Boy, that was a close one . . . Slick Hanes, frosh ace, broke "Poor ole Joe's" 880 record of 2:06.1 by four seconds and also took first in the mile and ran a beautiful lap in the mile relay to pull up from fifth to third . . . Coach Johnson intends to install an amplifier in the gym so that contestants in the track events may rest between races and not be late for their events. This amplifier will be connected with the P. A. system on the field.

Barnhill Accepted At Harvard Dental

From the office of the dean came the announcement today that the application of J. W. Barnhill for admission to the Harvard dental school had been formally accepted and that he will begin study there next fall. The acceptance is a unique honor due to the high standard of requirement of the noted dental school.

Barnhill, a member of the sophomore class, has made an outstanding record during his two years of study at Presbyterian. He has been on the dean's list both years. His record shows that he is not only the leading student in his class, but also has the third highest vaerage in the entire school. Barnhill is a native of Charleston where he received his early education before entering college in the fall of 1936. He is a pledge of Alpha Kappa Pi social fraternity and of the dramatic club.

CASTLEBERRY STRUTS STUFF AGAINST LYDIA

Lamar Castleberry came very near repeating his 23-strikeout performance recently by causing 20 of the Lydia Mill sluggers to miss the third strike in a game Thursday which the freshmen won, 7 to 6, on the college diamond.

Although out-hit, the frosh were able to bunch theirs when they meant runs, and aided by the misplays afield by the Lydia boys, secured the victory by a narrow margin.

Willis, Castleberry and Gauldin led the hitting of the frosh with four of the five hits the frosh secured. Fuller led the Lydia attack with a triple and two singles, while Bailey pitched steady ball except for occasional streaks of wildness.

PaC-SaC Delivery To Be Delayed

Annual To Be Mailed Within Few Weeks, Editor Says.

In a special interview with a reporter for The Blue Stocking, Malcolm Hemphill, editor of the 1938 PaC-SaC, annual student publication of Presbyterian college, stated that the book would not be released until after school closes.

"The 1938 issue of the PaC-SaC will not be completed until a few weeks after school is out," Hemphill said. "The book has been delayed due principally to a lack of help at the printers. Within the last few weeks two artists and the linotype operator have resigned from their respective places at Jacobs Graphic Arts company and this has been a hindrance in the production of the book. I regret having to deliver them late, but I assure delivery by mail as soon as it is humanly possible."

In an effort to speed delivery of the book, the editor requested that all treasurers of campus organizations and fraternities, social and honorary, make payments due for their page in the PaC-SaC. The page cost is $20, Hemphill stated, and this must be turned in this week so that work on the book may be speeded up.

This is the second year that the annual publication will have been delivered after school closes due to inability of the same printers to deliver it on the agreed upon deadline.

Summer School Session To Begin June

P. C. Professors To Spend Summer Studying Both Here And Abroad

Dr. Huntley and Prof. Weber To Study Abroad.

By D. R. DINGEMAN

The members of the faculty will, in most cases, go on a sort of busman's holiday during the coming three months and spend their leisure studying. They will study in places as widely separated as the two poles and reverse the procedure by being pupils for a while.

Professor Kurt Weber will spend his leisure moments touring on the Continent. He will leave the States on June 11 and will spend four weeks in England, and will go from there to Germany, where he intends to do some studying. Professor Weber will be back in time for school next year.

Doctor Huntley will spend his summer studying in France. He will leave New York on the Franconia on June 3, arriving at Liverpool just twenty years and a day since he visited the famous port. He will spend a short while in England and then journey to Paris. From Paris Doctor Huntley will turn south through France and spend some time touring the historic spots in the southern part of the country. He will attend lectures at the Sorbonne in Paris and will return by way of Boston.

Doctor H. S. Fish will spend the summer teaching at the New Hampshire Nature camp in North Woodstock during the first two sessions of the camp. Dr. Fish will try a new method of teaching zoology, and if it is effective he will use it in school here next year.

A number of professors will spend their time at summer school teaching those who weren't successful this year. And for the most part, those who teach here will journey to their various homes to spend the rest of the summer in some extensive leisure.

Dr. Neil G. Whitelaw, head of the physics department, will study in Ann Arbor, Michigan, continuing research in the field of higher mathematics.

Prof. B. Graham Tells Of Plans Summer School

Professors Woodworth, Sturgeon, H. E. Spencer, Baker, A. E. Spencer, Hamrick and Holman Will Teach.

SESSION OPENS JUNE 6, AND CLOSES JULY 15

The summer session will open on Monday, June 6, and continue through Friday, July 15, according to an announcement recently made by Director Bothwell Graham.

Due to several requests, there is a possibility that German I will be offered, and Spanish II also taught. Should sufficient demand warrant it, Hugh Holman will teach Spanish II, and Professor Graham will offer German I.

Attention is also called to the fact that the sophomore English requirements may be filled with either Tennyson and Browning, or Shakespeare. Both courses will be taught by Dr. Woodworth and each has three hours credit.

The attention of B. S. in Commerce student is called to the fact that the Mathematics of Finance will be offered. This course is required for graduation in Commerce.

Those interested in having freshman Bible in summer school, are requested to see Prof. B. H. Boyd. Upon sufficient demand, the six-hour freshman Bible course will be taught.

The total cost of tuition and fees is $16. Regardless of how many hours of work are taken this cost remains the same. The maxmium hours work is six.

There will be one three-hour class held each day for five days a week for three hours credit. Three such classes are held daily and a student may take two of them.

It will be possible to take a third class in advanced shorthand, at an additional cost of $7.50. However, only taking one class will not reduce the cost of $16.00.

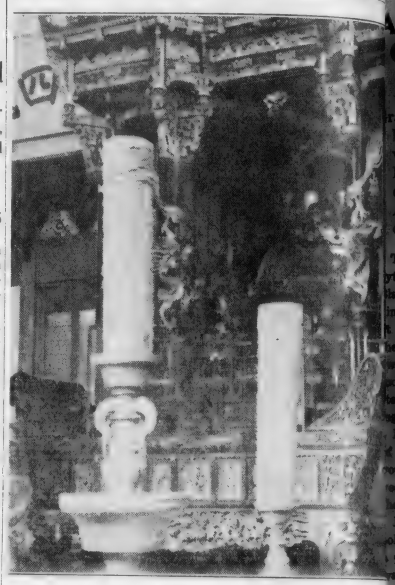
Board and room may be secured near the campus at reasonable rates.

Campus Pooch Is Interviewed By Reporter

By HECK

In a special interview on the Plaza on Saturday night attended by a delegation of interested students, including Pete Brooker, Gordon Huggins, Dugald Hudson, Cab Blackwell, Billy Kee and "Squint" Irwin, a reporter for The Blue Stocking questioned Canine Blackie, pedigreed campus pooch from the Heinz kennels, on his plans for the summer and other things.

He refused to answer questions until told by the reporter whether he made the advanced course or not (you know he is a sophomore), and then, after being informed in the negative, he replied, "Shux, and I thought I had gotten it straight from a certain collie, the mongrel."



Blackie, "who" is a black dog, part bird dog, and part who-knows-what, this spring is wearing white shoes and collar to match. He is fed by Spencer dormitory, washed by Smyth (he made the mistake of ambling near C section entrance one night after supper decently), rocked by Alumni dormitory, feared by Laurens, and petted by all (even the co-eds — the lucky dog). It is rumored that he threw the bricks through Bill Hansell's window in Laurens the other night, but The Blue Stocking is not prepared to substantiate such rash statements.

When asked about plans for the summer he playfully bit off Dugald Hudson's ear before replying, "I guess I'll just hang around until conference. I hear they expect quite a few more goils than boys this year."

With this statement he refused to be quotsd further and, dispite Dugald's protest about his ear, he went off in the direction of town, mumbling something about seeing Mr. Sheely about getting a movie called (excuth pleath the eth on thith typewriter hath broken) "Thnow White and the Theven Dwarfth."

Final Issue

This is the final issue of The Blue Stocking for this term. The next issue will appear Monday, September 19, with the opening of college for the fall term. See you next year!

The above photograph, "Chinese Temple," by W. H. Talbot, won award in the recent photo contest for the best enlargement in the It shows the interior of a Chinese temple, and is especially noteworthy fineness of detail.

Talbot, a freshman from Tsing Kiangpu Ku, China, is the son of American Presbyterian missionary. His hobby is photography.

Assistant Curator Of Field Museum Signally Honored

Graduating Here In 1928, Doing Post Graduate Work At University of Pittsburgh, Being Member of Zoological Expedition To South and Central America, He Has Distinguished Himself In Chosen Field.

The Alumni Association of Presbyterian College will honor Emmett Blake, of Chicago, Ill., by presenting him with the Alumni Gold "P" award at the commencement exercises of the college on Monday, May 31. This award is made annually to the man judged to have been the most outstanding alumnus of the college during the year.

In honoring Mr. Blake, the alumni of the college are paying tribute to a young man, who, though only 29 years old, had added materially to the scientific knowledge of the world.

Blake graduated from Presbyterian college in the spring of 1928. He was a prominent member of his class and was very successful as an athlete. He was the undefeated light-heavyweight boxer of the Southeast and after graduating here he made his way through school in the North as a professional boxer. He fought in Miami, and Havana, Cuba, as a professional.

While an undergraduate here, Blake began his career as a naturalist. This great career which now carries him into the jungles of South and Central America, first carried him into the green woods of Young's pasture behind old P college. Here he learned the rudiments of being a naturalist and looked forward to the day when he could take in broader fields of endeavor as such.

Blake stayed in Laurens dormitory and after his graduation he left a miniature museum in his room. He had mounted birds and other novelties which were gathered on his expeditions over the surrounding countrysides. This collection was divided among the boys of the dormitory several years later.

Blake took his master of science degree at the University of Pittsburgh, and when he began preparations for his thesis, he decided to make a one-man expedition down the Appalachian mountains from Uitsburgh to some section of South Carolina. He started the journey with a rifle, a box of salt ,a few blankets, a camera and a few other necessities. Armed with these he traveled for two and a half months and ended his expedition at Pickens, S. C. His thesis was "Birds of the Appalachian Mountains." This was the beginning of his fame as a naturalist.

In 1932, Blake was a member of the Leon Mandel Field Museum Zoological expedition to Venezuela and made a splendid record as a collector of scientific specimens. He was also a member of the expedition to Guatemala in 1934 and as a result of his outstanding efficiency, he was made a member of the staff of the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago, on July 1, 1935. He is now assistant curator of birds.

Dr. S. C. Gregg, director of the museum, says of him: "Mr. Blake's work has added materially to the knowledge of bird life in Central and South America. By his industry, thoroughness and general efficiency, Mr. Blake has made himself probably the outstanding zoological collector on the Field museum staff."

Dr. Wildred H. Osgood, chief curator of zoology of the Field institution, has said of him: "Mr. Blake's work in tropical America is of a kind that makes for thorough knowledge in a field that heretofore has only been known imperfectly through chance pieces of work in favored spots. It strives to connect and clarify the previous isolated results and aims at regions which may furnish the key to the solutions of large problems concerning the past and present distribution of life. Although not spectacular, it is sound and constructive. In the long run, such work will be far more important than hasty traverses and adventurous sallies."

On his most recent expedition he visited that wilderness of the Motto Grosso known as "Green Hell," and while he lost a man from the bite of the deadly fer-de-lance, and had a close escape from the coils of a giant anaconda snake, he returned to the museum with 3,099 valuable specimens.

P. C. Alumni Are In Varied Work, Reporter Finds

By HARRY ROBERTSON

The graduation class of Presbyterian college is rapidly securing positions at which to begin their respective careers. To encourage them they have the record of past graduates. These graduates are now actively engaged in work in the business and professional world.

Among the typical men representative of P. C. alumni are:

Louis C. Jackson, Anderson, S. C., is president of the Presbyterian College Alumni association for his second consecutive year. He is prominent in civic movements in Anderson, being a member and officer of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. He was editor of The Blue Stocking in 1928, the year he graduated from P. C.

Emmet Blake, Chicago, Ill., is assistant curator of birds at the Chicago Museum of Natural History. He recently returned from an expedition to South America where he made some rare and unusual discoveries. He will receive the Alumni Association's gold key for being the most outstanding alumnus of the year.

Richard King, Atlanta, Ga., is one of P. C.'s earliest graduates. He has just completed forty years of Y. M. C. A. work which began in Charleston in 1898. He is now Southern regional director of the Y. M. C. A., with offices in Atlanta.

William P. Jacobs, Clinton, who is now president of P. C., graduated with the class of 1914. He is secretary of the South Carolina Cotton Manufacturers association, executive vice-president of the Institute of Drug Manufacturers, secretary and treasurer of the print cloth group of the Cotton Manufacturers association. He is author of numerous books and pamphlets. As a tennis enthusiast he is well-known, being a member of five national committees of the United States Lawn Tennis association.

Dr. Roger Lehew Coe, Columbia, is head of the South Carolina division of the National Youth administration. He has held this position since the installation of the department in 1935. Dr. Coe is professor of education at P. C., but at present is on leave of absence from the college.

Hugh Thomas Swedenberg, Los Angeles, Cal., is the last representative alumnus to be listed. He is a graduate research professor of eighteenth century criticism at the University of California at Los Angeles. He received a Ph.D. degree from the University of North Carolina in 1937. Until two years ago he was the assistant professor of English at P. C.

Library Given Books On Law

Mrs. Amelia J. Emanuel, of Aiken, Bequeaths Collection of Her Late Husband.

The Presbyterian college library recently received a law library of approximately 1,000 volumes as a bequest of the late Mrs. Amelia Josephine Emanuel, of Aiken.

This was the library of Mrs. Emanuel's late husband, P. A. Emanuel, and it contains a number of valuable books and documents relatives to the legal profession in South Carolina.

Of particular value is the collection are original copies of the early South Carolina Records. These books are rare and valuable. A large portion of the library will form valuable supplements to the college's already unusual collection of material on early South Carolina history.

Joe B. Bradley To Wed In June

The announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Robinson Sutton Wheeler of the engagement of their daughter, Josephine Smith, to Joe Bernard Bradley, alumnus of Presbyterian college, of Chickamauga, Ga., and Anniston, Ala., was received here recently. The marriage will take place in June.

Bradley, while here, was an outstanding athlete, having broken the state record in the 100-yard dash at the state track meet his senior year, in 1936.

INFIRMARY MATRON REPORTS SUCCESSFUL YEAR HERE

Mrs. "Mac" Tells Reporter of a "Well" Year At P. C.

By TENCH OWENS

"Sickness among the students this year has been less as a whole but more continuous," said Mrs. W. A. McSwain, matron and nurse at the Presbyterian college infirmary, when questioned about her work by a reporter for The Blue Stocking.

With hardly a break the whole year, there have been three or four patients confined to bed in the infirmary with seven being the largest number of "bed patients" at one time this year. Whereas, last year, there were times when there was no sickness at all, and other times when as many as 14 students were ill in the infirmary at the same time. Mrs. McSwain listed the main causes for visits to the infirmary as influenza, measles, colds and injuries from athletics.

"I couldn't ask for better cooperation from the students," declared Mrs. McSwain. "The boys have been simply fine this year in all my connections with them."

A total of 132 overnight or "bed patients" have been accommodated in the infirmary during the past school session as compared with about 170 for the year before. This does not include the numerous daily visits of students with minor ailments.

Dr. Delmar O. Rhame, the college physician, has been very faithful and efficient in his duties this year, according to Mrs. McSwain. He calls regularly at the infirmary every morning, except Sunday, at 8 o'clock, and comes immediately whenever he is summoned.

The P. C. infirmary, which was opened in 1936, has received several improvements this year. An electric stove and a special "baking light" have been added to the equipment, and a new bathroom has been outfitted. Most needed at present are linoleum on the floors and a circulating heater.

Prize Story of the Week

We all remember how, as freshmen, we stepped from the bus or train for the first time in Clinton and were beseiged by the horde of taxi and dray men begging for the opportunity to take us and our trunks to the college. We remember also the secondary (?) matter of the fee. Well, we've always wondered how they made their living between school sessions and the other day we found out.

Recenetly, an out-of-town business man, coming to see President Jacobs, stepped off the train and, after glancing anxiously around, noticed a taxi parked over by the freight depot and he went over toward it. Having asked the driver to take him to the hotel, he got in and was driven to the hotel, and incidentally, over most of Clinton on that side of the Seaboard tracks.

Upon arriving at the hotel, the man got out and the driver announced that the fare would be fifty cents. As the gentleman started to pay this new counterpart of an Aeneas Africanus, it suddenly dawned on him where he was.

"You have deceived me," he told the driver.

"Naw sir, boss," the latter replied, "I ain't deceived you. I does 'em all dat way."

In Retrospect

"The time has come," the walrus said, "to talk of many things,—of men and ships and sealing wax,—" and nine happy months at P. C., of the administration, the student body, the campus, and last, but by no means least, the army.

THE ADMINISTRATION . . . We have seen the perpetuation campaign under the able direction of President William P. Jacobs gain great headway toward success. In the course of time it will, under its own worthy impetus, reach a successful conclusion . . . Dean Marshall W. Brown has capably and bravely (!) led the faculty to a better understanding of the great future of the college planned by "William P." It is hoped in certain quarters that the faculty will, with patience and guidance, some day be taught not to abuse their special library privileges to the confusion and regret of the librarian and students.

THE STUDENT BODY . . . We express the feeling of the majority of the student body (having made it a point to talk to that many personally on the matter) when we say that it approves of the plans of President Jacobs for the future of the institution, and we feel that he deserves special commendation for his work in Washington in behalf of the small privately-owned colleges of the nation.

We feel that the new student council is sincere and determined to remedy certain "ills" of the student body under the present honor system and the average student hopes for the best, and we believe the plan adopted by the council of a proctor system of conducting final examinations is, we are sorry to say, a necessary one; and also, we are sorry to say, one that the student body feels is legally and constitutionally unprecedented. "The honor and the system had a bout, and all this week honor has won out." . . . We regret greatly the passing of the seniors from our midst. By now they well know the problems they will have to face and should be ready to face them. We wish them luck, and success, and happiness in whatever they do. We will miss you, believe us.

THE CAMPUS . . . "A thing of beauty is a joy forever," said the poet. Perhaps he envisioned a spot of natural beauty similar to our campus . . . the administration deserves credit here for the excellent maintenance system. It is not unappreciated.

THE ARMY . . . Certainly the R. O. T. C. at Presbyterian College has had a successful year . . . An excellent rating by the government at the annual inspection . . . We wonder if the administration realizes just how much "military" means to the majority of students who comprise the battalion here . . . other things may be neglected, an extra-curricular activity or trig, but not a military assignment. If there was ever such a thing as a love of the service, and "esprit de corps," it is truly found in its purest form in the R. O. T. C. unit at Presbyterian College. Ask the man near you who has just "made advanced" what the army means to him at P. C., and watch his face . . . We hope that Major Harding will look forward to his weekly issue of The Blue Stocking next year. We are losing the man, but his excellent influence will be felt here for some time to come. We wish him success.

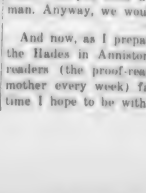
FINIS

It has been a pleasure to write this column for Louis HecKle, who has capably edited The Blue Stocking since January. I've employed both prose and poetry to express the various ingredients of the columnistic formula. Hope you've enjoyed the dish—which is served for the last time with this offering:

THANKS FOR THE MEMORY

Four years ago I hied away
From home-cooked peas and rice
To take a fling at French and Trig
And other forms of vice.



I didn't get to study much,
Had lots of shoes to shine;
They tanned my hide until I cried,
Oh, boys, please be kind!

Perplexing was my freshman year —
Just didn't understand;
Then as a sophomore I felt,
"Today I am a man."

The last two years have been a blend
Of fun and things I hate,
With all my thoughts upon the day
That I would graduate.

I've had to burn the midnight oil
To get my lessons done,
And missed a lot of fun because
I didn't have the mon.

And now I'm 'bout to graduate,
And end this so-called pain;
But how I'd love to start from scratch
And do it all again!

PARADE REST

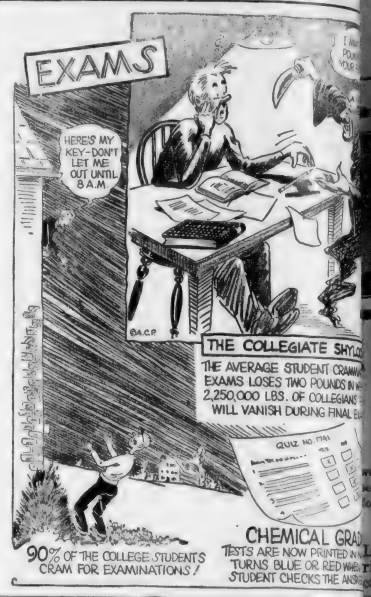
— By —
CADET SERGEANT QUAITE JONES

This column is dedicated to the Junior Class. We make no bones about it.

Last Tuesday afternoon on the rifle range as a hushed crowd stood breathlessly by, "Sarge" Heckle, monarch of the band and the smallest man in the junior class, assumed the prone position to fire the thirty calibre rifle. The crowd tensed as he began the trigger squeeze. Would it kick him back about a foot? That was the question uppermost in their minds. Then the shot rang out, and after the smoke had cleared away there lay the little man as calm (?) and collected as ever. He then turned to his coach and said, "Huh, nothin' to it, put in another cartridge." He may be correct in making that statement, but some of the juniors like "Large" Evans, Carl McCully, and "Business Man" Pope don't exactly agree with him. In the words of one junior, "From the way it kicks, you'd think you were playing with a toy cannon."

According to statistics, the U. S. army mule is the lightest in the world, but it certainly couldn't be the easiest to roll. One good thing about it, though, is that it has enough straps on it to make these plowboys that join the army and take military at college, feel at home. Sorta makes them feel like they are hitching up old Napoleon. Maybe the designers had that in mind when they "created" it.

It seems that we men just can't escape doing a little housewife's work, no matter where we go. It does look like you wouldn't have any of it in the army, but that is where you are mistaken. You have to know how to make up a bed, and in the most complicated manner.



The Sam Browne belts have at last arrived and the juniors are not only proud of them, but they think they look good in them. In case you don't believe it, just ask any of them. They will tell you. Future generals in the making, no doubt.

We would like to express on behalf of the junior class how sorry we are that Major Harding will not be with us next year. In the two years that he has been here we have been especially impressed with his willingness to help students and the interest he has taken in them. Therefore, it is with sincere regret that we bid him a fond adieu and wish him lots of luck wherever he is stationed. He made the statement last week that the junior class last year was not a bit better prepared for camp than this one is this year, and that if we didn't bring back the cup we had better keep going—in the other direction. So we say, just for you, Major, we will do more than our best to win the cup.

Although the scores on the pistol range were not as good as those on the rifle range last week, there were still some good scores turned in. One junior, namely, J. P. Ballard, turned in a 97 out of a possible 100. Just a little advice: If you need a good night watchman, he's your man. Anyway, we wouldn't want him shooting at us.

And now, as I prepare to journey to Fort McClellan—the Hades in Anniston, Ala.—it's time to bid my two readers (the proof-reader; and I send it home to my mother every week) farewell until next year, at which time I hope to be with you again.

Ode To Jargon

Conrad makes a reader see the picture writ in words.
Thomson is another of those real descriptive birds.
Shakespeare filled the sheet with feeling by the point of pen.
Byron was the writer's tops, but drowned himself in gin.
Kipling's love of humans is portrayed in all his works.
Poe's pen wrote of darks and drears where danger always lurks.
Shelley, fond of women, wrote of dames and beauties fair.
Keats, a nature lover, found real beauty everywhere.
Benchley, full of wit, can draw a laugh on every page.
While Margaret Mitchell, here of late, is quite a social rage.
Hall and Nordoff thrill a guy with books like "Hurricane."
While one would read the works of Zola time and time again.
Tarkington is wide-read, for he writes of fun and youth.
Sellars-Yeatman's history hoax is anything but truth.
Shaw, bewhiskered, slow with age, has made himself a name.
Twain, with all his writings, too, has acquired some fame.
Spenser, Chaucer, Wordsworth, Grey, rate high on author's lists.
While Vanderbilt, McFadden, Hall, wield wicked writer's wrists.
All these men and more besides, can write—there's no doubt.
But I guess I'd best stop and tell you what it's all about.
Here between these column walls you've read the rhymes and jokes.
You've born up with the sketches and you've taken friendly pokes.
But the distinction that I claim (I have it on the ball):
I'm the only guy who can write and write, and not say all.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor The Blue Stocking:

As a senior who is about to embark on the voyage of business life, I want to make a few statements in commendation of P. C.'s twentieth century Socrates, Dr. F. Dudley Jones.

Recently Presbyterian College inaugurated what is known as personalized education. At least P. C. thought it inaugurated it. As a matter of fact, Dr. Jones has been practising personalized education for approximately twenty years. Invaluable to the student body of Presbyterian College has been the personal contacts it has had with its beloved pedagogue. In this writer's opinion, Dr. Jones has, in the truest sense of the word, practiced personalized education in every detail. He has had personal conferences with every one of his students for years and has given much valuable advice to [those] were not enrolled in his [own] cently, one of his students, one of his classes, was [low] mark. "You know, that [was] shortest one I have [had] too soon."

Editor's Note: Dr. Fra[nk] Jones is head of the depa[rtment] philosophy and psychology [and] sides teaching a course in [Bible] olina history, upon which [he is] authority. Backward Glance – A Future Glimpse Of P. C. Sports

By JAMIE "UNHAPPY" SNIPES

Editor's Note: In the absence of Sports Editor James Hafley, who was unable to write "Sports Folio" this week due to illness, we asked a senior who is very much of an authority on P. C. sports to pinch-hit for him.

FOOTBALL

Last September Coach Walter Johnson found a group of inexperienced players reporting for football practice. Despite the fact they were not so successful in the won and lost column, the Blue Hose warriors, noted for their fighting spirit, never gave up. The best game of the year was with the Mercer Bears. Jimmy Annard gave the year's outstanding performance in this contest. . . . Prospects are decidedly brighter for next season, with the addition of several stellar performers from this year's star freshmen.

BASKETBALL

Coach Lonnie McMillian's cagers had a very successful season, winning in eight wins in college circles as against eight defeats. They also made a creditable showing against some of the fastest textile competition in this section. The entire team showed up well, with outstanding honors going to Pete Holcombe and Captain Giles Batchelor. The team loses Ralph Waldrep, Baron Cavin and Frank Johnston by graduation, but augmented by material from this year's freshman team, particularly Meisky, Fleischman, Ambler, and Coleman, should be equally as strong next year.

BOXING

Faced with a shortage of material, the boxing team failed to register a victory. The team, led by Captain Lambright, however, made splendid showings in every match. Other performers were "Killer" Todd, Curley Clements, Ralph Buchan and Billy Kee. Next year's squad should be the strongest to represent P. C. in several years with the addition of the following ace frosh pugs, Frank Sutton, Davenport, and Dibs Wyman.

TRACK

Lonnie Mack's 1938 edition of tracksters turned in wins over Furman and Wofford in dual meets. They gained third place in the state meet. Outstanding performances were turned in by Captain Hipp, Deke Reynolds, Red Rawls, Norwood Cole and Malcolm Hemphill. Next year's team should be about the same as this season's. Notable among this spring's crop of frosh cindermen are Slick Hanes and Rabbit McLaughlin.

TENNIS

Coach Bill Lufler's tennis team gave P. C. its only state championship of the year. Outstanding men were Lykes Boykin, Bob Harper and George Beatty. Boykin won the singles championship at the state meet, while he teamed with Harper to capture the doubles bunting. The freshmen netters were undefeated. The '39 team should be still stronger with Bob Kerdasha, Bob White, Red Anders and Powell Frazier joing varsity ranks.

BASEBALL

After getting off to a rather slow start, Coach Chick Galloway's Clinton chargers sprinted in the latter stages of the campaign to capture third place in the Palmetto league. Batchelor, Mabry, Red Reid led the swatsmiths. Richard DuBose, with five college wins, led the hurlers. Coach Cavin's freshman nine had several outstanding men, including Castleberry, Embler, Rogers and Faulds. The state championship should be brought back to P. C. next year, since only Captain Blackwell and Cavin are being lost by graduation.

Here's hoping the Blue Stocking sports clients will bear with Editor Hafley's pinch-hitter. I bid you bon voyage!

Intramurals End; Pi Kappa Phi Wins

Successful Season Comes To Close.

Pi Kappa Phi fraternity won the coveted athletic trophy for intramural sports Saturday when Johnnie Hammel defeated Charlie Thompson, Kappa Alpha, in a thrilling tennis duel, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3, thus ending a very successful "intra-murder" season. In the other Saturday tennis finals match, Cab Blackwell and Chum Ratteree, of the Alpha Lambda Tau frat, defeated Norman Creech and Charlie Thompson, of K. A. Group, to win the doubles championship. The K. A.'s had previously annexed the baseball crown by defeating the Spencer-Alumni dormitory team in the finals on Monday.

In the other events during the course of the annual play, several champions were crowned. "B" company won the football title after a fast playoff. Pi Kappa Phi waded through all opposition to capture the basketball crown. Pi Kappa Alpha was the winner in the swimming contests.

The tournament was run off under shorter, faster methods and President Frank Johnston of Blue Key states that he is appreciative of the splendid cooperation of the participants.

BILLBOARD OF SPORTS

— By —
BILL McLAURIN

One morning during the early summer of 1926 a 16-year-old youngster went up to John McGraw, then manager of the New York Giants. When McGraw asked him his mission, he said, "I'm a ball player." "Is that so," replied McGraw, "and what do you do?" "I can hit 'em," the youngster assured. McGraw was impressed by the spirit and determination of the lad who was pretty husky for his age, and decided to give the boy a chance. He sent one of his pitchers to the mound and told the lad to get a bat and show him some of that hitting he talked about. The bid strolled to the plate as calm as a veteran. Smelling salts were applied to McGraw, and as he came to he asked, "Where is he? Don't let him get away." "Right here, Mr. Mac," responded the lad. "Do you want to play for the Giants?" asked McGraw. "Nothing can keep me from it," the anxious youth replied. "Come around in the morning and be prepared to sign a contract," he was told. The lad had hit the first pitch into the stands at the Polo grounds and continued to wallop the agate until McGraw passed out. Now only 28 years old and starting his 12th season in the majors, Mel Ott, outfielder of the Giants, has become one of the greatest outfielders and hitters in the major leagues.

COACH JOHNSON

Walter A. Johnson, head coach at Presbyterian college for 23 years, and "grand old man" of South Carolina intercollegiate athletics, who this week completes another successful year at P. C. after having directed another state track meet that he has built into the "Little Olympics" of Carolina track meets.

Large Number Sign For Grid Uniforms

Coach Johnson last week put a sheet of paper on the bulletin board and asked that all men interested in competing for the varsity team next fall give their measurements for headgear, shoes and pants. Before we went to press today we noticed that he had to add an extension to the sheet because of the overwhelming response. In all 73 names have been signed to the sheet to date and more are expected to sign this week.

This is one of the longest lists of football aspirants in years and Coach Johnson seemed well pleased with the response.

Dave Carson, acting captain of the "bohunks" also posted a blank for his men to sign. They were to give their hip measurements, number of years on "bohunk" squad and number of the seat they desired to occupy during the fall campaign. Carson stated that they will have the greatest team in the history of the school with such stars as Mabry, McSwain, Broughton, Paschal and numerous others. Carson guides the team from his roving position, the spot earned him All-American Bohunk last year by a unanimous vote of all coaches and sports writers.

Softball Tilts Dominate Week

By BILL McLAURIN

Examination week seems to be sandlot week on the P. C. campus with several games going on at the same time every day and all day. The tree studded lot between the canteen and Smyth dorm is the principal park. Here the charges of Managers Todd and Hipp stage their daily duel which usually ends by close scores of 35 to 34 or something like that, or a free for all fight over whether or not "Student Body" Jacobs touched first on that terrific single he hit right back of the pitchers mound which Hipp lost in the sun. "Burnie" Brown is one of the most outstanding batters in the league and also wields a mean willow once he connects with the 10 pound "tape ball." The best pitching exhibition was turned in by T. C. Horton, pitching for the Toddlers, when he held the Hippos to 15 hits and only 28 runs, a remarkable performance. Not a man reached first more than 10 times and he did not try to strike out a man. Your reporter was told that the league will get underway early next year and the champion will be decided in a Shaughnessy play-off to be held during exam week.

Editor Commends Members Of Staff For Co-operation

Honors McInvail and Morrison With Medals.

Last Wednesday evening in the college chapel at the final staff meeting of The Blue Stocking, student weekly publication, gold keys for outstanding work and general dependability were presented to Harry McInvail, and D. M. Morrison, by L. G. Heckle, editor, following a short address by Hugh Holman, college director of publicity, on the subject, "The Value of Journalistic Experience To the College Man."

Speaking of the presentation of the awards, which were made on a basis of general ability, dependability, interest in the paper and general scholastic standing, Director Holman said, "You who are to receive these awards should realize that you are being especially honored, for of all people who judge your work, it is the editor alone who knows exactly of what you are capable and what you deserve. When he singles out men on the staff for commendation it means something."

Neither man receiving the gold medals, which bear the seal of the college, have ever missed an assignment deadline and it has never been necessary to rewrite any of the copy submitted by them.

Others especially commended by the editor were, Bill McLaurin, assistant sports editor; Harry Robertson, news reporter; Pete McCormick, managing editor; Buddy Lloyd, proofreader and communications manager; and Norton, Owens and Rutledge, staff reporters. On the business staff excellent work has been characteristic of Cruickshanks and Cooper, circulation managers, Editor Heckle stated.

Name Selected For Pre-Law Club

Prospective Barristers Choose "The Solons" As Title of Latest Campus Organization.

On Wednesday evening, May 18, the new law fraternity of Presbyterian college met in the forum room and opened its second official meeting since beginning on May 9. C. C. McSwain, vice-president of the organization, presented to the members a list of words proposed as suitable names for the fraternity. A number of these were Latin in origin and were suggested by Professor Bothwell Graham, of the departments of Latin and German.

The name formally accepted by the group was "The Solons." "The title is very significant because it was used as early as 638 B. C. to designate an Athenian lawgiver," a member of the fraternity stated, "and our purpose is closely related to the same work which these early sages accomplished."

Dugald W. Hudson was unanimously accepted as a charter member of the organization. This brings the total membership to fourteen.

President J. H. Wallace offered a motion that J. H. Wasson, one of the charter members, be given the official backing of the group in his race as a candidate for probate judge of Laurens county. The motion was carried.

Plans were inaugurated for a busy season next year. Several speakers have already been contacted and will meet with The Solons in September.

Wallace To Head I. R. C. Group

Chapman, Vice-President; Timmons, Secretary; and Stubbs, Treasurer.

At the final meeting of the year last Wednesday night, the International Relations club of the college finished all business for the year and cast ballots electing four major officers to direct the group next fall. The men elected and their respective offices are: J. H. Wallace, Griffin, Ga., president; Alvin Chapman, Anderson, vice-president; R. K. Timmons, Columbia, secretary, and J. T. Stubbs, Summerville, Ga., treasurer.

Wallace, a member of the junior class, is the recently elected president of the newly formed Pre-Law club, having been largely responsible for its organization here. He transferred at the beginning of this school year from Gordon Military college, Barnesville, Ga., and since coming to P. C. has been active in student affairs.

Chapman, also a junior, is editor of The Collegian, quarterly student magazine, for next year, and is associate editor The Blue Stocking, and the student annual publication, the PaC-SaC.

Timmons, a rising junior, made the highest average on the club's entrance examination among the students who took the test with him last year. Stubbs, also a rising junior, was appointed last year to fill an unexpired term. Both Timmons and Stubbs were elected by unanimous vote of the club.

Retiring president George Beatty closed the final meeting of the year, announcing several plans had been adopted for action at the open meeting next fall.

ILLUSION:

Josie, the lovely trapeze artist, stands upon a small platform. At the will of the magician she leaps twenty feet into the air to reach her trapeze. She uses no ropes, no ladder! A phenomenal leap for a woman . . . or a man!

EXPLANATION:

Josie didn't jump . . . she was sprung! The twenty-foot leap is not dependent on Josie's ability, but on a powerful spring mechanism hidden beneath the stage which propels the artist upward through the air. The force is so violent that the lady wears a light steel jacket which protects her from injury as she starts her astonishing leap.

IT'S FUN TO BE FOOLED ...IT'S MORE FUN TO KNOW

Magic has its place . . . but not in cigarette advertising.

Consider the illusion that there is a mysterious way to give cigarettes a superior "flavor."

EXPLANATION: Cigarette flavor can be controlled by adding artificial flavorings. By blending. And by the quality of tobaccos used.

Cheap, raw tobaccos can be "built up" or "fortified" by the lavish use of artificial flavorings.

Such magic, however, seldom holds the audience. Your taste finally tells you the truth.

The cigarette flavor that never stales, never varies, never loses its fresh appeal, comes from mild, ripe, fragrant, more expensive tobaccos . . . blended to bring out the full, round flavor of each type of leaf. It's the quality of the tobacco that counts!

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Because Camel actually pays millions more every year for choice tobaccos, you find in Camels an appealing mildness, a better flavor.

And Camels taste cooler because the welded Humidor Pack of three-ply, MOISTURE-PROOF cellophane keeps them fresh.

Aggregate of 3,607 Points Is Result of Week's Work. Two Men Hit Above 370.

The rifle team score last week was the highest shot by the Presbyterian college team during the present season. The team total was 3,607.

Two members of the team, M. H. Hunter and Captain A. D. Ferguson, shot scores of over 370. Ferguson got 373, while Hunter missed breaking his own record of 378 by only two points. This record was made last year.

Mail order matches were fired against five college teams this week, results of which have not yet been received. These schools are North Dakota Agricultural college, University of Alabama, DePaw University, Connecticut Agricultural college and The Citadel.

Numbered among teams which have been defeated this season by the P. C. sharpshooters are such schools as Rose Polytechnic institute, University of Vermont and Michigan State college.

The season will end in two weeks, after which the Heart Trophy match

On the basis of results in the dual meets among these three the following individual state champions were named:

Bantamweight, Tommy Lide, Clemson.

Featherweight, Eron Crow, Clemson.

Lightweight, Bill Clark, Presbyterian.

Welterweight, Charlie Bannister, Clemson.

Junior middleweight, none determined.

Middleweight, Bill Medlin, Clemson.

Light-heavyweight, Henry Willard, Carolina.

Heavyweight, Bob Sims, Presbyterian.

LETTERS GIVEN TO ATHLETES

Athletic Council Makes Awards To Basketball and Boxing Participants. Freshmen Included.

At a meeting of the Presbyterian College Athletic council on Thursday afternoon, the men who are to be awarded letters and numerals in basketball and boxing were decided upon.

Men to receive letters in varsity basketball are: Lynn, guard; Barron, guard; Collins, forward; Boggs, guard; Holcomb, forward; Frampton, guard; Bissett, forward, and Grey, manager.

The team that played the last few games was composed, with the exception of Lynn, of men who hadn't played in the regular line-up before. But what they lacked in knowledge of the game was more than replace by the fight and spirit which they displayed. Although they did not win, it is a fact that they never stopped trying.

The freshman team got off to a bad start this year but has consistently improved. Men to whom numerals were awarded are: Belk, center; Forehand, center; Levi, forward; Wyatt, forward; Adams, guard; Bradley, guard; Majors, guard; Quarterman, guard; Potter, forward; Little, forward; Viser, manager.

The boxing team, although not annexing any victories, was in there scrapping to the last bell. The showing made against Clemson was much better than the one made by Carolina against Clemson, although Carolina had previously defeated the Presbyterian team.

Letters were awarded to Seagle, 115; Bissett, 125; Clark, 135; McDuffie, 145; Horton (Capt.) 175; Parker (alt. Capt.) 155; Sims, unlimited; and Woodside, manager.

The team produced brilliant performers in Clark and Sims, both of whom won their fights against all their opponents, and therefore have a clear right to the state championship in their weights.

The athletic committee consists of the managers of each team, Prof. H. E. Sturgeon and Prof. A. V. Martin, faculty members, and the secretary-treasurer, "Babe" Rampey.

Gives Instruction In Life-Saving

Ramone S. Eaton, Red Cross life-saving instructor, returned to the campus last week for a stay of three days. During his visit he gave daily instruction in the principles and methods of life-saving. These instructions were given at the pool Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Many boys took advantage of this splendid opportunity to train themselves to be able to help others and themselves in case of emergency.

Some of the things taught in these courses are methods of approach to a drowning person, principles of breaking holds, and the prone pressure method of artificial respiration.

The school is indeed fortunate in having Mr. Eaton from time to time. It is hoped that more of the boys will avail themselves of the instruction in his future visits.

PAN-HELLENIC DATES SET FOR MARCH 10-11

The Pan-Hellenic council has finally made definite plans for the Pan-Hellenic dances which will be held March 10 and 11. "Jelly" Leftwitch and his orchestra of Duke university, has been secured for the occasion. This band has played widely in the South.

Four intercollegiate debates have already been tentatively arranged, and others are expected to be arranged in the near future. The query to be used is the Pi Kappa Delta national query for this year: "Resolved: That the United States should agree to the cancellation of the inter-allied war debts."

Three men on the campus this year are members of Pi Kappa Delta. They are Neely, Snipes and Ransom. Several new men have had debating experience in high school or junior college. Some of these are Lawter, Gibbs, Narron, Arnold, Haney and McDuffie.

Dr. D. O. Rhame To Practice Here

Dr. D. O. Rhame, Jr., class of 1926, after March first, will be associated with Dr. S. C. Hays of Clinton. He will have his office at the hospital, where he will make his headquarters. THREE DAYS' TOURNAMENT

Preliminaries Go Through Tuesday. Finals Take Place Thursday. Good Fights Expected.

The annual R. O. T. C. boxing tournament at Presbyterian college will get under way tonight in the Leroy Springs gymnasium, under the auspices of the military department of the college.

This tournament has been a high spot in the intra-mural athletic program at P. C. since its installation three years ago by Coach Walter Johnson and Captain Wysor.

Second round prelims and semi-finals will be held tomorrow night, with the finals to come Thursday.

The most talked-of bouts are the ones that will be fought in the extra special consolation matches. This is a new feature added to the tournament by Capt. Wysor. There are to be seven new champions crowned in the seven weight classes. None of the champs selected last year have elected to defend their laurels.

Of the thirty-six men taking part in the tournament, only two bantamweights have signed up. They are Cobb and Cranford. The winner of this fight will be declared bantamweight champion of the campus. In the featherweight and lightweight classes two fights are scheduled. There will be five welterweight bouts in the preliminaries.

The heavyweight bouts should be good. Holliday, Robinson, Harvin and Noland look as if they could put up good fights. The welterweight division has an overflow of men. Eleven will fight in this weight.

ILLUSION:

Josie, the lovely trapeze artist, stands upon a small platform. At the will of the magician she leaps twenty feet into the air to reach her trapeze. She uses no ropes, no ladder! A phenomenal leap for a woman . . . or a man!

EXPLANATION:

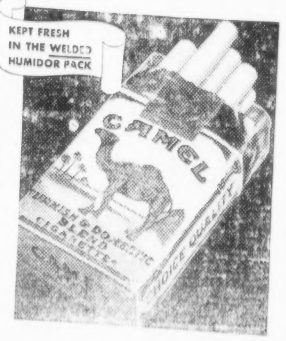
Josie didn't jump . . . she was sprung! The twenty-foot leap is not dependent on Josie's ability, but on a powerful spring mechanism hidden beneath the stage which propels the artist upward through the air. The force is so violent that the lady wears a light steel jacket which protects her from injury as she starts her astonishing leap.

IT'S FUN TO BE FOOLED
. . . IT'S MORE FUN TO KNOW

Magic has its place . . . but not in cigarette advertising.

Consider the illusion that there is a mysterious way to give cigarettes a superior "flavor."

EXPLANATION: Cigarette flavor can be controlled by adding artificial flavorings. By blending. And by the quality of tobaccos used.



Cheap, raw tobaccos can be "built up" or "fortified" by the lavish use of artificial flavorings.

Such magic, however, seldom holds the audience. Your taste finally tells you the truth.

The cigarette flavor that never stales, never varies, never loses its fresh appeal, comes from mild, ripe, fragrant, more expensive tobaccos . . . blended to bring out the full, round flavor of each type of leaf. It's the quality of the tobacco that counts!

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Because Camel actually pays millions more every year for choice tobaccos, you find in Camels an appealing mildness, a better flavor.

And Camels taste cooler because the welded Humidor Pack of three-ply, MOISTURE-PROOF cellophane keeps them fresh.

On the basis of results in the dual meets among these three the following individual state champions were named:

Bantamweight, Tommy Lide, Clemson.

Featherweight, Eron Crow, Clemson.

Lightweight, Bill Clark, Presbyterian.

Welterweight, Charlie Bannister, Clemson.

Junior middleweight, none determined.
